An official of the striking local 5 of the Hamilton Civic Employees Union (C.C.L.) said the union was considering a return to work by voluntary grave-diggers to open and close graves in city cemeteries. The grave diggers are on strike along with waterworks department workers.

R.A.F. Will Fly Mail to Men On Destroyers

Ottawa, Aug. 17 — (CP)—The navy has good news for the 800 sailors Canada has sent to Korea and for their families at home.

Headquarters said today arrangements have been made with the air force to have mail flown to and from Tokyo for the three destroyers now off Korea.

Mail has been going by sea and there has been some "beefing" from the men on the ships at its slowness.

BRITISH CIVILIAN DEFENCE

London, Aug. 17. (Reuters)—Britain is to increase expenditure for civil defence by more than half during the coming year, it was announced last night. A total of £6,714,285 ($20,680,000) will be spent to protect civilians against air attacks in 1950-51 compared with £4,107,142 last year.

TWO MORE BODIES FOUND IN RUINS OF CRUISE SHIP

Death Toll Reaches Total of Five Lives

Tadoussac, Que., Aug. 17 — (CP) — The wreckage of the St. Lawrence river cruise ship Quebec which burned here Monday night gave up another body today. This brought death toll to five.

Quebec provincial police said the fourth and fifth victims of the fire were believed to be Dr. and Mrs. Pickens Smith McCollum of Clemson, S.C.

The bodies were recovered near the cabin which the McCollums had occupied.

Woman's Body Found

Early last night the fourth body, believed to be that of a woman, was recovered by police from the Canada Steamship Lines pleasure vessel.

The fifth was located not far away by a wrecking and salvage crew working over the burned hulk of the 7,000-ton ship from which more than 400 passengers and 150 crew members disembarked amid smoke and flames Monday evening.

The fifth body was described as being "whole."

At first Canada Steamship Lines announced everybody aboard the stricken vessel had been accounted for. Even as the company continued to insist this was so newspaper men learned that three persons were missing and later three bodies — those of a man, a woman and a child — were discovered.

They were tentatively identified as Mr. and Mrs. Norman Shapiro of the town of Mount Royal, Que., and son, Leonard.

Another Shapiro boy, Bernard, escaped.

C.S.L. officials, asked by The Canadian Press for any information on a South Carolina doctor and his wife named McConnell or some similar name, admitted that a Dr. McCollum of Clemson, S.C., and his wife are not accounted for.

At this time provincial police said they had been advised by C.S.L. that two United States passengers of the fire-wrecked cruise ship have not been located.

32 American Prisoners Shot Dead by Red Koreans, Five Others Escape Slaughter

By HAL BOYLE

With U. S. 1st Cavalry, Korea, Aug. 17 — (AP) — Thirty - two American prisoners with hands tied behind their backs were shot dead today by red Koreans on a hill west of Waegwan just before a U. S. patrol reached the spot.

The reds tried to kill 37 prisoners in all. But five lived to tell the story. They said the communists also massacred the wounded as they lay moaning on the ground.

This was in the area bombed yesterday by 98 B-29s in the heaviest air raid of the war.

The execution of the prisoners was on a hill captured by the reds this morning.

Their bodies were found on a ridge recaptured this afternoon.

The American prisoners were killed only two hours before troopers retook the ridge. The hill had been fought over for 3 days.

The 37 Americans were mowed down by bursts of gunfire.

Three North Korean prisoners were taken after a sharp fire fight nearby. One of them was identified by an American survivor as a member of the squad of killers.

Regimental officers said he would be sent back with recommendation that he be tried as a war criminal.

Once Called Lords 'Political Ghetto' Succeeds as Peer

London, Aug. 17 (CP)—Death of Lord Hailsham, famous British lawyer, ironically raises to the peerage a man who once called the House of Lords a "political ghetto."

It also leaves three parliamentary by-elections pending and raises Labor's elected majority in the House of Commons to six.

Lord Hailsham, 78, twice Lord Chancellor, died yesterday. His son, Quintin Hogg, automatically succeeds to the title and thus gives up his seat as Conservative member of parliament for Oxford.

Hogg, a 42-year-old lawyer, was regarded as one of the best speakers in the House of Commons and a candidate for high office if the Conservatives came to power. Now he goes to the chamber he once described as a political ghetto reserved for the eldest sons of peers.

"For myself," he once told the Commons, "I have never believed in the hereditary principle, and it is nothing but a peculiar mockery of fate which has involved me in the absurd position of being a potential example of it.

"For 20 years I have been wondering how I might avoid sitting in the House of Lords. There is no means of achieving this...".

The Daily Telegraph, which said Hogg had made no secret of his high ambitions, noted he would be barred from top state jobs, including the premiership.

Besides a by-election to replace Hogg at Oxford, where his majority at the last general election was 3,606 in a four-cornered contest, by-elections are pending in Leicester northeast and in the Scotstoun division of Glasgow.

RESEARCH SHIP ON SURVEY

Fremantle, Australia, Aug. 17 (Reuters) — The British government's 1,100-ton research ship Discovery II has left this west Australian port on a hydrographic survey mission in the Tasman Sea south of Australia. The ship's company of 55 includes four scientific officers and three assistants who will study the chemical and physical characteristics of sea water at different depths.

Car Overturns In Heavy Fog, Man is Killed

Owen Sound, Aug. 17 (CP) — William T. Brien, 32, was fatally injured and Mort A. Abrams, 26, suffered multiple injuries when Abrams' car overturned in a heavy fog on the Shallow Lake highway last night.

Brien, proprietor of a collection agency, died in hospital here early today without recovering consciousness. Abrams, a lawyer, suffered a broken left leg, several fractured ribs and a possible punctured lung. He required several blood transfusions and hospital authorities reported his condition as "fair."

Harry Lumley, Detroit Red Wings goalkeeper who has been traded to Chicago Black Hawks, was the first to arrive on the crash scene and notified police.

Auchinleck Made Chief Big Pine

Brantford, Aug. 17 (CP) — Britons may know him as the victorious planner of El Adamein, but to the Six Nations Indians of the Brantford district, Field Marshal Sir Claude Auchinleck is Chief Big Pine.

Indian chiefs and an Indian princess in full regalia conferred the title on "The Auk" yesterday in a ceremony that was duly recorded by the cameras of 50 British schoolboys who took in the event as part of an eastern Canadian tour which Sir Claude is conducting as president of the London Federation of Boys' Clubs.

The 24-day tour is sponsored by Garfield Weston, Canadian-born British industrialist.

RESCUED BY FIREMEN

Toronto, Aug. 17 — (CP) — Buried to his waist in coal and being drawn toward a boiler by a mechanical feeder, William Maneely, 69, was rescued by firemen last night. He suffered only bruises and shock.

"I thought I was a goner," said Maneely, who fell into a hopper in the boiler house at the Consumers' Gas Co.

Bustling Commander of New Fighting Force Threshes Out Details of Brigade

Ottawa, Aug. 17 (CP) — The one man in kilts at defence headquarters said "the B.M. must have a gin palace." The officer conferring with him seemed to think that was a reasonable assertion.

They passed on to other talk, about supply, about jeeps and bren-gun carriers and sleeping bags, all serious, exploratory talk because this was the temporary and tiny and busy headquarters of Canada's special force.

The man in kilts was Brig. John Rockingham, the husky Brirtish Columbian who has pitched into the job of commanding the special brigade group Canada is mustering to fight in Korea or elsewhere.

Until he moves his headquarters to Petawawa, Ont., shortly, he is working in a single, green-walled room at defence headquarters with two desks, a temporary assistant, a map of Korea a map of Canada, an open window and an open door.

People come and go constantly. Today the men named to command the brigade's units will marshal there to meet and to get instructions.

MINISTERS WILL STRIVE TO MOULD FORMOSA POLICY

Island Considered Powder Keg of 3rd War

By ARTHUR GAVSHON

London, Aug. 17—(AP)—The Big Three western foreign ministers will try to hammer out a common policy next month over what to do about Formosa—possible powder keg of a third world war.

Informants said the minister's study will be preceded by a full-scale discussion of the problem by the United States and Britain.

The two countries have been at loggerheads over the status of the island, 110 miles off communist China's mainland but still occupied by Chiang Kai-Shek's nationalist government.

The American, British and French foreign ministers are meeting in New York Sept. 9. Their parley will be followed by a session of the 12-country Atlantic Pact Council. The Atlantic allies are bound by their treaty to consult each other on crucial foreign policy issues.

Weeks of discussion between American and British officials both here and in Washington so far have failed to produce a mutually-acceptable policy on Formosa.

The stalemate revolves around the order of Pesident Truman last June dispatching the U.S. Seventh Fleet to protect the island against a possible red Chinese attack. At the same time the President called on the nationalists to stop bombing the Chinese mainland and ships trading with it.

He did so in the hope of localizing the mainland and ships trading with it.

He did so in the hope of localizing the Korean war and neutralizing Formosa.

Headless Frenchman of Kettle Creek Still Roams Pennsylvania Wilds

Lock Haven, Pa., Aug. 17—(AP) —So you don't believe in ghosts! Well, maybe that's because you don't live near Road Hollow. For the headles Frenchman of Kettle Creek still roams the wilds in these parts.

At least, that's what the folks of Clinton County say. And a reporter and photographer for the Lock Haven Express, who checked the authenticity of the legend, aren't saying yes or no.

Legend has it that the ghost belongs to a French explorer who robbed a secret cave of Indian silver centuries ago. The Indians, it seemed, avenged their loss by beheading the Frenchman when he returned for more silver.

Reporter Pete Stevenson and photographer Jim Patterson set out to track down the ghost.

On a chilly, misty night they parked their car near the bridge spanning Kettle Creek at Road Hollow. As they sat waiting, the only sound filling the night air was that of the distant pounding of a gas-well drill working the night shift.

Suddenly a flickering, wavering form reared up less than 100 feet away. They edged toward the Thirty-Day Delay For Negotiation Proposed by Govt.

Would Welcome Mediator Before Aug. 22 Deadline

By JOHN LEBLANC
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Ottawa, Aug. 17 — (CP)) — Unions engaged in the railway labor dispute today rejected a government appeal for a 30-day deferment of their Aug. 22 general strike.

But they joined the railways in acceding to an urgent government request for resumption of their negotiations that have been broken off for a week.

The union reaction came today in replies to a letter sent the disputants last night by Prime Minister St. Laurent asking that negotiations be resumed and that failing settlement by Aug. 22, the postponement be ordered.

Ask for Mediator

In return, he said the government would appoint a special commissioner to mediate the wage-hour dispute.

Today's reply of the Canadian unions, representing 34,000 of the 124,000 employees under strike orders, said a mediator would be welcomed—but before the Aug. 22 deadline.

The Canadian unions' reply did not completely shut off the possibility of an eventual postponement.

While it declared it could offer no "encouragement" on this point it adedd that "a great deal" would depend on what progress could be made toward establishing a basis of settlement before the afternoon of Aug. 21.

That indicated this was the latest time at which the union chiefs here and in Montreal could halt the ponderous machinery, in motion for several weeks.

Straight Turn-Down

The reply of the 15 international unions, representing 90,000 workers, was a straight turn-down of the 30-day plea accompanied by an expression of their willingness to start bargaining again.

No mention was made of the proposed mediator in the larger group's telegram to Prime Minister St. Laurent.

Shortly afterwards, the major railways announced at Montreal they were prepared to resume discussions with the unions. These were broken off last Thursday, when the companies' "final" offer was rejected by the 17 labor bodies representing the 124,000 employees involved in the dispute.

Union spokesmen withheld comment pending study of the government appeal by their negotiating committees. Replies are expected today.

ELECTRICAL CONVERSION

Toronto, Aug. 17—(CP)—Nearly 200,000 pieces of electrical equipment have been converted from 25 to 60 cycles during the first 10 months of the Ontario Hydro Commission's frequency conversion program.

It is estimated the program will take from 10 to 12 years to finish.

So far, conversion has been finished in East York and Scarboro townships near Toronto; the town of Sutton on Lake Simcoe; near Sarnia from Point Edward to Courtwright and parts of London.

NEW MOTORCYCLE DELIVERED TO O.P.P.

To assist in traffic patrol in the Belleville Trenton area, the Belleville headquarters of the Ontario Provincial Police accepted delivery of a new Harley-Davidson motorcycle yesterday. The new bike will be used for traffic patrol work out of Belleville, especially between this city and Trenton. The motorcycle will be operated by Traffic Officer G. Harding.

COLLISION DAMAGES DELIVERY TRUCK, CAR

Damages of approximately $200 resulted to two vehicles at the corner of Dundas and Bleecker on Wednesday when they were in collision at the intersection.

Reg. Williams, 44 St. Paul St., and James Ashbury, driving a panel delivery truck, were both proceeding east on Dundas when Ashbury attempted to make a left hand turn onto Bleecker when his vehicle was in collision with the Williams car as it attempted to pass.

ARRESTED ON CHARGE OF FALSE PRETENCES

Acting on a warrant issued by the Cobourg police department, provincial police at Picton have arrested Howard Fraser, 24, of that town, on a charge of false pretences.

Police stated that Fraser was wanted both in Cobourg and in Belleville in connection with the passing of worthless cheques. At least eight worthless cheques are believed to have been passed by Fraser with merchants and gasoline station operators in this city.

SEVERAL EXHIBITS STOLEN FROM BOOTHS

Gaining entrance through one of the windows, thieves made their way into the Club Commodore building at the local fair grounds Wednesday night and made off with several exhibits in one of the fair booths.

The booths visited by the thieves were that of Roluf's Music Store where a trumpet and two trumpet cases were stolen, and that of Paul Mercier, jeweller, where two electric clocks were taken.

TOMATOES OFFERED IN QUANTITY

Volume on the market this morning was down from Tuesday, but offering was still good. Prices remained firm in most cases. Corn was a little cheaper at 35 cents per dozen, and tomatoes, depending on quality, moved from 50 cents for six quarts to $1. The tomatoes, by far, were the biggest part of the market.

Cantaloupe, in the first real quantity showing this year, varied from 20 cents to 40 cents, with size the determining factor. Some of the largest cabbage on this year's market were offered th morning.

Other vegetable prices remained steady from the weekend.

Duchess apples, in fair supply, were being offered at 50 cents per basket, and yellow harvests were 40 cents.

Obituary

HARRY BOLTON DAY

After an illness of lengthy duration, Harry Bolton Day, a resident of this city for seventy years, died at the Belleville General Hospital late Wednesday afternoon. Harry Day was born in Baldock, England, 80 years ago, being the son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Robert Day and as a young boy he came to Belleville to settle and has continually resided in this city.

For many years he operated a soft drink plant and "Day's Ginger Beer," was noted for its fine quality throughout the district and province. He was a true sportsman and was never happier, than when toting a gun through the woods or fishing on some quiet waters. There is probably not a man in the district who knew the Bay of Quinte better than Harry Day. The late Mr. Day was a marksman and an expert angler and it was a pleasure to reminisce with Mr. Day on the early days in this community. He had a legion of friends, who will sincerely regret his death.

Surviving are his wife, the former Maude Ethel Curtis, three daughters, Mrs. J. (Grace) Dale of Trenton, Mrs. J. (Marjory) Bunnett of Belleville, Mrs. J. (Barbara) Sweet of Belleville, nine sons, James and Cecil of Trenton, Walter, Edward, Horace (Bud), Clarence, Allan, Douglas and Ronald Day all of this city and a brother William Day also of Belleville.

Resting at the Belleville Burial Company Funeral Home, the funeral announcement is made elsewhere in this edition.

ELIZABETH McMULLEN ATWOOD
(North Vancouver, Belleville)

On Aug. 7th., 1950 a long life closed in North Vancouver B.C., when Elizabeth McMullen, widow of A. O. Atwood, passed to her reward. In failing health for the last year the end came peacefully in her sleep. She was the second daughter of Robert McMullen and his wife Margaret Townsend and was born at Holloway in 1862. She was twice married, first to John Jeffery of Sidney and in her later years to A. O. Atwood of Alberta. She lived in Murray township and following the death of her first husband she moved to Sidney and later to Belleville, and in 1913 to Calgary. After her second marriage, she moved to Salmon Arm, B.C., and eventually to North Vancouver, B.C. where Mr. Atwood died in 1939. She was a very faithful member of the United Church and as long as her health permitted expended herself for the W.A. and the Red Cross.

She leaves to mourn her passing two children by her first marriage, Mabel, Mrs. John Gavey, North Vancouver, B.C., and Percy of Calgary, Alberta; also three grandchildren and two great grandchildren.

She is the last of her family as all her nine brothers and sisters have predeceased her. Burial took place on Aug. 9th., 1950 in the family plot in Capilano View Cemetery, B.C.

MURRAY DOUGLAS REILLY
(Murray Township)

Frankford—After an illness of one week, Murray Douglas Reilly of Murray Township died in Belleville General Hospital late Wednesday afternoon. He was born in Belleville, 13 years ago being the son of Mr. and Mrs. Lendrum Reilly and for the past five years has resided on the 7th concession of Murray township and attended Stockdale public school. He was a boy of fine character and was well liked by his playmates.

He was a member of the Pentecostal Church at Frankford and surviving are his parents, one brother Donald at home, and two sister, Mrs. June Irish of Belleville and Miss Gloria at Home.

The funeral announcement is made elsewhere in this edition.

LATE GEORGE A. STANBURY
(Campbellford)

Funeral services were held at 2.30 on Wednesday for George A. Stanbury, a lifelong resident of Seymour township, who passed away at the new Civic Hospital in Peterborough, following an illness of only a few weeks, on Sunday last. He was in his 78th year.

Mr. Stanbury, who was the son of Edward Stanbury and Mary Ann Gilmour, both deceased, was well known locally and had lived at the same home in Seymour nearly all his life. His grandparents, who came to this country from Devonshire, England, were pioneers in Seymour.

Surviving is his wife, the former Margaret Owen, four sons, Edward of Campbellford; Gerald of Elmira N.Y.; Clarence of Bath, N.Y.; Ronald of Peterborough. There are also three daughters, Mrs. John Kane, (Jerrine) of Albany, N.Y.; Mrs. Frank Hogan, (Amy) of Rochester, N.Y.; Mrs. Robert J. Floody, (Lillian) of Nutley, N.J.

Mr. Stanbury also leaves three sisters, Mrs. Fred Kincaid of Unionville, Ont.; Mrs. Burton Soughard, of Toledo, O., and Mrs. William Wiley of Alberta.

Being a lifelong resident of the district, Mr. Stanbury was well informed on the history of his home county, and his judgment and knowledge was respected by local citizens.

Services were conducted from Bennett's Funeral Parlors on Frank Street in Campbellford at 2.30 p.m. on Wednesday by the Rev. A. E. Toombs of St. Andrew's Presbyterian church, after which burial was in Mt. Pleasant Cemetery.

Pall bearers were Messrs. Chas. O'Sullivan, William Macoun, Earl Dunham, William Brown, Douglas Rutherford and Fred Longmuir.

AARON HORTON ASHLEY
(West Huntingdon)

Stirling— Ill for the past two years, Aaron Horton Ashley died at his home, West Huntingdon early this Thursday morning. He was born on the homestead, where he died, 75 years ago, being the son of the late George Ashley and Amy Horton. He was a farmer all his active life and enjoyed the esteem and respect of a wide circle of friends in the community and district.

He was a member of West Huntingdon United Church and for many years served as treasurer and at the time of his death was an elder of the congregation. He took an active interest in all branches of the church's work.

Surviving are his wife, the former Nellie Wood, one son, George Vernon Ashley at home, and two sisters, Miss Julia Ashley of Belleville and Mrs. Mathews Jones of Corbyville.

The funeral announcement is made elsewhere in this edition.

Baby Chimpanzee's I.Q. Said Equal To 7-Year-Old Human

"Jackie" is just six months old, but he has teeth that can remove a neat if not gaudy chunk from too-inquisitive finger if the digit comes within range.

Furthermore Jackie's body and the biggest part of his homely little face is covered with long hair.

He will gaze at you with those mournful eyes of his, and even grab your finger with the strength of a ten-year-old. But watch those teeth.

He is not a carnivore, neither is the Jackie family. He thrives on vegetables and fruit, and he will pucker a disdainful snoot at a three-inch juicy steak.

Jackie's family from away back have been vegetarians. After all, steaks and chops do not grow atop tall trees which is Jackie's natural habitat.

He is one of the chimpanzee family that is currently being shown at the Belleville Fair under the expert training eye of Miss Helen Haag and her assistant Margaret, Patty and Pete are the three adult chimps with near-human intelligence which at one time were features of the well-known Ed. Sullivan television show.

These "monks" remove their own clothing after the show and toss it atop their cages. They eat sparingly and are as a rule well-behaved youngsters, even if they object to the too-near approach of strange humans.

And in case you're interested, the I.Q. of Jackie the six-months baby is the equivalent to that of a seven-year old human.

24 Speed Charges Listed by O.P.P.

Indicating that provincial police at Belleville are clamping down on speeding motorists, a total of 24 speeding charges were listed on the Thursday morning Magistrate's court docket presented before Magistrate T. Y. Wills

The majority of motorists so charged settled their cases out of court, but a number were enlarged for personal service, while Magistrate Wills enlarged still another for two weeks for judgment.

Frederick Hennessey, Carrying Place, appeared on a charge of bicycle theft and was remanded for one week with bail being set at $500.

C. Blanchfield, and William George Windsor, both of Toronto, charged with breaking and entering the Belleville Livestock Sales last July 30th, appeared in court and were again remanded for two weeks with bail being renewed for both men.

Provincial police charge that the above two men entered the building and smashed open the safe.

What Christianity is Doing for Japan Graphically Described by Dr. Kagawa

It was an impressive sight last evening when the great congregation, representatives from all parts of the district, assembled in Bridge Street United Church to hear the world's renowned Christian leader and missionary, Dr. Toyohiko Kagawa, of Japan, speak on "Japan For Christ," rose to join the black-gowned choir in the singing of the hymn, "There Is No East or West."

Dr. Kagawa, who came to the city under the auspices of the Belleville Ministerial Association, was introduced by his personal friend, the Reverend Dr. A. E. Armstrong, who in turn had been introduced by the Reverend F. R. Harback, pastor of Tabernacle United Church. The invocation prayer was given by Archdeacon Arthur Smith, rector of St. Thomas' Anglican Church, and opening prayer by the Reverend Lloyd Shorten, former pastor of Foxboro United Church.

Dr. Armstrong, in his introductory remarks, presented Dr. Kagawa, whom he had met in Japan, as the Servant of God, the lover of little children, the lover of his fellow-man, and of his native land, which he loved so intensely that he desired the best for them. Upon one of Dr. Kagawa's former visits to Canada, he had noticed the maple trees, and because Japan was in need of sugar, asked that one bushel of maple seeds might be shipped to Japan. This was readily done.

Describes Homeland

Dr. Kagawa prefaced his most interesting address by a brief geographical description of his homeland, Japan, stating that it was in area about the size of California, and had up to 80,000,000 population at the present time. He also told, at some length, the story of Japan's struggle to get the 'light', mentioning a young nobleman of the Society of Jesus, who had brought a first inkling, and then 91 years ago Commander Perry had come, and later still Ambassador Parks. Seventy-five years ago, the prime minister of Japan had visited America, and found there two religions, the Roman Catholic, of which faith the young nobleman had been, and the Protestant faith, from which had grown the Christian church in Yokohama, and in the following year, the Christian church in Tokyo. They have now a fine indigenous church.

The Bible brought the spirit of love and the spirit of peace. When he had been small he was filled with fear of all nature, and had been told there were demons in the water, on the land, in the trees, in the hills. It was a religion of fear, demon fear predominated everything. The Bible taught that God was the loving Father and fear disappeared.

No Home Life Formerly

Because there had been no God, there was no purity in the nation, nor in society until five years ago. There had been no home life; divorce was rampant, and concubinage the prevailing custom; gentlemen kept many wives, only the emperor had one wife; he neither drank nor smoked, due to the influence of his empress, who was a consistent reader of the Bible.

Dr. Kagawa mentioned the influence of the Word of God in the different countries of Europe, with its bearing on their social life. Every country where the Word was fead and obeyed, was for the most part moral, depending on the obedience to the Word, and wherever the Bible was studied, there was the most home life. Sweden being the most moral of all. He mentioned going to nature to study the morals of the birds, and animals, and without exception, save in a few rare instances, as of the farm yards chickens, which were cooped up, monogamy prevailed.

MacArthur Respected

Japan was not defeated, stated the speaker, through lack of soldiers, or of armaments, but because of its dissolute life. Without the Gospel there was no hope of Japan's survival. In the beginning the Japanese had feared General MacArthur, but now this fear had turned to deep respect. During the five years since the war no Allied soldier had been killed, nor had a Japanese soldier been killed by the Allied soldiers.

The money that had been spent for armaments in former years was now being used to educate the children of the nation of which there are 16,000,000 Schools and universities had been built and all children from six to 15 years had to attend school. University education was completely free, with only a nominal charge of something like three dollars per year being asked. Women, too, are now being instated to their rightful positions in the nation, with 45 being elected to the House of Commons, this last year.

"It is better to arm in Jesus Christ than to arm for war" said the speaker. We must be redemptive in outlook in order to be creative, to go forth in the Gospel of Jesus, so that piety, purity, love and peace shall be the banner under which Japan goes forth in the future."

Dr. Kagawa wished to thank America for the fine missionaries who had come with the light of the true Gospel, and who had done so much for the land he loved so well.

Fair Secretary And Assistant Busy People

The office of a fair secretary is a busy place at fair time. Activity commences long weeks before the big event is scheduled to take place and during the course of the fair attention to detail becomes a pressure that is well night unbearable.

First there is the preparing of the fair prize book listing the hundreds of different types of exhibits acceptable, and the amount of prize money offered.

These have to be mailed out to prospective exhibitor. Then as fair time rolls around the entries start rolling in and the pressure begins to mount for the fair secretary and his assistant.

But it is with the commencement of the fair that the secretary's office really begins to hum. Then there are dozens and dozens of people demanding last minute entries and the complaints, beefs and requests start to roll in. And in the midst of all this prize lists have to be written in and pay vouchers written out for prize winners.

Answers Many Questions

The secretary may be attending to a last minute race horse entry when the telephone jangles and a voice on the other end of the wire demands to know when she is going to get the prize money. That her pride and joy won at the baby show.

Before this is attended to several exhibitors are waiting in line seeking passes for entry to the fair grounds. The secretary is asked to act as intermediary in contacting fair officials out on the grounds and at the same time is expected to iron out the many little differences which inevitably arise during the course of the fair.

And as the payoff, a fair "fair" patron called in at the secretary's office wanting to know if she could get a piece of string to tie on the sole of her daughter's shoe.

So the ever-accommodating secretary's assistant goes in search of a piece of cord which might answer the purpose. "And now we have just one more accomplishment—that of a shoe-repairman," she laughed.

Good lambs sold for $29-$29.50 for good ewes and wethers bucks $1 discount; good light sheep $13-[illegible]

TORONTO STOCKS

Toronto, Aug. 17. (CP)—Steady buying pulled a wide list of market leaders into higher ground on the Toronto Stock Exchange today. The advance was slow but steady and key stocks showed the strongest gains in continuation of yesterday advance. Volume for the first three hours was 715,000 shares.

Industrial stocks pushed upward after breaking index records in the three previous sessions. Several key issues in widely diverted groups showed highs for the year. Kelvinator gained $4 at $76 in the manufacturing and Massey Harris added 3-4 at $30 in the agriculture. Ford A pushed $2 higher at $55.

Base Metals opened easier but later in the session began to pull ahead and some major issues chalked up impressive gains. Consolidated Smelters, Noranda, Quemont and United Keno Hill were all higher. Sherritt Gordon recovered early losses.

Golds were mixed but some seniors advanced over a broad front. Dome added 1-4 at 14 1-8 and Kerr-Addison gained 1-8 at 15 5-8. Wright Hargreave was also up, Juniors showed gains ranging up to five cents.

Western Oils jumped ahead strongly after a slow start.

Fisherman Drowned In Storm in B.C.

Victoria, B.C., Aug. 17 (CP)—Reports received today from remote Vancouver Island points indicated that one man had been drowned and several fishing boats driven aground in a gale striking at the island's west coast.

The RCMP detachment at Port Alice on the northerly west coast reported that James Watt, a Nanaimo fisherman, was lost in the storm, which struck late Monday or early Tuesday.

The grounded vessels, possibly nine, apparently were caught off Sea Otter Cove, only a short distance from Cape Scott on the extreme tip of Vancouver Island.

There were unsubstantiated reports that a "tidal wave" also hit the ships.

U.K. RADIO FUTURE STUDIED

London, Aug. 17 — (CP) —A fact-finding commission, headed by Lord Beveridge, has completed its inquiry into the future of broadcasting in Britain. More than 200 witnesses were heard during the 10 months of evidence-taking, all selected spokesmen of nearly 2,000 that applied to appeal before the commission.

Lord Beveridge, acquitted of Britain's 'cradle-to-the-grave' social service plan, expects to have his report ready for the government before the end of the year.

PICKET LINE ACTION

Piles of garbage and picket lines are a feature of Hamilton's strike of nearly 1,100 civic employees normally engaged on outside work. This photo shows a scene outside Hamilton's east end dump after a road block of 13 cars was opened by a tow truck under police orders towing them away. The car surrounded by the pickets was owned by a private citizen attempting to take his garbage to the dump.—Central Press Canadian.

Increased Buying May Endanger National Economy

Lake Couchiching, Ont., Aug. 17 (CP)—Morgan Reid, Toronto economist, said today that increased buying by Canadians in expectation of price rises and shortages as a result of defence spending may endanger the Canadian economy.

Mr. Reid, secretary of the Management Advisory Committee of the Robert Simpson Company, told the Canadian Institute of Public Affairs:

"The upward pressure exerted on prices is very considerable and there is always the inherent danger that when some accumulation of a precipitate character turns out to be unnecessary, the resulting price decline might be serious.

"The immense threat of total war has tended to change the attitude toward spending."

Such psychology is not justified, Mr. Reid said. Canada's productive capacity has increased tremendoulsy since the Second World War and her labor force now is much larger than at any other time in her history, so that there is no need for inflation in Canada's approach to the Korean situation.

MAKE EXCELLENT PROGRESS

London, Aug. 17—(Reuters)—Princess Elizabeth and her two day old daughter had a good night and are "making excellent progress," an official bulletin said today.

"It is not intended to issue any further bulletin this week," it said.

A final bulletin probably will be issued early next week.

POLICE SAVE BABY

Hanover, Aug. 17. (Reuters)—Doctors saved the life of a four-week-old illegitimate baby, buried for 22 hours by its mother, who wanted to "protect her reputation". The child was dug up by a miner who noticed a movement in some freshly-turned earth. Martha Sykera admitted burying the infant alive, German police said.

Asks Police Aid Search for Girl

Chatham, Aug. 17 — (CP) — Provincial police have been asked to aid the search for Marion Humphrey, 17-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Humphrey of nearby Bothwell, missing since Sunday. When she left on her bicycle Sunday she said she was going to attend the Fairfield observances near Thamesville.

The Humphreys, who have 10 children, received a telephone call late last night from a woman who refused to identify herself saying the girl had been seen near Wabash yesterday.

The mother said today she did not suspect anything serious had happened to the girl.

WANT WHITE CHRISTMAS

Yeovil, Somerset, England — (CP) — Glove workers here are dreaming of a white Christmas. Two mild winters in Britain have piled up unsold stocks and operatives are on short time.

More Than 5,000 Men Now Enlisted

Ottawa, Aug. 17 (CP) — The army said today that more than 5,000 men now are enlisted in Canada's special force for Korea or elsewhere.

That is the number needed for a brigade group such as the one Canada is mustering, but Defence Minister Claxton has said recruiting will continue for reinforcements.

A target of at least 8,000 men is believed to be the official aim.

Deny Knowledge Foreign Warship Off East Coast

Halifax, Aug. 17 — (CP)—The navy today denied any knowledge of a foreign destroyer operating off the Canadian east coast.

A newspage story in the Halifax Chronicle - Herald said earlier that the navy was keeping a close watch on a foreign destroyer sighted off Halifax yesterday.

The navy statement, issued by Commander F. W. Lucas, Chief of Staff to the flag officer Atlantic coast, said the carrier Magnificent returned to Halifax yesterday ahead of schedule because of fog conditions which made flying training impossible.

The statement added that the Royal Navy sloop Snipe is paying a series of courtesy calls at various maritime ports and may possibly have been mistaken for an unknown destroyer.

THE BIRTH OF A PRINCESS

There is gladness in the Royal Family, in the capital city of London and in all parts of the Commonwealth. For a baby girl has been born to the Princess Elizabeth, the elder daughter of the King and Queen. The coming of this child into the world was heralded in a manner which would have been impossible a few decades ago but the very freedom of this age made possible the keenness and the depth of interest of the people in anticipation of the royal birth.

The coming of a child into any home is an event of great happiness and the birth of the little British Princess who is as yet unnamed was an event which naturally drew expressions of gladness from every part of the British world. The people of London were eloquent in their expressions of joy and this was symbolic of the interest of the people of the Dominions scattered about the world. The enthusiasm everywhere shown in the royal event was eloquent of the people's love and devotion to the Throne.

The birth of the Princess once again stresses the never to be forgotten fact that the child is the centre of the family which has always been and is the great institution of life. How well the Royal Family fits into this picture of the importance and value of the family life the world well knows. The British people themselves are stalwart in their defence of the great realities of life among which is the great and endearing fact of the family life.

The peoples of the Commonwealth at this time look to Britain and feel the family tie which binds them together. In the birth of the Princess they see the fact of the continuity of life and the institution of the family and feel the inspiration of this event.

FUND PROVES SUCCESSFUL

The Unsatisfied Judgment Fund, considered just another headache by automobile owners in 1947, is proving to be a fine move. Authorities expect that by the end of 1950, the fund will have paid out close to $1,300,000 in judgments.

Monies collected for the fund are for the redress of persons injured or property damaged by a financially irresponsible, uninsured driver. The fund is resorted to only when the amount of a court judgment cannot be collected otherwise. Then the injured party may apply to the fund.

The government scheme met with some opposition at its initiation, but the people who were its opponents must now be in favor of it, if they can visualize the fund's scope at all. For the past two years, persons renewing their driver's licences have been required to pay 50 cents for each licence. This is a small price to pay for the insurance the fund offers.

One of the farther reaching aspects of the scheme is that Ontario has provided for agreements between herself, all the other Canadian provinces and 27 of the United States that judgment debtors will be suspended on their roads. When the offending driver has repaid the money to the fund, he is again allowed to drive, providing his licence has not been suspended for any other offence.

Fees collected by the fund in the first six months this year amount to more than $600,000. Total payments for this year are estimated at approximately the same amount, but the fund will wind up with a balance of close to $100.000.

The fund serves a double purpose. Not only does it protect the automobile driver, it helps reduce dangerous and careless driving on provincial roads. This in turn will eventually lead to less accidents, it is hoped.

Certainly such payment as is required by the government in order to finance the fund will never be a heavy load on anyone at the present level. And, as said before, the protection is well worth the effort.

ELDERBERRY ISSUE

The elderberry line can be tightly drawn. There is no compromising. A person is either rabidly pro-elderberry or he does not care at all for the pie or jelly.

There are, of course, a few city people who do not know the taste of elderberries. They are rated lucky or unlucky depending upon which group is making the appraisal.

The common elder, which grows in fence rows, along roadsides and on the margin of woods, belongs to the honeysuckle family. It bears small white flowers and black, purple or red berries.

The pith is easily extracted from elder shoots. Even those who did not care for elderberry pie have from earliest times used the wood for making whistles, popguns and other toys.

Some trees and shrubs which take the name are not true elders. The poison elder is a sumac. The box elder is a maple. There is, however, no substitute for elderberry pie; take it or leave it. — Cleveland Press.

If you would convince a man that he does wrong, do right. Let them see. — Thorea.

JUST FOLKS

"IF I WERE RICH"

"If I were rich!" Why waste the time
With, if a dollar were the dime
I would do this? Ere day is through Instead do what the dime can do.

"If I were rich!" The phrase is vain.
The needs we'd serve unserved remain.
But there's that lesser need nearby
Which, if we would, we could supply.

"If I were rich!" That means that we
With much to spare would generous be.
The widow's mite was truly great
Because for more she didn't wait.

She named no contribution which
She'd surely make if she were rich.
She proved her love for service good
By gladly doing all she could.

LOOKING BACKWARDS

GLEANINGS FROM OUR FYLES OF BYGONE YEARS

20 YEARS AGO

August 17th, 1930

Mr. M. L. McPherson, Alexander Street, is spending a few days with friends in Kingston.

There was a very large market today. Blackberries sold at 25 cents per box; plums brought 65 cents per basket; apples 40 cents per peck; huckleberries 25 cents per quart; chickens 75 cents to $1.25 per pair; butter 40 cents per pound, and eggs 30 cents per dozen.

Mrs. Gibson and family of Newark, New Jersey, are visiting the former's mother, Mrs. E. Robinson, Highland Avenue.

Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Black of this city are spending a few days in Montreal.

Misses Lena and Grace Jackson are spending a vacation at Wasaga Beach.

30 YEARS AGO

August 17th, 1920

Mr. and Mrs. W. B. Northrup, Ottawa, have returned to this city for a time and have opened their house on North Front St.

The tax rate in Trenton this year will be 36 mills on the dollar.

Sir. H. Gilbert Parker, who is home on a brief visit, was tendered a welcome last evening in the Masonic Temple by the Masons of the three local lodges. The affair took the form of a banquet.

New potatoes are selling at $1 per bushel.

THE PACKSACK

By GREGORY CLARK

The conflict between the old and the new never rests. A farmer of my acquaintance found his woodpile mysteriously declining. Every time he went to town or was absent in the evening, he would return to find another few armfuls of his fine birch and maple stove wood vanished.

He was an old-fashioned farmer, and loved his wood stove as well as his personally-harvested stove wood. His suspicions centred upon a near neighbor, another farmer who had gone modern.

This other farmer had not merely invested in such things as tractors and all sorts of enlightened implements for the husbandry of the soil, but had modernized his home, filling it with electrical gadgets, including even an electric stove.

He had no woodpile. He gloried in fact, over the absence of that most homely of all institutions around the farm, the wood pile.

But, alas, power goes off. And electric stoves in the rural areas are sometimes fickle. My friend, by deduction, concluded that the wood disappeared from his wood pile coincident with power shortages.

So he took a particularly fine stick of birch. He bored a hole in it, and packed a tidy little ballast of stumping powder in it. Then he corked the hole artistically, and set the stick back most carefully on the wood pile.

Carefully that is, so that he would not in a moment of hurry, forget it and fetch it into his own house.

Sure enough a few nights later after a succession of power-interrupting thunder-storms, the loaded stick vanished. And sure enough, the very next day, out in the back shed of his neighbor's house, to which the old wood stove had been relegated, there was a startling explosion. Fortunately, thanks to the small amount of stumping powder employed, there was no fire. Nobody was killed. But somebody was cured.

UK Grain Experts Surprised at Canada's Crop

London, Aug. 17 — Reuters) — British grain experts were surprised yesterday by the official estimated size of Canada's wheat and other crops announced Tuesday night.

Some described as "staggering" the estimates of 844,000,000 bushels of wheat, against 367,000,000 last year; 433,000,000 of oats, against 317,000,000; 184,000,000 of barley, against 120,000,000; and 15,000,000 of rye, against 10,000,000.

All agreed that in the face of the world political situation these bumper crops should be a great help.

In normal times, it was said, these figures would have caused a slump in grain prices, especially in view of large crops in European importing countries and the hopes of Australia and Argentina.

OUR TOWN

By JACK SCOTT

NIGHT OF WRATH

Winnipeg—There was a remarkable and sort of sad sight outside our door the other morning.

We are parked in a trailer camp almost in the heart of Winnipeg. The parliament buildings are across one street, the ball park across the other.

When we awoke we found that the grounds of the trailer park were alive with wrens, busily loading up their beaks with bits of straw and twigs and flying off into the heavy maple trees. There were a hundred or more of them. I'd say. They were all building nests.

There was a good deal of other evidence in that view from our trailer door of what the night had done. It was Monday morning and Winnipeg, the wrens and the Scotts, had gone through, if you'll pardon the expression, a hell of a night.

You'll have read in last Monday's paper about Winnipeg's epic thunder storm in which the wind blew up to 68 miles an hour (just seven mph short of hurricane strength) and of the two deaths and the fantastic toll in damage done to a city that has had more than its share of heavenly wrath this year.

But I expect that in other parts of Canada the story didn't give much of an idea of what it's like to live through a storm of that intensity and some personal notes may be of passing interest.

I know that reading the papers here with their list of casualties, human and otherwise, really didn't tell the story of a quarter of a million people cowering in the night under the whiplash of this "worst storm in 28 years." And I hasten to add that nobody cowered any more than your humble correspondent.

With A Roar

The storm lasted for 40 minutes. It caught everybody by surprise, including the weatherman, who had predicted a few light thundershowers and who (slyly reported the Tribune) had his windows open wide when the blast hit.

It was about 12:30 a.m., a hot, muggy night. The kids were abed. Brown Eyes and I had been sitting outside watching the sheet lightning off on the horizon and hoping for a breeze.

It came with a soundless wallop. The trees all suddenly bent. Our canvas canopy ballooned out like a spinnaker. The lightning flared through the maples overhead. We bolted for the trailer. And then it really began.

Afterwards most people described that 40 minutes as "a nightmare" and it was that, all right. The wind against the flat side of the trailer, coming in gusts, hit with a roar. Our aluminum home shuddered under the impact. Through the windows we could see the dust swirling crazily. The lightning came about every three or four seconds and the rain struck like a wave of water.

I find it hard to sort out any distinct impressions in that montage of furious sound. When the lights went out each glaring tongue of lightning seemed to be a direct hit and there was a mounting crash of noise.

The heavy awning broke loose and whipped against the side of the trailer. A heavy limb of the maple we had parked under crashed to our rear and in the lightning flash we saw that we were sitting in a lake. Through the uproar we heard the screaming of fire engine sirens.

The two kids had dived into our bed and under the covers, and I was dying to join them.

Next day everybody seemed anxious to prove the most cowardly under that ordeal, but this kind of fear is worst of all. There is no fighting back and no way to assess the situation in logical terms. We were all as helpless as the wrens and, I'm sure, just as scared.

Next Day

In its own way, the morning after was just as weird as the night.

It was a wonderfully fresh, bright morning, by chance, a civic holiday in Winnipeg, and in our trailer camp everyone was up early to assess the damage.

The grounds were littered with broken branches and flooded in the low areas. My hammock, hooked to two cottonwoods, was at the far end of the camp, buried in the mud. Across the way a tall brick chimney lay neatly on its side on a house roof. The ball park fence was down.

It may be that Winnipeg learned to accept disaster calmly during the flood. Or it may have just been the glorious day. Whatever it is, the reaction of this city was amazing.

When we went on a tour of the suburbs at noon everyone was out cheerfully cleaning up the mess, laughing together over the recent terror. We stopped to chat with many people and met none who didn't take this philosophically. Like the indomitable wrens, people simply pitched in to get things right again.

The most interesting observation I have heard on this wild night came from a man here in the trailer park. He is an arthritic and he and his wife had been trapped in their trailer when a tree fell across the door.

As some of us boasted about our nervous condition next day, this man interjected a sobering thought.

"All through the storm," he said, "I kept thinking to myself, 'This is what it will be like in the next war for the civilian, to just sit and wait and hope that the next bolt from the blue falls on some other guy'."

TODAY'S TALK

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

WHEN WE WERE KIDS

Nostalgic urges never quite die out within us. They keep coming to us, and this is well, for our entire life then is kept scented with the incense of youth. We may never again experience the joy and wonder of those early days, but memory keeps them fresh in our mind, and we can dream them over. Like lighted candles, in a dark room, they put new light to lift.

I have watched fishermen leave for their vacations, loaded with expensive fishing material that has cost a great deal of money. They have read books, gone on long excursions, with trained guides, and have experimented with endless flies, mechanically constructed, yet have failed to get the thrill that the small boy first gained with his cut branch, his tiny hook or even bent pin, and his can of bait, whistling upon the bank of a small stream.

When we were kids we knew a world of joy and beauty that commercial pursuits and later gain have never been able to match. But no matter how far the years may lead us away from the days of youth we can keep grasping for her apron strings and still be thrilled anew through this memory of ours, and an occasional hide-a-way where nature opens her book with something vivid thereon to remind us that youth can live again.

A little gratuitous effort, a spell of glorious idling, if you please, is something that even the soul respects and welcomes. The great poet, Whitman, lives today and his fame is ever on the increase, yet he was somewhat of an idler. A writer wrote a book about him, and called it "The Magnificent Idler."

When we were kids this idling among flowers, birds, forests, streams, and hills, brought unforgettable experiences. In our later years the memory of them has formed little harbors in our consciousness — little retreats for quiet thought and meditation.

Tossing back our thoughts to the happy days when we were kids helps us to understand, and to tolerate in kindly fashion, those who are the kiddies today —the makers of the nation tomorrow!

Transplanting Of Cornea Not So Successful

Toronto, Aug. 17 — (CP) — An operation in which a man gave a cornea to a sightless woman about a month ago did not turn out as successfully as hoped.

A doctor at Toronto General Hospital said yesterday the woman — whose identity was not disclosed — was allowed to leave hospital a short time ago but that the results of the operation were not up to early expectations.

Cyril Mosher, son of A. R. Mosher, president of the Canadian Congress of Labor, donated the cornea — a transparent window which covers the eye. Mr. Mosher had faulty vision in the eye from which the cornea was removed but his cornea was unimpaired.

Earlier, doctors had pronounced the operation a success with the provision that "how great a success it will be can only be determined by time."

Personal Health Talks

Address: Dr. William Brady, care of this newspaper.)

THIS IS RIDICULOUS

If I should find it necessary to establish my own "clinic" or private hospital or sanitarium or so-called health resort or personal health service institution, I'd make the rules and regulations, for it would be business. You mere people would have no say about it — you would be my patients, customers, patrons, clients, suckers or victims and pay what I pleased to demand—or as citizens of a free country you could tell me where to go with my racket and seek what you want elsewhere. That's fair enough, isn't it?

But suppose you had a share in the business or contributed to the building and maintenance of the institution—taxes or donations. That would alter the circumstances and give you the right to have some say about the rules and regulations governing conduct of the business. Otherwise you'd be a ninnyhammer to help support it, wouldn't you?

There are millions of ninnyhammers in the U.S. and Canada. One of them writes:

Dear Sir:

When my wife found out we were going to have our second child she asked our doctor if he would deliver the baby at home, and although we have a brand new house he refused, but told us that if we insisted he would pass us along to another doctor. I did not think this change advisable, and so we resigned ourselves . . . to hospital delivery.

For six months I begged and pleaded with ——— Hospital authorities to be permitted to remain with my wife until after the child was born, as this was my wife's desire as well as mine. I even wrote to the Minister of Health but my efforts were all in vain. No one in any position of authority would commit himself on the question one way or the other, but every one kept on telling me that it was against the rules unless my wife was dying, then and then only could they make an exception. Our doctor also said that in our case it was preferable that I should be there, however he was unable to do anything to mend matters.

If we are blessed again, how can I overcome their rules and regulations and remain with my wife as she wishes when our child is born? A man should have some rights as a prospective father.

(Signed) ———

A man? Certainly. And if he is a man he will not be denied his rights by any little "rules and regulations" set up by hospital boards, staffs or "authorities" for their own protection.

With few exceptions public, private, part pay or charity hospitals throughout the provinces and states impose such "rules and regulations" upon patrons and under cover of the secrecy and concealment of what goes on in the delivery room get away with —well, malpractice—sins of omission and commission that may have deplorable effects upon mother and child.

If the correspondent who describes the shabby treatment by his doctor had reconnoitered the situation in his town or community more carefully he might have discovered a number of good doctors who know as well as I do that home is the safest place to have a baby.

All of the reasons the hospital "authorities" and the members of the medical staff who agree with them have advanced for keeping the prospective father separated from his wife at this supreme moment of life are, in my opinion, phony. If any hospital representative or physician has the courage to state a good reason why the prospective father should not remain with his wife throughout delivery, I'll point out what is wrong with his or her statement—or else I'll acknowledge publicly that my teaching about this has been wrong and I'll cease and desist from harping on it here.

When I say home is the safest place to have a baby I know from expert study, observation and professional experience what I am talking about. I have seen some pretty deplorable things happen in the course of childbirth at home, but nothing worse than I have seen happen in hospitals.

QUESTIONS & ANSWERS

Petit Mal

Should I marry a young man who was turned down by the Army during World War II because of a "common" disease which makes him drop off to sleep almost any time unless he keeps active. He says it is nothing serious and it can be cured easily with "shots." (Miss L. A.)

Answer—Why not wait till the young man takes the "shots" and gets cured? Wise course is for you both to visit a physician and abide by the physician's judgment.

Strength for the Day

DR. EARL L. DOUGLASS

A BASIC DOCTRINE

The doctrine of the atonement is basic in Christian faith, but it is sometimes hard for believers to understand.

Perhaps we understand it best if we divide the world into its component parts. Atonements is at-one-moment with God. The atonement was Christ's sacrifice of Himself upon the cross. The New Testament consistently holds that because of His death on the cross, reconciliation between God and man was affected. The death of Christ on the cross brought into concord the relationship between God and man, which up to that time had been broken and chaotic. "By His stripes we are healed." "Christ died for our sins, according to the Scriptures." "Him who knew no sin He made to be sin on our behalf; that we might become the righteousness of God in Him."

These are the Scriptural statements of this great truth. What does the atonement mean in plain twentieth century English? It means that sin is a thing of such terrifying consequences that God was willing to undergo an infinite sacrifice Himself that the power of sin over men's hearts might be broken. The crucifixion of Christ represents the malignancy of sin, the love of God, and the earnestness with which God is seeking after the sin-ridden soul of man.

In the atonement we experience the cleansing of our souls in the righteous sorrows of God.

Bay of Quinte Beauty Queen To be Chosen at 16th Annual R.C.A.F. Station Sports Day

Trenton (Special) — "A thing of beauty is a joy forever," quoth the poet Keats. Beauty contests such as had never been heard of when these poetic words were penned, although beauty queens or rather beautiful queens have played important roles in history from the earliest times. Two of the most fabulous figures (no pun intended) being Helen of Troy and Cleopatra, the famous Queen of Egypt whose beauty is said to have even made the sphinxes blink their eyes in appreciation.

Anyone who has even passed through this Bay of Quinte district is almost certain to agree that the beauty of the lovely ladies in this area is unsurpassed anywhere in this fair province, if not the entire country. However for the benefit of skeptical disbelievers, RCAF Station Trenton is going to prove this self-evident fact tomorrow night at their 16th annual Sports Day.

Topping off an afternoon of athletic events, a beauty contest will be staged. Eleven girls from Trenton, Belleville, Picton and Brighton will appear in the preliminary pulchritude parade which takes place at 5 o'clock, when the girls will parade in bathing suits. At 10 p. m. comes the grand finale when the finalists appear in evening gowns on the stage of the Sports Hangar.

Judges Selected

The contestants will be trying to win the approving nod of six worthy gentlemen from this district who have been chosen to select Miss Quinte 1950. When the judges, Judge W. S. Lane, Picton, Dr. E. A. McQuade, Trenton, F/L Links, RCAF Station, Trenton, Ed. A. Simmons, Trenton and Art. Young of Belleville have agreed on the winner, the new Miss Quinte will be presented with an engraved statuette, a cheque for $100, and several valuable merchandise prizes.

RCAF officials in charge of the event are "really surprised at the number of merchandise prizes that have been donated. More than 45 companies have contributed an impressive array of prizes which will be distributed among the winners and the runners up.

The day's events get underway at 1:30 with a parade of athletes led by a drum majorette. A series of track and field events will take place in the afternoon and an exhibition fastball game between two Sixardee teams will be played after the preliminary beauty contest. At night, there will be a floor show and dance in the Sports Hangar.

Death Accident Jury's Verdict

Trenton — (Special)—A verdict of accidental death was returned by a coroner's jury Tuesday night at an inquest which was called to investigate the death of Heward E. Phillips, Gilmore, who was killed Friday, August 4th when two heavy scraper - graders collided on Trenton RCAF airfield.

The inquest was held at Trenton courthouse on the order of Dr. E. A. McQuade, Hastings County coroner.

Mr. Phillips was employed by a construction firm which is extending the runway at Trenton RCAF Station. In the collision of the two heavy machines, Phillips was thrown from his seat and fractured his skull after being tossed in the air. He died enroute to Belleville Hospital where he was rushed for medical attention.

The driver of the other machine involved in the accident was not injured.

CIO Union Wins Certification Vote At Downs Coulter

Trenton — (Special) — By a vote of 92 to 8, the employees of Downs Coulter Co., Ltd., voted for the CIO Textile Workers of America to replace the A. F. of L. United Textile Workers of America as their certified bargaining agent. The certification vote was held at the Downs Coulter plant on Tuesday. Six ballots were spoiled.

On December 28, 1949, the A. F. of L. union called a strike, asking for a 15 cent hourly wage increase and a 40 hour week. After the strike had continued for several weeks, the union modified its demands and agreed to settle for "not less than an eight cent an hour wage increase."

After months of negotiations, during which time the management insisted that the strike was "illegal", about 95 workers crossed the picket lines on April 10, without the permission of the A. F. of L. textile workers affiliate.

The plant has been operating ever since April and the CIO Textile Workers of America have been trying to organize the workers who returned to work without the permission of their union. Tuesday's balloting was conducted by W. D. Mathers, Registrar of the Ontario Labor Relations Board.

Army Cadets Beat Air, Navy Cadets

Connaught Rifles Ranges, South March, Ont., Aug. 17 (CP) —The army cadets beat out the air cadets and the navy cadets to win the Col. Henry Harrison Memorial Challenge Trophy at the 62nd annual Dominion of Canada Rifle Association shoot.

Officials disclosed today the eight-man army cadets piled up 635 points in the inter-services cadet match for 521 for the air cadets with 521 and 259 for the navy cadets.

The match was fired from 500 and 200 yards.

Quake Causes Heavy Losses In Upper Assam

Gauhati, India, Aug. 17 (Reuters)—Tuesday's earthquake did about $2,150,000 damage in upper Assam, first official estimates indicated today.

Most of the damage occurred in north Lakhimpur, Jorhat and Pasighat, official sources said. More than 2,000 government and private buildings were destroyed. Five persons were reported killed.

New Delhi (AP)—Two new earthquake "after shocks" hit battered Assam in northeastern India today, the meteorology service here reported.

The shocks were classified as "not dangerous." No new damage was reported in the area, where communications were wrecked by heavy tremors Tuesday and Wednesday.

Women's Institute

WOOLER W.I.

Wooler—Wednesday afternoon was "Garden Day" for the members of the Women's Institute. The meeting was held at the home of Mrs. Alden Arthur, leader of the Garden Club, with an attendance of 32.

Mrs. B. Wilson presided and opened the meeting. After the reading of the minutes the roll was called and each person responded by naming a flower beginning with the first letter of her name.

Achievement Day for the Club Girls will be held in Brighton on August 29th. It was also announced a bus had been chartered to go to Toronto Exhibition. The secretary had boxes of Christmas cards and seals for sale. Mrs. Henry McColl gave a report of the "District Annual" held in Codrington recently.

The girls of the Garden Club supplied the following program—reading, "Making a Potato Salad", by Betty Cameron; piano solo, Winnifred Parry; reading, "God's Garden", Lillian Peister; vocal duet, Leila and Donna McColl; piano duet, Mary and Doreen Dorland, and a talk on "Korea", by Mrs. Alden Arthur.

At the close of the meeting dainty refreshments were served by Mrs. Henry McColl, Mrs. W. A. Dorland, Mrs. L. E. Dorland and the hostess.

Mr., Mrs. H. Crawford Of Detlor Celebrate Golden Wedding

The home of Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Crawford, of Detlor, Ont., was crowded last Sunday with relatives and friends who had gathered to extend their greetings to them on the occasion of their 50th wedding anniversary.

Herbert Crawford and Cassie Hennessy were married at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Peter Hennessy of Egan Creek, on August 15, 1900, by the Rev. Alfred Creeggan, Anglican clergyman.

Mrs. Crawford has been a long time resident of Dungannon township. She was born in Prince Edward County and with her parents, moved when young, to the same farm where she now resides so the golden wedding took place on the same place as the original wedding, but not the same house as the former was burned. Mr. Crawford was born in Tyendinaga Township. Both are active and enjoying good health.

Their seven children were present on this delightful occasion. Ruby, (Mrs. Bayless Evans,) of Glen Miller, Gilbert, of Madoc, Wilfred, Bernard, John and Peter of Detlor and Marjory, (Mrs. Leo Casselman), of Detlor.

There are 28 grandchildren and 12 great grandchildren and some of these were also in attendance. Also present were the bride's three brothers, Mr. Ernie Hennessy, of Carrying Place; Mr. Corrall Hennessy, of Madoc, and Mr. Clayton Hennessy, of Prince Edward County, as well as the groom's three brothers, Harry, of Campbellford, and Cecil and Robert of Chippewa, along with these close relatives were other relatives and friends numbering over 100.

The house was decorated with flowers given by Mrs. Sidney Smith, Mrs. John Crawford and Mrs. Frank Hutchinson. Dinner was served at one o'clock and again at night and each time a large wedding cake graced the table, the first made by Mrs. Bayless Evans, and the second by Mrs. Wilfred Crawford.

The family presented their parents with a set of twin chiffoniers and they also received many other lovely gifts.

During the course of the afternoon, Rev. Kingsley Cutler called to extend felicitations and the bride acted as organist for the hymn singing.

All has not been sunshine for this bride and groom, for in the last war—two sons, John and Bernard, served overseas and both were wounded but they were able to return home and take their place in the community.

In leaving, all expressed the hope that Mr. and Mrs. Crawford would live to celebrate their diamond wedding anniversary.

The community joins in extending congratulations, with best wishes for many years to the bride and groom of years ago, of much happiness.

"BROKE IN ANYWAY"

Atlanta, Ga., Aug. 17 (AP) — L. G. Burns, manager of the Cooper Candy Co., told police his office safe is always left unlocked and bears a sign: "Nothing of value left here."

Yesterday when he opened the office, Burns found the safe door open and a note reading: "We broke in anyway."

Nothing was missing.

MARIO ... in his distinctive feature about Food ... What's Cooking?

Plums were only eaten by noblemen in China during the 12th century. "Lowly one can have seed" was the general attitude of China's privileged plum eaters.

There is nothing exclusive in the wealth of red, blue, yellow and green plums that appears in markets from June to October.

Many people still don't know that plum pudding—the steamed or canned variety eaten during the holiday season—contains no plums. The medley of raisins, citron, bread crumbs and spices that go into this pudding add up an aggregate of flavors which is so intense that it doesn't matter whether plums are there or not.

You do want meaty fresh plums to make the plum sauce in today's rice and plum pudding. The plums as prepared, are a fruit butter that could be spread on bread as well as desserts.

In buying fresh plums choose fruit that yields slightly when pressed with the fingers. Avoid very soft plums which are usually overripe and tasteless.

If a less rich pudding is desired, omit the whipped cream and serve light cream or top milk at the table separately. Any variety of fresh plums—red, blue, green or yellow—may be used.

Rice and Plum Pudding
Serves 4-6.

Wash 1-2 cup rice in 3 or 4 cold waters until water remains clear. Bring 1 pint of water to a boil. Slowly add rice, stirring well to keep from sticking. Add 1-2 teaspoon salt. Cook until rice absorbs all the water. Be careful not to burn rice—use a low flame.

Place rice in top part of a double boiler. Add 1 1-2 cups milk and 1-2 cup sugar. Cook rice over simmering water until rice absorbs milk and is thick. Chill thoroughly.

Remove pits from enough fresh plums to fill 1 1-2 cups with fruit. Add 1-4 cup water and 1-3 cup granulated sugar. Cook over a slow flame stirring frequently until fruit is soft and thick. Keep flame low to avoid sputtering juice. Force fruit through a colander or sieve. Add 1 tablespoon grated orange rind.

When ready to serve pudding, beat 1-2 cup heavy cream until thick. Add 2 tablespoons granulated sugar. Fold cream into rice pudding.

Spoon rice onto serving dishes. Pour plum sauce over rice.

Do you want a particular recipe, or have you a cooking problem? Write Mario, care this paper, enclosing a self-addressed, stamped, envelope for his reply.—Ed.

Six Lady Players Bay of Quinte G.C.C. Entertained at Picton

A team of six lady players from the Bay of Quinte Golf and Country Club were entertained at Picton, yesterday afternoon. The team prize was won by Trenton, with Belleville the runner-up. Mrs. Morton Parker, the Bay of Quinte Club, won low gross with score 92. Mrs. Parker and Mrs. Culhane, of Napanee, tied for low gross score of 45 on the first nine holes, and Mrs. Pearce of Picton, won with 46 on last nine holes.

The putting was won by Mrs. C. Medd, Napanee, with 25 putts on 18 holes.

Women's Mission Circle Holds Enjoyable Picnic

The members of the Women's Mission Circle of Victoria Avenue Baptist Church held a delightful picnic on Monday afternoon on the spacious lawn at the home of Mr. and Mrs. A. Cranston, Foxboro Road.

During the afternoon, an interesting program of races, games and contests was enjoyed, under the direction of Mrs. Robson, with the following prize-winners:

Hoop relay, Mrs. Campbell's team; Plate tossing contest, Mrs. Wells; Pie tin race, Mrs. Fox and Mrs. Campbell; wind-the-string-relay, Miss Nurse's team; newspaper race, Mrs. R. Cranston; Cinderella race, Mrs. Landon and Mrs. Fox; guessing contest, Mrs. May; lemon relay, Miss Lounsberry's team.

Later, a long table was set up on the lawn, and after a short prayer by Mr. W. Neal, chairman of the Board of Deacons of the church, all the 25 members present did ample justice to the bountiful pot luck supper.

The lucky cup prize was won by Mrs. May. Mrs. C. Campbell, president of the Circle, expressed her appreciation to all who had helped make the occasion so enjoyable, and to Mr. and Mrs. Cranston for their hospitality.

She also made special mention of her pleasure in having present two former members, Miss C. Leavitt, of Lansing, Michigan, and Mrs. P. Landon, of Ottawa.

At this time Mrs. Landon, formerly Mildred Lloyd, delighted everyone with two humorous readings, "Vera Cheera's Morning Sunshine Talk," and Wee David and the Giant".

Community singing, led by Mrs. Post and Mrs. Fox was enjoyed by all, bringing a pleasant afternoon and evening to a close.

ROSLIN

Community Presents Young Couple With Purse of Money

Roslin.—On Thursday evening friends and relatives gathered in the Anglican church hall in honor of Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Holmes (nee June Sills), who were married recently.

Dancing was enjoyed during the early part of the evening. Later, the guests of honor, Raymond and June, were presented with a gift of money from the community. They both graciously expressed their thanks and appreciation.

Refreshments were served and a social time was enjoyed.

HOW TO MAKE TWO CENTS

Waynesboro, Pa., Aug. 17 (AP) —The Waynesboro First National Bank and Trust Company set up a display over one of its cages, advertising: "Special—today only $1.98" over a stack of crisp new $2 bills.

The display went up when the bank opened at 9 a.m. yesterday. Hundreds read the sign, laughed and walked on. Finally, at 2.30 p.m., a half-hour before closing, an unidentified woman stepped up and made a purchase of the special.

It was no gag. She made two cents on the transaction.

What TV Requires Of Showgirl For Success

London, Aug. 17. (CP)—A British television producer has listed these qualifications for showgirl success in TV:

Medium height, fairly small thighs, straight legs and a minimum of rounded calf.

Recent tests have shown, he said, that girls with bony shoulders, arms, legs and faces show up poorly on the TV screenes. Bones throw shadows that cannot be disguised.

Showgirls appear foreshortened on the screen and under-sized gals come out like midgets, he said.

GOOD MANNERS

Dark blue suits for men in wedding party

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

I am having a church wedding at 10 a.m. in the middle of September and plan to wear either a white or blush-pink gown, with either a very short train or no train, and a shoulder-length or fingertip veil. Would it be proper for the groom, best man, ushers, and my father to wear dark-blue business suits? If not, what is proper for this time of day and for this season?

E.A.

Dark-blue suits will be proper for the men in the wedding party to wear. . . groom, best man, ushers, and your father (the groom's father too) . . . at your early-morning wedding in this early-Autumn season, if you keep all details on the side of informality. For example: your wedding dress with no train your veil short; your attendants' dresses not too formal. With their dark-blue suits, the men would wear white shirts, stiff white fold collars, black shoes and socks, four-in-hand ties, of blue or gray background and with either narrow conservative stripes or small design of gray or white or blue. (If your plans for your wedding are more on the side of formality, the men in the wedding party would correctly dress in keeping with this formality; cutaway coats (or, less formal, dark Oxford-gray jackets, dark striped trousers, and appropriate formal accessories. And if the men wish, they may rent this formal attire, and reasonably.)

Special thanks from unexpected visitors

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Recently my husband and I, with my husband's aunt and her son, paid an unexpected visit to see my husband's cousin in another state. Since we were not expected, we insisted on paying for half the food and so forth. We had luncheon and dinner there and dinner the next day also. Since his cousin did not have room for the four of us to sleep there, arrangements were made for my husband and me to spend the night and have breakfast at her sister-in-law's. We knew these people very slightly, but they were very nice to us. Now of course I want to write them both and thank them for all they did. I do not know how to word either letter. Will you please help me?

A. A.

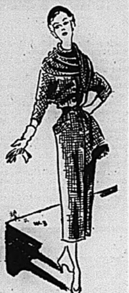
Your thank-you letter to your husband's cousin might begin somewhat like this:

Dear Sallie,

Jim and I just can't find words adequate to tell you of our appreciation of your great goodness to us. How friendly and hospitable you were, first in so charmingly welcoming your unexpected visitors, and making us so happy and comfortable. It was all so wonderful and we shall never forget what a joyous time we had with you and that fine family of yours. We are so grateful for every plan you made for us, and so appreciative of your sister-in-law's great kindness to us. (I am writing her when I finish this letter to you.)

(Then mention definite plans made for which thank them most enthusiastically and appreciatively.) Then write to your overnight hostess, expressing high and deep thanks to her, too, for her so-special hospitality.

Check Wool Street Dress



Attractive color combination

By VERA WINSTON

SLIM lines star in a very new Fall dress that might just as well be a coat, the type of thing that recently appeared in some of the important new clothes collections. This one is of shadow check wool in two shades of green and lavender, a refreshing color extends to the back, terminating in a stole fringe edged, that slips under the belt and is buttoned in one with the dress below the waist. It is balanced by a pocket at the opposite hip. The loose underarm sleeve tapers down to a snug three-quarters length. All in all a distinguished contribution to the coming Autumn street scene.

ADVICE to the LOVELORN

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

Teen-agers with parent problems

It's a hard thing for teen-agers when their parents seem to make little or no effort to understand their normal desires for boy-and-girl companionship and recreation. or does it help much to have one parent understand, while the other refuses to co-operate.

Here are two letters from teen-agers who are up against a situation of this kind, in one case with a father, in the other with a mother.

Writes the first:

"I am 16, and have been going with a fellow of 19 for about a year. My father does not approve of me going out with boys, or having any boy call me up. My mother knows the parents of the boy I go with, and she likes him very much. Both my mother and myself have tried to make my father realize that times have changed and girls should be allowed to go with boys, but he won't even talk about it.

"I don't want to keep seeing this boy on the sly, but I don't want to give him up either. How can I make my father realize that I want his permission to see my friend?"

The other girl says:

"If I bring any boy to the house to introduce him to my parents, my mother doesn't even want to see him. If she does take the trouble to meet my boy friends, she does nothing but criticize them. I've tried and tried to talk with her about this, but she won't even let me finish when I start to say anything. My father tells me just to go on as I am, but I can't stand it much longer. He has tried to talk to my mother too, but it does no good.

"If I come in even ten minutes late when I'm out with anyone, I get yelled at for days, and a couple of nights when I was late, I got a lamp thrown at me, and another time a glass and a saucer. What can I do about all this?"

The proper solution of problems like these, of course, is for the understanding parent to take the responsibility of dealing with the other. It is bitterly unfair to let any son or daughter occupy middle ground between parents at odds with each other on any matter concerning the child's welfare. Particularly in the case of the violently hysterical mother who throws things at her daughter, the father should step in and take a firm stand.

If, however, the reasonable parent will not, or cannot, do anything effective, then it is time the girls enlisted the aid of some more mature adult. If it were school time, they might talk things over with a favorite teacher, or adviser, if their schools have such a person on the staff. This might be something for the girls to think about over the summer and do in the fall, if things continue as they are now.

In the meantime, however, I would advise them to see if there is not among the mothers of good friends of theirs, someone they would feel they could talk to about their troubles. It might easily be that some tactful older woman could think of a way in which she could approach the mother herself and help her take a more normal view of young peoples' activities. In the case of the girl whose father is the unsympathetic one, the friend's mother with whom she talks might ask her husband if he could suggest how the father might be persuaded to modernize his attitudes. Parents who are already good friends with their own children often know how to be diplomatic with the parents of others.

I realize many young people might feel it disloyal to discuss family troubles with any outsider, but it is far better to do this than to go on battling with something too difficult for them to cope with by themselves.

BEAUTY

"She walks in beauty"

Strive for aristocracy of bearing. Carry yourself like a queen. Many women are considered ladies of fashion because they know how to wear their clothes with splendor. On a slouchy figure the most beautiful frock ever put together will lose its fine lines.

The effect of poor posture is obvious to any woman who will look about her. Lacking body balance and grace, some of the sisters lope in an ungainly manner; others have shoulders hunched up, head forward; still others mince along with short steps as if they were walking on eggs.

Not so obvious as appearance are the ways in which incorrect posture will cause fatigue, aches and pains, interference with the functioning of the internal organs. With the spinal column extended full length, chest lifted, abdomen held in, the body weight is supported with the least possible muscular effort. With bones out of alignment the muscles must work harder to hold up the body; fatigue is the result.

Carry yourself like a queen.

Here are rules for the standing positions: Head on the level and high; shoulder blades flat; chest up and forward; lower back flattened; knees straight, but not rigid; feel parallel. And keep an easy pose.

Common faults are a drooping of the head, rounded shoulders, back swayed in, hips tilted forward, chest flattened.

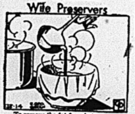
When walking, keep upright. Have a springy step, throwing more weight on the ball of the foot than on the heel, and keeping the feet close together. With feet too far apart, the body sways from side to side. The victims of this unlovely habit may join the ranks of the waddlers.

When sitting, place yourself well back in the chair so that your lower back is comfortably supported. Keep both feet on the floor. If you feel that you must cross your legs, do so at the ankles, instead of at the knees.

With our too-comfortable overstuffed chairs, there is an inclination to slump, go into a huddle that is no help in maintaining normal, resilient musculature.

When bending forward, bend at the hips, not at the waistline. Your hips are natural hinges, put there for that purpose.

Wife Preservers



To remove the fat from hot soup, pour the soup through a cloth that has been rinsed in very cold water. Most of the fat will remain in the cloth.

Fashion Flashes

A STARRING ROLE is played by color in clothes designed for the season ahead. Black woollen for a three-quarter length, wrappy coat cut in circular fullness. The coat is reversible, the other side being a vivid scarlet velveteen.

QUITE SMALL is the word for many of the new hats designed by the trend-setting milliners. Lipstick red fur felt for a brief cloche, made with a cushion brim, feather pads circling the crown, and a tiny eye veil of sheer black net.

NOT FOR MANY years has there been so generous a range of style as has been prepared for the coming season. Much use is made of fur for trim and lining, with emphasis on brilliant shades. A handsome suit of boxy topper and slim skirt is of light taupe woollen, the topper lined with moleskin dyed a rich violet shade.

NEW IMPORTANCE for the blouse now that the horseshoe neckline has been accepted. Many new suits have necklines so deep that buttoning begins at the waistline, this allowing for a generous portion of the blouse to be on view. Beautiful all-over shirred and tucked silk crepe, chiffon and georgettes, as well as lace are all well represented in the new blouse lines.

GET READY for dieting and skin care, if you want to don the glamorous dresses designed for wear under the bright lights come Fall. Skirts are skimpy and inching upward, and are slit for ease of movement, while necklines are inching down. Thank goodness, no exposed midriffs!

SPORTSMANSHIP IN "CANADA UNLIMITED"

It was 1938. Off Boston, Mass., two sleek fishing schooners charged neck-and-neck through the gust-tossed Atlantic. Canada's famous Bluenose and her arch-rival, the Gertrude L. Thebaud of Gloucester, were sailing the fifth and final heat of the International Fishermen's Trophy Race.

The older Bluenose, four-time trophy winner, took a narrow lead early in the 35½-mile course. Crowding sail, the Gloucesterman tried to close the gap. But the Bluenose stayed in front . . . to win her fifth and last trophy by 2 minutes, 30 seconds.

Close teamwork has won many firsts for Canadian sportsmen. And teamwork, with sportsmanship, helps you, too—in work and play. Together they keep your scope for opportunity in Canada . . . unlimited.

PICTON

Silver Medal Awarded Pianist

Picton—Don Corbett son of Major and Mrs. Corbett of the Salvation Army has been informed that he has been awarded the silver medal for grade VI at the Royal Conservatory of Music, Toronto.

This is by virtue of his ranking first among students from Saskatchewan, from which province his parents recently come to Picton. He is studying piano with Mrs. Charles Hooper. Don leaves Saturday for Jackson's Point to attend the Salvation Army music school camp.

Miss Marion Steet, Mrs. Thomas Lighthall and John are spending the weekend in Waterloo, guests of Mr and Mrs. Fred Moogk.

Mrs. Lowell Robinson is visiting her parents in St. Catharines.

Miss A. Roberts has returned to Toronto after spending a fortnight with Mrs. Clayton Ostrander. Miss Jean Ostrander, who visited her mother, returned to Mansfield, Ohio.

Mrs. J. Herbert Hodgins accompanied her son, Mr. James H. Hodgins and Mrs. Hodgins on a trip to Syracuse, N.Y.

'Lunge' Plentiful In Waters Around P.E. County

Picton — Raymond Allen of North Grafton, Mass., went fishing for the first time Wednesday morning. Staying at William Reynolds' at Dorland, he tried his luck in the Bay of Adolphustown. He had a sudden strike and was hauling a big one in when the line caught on the propeller of the outboard and was severed. The disappointed angler was indeed lucky as three minutes later he had another strike. Taking no chances, he headed the boat for shore and stood on land while he hauled a muskie in. Weighed by chief of police Bert Biddle, on behalf of Prince Edward Chamber of Commerce fishing competition committee, it weighed 24 1-2 pounds, one pound less that when taken from the water. It measured 45 inches in length and 14 1-4 inches at girth. He was using a double buffalo with wool which his wife had made. He was accompanied by his wife and Mr. and Mrs. Robert Rooney. Mr. Allen is having his fish mounted as a trophy of his first fishing experience.

Another catch in the same waters this week was a muskie weighing 26 1-2 pounds. It was caught by Douglas Wamsley of Picton.

For Eczema— Skin Troubles

Make up your mind today that you are going to give your skin a real chance to get well. Go to DOYLE'S DRUG STORE or any good drug store and get an original bottle of Moone's Emerald Oil — it lasts many days because it is highly concentrated.

The very first application will give you relief — the itching of Eczema is quickly stopped — eruptions dry up and scale off in a very few days. The same is true of Itching Toes and Feet, Barber's Itch, Salt Rheum, skin troubles.

Remember that Moone's Emerald Oil is a clean, powerful, penetrating Antiseptic Oil that does not stain or leave a greasy residue. Complete satisfaction or money back.

GOVERNMENT

No Formula Advanced

The Prime Minister advanced no specific formula for solution in his letter-he emphasized the government could not impose a settlement on the parties—but he made it clear the weight of the government was being thrown into the scales to avert a country-wide tie-up of rail transport.

The "full force of the government," he said, was behind the request for the 30-day postponement in the event of no railway union agreement by the deadline of 6 a.m. regional time of Aug. 22.

And he appealed to both groups "in the interest of all Canada" to dispose of the dispute between themselves or leave time for action by the special commissioner.

While the duties and authority of the special commissioner were not set out in the Prime Minister's letter, government sources said it was not proposed that he should have any special powers but would act strictly as a mediator in attempting to use the good offices of the government to bring the antagonists to agreement.

While such an appointment is an unusual step, it has a precedent in the 1946 designation of Leonard W. Brockington, Ottawa lawyer, in the same role in the General Steel strike of that year.

Today Mr. Brockington's name cropped up in speculation on possible appointee in the rail case. Another mentioned was Mr. Justice I. C. Rand of the Supreme Court of Canada, author of the "Rand Formula" for resolving problems concerning union dues check-off.

The commissioner could be appointed under the industrial relations and disputes investigation act. He would report to the government formally only in the event of failure, under the act, though presumably that would not prevent him carrying to the disputants—at least informally—any government ideas for bridging the gap between labor and management.

At present, this gap is wide. The unions are asking for the 40-hour work week with no reduction in take-home pay from the present general 48 hours, plus hourly increases of seven cents an hour for the 90,000 members of International Unions and 10 cents for the 34,000 members of Canadian Unions. They want this applied to railway, hotel and steamship employees of the companies.

The railway last Thursday made a final offer—excluding hotel and steamship help—of a 44-hour week with the same take-home pay as now and with an assurance the 40-hour week would be put in at "the appropriate time." This was turned down by the unions.

There have been persistent reports here for several days—which Prime Minister St. Laurent Tuesday declined to confirm or deny—that the government would suggest to the railway they set a definite date for the 40-hour week perhaps two years off.

Mr. St. Laurent did not wish to comment on this because of its implication that matters were being taken out of the hands of the negotiating parties. But one government source said such a suggestion could be put forward by a mediator without the aura of government dictation.

MINISTERS WILL

But the nationalist attacks on their communist foes and on foreign ships, including British vessels, trading with the reds have not stopped.

Might Involve U.S.

Although Britain feels the communists have a perfect right to try to take Formosa in order to stop the attacks, she fears this might involve the United States in a war which could become world-wide.

Confusing the picture is the fact that Britain has offered to recognize the communist regime, while the United States still maintains relations with the nationalists.

Britain also feels that if red China attacks Formosa, as she has pledged to do, the west could not count on such non-communist countries as India, Burma and Pakistan in a subsequent clash.

That is because most Asians regard the nationalist regime as discredited and broken.

Meanwhile, the United States is reported to have registered a few complaints of its own about Britain's part in the rearming of the west.

Diplomatic officials report the Americans have complained informally to Britain that her projected $9,520,000,000 program of rearmament against communism doesn't go far enough.

These informants said American officials have complained that the British program does not allow for enough combat divisions, does not provide for a big enough switch of British industry to war production and, above all, does not set aside enough money for defence spending.

HEADLESS

eerie, reddish-white figure for a better look. A sound like that of a low, painful, moan could be heard.

The figure glided away, up the bank and onto Road Hollow. It moved quickly in the faint moonlight. They ran to keep it in sight.

A metal film-holder fell from Patterson's pocket. They stopped to pick it up. When they looked up again, the headless Frenchman was gone.

Some say the Frenchman still roams the wilds of Clinton County looking for his head. Others say he is angry because 'wildcaters' are drilling for gas.

As one valley resident put it: "It's his life blood, that natural gas, and these drillers are eating it all up. If they keep piping the gas out, the headless Frenchman will die."

Some scientifically-inclined folk scoff at the legend. They say the moan is nothing but methane gas seeping from crevices. A forest ranger offered the suggestion that the eerie, ghost-like figure is caused by glowing phosphorous clinging to moss and rotten logs in the damp woods.

INJURED IN MOCK BATTLE

Owen Sound, Ont., Aug. 16—(CP) — Camp Borden soldiers waging a mock battle in the nearby Meaford area today reported a real casualty.

Cpl. W. E. Watson, 30, of London was burned about one eye by the explosion of a thunder flash used to stimulate grenade and mortar fire. He was treated at an advance dressing station.

BUSTLING

In the half-hour a reporter sat in a corner of the office yesterday, officers phoned or came in to talk about later appointments, the design of the Brigade's shoulder patch, training, officers for the artillery regiment and a gin palace for B.M.

A gin palace for B.M. means a certain type of mobile office-truck that proved popular overseas in the last war with brigade majors. The brigadier said he thought that was a must for his B.M., his chief staff officer. He also wanted to be sure the carrier wasn't ignored.

Carriers were excellent for getting across bullet-swept ground, he said. There would probably be carriers, the supply officer told him. The brigadier said he wanted all the Canadian equipment he could get.

When they brought in the shoulder patch, the brigadier got up and called a staff sergeant in to try it for size and they talked about it. By this time there was a general, a colonel or two, a major and the brigadier. The brigadier liked the design of the patch but he thought it was too big and the general suggested it be made smaller.

When they took the patch out, one of the colonels stayed to talk about the artillery unit for the brigade because he was Lt.-Col. A. J. S. Bailey who will command it. The brigadier, big and easy and informal, rolled back in his chair and talked about artillery officers.

He told the colonel to look over the list of volunteers. There was one basic rule he was laying down about officers, the brigadier said. Any man who took a unit or sub-unit into combat must have commanded a force of at least the same size in the last war.

Perfect Weather Greets Fair Visitors Milling Through Buildings, Crowded Midway

Members of the Belleville Fair Board of Directors from President Harry Rollins down, must live right.

At least, they have a "stand-in" with the gentleman, who guides the destinies of the weather.

Take yesterday for instance. The morning augured anything but good fair weather. In fact the rains came slightly and for a while it looked as if a literal damper would be thrown on the day's activities.

Then the weatherman had a distinct change of heart. Shortly after noon, the rain-clouds disappeared and Old Sol poked a nose through the mist. It turned out to be near-perfect fair weather with the result that a near-record crowd attended the show during the afternoon and evening. It was estimated that over 20,000 people clicked the turnstiles.

The midway and the grandstand was mecca for milling crowds. Representative of all parts of Hastings and her sister counties, the crowd thronged sideshow and ride, contest and exhibit, cattle-pen and horse-barn in typical fair mood.

No Dull Moments

There was not a dull moment in front of the grandstand, especially in the afternoon. The grand stage entertainment produced by the George Hamid Company Shows interspersed keen harness racing events, while a parade of various types of equine stars added to the general Fair enjoyment.

Sleek heavy draft horses, prancing hackneys and other carriage types, "cute" Shetland ponies and other members of the equine aristocracy drew rounds of applause as they paraded for judging in front of the grandstand.

Exhibits came in for a plentiful share of patron attention.

Lovers of cattle and other livestock appreciated to the full the fine exhibits shown by breeders of the district, province and other parts of Canada. Sheep poultry and swine had their quota of admiring onlookers.

The exhibits in the Exhibits Buildings were viewed by passing throngs of people both afternoon and evening. The outstanding displays offered by Belleville and district merchants and industry were focal points of interest to all walks of life. Radio-television, electrical appliances, men's and ladies' wear in fact all the colorful displays offered proved centres of attraction.

Midway Active

The midway corridored large crowds of youngsters and grown-ups. The rides were well patronized. The motor-bike riding daredevils of both sexes satisfied thrill-seekers. The money circus, pygmy horses, Mars Express, and other sideshows catered to large quotas of fair goers. The "food booths" did a land-office business as hungry visitors gorged hamburgs, the ubiquitous hot dog, french fried potatoes and what-not. The kiddies taffied themselves with taffy apples, foam candy and other sweetmeats, not forgetting ice cream and soft drinks.

The Aerial Snyders and Helen Haags trained chimpanzees headlined a highly entertaining stage offering. The Snyders, who perform on a trapeze stretching 130 feet in the air, had the large crowd gasping with their daring. The climax of the act when the male member of the two-person cast does a headstand atop the swaying pole had the audience gasping.

Clever Tricks

"Margaret," a six year old chimpanzee with almost human intelligence thrilled the crowd with her clever tricks. She rides all kinds of bicycles, walks a slack wire, does acrobatics, walks a large ball and several other tricks that were eyepleasing. Her two relatives also amused the crowd with sheer monkey business especially when Patty, the baby of the trio ripped the "trousers" off Pete, her pal.

"Pussy-foot" a clever trained horse also caught the eyes of the crowd with her equine artistry. The horse does several clever stunts, is a dancer of grace and obeys the orders of her master in a smooth sequence of stunts.

Bob Bruce, personable master-of-ceremonies, delighted the crowd with his smooth patter besides proving himself to be a finished virtuoso of the harmonica. Miss Jean Wilson, who provides the electric organ accompaniment for the show, is a clever musician.

Kric and Kroc, Rube Simmonds and partner, proved masters of comedy. It is a good show well staged and well received.

The stage performance will be offered again this evening when the 1950 edition of the Belleville Fair passes into history.

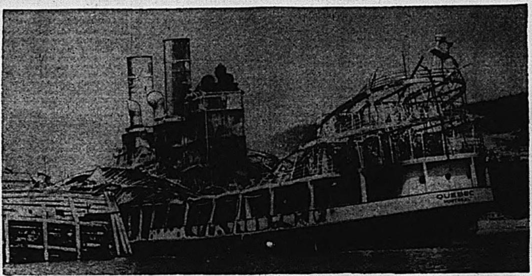
MacFadden at 82 Makes Debut On Roller Skates

Dansville, N.Y., Aug. 17 (AP)—Bernard MacFadden recommends roller skating "if you want to be healthful, vital and keep young at all ages, including 82."

MacFadden was 82 yesterday. Last night, after several months of secret training, he made his debut on roller skates and delighted 200 spectators by remaining upright during a 15-minute demonstration.

Then he walked two miles to attend a dance in his honor on the roof of his physical culture hotel. MacFadden at 81 took up parachute jumping at the Dansville airport.

PASSENGERS SAY ONLY 15 MINUTES SAVED THEM FROM NORONIC FATE



Burned almost to the water line, the C.S.L. luxury cruiser Quebec lies at dock at Tadoussac, Que., where all but three of her 140 passengers were taken off. Loss of life would have been much worse, in the opinion of many of the travellers aboard, if it had started even 15 minutes later. Disaster such as that which brought death to 119 on the Noronic when it burned in Toronto, was averted by the prompt action of the ship's captain by steaming at full speed to Tadoussac dock. — Central Press Canadian.

1,500 Nuns Do Forced Labor in Ukraine Mines

Rome, Aug. 17 — (AP)—Quotidiano, newspaper of the Italian Catholic Action party, today prints a letter by a German nun saying she and 1,500 other members of her order are doing forced labor in Ukrainian coal mines.

Many have died, the letter says, adding: "We envy them. We are treated like animals. We are whipped to work."

The newspaper says the letter was taken to the nun's parents by a repatriated German war prisoner and printed in the Ukrainian language newspaper Michiohap, from which the Rome newspaper printed it.

The nun says that she and others from the order of St. Vincent were taken from soviet East Prussia to the Ukraine.

Teacher Saves Family Of Five One by One From Car in Creek

Columbia, S.C., Aug. 17 (AP)—R. W. Ballentine, a young school teacher, dived into a creek yesterday and pulled an Indiana family of five from their submerged automobile, one by one. Then he began artificial respiration on one of the victims, a nine-year-old girl, while other passers-by applied artificial respiration to the parents. The other two children were breathing. All responded to the first aid.

Grim Discovery Made of Skull, Part of Body

Penns Grove, N.J., Aug. 17 — (AP) — A blood-stained rowboat, a shotgun, half a human body, a skull and the smoking ruins of a shack are clues in a mystery here.

The shack belongs to Raymond Livesay, 55, a contractor. Last Tuesday, police were told, Livesay took Michael Derrow, 38, a carpenter in his employ, to the cabin for a fishing party.

Neither man has been seen since, said police.

Yesterday Joseph Hand, another employee of Livesay's went to the cabin for keys to open the office. He told police he found the cabin burned.

Inside it were the lower half of a man's body, a set of keys and a gold watch bearing the initials M.K.

Nearby, in a creek, was a bloody rowboat. In the rowboat were part of a human skull and a shotgun, which police said had apparently been fired recently.

Tool-Maker Builds Own Seismograph

Hamilton, Aug. 17 — (CP)—A tool-maker, 44-year-old Edward Mantle, recorded Tuesday's earthquake on his homemade seismograph.

Housed in a corner behind the furnace in his home, the seismograph is a new photographic instrument which he built last year.

His new instrument, some five feet long with pendulum, uses two lens and a mirror, the latter a quarter-inch in diameter, cut from a woman's compact.

Most expensive part of his new machine was a generator, which cost $6.40.

Mr. Mantle became interested in seismology when a boy. Interest in his hobby is shared by his wife.

Dockers Refuse To Unload Russian Cargo

New York, Aug. 17—(AP)—The United States lines has placed an embargo on all Russian shipments after Boston longeshoremen refused to unload one of its vessels carrying $350,000 worth of Russian crabmeat.

On Monday New York City stevedores refused to unload a $250,000 crab meat cargo from the Cunard liner Parthia. The longshoremen then adopted a resolution not to handle goods coming from Russia.

Yesterday, A.F.L. longshoremen in Boston would not take off the $350.000 cargo from the U.S. lines' American Manufacturer. The ship is en route to New York with the crab meat still aboard, but a company official said:

"The United States lines knowingly will not handle henceforth any cargo out of or to Soviet Russia directly or indirectly."

Both Cunard and U.S. lines officials said the crab meat will be returned to the United Kingdom. Britain got the sea food in a trade agreement with Russia.

Plant Engaged In War Production Is Destroyed

San Carlos, Calif., Aug.. 17 — (AP) — A spectacular fire and explosion last night levelled a chemical plant making material for the Korean battlefront. Adjoining buildings were damaged.

Owners said the plant may have been sabotaged. Damage was estimated at $250,000.

Repeated blasts and flames, forming a mushroom - shaped fireball, were mistaken for an atomic explosion by some residents.

The plant destroyed processed petroleum products for the army and navy.

OLDEST BUILDING

The Arts Building of the University of New Brunswick is the oldest university building now in active use in Canada.

Reynold's Body Is Brought Off Mount Whitney

Lone Pine, Calif., Aug. 17 — (AP)—A sheriff's posse last night brought the body of 17-year-old Christopher Reynolds off Mount Whitney.

Officers said it was not seen by the boy's grieving mother, former singer Libby Holman, who had flown from Paris in the hope that he would be found alive.

Young Reynolds' body and that of his climbing companion, Steven Wasserman, also 17, were taken to Los Angeles.

Reynolds, heir to a $7,000,000 tobacco fortune, and Wasserman attempted to scale the perilous east face of Mt. Whitney Aug. 6. They were reported missing Aug. 10.

Big Jim From Ortona

Legendary Leader Will Command 2nd Battalion of Princess Patricias

Ottawa, Aug. 17 — (CP)—The army called a legend back to the colors from one end of the country to the other, the red - patch veterans of Canada's 1st Division will be saying the same thing — "Jim Stone's back in the army." Big Jim from Ortona.

The army has announced that Lt.-Col. James Stone, 42, D.S.O. and bar, M.C. Officer Commanding the reserve force Rocky Mountain Rangers, will command the 2nd Battalion of the Princess Patricia's in Canada's special force to fight aggression in Korea or elsewhere.

He's the homesteader who came out of the Peace River country of Alberta and enlisted as a private in September, 1939, and rose to command his battalion, the Loyal Edmonton Regiment. He moved up through all the ranks, step by step, in the same unit.

The army also announced Lt. Col. R. A. Bob Keane, D. S. O., 36 of Fort William and Ottawa will command the 2nd Battalion of the Royal Canadian Regiment and Lt.-Col. Jacques Dextraze, D. S. O., 31-year-old businessman near Montreal, will command the 2nd Battalion of the Fusiliers Mont-Royal.

For a long time, the long, long legend about Jim Stone goes, they wouldn't let him be an officer because they didn't think he looked like one.

Then they sent him on an N. C. O.'s course and someone who knew leadership burst forth, "What in hell is that man doing as a company sergeant major, he should be commanding one." He was, in time.

That was around the time of Spitsbergen when the Edmontons made a bloodless invasion of that far northern island off the coast of Norway and CSM. Stone ran the inhabitants with a hand of iron and a heart of gold. That was the way he handled men.

In March of 1942 he got his commission. By the time of Ortona in December, 1943, he was a company commander and by that time the Stone legend was growing fast. The Edmontons and Vancouver's Seaforth Highlanders cleared Ortona. Jim Stone was the driving fury of the Edmontons.

To this day, men who fought under him talk of him in tones that can approach the reverential. He was, they say, the epitome of the fighting, human leader.

When they picked an abortive Canadian force to join the allied march into Berlin at the end of the war, Jim Stone was the man picked to lead it.

He went back into civilian life. Last winter on Exercise Sweetbrier in Yukon and Alaska, he went into the army for a few weeks to help out. They had him escorting senior officers.

One day a plane landed with Maj.-Gen. Chris Vokes, his old 1st Division Commander, among those aboard. When the general was informed he would be escorted by Jim Stone, he growled, "Migod, who's going to protect me?"

The legend will go on from there.

Seeks Ban Against Gold-Fish Racing

Ashbury Park, N.J., Aug. 17. (AP)—Mrs. William Guillium, who feels sorry for tired fish, says a court ban will be sought against the goldfish-racing interests.

The new sport began in an amusement pavilion on the boardwalk of this seaside resort.

The track is made of several parallel, transparent water-filled tubes, with a live goldfish in each. Plastic fishes with big jaws pop up at one end of the tube to scare them—and they're off!

Mrs. Guillium, who heads the Monmouth County Chapter of the Society for Prevention of Cruelty to Animals, says the racers are overworked and in danger of becoming groggy.

But Herman D. Post, who designed the game, says "the fish are required to do something that is only natural, and that's to swim."

He said tired ones are benched in a rest tank.

NY State Offers To Pay For Work On New Project

Washington, Aug. 17. (AP)—New York State, emphasizing its need for more electrical energy, Wednesday offered to construct and pay for works that would triple hydro-electric production at Niagara Falls.

The proposal was placed before the House of Representatives Public Works Committee by John E. Burton, chairman of the New York State Power authority. The committee is considering legislation that would authorize a greater use of water from the Niagara River at the Falls to produce power.

Under the Bill, introduced by Representative Roosevelt (Dem. Lib. N.Y.) and Senator Herbert H. Lehman (Dem. Lib. N.Y.) the federal government would construct the new power plants and turn them over to New York. The state would pay the cost of construction.

H. N. Burton told the committee that the state, in addition to financing and constructing the Niagara project, is also willing to do the same thing with respect to the St. Lawrence Power Development. He said:

"We do not ask the federal government to finance this project or the St. Lawrence Power project for us.

"We propose that we pay for these projects ourselves, and that we construct the projects and operate them in the fullest co-operation with the federal government."

Cultivator Nearly Severs Both Legs Of Val d'Or Farmer

Val d'Or, Que., Aug. 17 (CP)—Polydore Levi, 64, father of 14 children, was seriously injured at his nearby LaSarre farm when a cultivator ran over him and nearly severed both his legs.

The man lay helpless in the field for 45 minutes before help reached him. Dr. J. Bernier said both legs would be saved although one of them had been three-quarters severed.

The accident occurred when the horses drawing the cultivator bolted while the victim was standing in front of the implement. He told hospital authorities that he prayed for 45 minutes before help reached him.

Special Army Force Now About 4,600 Men

Ottawa, Aug. 17 — (CP) — Recruits are coming in faster than ever for the army's special force, defence headquarters reported Wednesday.

Tuesday saw another 765 added to its enlistment total to make the over-all number enlisted in the first seven days 3,792. In addition, another 885 are in the process of being attested, meaning that the force now has roughly 4,600 men.

There never has been any official estimate of the size of the brigade group that will fight aggression in Korea or elsewhere, but it is expected to run to around 5,000 men.

However, Defence Minister Claxton said Tuesday night it will recruit beyond its own immediate requirements so as to guarantee reinforcements.

The army said Wednesday it had anticipated that recruiting now would level off at around 500 men a day but it was away out in its estimation.

The army said 1,026 new applications came forward Tuesday, raising the figure to 12,701 for the regular and special forces since the twin recruiting drives started.

Fashion Expert Held by Police

Nice, France, Aug 17 (AP)—Police Wednesday detained modiste Elsa Schiaparelli and questioned her for hours about some jewels she had reported stolen. She was released Wednesday night and police said no charges would be placed against her, but that they would confiscate $1,485 in United States currency.

One of the world's leading designers of women's clothing, Mme. Schiaparelli was stopped by police as she was about to board a plane for Tunis. She reported Aug. 6 that jewels worth 3,000,000 francs (about $8,500) had been stolen from her. Police said some of these jewels were found in her luggage Wednesday.

Police said they found the $1,485 while searching her baggage. Schiaparelli, police said, will have to pay an administrative fine equal to $148,50 for failing to declare the money.

The 53-year-old fashion leader said she had found three of the four pieces of jewelry she had reported stolen, but that the most valuable piece actually was stolen. She had thought it necessary to inform police because the most important piece still was missing.

ALLOWED REPLACEMENTS

Toronto, Aug. 17—(CP)—Canadian senior football teams will be allowed replacements for imports drafted in the United States.

Canadian Rugby Union president Tommy Alison announced Wednesday the C.R.U. had voted to accept a Big Four recommendation that replacements be allowed. Alison said the team must produce proof of the player's enlistment, and the he would not be allowed to return to the team for the rest of the season.

Famous Falls Are in For Face-Lifting

Niagara Falls, Ont., Aug. 17 — (CP) — Niagara's famous falls, among the world's top tourist attractions, are in for a face-lifting.

The job will be a combined operation by the U. S. and Canadian governments. It will serve a double purpose — to provide more electrical power and to preserve the falls' scenic beauty.

The retouching job was agreed to under a treaty signed Feb. 27 on the use of waters of the Niagara River. It has been approved by both the U. S. Senate and the Canadian parliament, and will cost more than $1,000,000.

The plan calls for construction of weirs and shearing-off shelves near the brink of both the American falls and the larger Canadian Horseshoe Falls. They are designed to stop erosion, maintain the flow and provide more water for hydro power.

These steps were first recommended in 1926 by a special international board studying the falls. One recommendation, construction of the Niagara River weir, was carried out in 1947 and has doubled the flow over the American falls and through the rapids above.

The board reported that due to erosion, the flow over the Horseshoe Falls was deficient, and that the flow over part of the U. S. falls would eventually cease. Flow in the rapids above was not sufficient to maintain the spectacle.

Now the weirs will deflect water over the low part of the U. S. falls and will generally increase the flow over the Canadian side.

Also increased will be the flow for power purposes. Today this is kept at 82,000 cubic feet a second, of which 49,500 goes to Canada and 32,500 to the U.S.

Morley Durnford New Police Chief At Gananoque

Gananoque, Aug. 17. (CP)—Constable W. Morley Durnford of the Essex detachment of the Ontario Provincial Police has been appointed chief constable of Gananoque.

Const. Durnford, who has served with the Provincial Force for 24 years, was picked from 25 applicants for the post. He succeeds the late Chief Constable J. R. Morrison who died last month.

Const. Durnford recently was demoted from the rank of sergeant and relieved of command of the Essex County Provincial Police detachment. No reason was given for his demotion.

Increase in Witness Fees Asked by Assoc.

London, Ont., Aug. 17 (CP) — An increase in fees and expenses paid police officers who appeared as witnesses in high court civil actions is requested in a resolution approved by delegates to the Ontario Police Association convention Tuesday.

The resolution asks that these witnesses be paid $1.50 an hour for their services with a $5 minimum fee, 10 cents a mile travelling expenses and $10 hotel expenses for out-of-town witnesses forced to remain overnight.

The present general rate is a flat rate of $1.50 for persons within town limits and $2 for those outside the town limits of the court at which they appear, plus 20 cents a mile travelling expenses.

MEMOS BLAST NAPANEE

Brockville, Aug. 17—(CP)—Behind the steady, four-hit pitching of Bill Aldrich, Brockville Memos mauled four Napanee pitchers in a Central Ontario Baseball League game Tuesday night for a 16-1 victory. The win firmly established the Memos in third place.

CHINA WILL RESIST

Belgrade, Aug. 15 (Reuters) — A prediction that communist China will ultimately resist Russian domination was made yesterday by Premier Tito of Yugoslavia. In an interview Tito said Far Eastern communist parties would show "tendencies towards independence — but not for some time." The trend "can only arise out of attempts of the Soviet Union to interfere in their internal affairs. When the Chinese people find themselves economically exploited, they will be certain to resist."

Man Who Boarded Liner, Stowaway Will Return to US

Southampton, Aug. 17 — (CP) — A man who boarded the Polish liner Batory from a seaplane and another who stowed away before the ship sailed from New York will be returned to the United States aboard the Batory Aug. 30.

The two are William Jesse Newton, 26, of New York, and Howard Campbell, 29-year-old stowaway from Des Moines, Iowa.

Newton was taken aboard in the Atlantic Ocean about 100 miles off New York when he landed his rented seaplane alongside the ship Aug. 8.

Capt. Jan Cwiklinski said the flier told him he lost his way and was almost out of gasoline.

"There was not quite half a gallon of gasoline in the plane's tank," the captain said.

Both men are being held by British authorities. Newton's plane, which the Batory salvaged, was hoisted to the pier.

Cwiklinski denied there was any mystery about Newton, whose small rented aircraft began circling over the Batory about six hours after she had left New York.

"My job as a sea captain is to save life whenever I can," Cwiklinski added. "I would do the same thing a hundred times over if it was necessary.

"We asked him why he came down by the Batory instead of a freighter which was three miles away. His reply was that he thought he would make a crash landing and he knew there would be a doctor aboard a passenger ship."

Cwiklinski said he would take both men back to the United States on his return trip.

One of the detectives who escorted the two men off the ship had arrested communist Gerhart Eisler earlier when he arrived here in the same ship on his flight from the U.S. in May, 1949. Eisler later was released by a British court and continued his journey to East Germany.

Voluntary Men Called Off Jobs In Hamilton

Hamilton, Aug. 17 (CP)—Union leaders moved Wednesday to plug up the last gaps in the strike of 1,000 municipal employees for higher wages and shorter hours.

As the first week of strike ended, voluntary grave diggers from union ranks were called off the job and emergency crews posted at the waterworks in case of a water break were ordered to leave. Both had been keeping the two services running while the strike was on.

Oliver Hodges, publicity director of the striking local 5 of the Hamilton Civic Employees Union (C. C. L.) said the union decided on the moves because of the city's attitude towards the strike.

Meanwhile a third vital service — garbage collection — remained at a standstill. As an emergency measure, Dr. L. A. Clarke, Medical Officer of Health, was given permission to overdraw his appropriation for extra spraying of city dumps.

The union, claiming to represent more than 1,000 workers in the three services, as asking a 40-hour week and no reduction in take-home pay from the present 44 cents an hour plus a general two-cent boost.

At a special session Tuesday with the Ontario Labor Department, the city made a compromise offer of a 42-hour week starting January, with a 40-hour week in January, 1952. They also offered an immediate wake increase of $1 a week.

The meeting broke up with both parties deadlocked, and union officers said it would be at least another week before the strike could be settled.

STIRLING

Stirling—Last Friday evening Campbellford Lawn Bowling Club members were hosts to the clubs from Deloro and Stirling. Two games were played and a general good time was enjoyed by everyone.

On Monday, two rinks from Stirling attended the Corbin Lock Tournament at Belleville, while neither rink reached the prize ring, both gave good account of themselves.

On Wednesday, three doubles rinks from the ladies section of the club attended the tournament for ladies bowling at Brighton. The rinks were Green and Fraser, skip, Rosa Spry and Mrs. Burgess skip, and Grace Carleton and Mrs. W. T. Elliott skip. The first two rinks were successful in winning two games out of three, while the third rink won three games and stood second in the list of prize winners. Their awards were beautiful pieces of chinaware.

In the men's section, a rink of triples composed of R. A. Patterson, E. A. Carleton with W. T. Elliott as skip attended the triples tournament at Madoc. There were sixteen rinks present and the Stirling rink tied for second place with a rink from Belleville. Rinks were present from Brighton, Havelock, Campbellford and Kingston.

Delicious RAISIN* BRAN MUFFINS

¾ cup milk
1 cup Post's Bran Flakes
½ cup chopped raisins*
1 cup sifted flour
3½ teaspoons baking powder
¼ teaspoon salt
3 tablespoons sugar
1 egg, well beaten
3 tablespoons melted butter or other shortening

Pour milk over bran and let stand 5 minutes. Add ½ cup chopped raisins to bran mixture. Sift flour once, measure, add baking powder, salt, and sugar, and sift again. Add egg and butter to bran mixture and mix well. Add flour, beating only enough to dampen all flour. Bake in greased muffin pans in hot oven (425°F.) 20 to 30 minutes. Makes 10 muffins.

Bakelite Moves Into First Place Tie in League

Belleville Bakelite moved into first place tie with Belleville Mercuries in the B Section of the Commercial Softball League last evening as they downed the Mercuries 16-15 in a wild game at the Alemite Field.

The loss was the first loss sustained by the Motormen this season.

The contest was a wide-open, free-wheeling affair with the outcome in doubt until the final frame. Bakelite, trailing 15-11 in the bottom of the eighth, came up with a five run rally for the winning margin relief pitcher Stewart then rushed in to hold the Motormen in the ninth setting them down in order.

Bakelite opened the scoring in the bottom of the second frame scoring seven runs on four hits, five walks, and two errors as they sent 13 men to the plate.

The motormen rushed back into the game with a five run rally in the top of the third on an error, a sacrifice, a triple, by Moore, a double by Tapp, and a home run by Burns.

Bakelite jumped back into a comfortable lead in the third as they greeted relief pitcher Stone with three singles, that went with an error for three runs.

Overhaul Opposition

Mercuries then began to overhaul their opposition putting over two runs in the fifth on three singles, two more in the sixth on a triple by Emmerson, and a home run by Moore. They added three more in the seventh and three in the eighth to take a four run lead.

Earl Cousins led off the sixth for Bakelite with a home run. Then in the bottom of the eighth Cousins again started the ball rolling with his third home run of the evening. Doubles by Burley, Littlejohn and Arnott, and a single by Powers poured over four more runs as Bakelite took a one run lead for the winning margin.

Dell started on the hill for the losers and in two innings gave up four hits, and five walks for seven runs. Stone went the rest of the way being nicked for 11 hits and nine runs as he took the loss.

Clark Burich toiled eight innings for Bakelite walking five, striking out three, and being blasted for 16 hits and 15 runs to claim the win. Stewart retired the motormen in order in the ninth to preserve the win for Bakelite.

Big noise at the plate was Bakelite catcher Earl Cousins with three home runs and two singles in five tries. He scored three runs and batted in five others. Burns and Moore homered for the losers.

Line ups:

Belleville Motor Car: Emmerson cf; Moore c; Tapp 2b; Culhane 1b; Burns 3b; Gommel rf; Miller ss; Garvin lf; Bell p, replaced by Stone in the 3rd.

Bakelite: Arnott 2b; Burtch p, replaced by Stewart in ninth; Cook lf; Cousins c; Peever cf; Lawn rf, replaced by Lucas in 7th; Burley ss; Littlejohn 3b; Powers 1b.

Score by innings: R H E

CALL MEANS JAIL TERM

Toronto, Aug. 17—(CP)—A telephone call is going to mean six months in jail for Raymond Hibbert. He was sentenced yesterday after telephoning Mrs. Audrey Carley. He had been bound over to keep the peace March 29 after Mrs. Carley complained to police that he had threatened her. Mrs. Carley testified that Hibbert phoned her while she was visiting friends and later accosted her in a restaurant.

Split Heats Feature Racing At Local Fair

Split heats were in order in the feature race staged in conection with the fair on Wednesday afternoon, when the largest crowd ever to watch the racing fixture was on hand. The large crowd was entertained by a variety of acts on the platform, while horses in all classes were judged before the grandstand. Ideal weather greeted the fair visitors and the horses put on an act, that was worthy of their prowess.

In the fast class, three horses Ruth Harvester, Rose Axworthy and Flicka each won a heat and each horse had to withstand a lengthy stretch drive to stick her nose under the wire on top. The track was in much better condition than the first day's races with the slow class horses going nearly as fast as the faster class pacers.

The slow class was dominated by the pacing ability of Matilda Henley of Kingston. This miss made every post a winning one and her driver won as he pleased. The little mite went about the business of pacing in a wormlike manner and the issue was never in doubt.

All of the starts from the gate were perfect and none of the entrants had any complaints. Some of the horses do not like the contraption but once they set to work at pacing they forget about the gate in front of them. The starting gate has revolutionized harness racing and new clubs are springing up all over the country and many more breeding farms have been established. The public like the sulky races because it always shows the real calibre of the horse.

Pickets Patrol Preston Mine At Timmins

Timmins, Aug. 17—(CP)—Pickets today patrolled the Preston East Dome gold mine in the first strike since 1912 in the rich Porcupine mining field.

Union officials said the strike may spread to Conlaurum and Buffalo Ankerite mines in the area unless demands for higher pay are met.

Some 900 men are employed by the mine. W. A. Hutchinson, manager of Preston East Dome, said the mine "will be open for those who wish to return to work. If enough don't show up, we will close indefinitely."

The strike was called suddenly Wednesday by Local 100 of the Porcupine Mine Workers Union (C.C.L.) after collapse of negotiations.

Pickets began to stop workers as the day shift left work yesterday afternoon. More than 300 miners were on the picket line by the time the night shift arrived. Police patrolled the area and warned pickets not to stop any miners who wished to go to work.

Leo Behie, vice-chairman of the union, said the miners demands now had reverted to the original demands made when negotiations first began. That included six statutory holidays with pay, instead of the present two, incorporation of a cost-of-living bonus of 15 cents an hour in wage rates and an increase of 12 cents an hour.

Mr. Behie said meetings will be held today with officials of Conlaurum and Buffalo Ankerite and strikes will be called if the wage demands are not met.

SWIMS INTO FINALS

Montreal, Aug. 17 — (CP) — Husky Bob Eason of Stratford swam into the finals in the 100-yard free style and 440-yard events of the Dominion swimming championships yesterday at suburban Verdun, Que. The finals are today.

Eason, the lone Stratford entry, won his heat in the 100 - yard preliminary and came second in the 440. He swims today in the one-mile race against top Canadian and American milers.

CAMPBELLFORD

Broda's All-Stars Will Play Game To Help Project

Campbellford, Aug. 16 —Turk Broda's "All Stars," the N. H. L. softball team with the "Turk" in charge, will visit Campbellford on Thursday August 24, to play an exhibition game against the best in the Trent Valley League. The event is sponsorerd by the local ball club, which at present is in debt and it is hoped this event will do much to enable the club to get back on their feet and pay off their obligations.

Playing on the visiting team will be a host of N.H.L. hockey stars, among them Cal. Gardner, Jimmie Thompson, Gus Mortson, Max and Bill Quackenbush, Bill Barilko, Ed Harrison, Elem. Mackell, Bud Poile, Sid Smith, Al Dewsbury, Chuck Webster, and of course the "Turk" himself.

Dit Clapper and Harold (Baldy) Cotton will umpire the game and Dr. Fred G. Robertson (Lib. Northumberland) and Hon. W. A. Goodfellow, Welfare Minister, will pitch and bat respectively to open the game.

The local club has obtained permission from the council to close off a section of the street around the ball diamond to make ticket taking easier, as it is hoped the crowd at this game will be large.

To Play in Town

The well-known Conklin Shows, at present playing in Belleville, and soon to move to Peterborough, will be in Campbellford on Friday and Saturday of this week, sponsored by the local Rotary Club.

President Arthur Loucks of the local club, was informed on Tuesday that the midway will be available on those two days, between shows in Belleville and Peterborough and Rotary thought it a good idea to bring the show to Campbellford.

The vacant property at the rear of the Water and Light office will be turned into a fair ground for two days, which should help swell the Rotary funds for community service.

Out in Front

The local softball club walked away with a nine inning tussle with a score of 20 to 6 over the Havelock team at the High School diamond on Monday evening, to put themselves out in front of a best of five series, two games to one.

Triples by Bennett and Herd and MacFarlane, and home runs by Herd and Hardy, did much to take the game for Campbellford.

The next, and what could be the deciding game of the series, will likely be played in Havelock on Wednesday night.

Office Moved

The C.N. and C.P. telegraph office, which was formerly located on Front Street in town, has been moved to Barnum's Drug Store on Bridge Street, and a teletype has been installed. The C.P. line is now in operation, and the C.N. line will be operating in the near future.

FOOTBALL AGAIN

Red Feather Football, tournament of scholastic champions, will be played this year on the nights of Friday, Oct. 27, and Saturday, Oct. 28, under the lights at the Canadian National Exhibition Grandstand, Toronto.

The announcement was made by Dalt White, last year's chairman, who said that the school classic again would be sponsored by the Ontario Federation of School Athletic directors in co-operation with the Toronto Telegram and the T. Eaton Co., Ltd. Gross receipts will be donated to the Community Chest of Toronto and other Ontario centres.

For the second successive year, Ontario's eight top teams will compete for the Ted Reeve Trophy, generally accepted as representing the provincial secondary school championship and won last year by East York CI. A doubleheader will be played each night of the tournament.

Selection of the champions again will be made by a board of experts from the football world. Last year's board consisted of Dr. H. C. Griffiths, retired headmaster of Ridley College, Wally Masters, coach of the Ottawa Roughriders, Teddy Morris, then coach of Toronto Argonauts, Norm Perry, former star of Sarnia Imperials, Denny Whittaker, former star of Hamilton Tigers, and Ted Reeve.

Mr. White said that an announcement would be made at an early date regarding the personnel of this year's board of experts.

More than 28,000 fans attended last year's tournament at Maple Leaf Stadium, Toronto, when more than $7,000 was raised for Red Feather. Due to the increased accommodation at the CNE grandstand, it is expected that this year's attendance will hit 60,000, thus establishing Red Feather Football as the largest gridiron attraction in Canada.

[illegible]

Whipper Billy Watson and Fred Atkins will have a return go to settle their unfinished business of last week when they meet again in the wrestling ring at the Memorial Arena on Friday night.

* * *

The fans had the enjoyment of seeing a decision reversed against the flinty Atkins last Friday night when the surly, burly Australian had first been declared the winner over Watson. However, when the referee noticed Atkins had his foot entwined in the ropes for leverage at the time of the fall, the official wiped out his original verdict and raised Watson's arm aloft as the final winner.

Needless to say, Atkins was furious and has demanded a return test. He found Watson willing to take up the challenge so they'll continue their hammer-and-tongs battle this week. Both Atkins and Watson claim they'll rack up a decision that won't be open to any question this time.

* * *

The recently - arrived Masked Marvel will have the toughest test of his campaign here to date when he meets none other than non-stop Rapid Ray Villmer, in the semi-final. The hooded horror will have to have plenty of stuff on the wrestling ball to get by a rival like the human buzz-saw from St. Louis.

Warren Bockwinkle will wrestle Jim "Goon" Henry in the first bout.

B.C. Swimmers Appear Headed For Big Slice

Montreal, Aug. 17 (CP) —Vancouver swimmers, led by smooth-stroking Irene Strong who has already retained two of her titles today appeared headed for a major slice of the Canadian swimming championship honors.

Miss Strong last night captured for a second straight year the senior women's 150-yard back-stroke championship. To top this performance she was back in the Verdun open-air swimming pool minutes later to lead her Vancouver club mates in retaining their senior women's 400-yard free style relay championship.

Montreal and Toronto swimmers and divers also figured yesterday in championship events. Montreal Y.M.C.A. captured the junior women's 440-yard free style relay.

In the diving events, Evelyn Buchanan of Toronto captured the Canadian women's diving title, and Leo Vigeant, veteran Montreal diver, won the men's diving championship.

Dizzy Trout, Pitcher Nobody Wanted in 1949 is Keeping Detroit on Top of League

By JOE REICHLER
(Associated Press Sports Writer)

Paul (Dizzy) Trout, the pitcher nobody wanted in 1949, is keeping Detroit Tigers on top in the chase for the American League pennant.

Currently the hottest pitcher in the loop, the oldest player on the Detroit Tiger squad is in line for "comeback-of-the-year" honors in the majors. The 36-year-old right-hander, relegated to the bull-all last season, boasts a 10-2 won-and-lost record. A newly-developed fork ball has helped him compile his remarkable mark.

Old Diz gained his 10th triumph last night when he pitched and batted the Tigers to a 6-2 victory over Chicago White Sox. It was his six consecutive victory. He held the Sox to five hits and singled in the second inning to drive in two runs.

It was an important victory for the Tigers since Cleveland and Boston each swept doubleheaders and New York Yankees defeated Washington.

The Indians received excellent pitching from Jesse Flores and Mike Garcia as they defeated St. Louis Browns 2-0 and 2-1. The Red Sox pounded out 11-3 and 12-7 verdicts over Philadelphia Athletics. The Yankees won 9-4.

Philadelphia's runway Phillies widened their National League margin to seven games over Boston, setting back Vern (no-hit) Bickford and the Braves 5-1. New York Giants mauled Brooklyn Dodgers 16-7. Pittsburgh handed St. Louis Cards their fourth straight defeat, 5-3. Chicago's Cubs earned a 12-inning, 4-3 victory over Cincinnati.

Makes First Start

Flores, making his first start for the Indians, distributed only four hits to the Browns in the opener. Garcia gave up five in the nightcap. The double win moved the Tribe into second place, three games behind Detroit.

Bobby Doerr batted in seven runs, five in the first game, as the Red Sox defeated the Athletics. One of Doerr's four hits was a grand-slam homer.

Robin Roberts pitched a three-hitter for the Phillies to register his 16th victory. Richie Ashburn rapped three hits for the Phils. Bickford, who pitched a no-hitter in his last outing, allowed 11 hits.

A nine-hit first inning by the Giants finished the Dodgers. Before the game was over Hank Thompson had smashed two homers and Don Mueller had hit a grand-slammer for the winners.

Ralph Kiner hit his 34th homer of the year with a man on to help Pittsburgh whip the Redbirds.

Single by Ron Northey following Bob Ramazzotti's triple gave the Cubs their 12-inning victory over the Reds.

Kid Gavilan Drops Greco In Sixth Round

Montreal, Aug. 17 —(CP) — Cuba's Kid Gavilan established himself as a leading contender for Sugar Ray Robinson's welterweight crown here last night when he dropped jolting Johnny Greco for a sixth-round knockout in a scheduled 10-round main bout at the Montreal Baseball Stadium.

Greco at 150, held a 2 1-2 pound advantage over the dusky Cuban from Havana.

A crowd of 9,177 poured $33,-656 into the gross gate which promoter Raoul Godbout described as "disappointing."

Greco, Canadian welterweight champion, was leading by a wide margin before he was sent to the canvas at the 2:21 minute mark of the sixth. Gavilan caught him with a sweeping bolo punch and followed up quickly with a right-hand cross to the chin. Greco lay flat on his stomach for the full count. He was hurt and had to be helped from the ring by his handlers.

Before the blow was landed The Canadian press score card had Greco winning three of the first five rounds, one even and Gavilan taking the first.

The fight marked the second appearance of Gavilan here. Last spring, he pounded out a 10 round decision over Laurent Dauthuille of France.

In a fast-moving, 10-round semi-final, Armand Savoie, 134, and Jean Richard, 135, both of Montreal, battled to a draw. The decision received a long booing from the crowd, most of whom were in favor of giving the decision to Savoie on the strength of his dumping Richard in the second and third rounds.

Elsbr Zastre, 165, of Montreal and Winnipeg earned an unanimous 10-round decision over Marcelino Armenteros 159, Cuba. Zastre had too much power for Armenteros and in the late stages of the fight had him helplessly against the ropes.

YESTERDAY'S STARS

(By The Associated Press)

Batting — Hank Thompson, Giants: Slammed two inside-the-park homers and a single to drive in four runs as the Giants crushed the Dodgers 16-7.

Pitching— Dizzy Trout, Tigers: Limited the White Sox to five hits and registered his sixth straight triumph as Detroit defeated the White Sox 6-3.

Stengel Plans To Return Jolting Joe to Lineup

Washington, Aug. 17 (AP) — Manager Casey Stengel of the New York Yankees said he plans to return Joe DiMaggio to the starting lineup tomorrow night in Philadelphia against the Athletics.

"If Joe gets hot and gives me about 38 runs batted in in two weeks we could win the pennant," Stengel added last night. "Of course, a little pitching would help too."

The 35-year-old Yankee slugger was benched last Friday for the first time in his career. Previously he had been out of the world champions' lineup due to injuries but never for light hitting.

"Joe was playing with a bad shoulder and a bad knee," Casey declared. "He needed rest and I think he realizes it. I asked him how he felt yesterday and he said 'I'm still tired.'"

Whether Joe realizes he needed the rest remains a secret. He said he had his share of "aches and pains" when he was taken out, but he never passed judgment on the move. All he would say yesterday when asked about his enforced rest is: "I'm ready to go anytime and I'll be happy to get back in there."

Around the Home ...

TOM GARD'S NOTE BOOK

It seems as if most people have a struggle to furnish their first home. We visited newlyweds last weekend and it was almost like reliving our own first few months! They will succeed, though, as first things had been put first and improvisation took care of the rest. One of their best "makeshifts" was a hall table. His parents had modernized an old sideboard by removing the top section—mirror and all. The top shelf and two supports had been left intact; a third leg was placed in the centre at the back and then braces run to the other two legs. It made an ideal hall table for the telephone and hadn't cost a cent. Even the mirror had been resilvered, etched and mounted on half-inch plywood, making an inexpensive hall mirror.

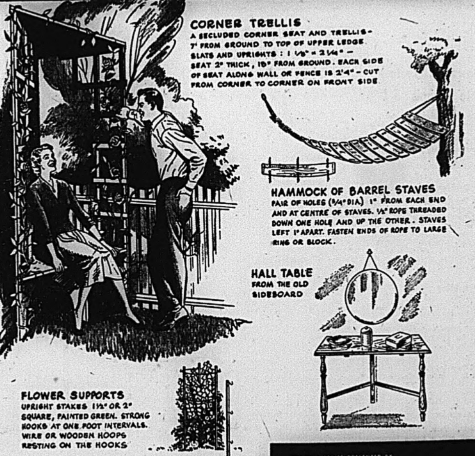
Barrel-Stave Hammock

If you would like a hammock to hang under your favourite tree but must pamper a limited budget, try the idea developed by a neighbour down the street. Holes were bored in old barrel staves and then threaded with half-inch rope. You'll see how it was done by examining the diagram shown. A heavy blanket or old sleeping bag will make the hammock quite comfortable.

Corner Garden Seat

If you wish a garden trellis in a half-pint backyard, don't stick it out in the centre of the lawn like a sore thumb. Arbours and gateways should lead somewhere; high trellises should terminate some line of vision. One of the best ideas I have seen for a small garden combined the trellis with a corner garden seat. It was most attractive and a solid mass of blue morning glories when I last saw it.

I notice some of my perennials are beginning to fall over. In case you haven't suitable flower supports for your garden, here is the type I have been using for years. They are easy to apply and just as easy to store away in the fall.



CORNER TRELLIS
A SECLUDED CORNER SEAT AND TRELLIS - 7' FROM GROUND TO TOP OF UPPER LEDGE. SLATS AND UPRIGHTS: 1 1/8" × 2 1/4" - SEAT 2" THICK, 18" FROM GROUND. EACH SIDE OF SEAT ALONG WALL OR FENCE IS 2'4" - CUT FROM CORNER TO CORNER ON FRONT SIDE
HAMMOCK OF BARREL STAVES
PAIR OF HOLES (3/4" DIA) 1" FROM EACH END AND AT CENTRE OF STAVES. 1/2" ROPE THREADED DOWN ONE HOLE AND UP THE OTHER. STAVES LEFT 1" APART. FASTEN ENDS OF ROPE TO LARGE RING OR BLOCK.
HALL TABLE FROM THE OLD SIDEBOARD
FLOWER SUPPORTS
UPRIGHT STAKES 1½" OR 2" SQUARE, PAINTED GREEN. STRONG HOOKS AT ONE FOOT INTERVALS. WIRE OR WOODEN HOOPS RESTING ON THE HOOKS

More about these and many other ideas in the booklet "AROUND THE HOME". Write for your copy to Tom Gard, c/o MOLSON'S (Ontario) LIMITED, P.O. Box 490, Adelaide St. Station, Toronto.

Dr. Stanton Wins Pacing Derby At New Hamburg

(By The Canadian Press)

Dr. Stanton, the highest money-winning gelding in the history of harness racing, picked up some added honors at New Hamburg Wednesday. Winning every time out, he captured the Canadian pacing derby in straight heats before 10,000 — one of the largest crowds ever to see the classic.

Dr. Stanton, owned and driven by Lindley Fraser of Forest, is the fast-stepping son of Bonnycastle and was never pushed too much to take the big event.

Dr. Stanton got his greatest opposition from a London horse, The Diplomat, winner of the derby last year. Away to a bad start in the opening heat, The Diplomat finished fifth. However, in the other two tests, he was never too far away from the eventual winner and placed both times.

Third was Royal Man, an early pace-setter in each heat, driven by Floyd Milton, New Hamburg.

Times in the feature event were not too good, considering the classy field. The final heat, paced in an even 2.06, was the best mile of the day.

Cleveland Indians got another Lemon yesterday. He's Jim (Bob) Lemon, who has hit 39 home runs and driven in 119 runs this season for Oklahoma City. The 22-year-old outfielder will be used as a pinch-hitter the rest of the season. He's no relation to pitcher Bob Lemon.

Chicago Black Hawks of the National Hockey League, already outfitted with a new manager, Ebbie Goodfellow, and a new goalie, Harry Lumley, got a couple of new directors Wednesday. One was Don Tobin, 21-year-old son of William Tobin, Hawks president, and the other is Lester Armour, chairman of the board of Chicago National Bank.

Tom Brown, the surprise appointee to the United States Davis Cup tennis team, was far off his usual game while he and Sam Match of San Francisco were bowing to Australia's crack Jack Bromwich and Frank Sedgman 6-3, 6-2, 6-2, in a third-round United States doubles match at Brookline, Mass., Wednesday.

Brown, replacement for injured Budge Patty on the International Trophy's defending forces actually made a sorry showing against the Australians he may face in next week's challenge round at Forest Hills, N.Y.

Two other U.S. Davis cupsters, the veteran Gardnar Mulloy and Bill Talbert displayed all of their old time sparkle overcoming Felicimo Ampon of the Phillipines and Ricardo Balbiers of Chile, 6-1, 6-4, 12-10, as they qualified for the quarter finals.

Brawny Jim Fuchs of Yale hurled the shot 58 feet 5 9-16 inches at Stockholm Wednesday night, the greatest put ever made but it will not go into the record book as a world mark.

The 215 pound Chicagoan made his tremendous heave on an extra throw after competition in the event had ended. Swedish officials said this means it cannot be claimed as a world record.

TEA-DRINKING NATION

Auckland, N.Z. — (CP) — New Zealand and Britain now are the world's heaviest tea-drinking countries. New Zealand has risen from fourth place in 10 years and the average person drinks 7.8 pounds of tea a year. Before the war the average stood at 6.7 pounds.

Jackie Robinson Believes He'll be Traded Next Year

Brooklyn, N. Y., Aug. 16 (AP) — Jackie Robinson, famed Negro second baseman of Brooklyn Dodgers, said today "I won't be surprised if I'm traded to some other club before the start of the 1951 season."

Robinson gave this opinion amid indication of rising tension on the Brooklyn team, such as can be expected on a championship club favored to win the pennant but now lagging 6½ games behind the leaders.

"I can't tell you any more," Robinson said to an Associated Press reporter. "It may be no more than a hunch. I've just got the feeling. That's all."

Milton Gross of the New York Post, quoting Robinson to the same effect, also said Roy Campanella, Brooklyn Negro catcher, told him:

"Jackie's not the only one who is thinking that. There's a lot of fellows on the club don't figure they're going to be back. There's going to be plenty of trading this winter."

Branch Rickey, president of the Dodgers, is known to be irate at the team's performance.

In a recent public speech he said he doubted if the team would repeat as National League champions "because complacency has set in."

Playing Fourth Season

Robinson, first Negro in the big leagues in modern times, is playing his fourth season for the Dodgers after a season with Montreal Royals. Last year he was selected as the most valuable player in the National League and was league batting champion with an average of .342. He now is in a slump.

Robinson denied there was any serious dispute with Manager Burt Shotton of the Dodgers.

"We've always got along fine," he said. "He's a good manager. He's always treated me swell."

Gross wrote in the New York Post:

"No one man or thing can be blamed for the .500 pace the Dodgers have set within the past 12 weeks of baseball while the whip has been wrested from their hands by the Phillies, who have become the aggressors of the National League while the Dodgers have reverted to the role of fat, satisfied champs annoyed with each other's mannerisms and manners.

"Shotton, Rickey and the Dodger players, acting in concert, are to blame . . . there is a rumor kicking around town that Gil Hodges took a poke at Don Newcombe one recent day. I know this is untrue, but I also know that everybody doesn't like everybody in the Dodger dressing room."

Cannifton Ousts Shannonville, Latta Edges Read

The Cannifton Clippers defeated Shannonville 9-2 last night for their third straight victory in the South Hastings Baseball League semi-finals playoff and won the right to enter the finals against the winner of the Read-Latta series.

Latta won their second victory over Read last night after a closely fought game thas was settled by Mase Rigby's double after Latta tied the score in the seventh. The final count was 3-2.

Breeze for Read and Hall for Latta duelled on the mound in a thrilling pitching battle. Read tallied in the first and third and Latta scored in the second. The teams battled scorelessly until the seventh when Joe Marsh smashed out a single with two on to even the score and galloped home with the winning run when Rigby's two-baser crashed to the outfield.

The fourth game of the three-of-five series will be played in Read on Friday evening.

One of the largest crowds of the season saw the Read-Latta clash last night

120 Shotmakers In Hunt For Golf Title

Toronto, Aug. 17 (CP)—Some 120 shotmakers get away today in the hunt for $2,000 and the Ontario Open golf championship. But despite the star-steudded entry list, par's been as safe as a church in practice rounds.

Golfers from all across Canada and the United States began arriving Tuesday for practice rounds over the par-72 St. George's layout. But only eight of them have been able to beat or equal it so far.

The field will be cut to 60 after today's 18 holes. The qualifiers will shoot 36 holes in the finals Friday.

The tournament will also be something of a warm-up. Most of the contenders will move on to Quebec next week for the Canadian professional and Canadian open tournaments.

Dick Metz of Virginia Beach, Va., and Gordon Brydson of Toronto Mississauga, a former Ontario open winner, each carded 68s in practice rounds Wednesday. Rudy Horvath of Windsor and Stan Leonard of Vancouver each shot a 69—while the home pro, veteran Bob Cunningham, did the course in 70.

Dick Borthwick of Hamilton was one under while Bob Gray and Bud Smith of Toronto both equalled par. Nobody had pars in practice rounds Tuesday.

A surprise past entry into the tournament was Bill Ezinicki, right-wind stalwart of Toronto Maple Leafs of the National Hockey League. He has been brushing up his game in the U.S. all summer.

The hottest threesome in today' qualifying round is expected to be Metz, Leonard and Toronto's Phil Farley, a two-time Ontario open winner and one of the three amateurs who've won the title.

The top-ranking Montreal trio of Bill Kerr, Stan Horne and Jules Huot also are entered along with Nick Weslock of Windsor, an amateur and defending champion.

Windsor Rink Wins $1,000 Eaton Trophy

Toronto, Aug. 17 — (CP) — A Windsor Sandwich rink skipped by Daniel McLaughlin pulled ahead in the last three ends to score a 20-15 win over Toronto Fairmont Wednesday in the top event of the Ontario Provincial Lawn Bowling tournament. Herb Duke skipped the Toronto crew.

McLaughlin and his rink won the $1,000 Eaton Gold Cup.

The Robert Simpson Trophy went to Joe Davis' rink from Toronto St. Matthews, 24-6, over T. Gretton's Hamilton Roselawn team.

The Eaton consolation cup went to Toronto St. Cuthbert's skipped by C. F. Kellow who defeated Grimsby's G. Warner, 22-20.

Toronto Withrow's led by H. Mort won the Royal Albert Trophy over Kingston's R. Hinton, 15-12.

The Pilot Insurance Trophy went to R. Sands of Port Colborne who defeated Hamilton Strathcona's H. Godwin 22-17.

Meanwhile, almost 400 bowlers started in the opening round for the Townsend-Clark Trophy, main doubles event of the tournament, which now is in its third day. Singles competition starts Friday.

SAYS MAN HANDLED 24,000 SWEEP TICKETS

Toronto, Aug. 17 — (CP) — Frank W. Warren, 74, handled 24,000 Irish sweepstake tickets valued at more than $500,000, a policeman testified as Warren was convicted of selling lottery chances.

He was fined $500 or 30 days. Mrs. Emma Gee, convicted of the same offence, was fined $200 or 15 days.

AT THE BELLE

Lovely Virginia Mayo plays the exciting role of "Colorado Carson", a half-breed in "Colorado Territory", featuring Joel McCrea and Dorothy Malone.

AT THE McCARTHY—Paul Douglas obviously means business, and has Richard Widmark in back of him, as he begins the search for an unknown killer who has been exposed to plague and by his freedom can contaminate an entire city in "Panic in the Streets", exciting new melodrama from Twentieth Century-Fox at the McCarthy Theatre today. Filmed entirely in the river city of New Orleans, where the story takes place, "Panic in the Streets" also stars Barbara Bel Geddes, features Walter Jack Palance and Zero Mostel, and was directed by Broadway and Hollywood's top director, Elia Kazan.

WILL BUILD HALL

Lion's Head, Aug. 17 (CP) — This Bruce Peninsula village plans a Labor Day bee to build a fire hall if the village council will supply property and materials. Residents have also completed plans for a volunteer fire brigade and a campaign for $2,000 to buy a truck.

MILKING PARLOR

Walkerton, Aug. 17 — (CP)—Cows don't come much more contented than on the farm of J. P. Johnstone and Son here. The farm features a modern milking parlor and loafing pen designed for the utmost in bovine comfort. The stalls, which resemble metered parking spaces, are even raised 30 inches so the attendant doesn't have to bend down to milk.

FALLS 50 FEET TO DEATH

Pembroke, Aug. 17 — (CP) — Frank Lalonde, 50, of Rolphton, Ont., was killed Tuesday when he fell 50 feet while working on the power-house of the Des Joachims development, 38 miles west of here.

EARTH POPULATION

The population of the earth has been estimated at 1,900,000,000.

"SYNTONA SURELY SURPRISED ME" SAYS THIS GRATEFUL MAN

Those Awful Attacks Of Indigestion Are Relieved. I Am Free Of Pain In My Back and Muscles; My Nerves Are Calmed And I Sleep Soundly Once More.

MR. EARL PEARSON

All over Ontario people are talking like that about Syntona, the grand herbal compound that is bringing relief from suffering and distress to thousands of grateful men and women. Here, for example, is the recent report of Mr. Earl Pearson, Mount Hope, Ont.

"For fully 10 years I suffered with a weak, nervous stomach. I had many treatments available to me, but no one seemed to understand my trouble, and nothing I tried gave me any real relief. Food just seemed to ferment in my stomach and cause gas, bloating, nausea and cramps. The gas pressed up into my chest so badly I could hardly draw a full breath and I was subject to spells of dizziness and palpitation. Later, pains developed in my back and muscles.

"But I wasn't taking Syntona long before I could tell it was helping my stomach and now, after a few weeks on this medicine, I can say it has done wonders for me. My appetite has picked up and my food digests without all that former suffering and distress. I got relief from the pains in my back and muscles, I sleep soundly once more and I don't become fatigued so easily as I used to. Syntona surely surprised me and I am glad to have others know about it."

Syntona is sold and recommended in Belleville at DOLAN THE DRUGGIST. Find out how it can help you too.

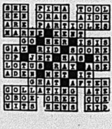
Answer to Yesterday's Puzzle:



Little Benny's Note Book

Pop was smoking to himself and ma was doing the bridge problem, and I said, Hay pop, hay ma, I know some fellow and there's a parrit in his house.

That's not a bad kind of a fellow to know, pop said, and I said, This parrit talks all day long, but it talks different from other parrits. It never says anything ordnerry like "Polly wants a cracker." For instance it says, "Fire, fire, fire," and it keeps yelling it just as if the house was on fire, I said.

My, how delightful, ma said, and I said, It can laugh, too. It laughs histerical, like somebody laughing and not being able to stop, and it keeps it up and keeps it up, I said.

It must be quite a berd to have around, pop said, and I said, Sure, G. Another thing it does is screem all its mite, like a lady in a radio mistery show just before she gets shot. Sometimes it does that 5 minutes without stopping, I said.

Oh dear, ma said, and I said, Any guy that has a parrit like that in his home is lucky.

On these nice summer evenings with all the windows open, the whole naborhood is very fortunate, pop said, and I said, Well jimminies, pop, we can be lucky, too. This boy's father suddinly started to get headakes, and he claims the parrit makes them werse, so they're willing to sell it. They're even willing to let people borrow it a while, just for a trial, I said.

It would be a trial all rite, there's no question, ma said, and I said, Well how about it, ma, what do you think, pop?

European Council Wrangles Over Army Unification

By PHILIP CLARKE

Strasbourg, France, Aug. 16—(AP)—The European Assembly's General Affairs Committee wrangled behind closed doors for three hours today over Winston Churchill's proposal to unify Europe's armies against red aggression.

The action apparently met the same opposition as it did yesterday from British Labor representatives and Scandanavians in the assembly's sub-committee on defence. Led by James Callaghan British Labor M.P., the opposition strove to block the action on the grounds that assembly statutes forbade it.

Informed sources in the assembly, the lower house in the European council, said the plan being discussed, provides for adoption of a European defence convention calling for nomination of a European defence minister, a European high command and pooling of all possible armed forces by members of the European council.

The plan was introduced by British Conservative Duncan Sandys, who was said to have received guidance in drafting it from his father-in-law, Churchill.

The defence sub-committee passed the plan yesterday by a vote or 7 to 6 with one abstention after being deadlocked in a 6-to-6 vote for a stormy three hours. Chairman Leon Maccas of Greece finally cast the seventh affirmative vote to break the deadlock.

Nine are Injured As Truck Careens Out of Control

North Augusta, Ont., Aug. 16—(CP)—Nine persons, seven of them teen-agers, were injured last night when a truck in which they were travelling careened out of control on a county road one mile west of this eastern Ontario town.

The truck, driven by Cedric Leader of Lyn, Ont., was carrying 17 young people from Merrickville, where they had attended a baseball game.

Suffering an assortment of fractures and abrasions were:

Molly McGill, 14, Brockville; Edward Nicholson, 14, Toronto; Mrs. Doreen Garand, 38, Brockville; Helen Kilmury, Lyn; Walter Hodge, Brockville; Courtney Lepage, 17, Brockville; Bob Garand, 17, Brockville; George Clow, 22, Brockville, and June Lawrence 15, Brockville.

They were taken to St. Vincent de Paul and Brockville General Hospitals.

LONDON GOVERNMENT

The city of London is governed by the common council, which consists of the Lord Mayor, 25 aldermen and 206 common councilmen.

'Gloomy Dean' Critical of Famous Hymn

Cambridge England, Aug. 17—(AP) —The Magnificat, one of Christianity's greatest hymns, is more violent than the left-wing anthem "The Red Flag," Dr. W. R. Inge, former Dean of London's St. Paul's Cathedral, said last night.

Ninety-year-old Dr. Inge, known as the "Gloomy Dean" when he served St. Paul's, opened the Modern Churchmen's conference here with an attack on "hell-fire theology," several Christian sects and some Biblical language.

"Of one thing we may be thankful," he told the conference, "the hideous hellfire theology is heard no longer in our churches."

Dr. Inge said many of the Old Testament lessons "are frankly unedifying, others are unintelligible.

"Do we really expect the working man to come to church to sing. . such gibberish as the verse of the 68th Psalm beginning, "When the Company of the Spearmen'?

The aged churchman said he had had been told that the correct translation of the beginning of the psalm was "rebuke the hippopotamus."

"Our churchgoers would sing this with equal unction if they had it before them, as fashionable ladies cheerfully sing the Magnificat, which is more violent than the Red Flag."

The Magnificat is the latin version of the song of the Virgin Mary, Luke 1 46-55 "My Soul Doth Magnify the Lord."

NEW BATLE OF BULGE

Hollywooa, Aug. 16—(AP)—A new Batle of the Bulge is pending.

It's a comedy—starring Jane Russell and Mae West.

R.K.O. will produce the pulchritudinous picture — tentatively titled 'Mother Knows best."

Skinny men, women gain 5, 10, 15 lbs.

The Gentle Heart

By Kay Hamilton

Ghillie lay in his basket wheezing a little in his sleep and she had not even him to talk to. When a tap came on the back door, she opened it with relief. It was Dick.

"Hi," he said, but there was no life in his tone. "Golly, it looks like you had a real spread!"

"We did," Jenny sighed. "I'll be cleaning up for a week, I think. Want a piece of pie, Dick, or are you too stuffed?"

"I'm not stuffed!" he said scornfully. "We had a punk dinner. Elsa made it.

Jenny said severely, "Elsa made a great effort with that dinner, Dick I hope you were at least a little appreciative. She's no cook; she doesn't like cooking the way I do, and so it was really fine of her to try to give you and Pete a big Thanksgiving meal."

"Yeah, I guess so. Only Pete didn't come home till everything was half cold, and honest, that turkey was so tough I don't think Ghillie could have made a dent on it! Did you say there was some pie left?"

'In the pantry. Get a plate and a fork.'

"Aw I don't need a fork!'

"No fork, no pie." Jenny was decisive.

:All right! You don't need to get stuffy about it. But it tastes better without a fork.'

"Yes, it does," Jenny said surprisingly. 'But you're going to eat it with a fork just the same."

He did not make any further objection, and came back from the pantry with a huge wedge of pumpkin pie on his plate. 'Can I have some if the mince, too, when I get through with this?"

"No, I'm not going to be responsible for your waking up in the night with a tummy-ache," Jenny told him. 'But I'll send some home with you for your family and you can have it for supper tonight.'

He settled down at the kitchen table watching her busy movements at the sink. "Golly what a pile of dishes! What's the sense of them, anyhow?" he asked. 'Elsa had just about everything out of the china closet today for us three and when I left she was just standing there looking at them and groaning." He gave a graphic imitation of Elsa's groans which because his mouth was full of pie ended up in a choking fit.

Jenny stared at him in dismay. "And you didn't help her?" she cried. 'I wouldn't have given you that piece of pie, Dick Torres if I'd known that."

"Well, I'm going to help you when I get through with this." he said magnanimously.

"Oh, no, you're not! You're going to go home nd help Elsa."

"I'd rather help you," he said with a stubborn air.

Jenny wiped her hands on the kitchen towel and sat down opposite him. "What have you got against Elsa?" she asked. "She's done everything she could to make you feel at home here, but you treat her horribly. I've seen you in action," she said quickly as she saw he was about to deny it.

"Well," he laid down the fork and sighed, "maybe I haven't fallen all over her with joy, but why should I? She wasn't setting off any fireworks on account of me, either."

"Of course she wasn't." He looked up at her in indignant surprise. "All you could possibly mean to her—in the beginning at any rate—was disruption and inconvenience. She had to move out of her workroom and go up into the attic; she had to realize that their house which was all right for the two of them was going to be crowded when you came she had to rearrange her menus give up things they were used to, so that she could have the proper things for a growing boy; she had to accept the fact that her free time would be cut into by all the new things she would have to learn to do for you."

Dick glowered at her. "They didn't have to take me!" he shot back. "They could have sent me to a prep school, and I wouldn't have bothered any of them—Mom nor Pete nor Elsa! They could have done that, couldn't they?"

Jenny did not remark that it might have been beyond them financially. She said instead, 'But they wanted you, Dick! Can't you get that into your head? They wanted you."

He breathed heavily. "I don't know that they did." His voice had a note in it too old for his years. "And I don't think they want me now."

"Yes, they do," Jenny assured him. "It's a difficult time for all of you, but if you'd only remember that—"

"I like school," he interrupted her. "School's okay, and I've met some swell fellows. But I hate to come home. I'd rather," he stumbled a little over the words, "I'd rather come here."

"I'm always glad to have you, Dick," Jenny said gravely. "But this isn't your home, you know. Try to like Elsa and Pete a little more than you do. Try to see their side of it, won't you?"

He didn't promise, but he got up when he had finished the pie and said with a resigned air "Well I guess I'll go back and dry the dishes for Elsa. Maybe she's all done by this time," he added hopefully.

When he had gone, Jenny looked at the kitchen clock. An hour now since Brent and Nat has disappeared into the studio together. Surely they hadn't settled down to work today! A small feeling of unease made itself known in the back of her mind—a feeling which she would not even acknowledge because she was ashamed of it.

She had put away the first batch of dishes and was starting on the second when the door burst open, and Faith came in like a whirlwind. She caught Jenny around the waist kissed her soundly. "Oh Jenny! Jenny!" she cried. "I'm so happy! I just had to tell someone right away!"

Jenny smiled happy because her friend was happy. "Did you find a million dollars in a secret drawer of your desk " she asked although she was pretty sure Faith's exuberance was caused by the fact that Mrs. Owen was at last going home.

"This is much better than a million dollars! Only think. Mother Owen says she's going back home on Monday, and—"

"GOOD!" Jenny was pleased when Faith announced that her mother-in-law was going home. "Her visit has been a strain on you and Max even though you are so fond of her."

"Wait! I'm not done! Oh, I'll have to tell this straight, I guess Max took us home, of course, and I wain't going to ask him in, but Mother Owen did. She said 'I think it's time we had a little talk together.' I nearly died, and Max looked as if the Empire State building had fallen on him. I thought, 'She knows about us! Gary let it out at the table, and she caught on!' But I couldn't say a word."

Faith paused and swallowed the happy lump in her throat. "When she had us together, she said, out of the blue, mind you, 'I'm going home next Monday but it would make me very happy if I could see you two married before I leave!' I nearly died of the shock, Jenny! I couldn't believe my ears. And neither could Max. We just stood there, goggling like two idiots and then she said. 'I've seen for some time how it is with you, and I've realized that you were afraid of hurting me by telling me about it. But Faith is too young to stay a widow and unloved, there's no man I'r rather see her marry than you. Max, who knew and loved Kenneth,' Oh, Jenny!" Faith burst into tears and Jenny hugged her with delight.

"She's a wonderful woman," she said. And she meant it. Only a really fine character could have taken her unvarnished words and turned them to such excellent account. Jenny still blushed for her rudeness that day. She knew she would never forgive herself for having said what she did. Yet, if she hadn't said it? It was a question she would never have answered for her, she knew.

GOING FISHING?

Now the fishing season is in full swing. Now, too, is the time to remember, and observe, the fishing regulations. There's a reason for them.

The number of fish available for each season is estimated. The authorities then balance this against the expected number of fishermen to establish catch limits. This is done for your protection to provide a continuing supply of game fish for the future. To permit full growth, minimum lengths are set for various species of fish which may be taken.

Take Black Bass, for example. The maximum catch allowed in Ontario is six per day and the minimum legal length is 10 inches. Only by observing regulations like these will you be sure of enjoying this sport in the future.

Ready to Appoint Mediator Quickly Says St. Laurent

Action Will Hinge on Talks Taking Place in Montreal

By JOHN LEBLANC
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Ottawa, Aug. 18 — (CP) — Prime Minister St. Laurent said today a government mediator will be appointed quickly in the railway wage dispute if it appears from today's company-union talks that he will be helpful.

Mr. St. Laurent disclosed this to newspaper men following a morning session of the cabinet in which the rail wage-hour deadlock was discussed.

The prime minister said another session of the cabinet will be held in the afternoon.

"Things are going to be done very quickly," Mr. St. Laurent said, observing that "not much time" was left before the Tuesday morning deadline set for a general rail strike of 124,000 employees.

He indicated that the immediate appointment of a mediator would hinge on the attitude toward this move developing in company-union discussions at Montreal today.

Developments Expected

The Prime Minister said there might be some developments, both at Montreal and in the capital, "towards the end of this afternoon."

He noted that, in turning down yesterday the government's request for a 30-day strike postponement in return for the appointment of a mediator, the two Canadian unions engaged in the dispute had indicated they felt a mediator would be welcomed if appointed immediately.

Noting that the International Unions were meeting with the management in Montreal today, the Prime Minister said that "if it appears from what is going on today that it would be helpful, it will be done."

Mr. St. Laurent said the appointment of a mediator would be undertaken by Labor Minister Gregg under the Industrial Relations and Disputes Investigation Act.

Declines to Name Man

He declined to say whether a man already had been selected for the job, or even whether prospective candidates had been sounded out to see if they would accept the task.

But he added:

"It may be that there would be a great utility in a mediator being appointed by the Minister of Labor to assist in the negotiations."

As for the negotiations themselves he said the government is "still hopeful that they are being resumed with a genuine desire to reach a solution."

The meeting marked the third day this week in which the cabinet sat on the rail issue. It had met Tuesday and Wednesday, holding morning and afternoon sittings Wednesday.

Former Navy Engineer Held On Spy Charge

Washington, Aug. 18 (AP) — The United States Justice Department today announced the arrest of a former United States navy civilian engineer on charges of giving national defence secrets to Russia.

It said federal bureau of investigation agents took Morton Sobell, 33, New York electrical engineer, into custody at Laredo, Tex., this morning.

He is the eighth person arrested in a roundup of Americans accused of channelling atom bomb data and other secret information to a Soviet spy ring.

He is accused of having collaborated with the other Americans previously arrested in obtaining defence secrets during that period.

Since he is charged with espionage conspiracy in wartime, Sobell—like the others similarly accused—faces a possible death penalty.

The F.B.I. said Sobell fled the United States by plane and went to Mexico City a few days after the arrest of David Greenglass of New York June 16.

The entire group is charged with working with Harry Gold, Philadelphia chemist, who is alleged to have been a chief American contact for Dr. Klaus Fuchs, the British atomic scientist now serving 14 years in prison for atomic spying.

Sobell is a native of New York City, the son of Russian parents who now are naturalized U.S. citizens.

Recruit Total Near 6,000 Mark

Ottawa, Aug. 18. (CP)—The recruited manpower for Canada's special force was near the 6,000 mark today and still going strong.

The government is expected to announce shortly that about 500 to 600 technicians and specialists will be posted to the force from the regular army. They will go with it to Korea or elsewhere.

If they had to be recruited in the streets and trained, it might delay dispatch of the force for months.

Feature of today's recruiting figures was again the race between Toronto and Montreal with the Ontario capital slipping ahead with a total of 1,198 enlistments compared to Montreal's 1,178.

All told by 5 p.m. last night there were 5,218 men in the force and another 683 were in the process of going through the formalities.

THE WEATHER

Toronto, Aug. 18 (CP)—Synopsis: Extensive thunderstorm activity occurring in advance of a burst of cooler air drenched Southern and Central Ontario Thursday. More settled conditions will prevail today and in southern regions Saturday under the influence of the cool air. Close on its heels, however, another cool blast from Northwestern Canada is sweeping across the prairies. It is expected to extend as far as northern Georgian Bay by Saturday night, and it will also be preceded by thunderstorms.

Dons Glasses to See Life Upside Down, Drives Car in Topsy-Turvey World

By ED CREAGH

New York, Aug. 18 — (AP) — For 30 days, Fred Snyder has been looking at the world upside down and backward.

Tonight Fred will take off his special binocular-like glasses. The floor will shoot up to the ceiling. The ceiling will come down to the floor. Once again Fred will see the world as other people see it. And . . .

"I'm not sure I'll recognize it," Fred said with an uncertain laugh. "I've got pretty used to leading this upside-down existence. Things look right to me when they're upside down and backward to everybody else."

Fred is a friendly, 25-year-old graduate student at the University of Wichita. He undertook the upside-down experiment as part of his work in phychology. His teacher, Dr. N. H. Pronko, who came along to New York, thinks it's a pretty valuable piece of work.

"We're not trying to prove anything," Pronko said. "We're trying to learn something about how people see. Apparently it's something we have to learn. In some ways Fred already has learned to see as well as, or better than, he did with 'normal' vision."

But it wasn't easy.

First Fred put on his strange, projecting glasses. A light, metal headgear supports them and sponge rubber prevents chafing.

He couldn't do anything right at first. The food on his dinner plate seemed to be suspended in air, ready to fall in his lap — except that his lap was up where his shoulders should have been. He fell over things. They were on his right when he "saw" them on his left.

"But I learned," Fred said. "I can sort playing cards and get through other laboratory tests just about as fast as I ever could sometimes faster. I've driven a car for a few miles on a country road. In time I suppose I'd forget all about how things used to look."

Fred will take his glasses off in public — on a radio-television program "We the People," NBC, 8:30 p.m., EDT).

DEATH TOLL MAY REACH SEVEN IN SHIP DISASTER

Vessel Being Towed To Quebec For Salvage

Tadoussac, Que., Aug. 18 (CP)—The possibility that the death toll in the destruction of the river cruise ship Quebec by fire last Monday would go to seven was indicated today when police said two more persons are known to be missing.

Quebec provincial police said their information is that Gertrude and Eva Taub of Tarrytown, N.Y., have not been acounted for.

Five bodies have been recovered from the burned-out cruise vessel which was towed out of here early today for Lauzon, opposite Quebec City, where a thorough search of tons of debris in her blackened hull will be conducted by provincial police.

Frank Findlay, Quebec manager for C.S.L., said he reported the names of the Taubs to Quebec provincial police during the night.

Findlay said the last two probable victims of the fire "may be the last but this cannot be said yet without any certainty."

The transport department's signal service reported that the wrecked ship, being towed up the St. Lawrence River from Tadoussac to Quebec Harbor had reached Cap Saumon, 82 miles from Quebec, at 7:50 a.m. EDT. The distance from Tadoussac is 130 miles.

In Lauzon shipyards on the south side of Quebec harbor, a methodical search of the wreckage, with equipment and staff is not available at Tadoussac, will be undertaken.

Had 450 Passengers

When the Quebec caught fire a half-hour out of Tadoussac Monday the 7,000-ton vessel carried approximately 450 passengers and a crew of about 150.

The majority of the passengers were from the United States, according to C.S.L. officials.

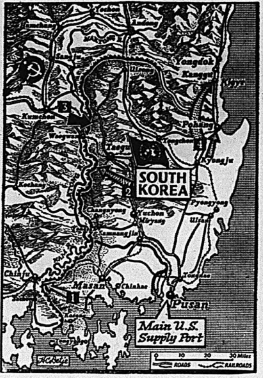
Pressed for definite figures, Mr. Findlay said that a complete passenger list was not available and that the cabin plan—listing only passengers with cabins, not those without cabins—was destroyed in the fire.

If 450 figure was a round figure not a precise one, and he could not say exactly how many passengers had been counted for directly or indirectly. Most of the passengers were United States citizens, he said.

Believed From States

The manager's statement followed discovery of a fifth body aboard the destroyed vessel. A fourth was found Wednesday night. The two bodies were believed to be those of Dr. and Mrs. Pickens Smith McCollum of Clemson, S.C. Their daughter is on her way to Quebec to aid in establishing identification. Previously, three bodies had been identified as those of Mr. and Mrs. Norman Shapiro and their son Leonard, of the town of Mount Royal, near Montreal.

BATTLE SEESAWS IN SOUTH KOREA



To reinforce the Naktong river line southern flank, U.S. marines were withdrawn from the hard-won territory captured near Chinju, 1, and sent northward. Following bombardment by 100 superfortresses near Waegwan, 3, advancing U.S. infantry found 32 of their men bound and shot by retreating reds. A South Korean unit, besieged for over a week between Yongdok and Pohang, 4, was evacuated by sea. —Central Press Canadian.

Mustang Fighters Sought in US By Canada to Bridge Present Gap in Nations Air Defences

Ottawa, Aug. 18 (CP)—Canada is negotiating with the United States for purchase of dozens of propeller-driven Mustang fighter planes to bridge the gap in her air defences between now and when her jet planes come into large-scale production next year.

The R.C.A.F. has plans made and the pilots ready for the swift formation of a third regular fighter squadron once the planes become available. It will be based in eastern Canada.

There are no planes at present for sending it to Korea where Australian and American Mustang pilots have done some of the best air work of the war.

Both other regular fighter squadrons are equipped with Vampire jets, to be replaced next year by F86 and CF100 jets built in Canada.

The United States offered Canada the Mustangs weeks ago — before Korea — for a financial baragin. Since Korea the government has decided they would be a good buy and negotiations were opened some time ago. The planes are part of a large group the Americans have been taking out of mothballs.

When Canada's own jets come into production, the Mustangs would be turned over to the reserve squadrons or to squadrons earmarked to provide tactical support to ground troops, such as the airborne brigade.

Superfort Bombing of Korean Reds Proves Most Impressive

By MAX BOYD

Washington, Aug. 18 (AP) — The bombing of massed Korean communists by B-29 Superfortresses underscores some of the reasons why atomic bombs are not being used in support of American and south Korean soldiers.

With about 100 B-29s, the United States air force was able to spread approximately 1,000 tons of conventional bombs over an area in which north Koreans were concentrated for an expected attack.

The Superforts' bombing runs were made without interference by enemy fighters, since U.S. and Australian planes control the air over Korea.

Whether the expected communist attack will be stopped indefinitely by the single massive bombing is a question.

Can Strike Again

But should the communists recover and reform for a drive to cut the American and south Korean forces in two, the Superforts can strike again.

The Superforts also could be joined by hundreds of light bombers and fighter-bombers which the air force, navy and marine corps are operating in supoprt of ground troops. Unless and until this conventional striking power proves inadequate, the use of atomic bombs is unlikely.

In the massive Superfortress bombing the area attacked was 7½ miles long and 3½ wide.

To cover such an area with atomic blasts of fatal force, it would take not one but perhaps half a dozen A-bombs of the power used at Hiroshima. Authorities agree, however, that A-bombs would kill far larger numbers of the enemy than would ordinary bombs.

For safety's sake, American troops facing an area under Atomic attack would have to remain at a greater distance than if the zone were under attack with conventional explosives.

Some American authorities also are fearful that use of atomic weapons, even against purely military targets rather than city masses, would tend to turn people elsewhere in Asia against the United States.

CYLINDER FOUND IN MUD

Winnipeg, Aug. 18—(CP)— A tiny plastic cylinder containing radium was found last night after a 24-hour hunt through the downtown area.

An instrument which records radio-activity, located the vial—smaller than a cigaret—in mud.

The radium, dropped from a truck, was worth only $400; but doctors said it could cause serious burns if handled extensively.

WESTERN EUROPE MUST WORK OUT OWN SALVATION

U.S. Must Prepare Her Defences First

Washington, Aug. 18 — (AP)—Western Europe must work harder for its own military salvation before the United States agrees to send more troops to bolster spirits and security across the Atlantic.

That is the response of the U. S. Defence Department to insistent French pressure for an American promise to supply an supreme commander and at least five additional divisions for Western Europe defence.

This reply has been given informally, top military officials here said, because France so far has relied upon the press and unofficial conversations to press her request for specific U. S. military commitments.

"We will talk about naming an American commander in chief for Western Europe when he has a force to command," one high American officer commented.

He recalled that military leaders of the Atlantic Pact countries are generally agreed about how many divisions, combat ships and planes would be needed to stop a Russian onslaught. Offers of ground forces for the common defence have been made, but this official said the total so far falls short of over-all requirements.

American officials believe that Western Europe has little cause to doubt United States sincerity and determination to oppose communist aggression.

Must do Their Share

"We will fight in Europe if necessary just as we are fighting in Korea," one informed officer said, "but we have the right to expect that the Europeans will do their share of the fighting."

Defence officials here fear that a specific American pledge at this time might defeat the whole concept of mutual defence. They give two reasons:

1. It would encourage the communist propaganda that paints the United States as a dictator over subservient Western Allies.
2. It would tend to spread a feeling already current to some degree in Europe that "If America is going to boss and do the job, why can't we just sit and wait?"

U. S. officials generally oppose Winston Churchill's idea of a common defence ministry for Western Europe, preferring to work through the Atlantic Pact toward an Allied general staff.

Toss Oar to Save Drowning Youth

Chatham, Aug. 18—(CP)—William Kock, 21, vacationing at nearby Erieau, was rescued from drowning yesterday by two fishermen when he tired while swimming after a beach ball.

The rescuers were Argo Vaughn and Bert Hawley. They were working on fishing nets when they noticed Kock in difficulty. They rowed to the spot, and threw him an oar to grasp as he was going down the second time. Kock's father went to his rescue with a motor boat, but was unable to stop before passing him.

Missing Teacher and Pupil in U.S. Is View Held by Toronto Police

Toronto, Aug. 18 (CP) — Police said today they are convinced that a missing Toronto schoolteacher and his attractive former night-school pupil are in the United States and that it will be "only a matter of time" before they are located.

Alfred P. Greene, 38-year-old father of four young children, has been missing since his abandoned automobile was found in a Toronto ravine Aug. 9.

Mrs. Beatrice Reason, 31, thrice divorced Australian born wife of a Toronto bricklayer, disappeared about the same time, shortly after she had told her husband she was leaving him.

Police believe the couple are trying to make their way to Australia, where both sent money shortly before their disappearance. Airlines and steamship companies have been asked to watch for prospective passengers answering the description of the missing pair.

"We believe they are in the United States," a senior police official said today. "It will only be a matter of time before we locate them."

N. Koreans Shoved Back Two Miles At Naktong River

Recapture of Pohang Adds Strength to Northern Front

Tokyo, Aug. 18 — (CP) — Allied forces today staved off a North Korean drive on Taegu, struck hard at a communist bridgehead farther south and recaptured the east coast port of Pohang.

American and South Korean troops trying to neutralize a communist threat from north of Taegu were reported by Reuters News Agency to have shoved back the communists two miles. But Taegu's civilian population was being evacuated and the South Korean government moved on to a new provisional capital.

Objective of the Allied counter-attack was an important road junction 17 miles north of Taegu. Air strikes and artillery paved the way for tanks and infantry.

Twenty-three miles southwest of Changnyong U.S. marines and infantry made such progress against the North Korean 4th division in a bridgehead west of the Naktong River that a high U.S. officer declared that the reds had taken "a hell of a licking."

Recapture of Pohang on the east coast strengthened the northern sector of the allied defence box and took the pressure off Pohang airfield, from which aircraft had been withdrawn.

Civilians Leave Taegu

The allied counter-attack north of Taegu took them into rough hill country on either side of the Kunwi-Taegu highway, down which four communist divisions opened an assault on the city yesterday.

The emergency south Korean capital itself was being emptied of civilians in a mass evacuation ordered to clear the city for use solely as a military base.

The South Korean government went to a new, unspecified refugee capital.

The most threatening red approach was in steep hills 12 miles north of Taegu.

Forty-five-ton Pershing tanks were used in the counter-attack led by the U.S. 27th regiment and the south Korean 1st division.

The south Korean 6th division lost contact Friday night with red forces. It had held before Taegu.

Taste Victory

Allied troops tasted victory on all other fronts Friday. For the first time in 13 bitter days of fighting Americans rolled back some of the 12,000 red infantry, men who had bulged across the Naktong River south of Changnyong, 23 miles southwest of Taegu.

U.S. Marines and 24th division troops gained up to three miles in the Changnyong sector and chased terror-stricken and weaponless reds back across the Naktong in droves. One battalion of about 1,000 communists broke for the western bank of the river first. They were followed by others.

Maj.-Gen. John H. Church, U.S. commander in the Changnyong sector, said the north Koreans there had taken "a hell of a licking."

Some communists voluntarily crossed over to American lines and surrendered.

Hal Boyle, Associated Press correspondent, reported from Taegu that scores of thousands of Taegu residents, fearful of the Reds after six artillery shells from five miles away had killed four persons, streamed out of the city excitedly. An earlier midday panic had subsided.

The Canadian National Institute for the Blind of Eastern Ontario, of which Mr. P. F. Timmins of Kingston, is field secretary, will hold their annual picnic this year at Exhibition Park on August 24th. The Belleville Parks Commission has made arrangements to accommodate the members of the Institute and all are looking forward to an enjoyable day. Mr. Timmins states that it is expected there will be approximately 60 members in attendance.

LEGION RAISES $1,221.41 FOR CITY PLAYGROUNDS

Canadian Legion massed band concert and fireworks display have netted $1,546.41 for city playgrounds. The members of the committee are grateful to all those who helped and particularly the bands, in making this event a successful one.

The proceeds have been allotted as follows:

CNR Athletic Association for equipment and supervision of their playgrounds $125.00.

Students council BCI&VS for equipment for their playgrounds to be established at Exhibition Park $187.50.

Optimists Club for equipment for playgrounds at Zwick's Island $12.50.

Belleville Parks Commission to be used for supervision and equipment at Belleville's eight junior and three senior play grounds $1,221.41.

SUMS OF MONEY TAKEN FROM STORES

Cash in bills amounting to slightly over $30 was taken from the Leo Hamilton butcher store Station Street some time during the night it was reported today by police.

Entry to the building was gained through a back door, the intruders passing up approximately $20 in silver which had been left in the till.

Bryson Reid, operator of a Regent service station on Bridge Street, west, reported that a cloth sack with $15 in cash had been taken from his service station Thursday evening. It was believed that two young men who purchased gasoline and then asked to use the telephone were responsible for the theft.

BLACK FEMALE MONGREL TERRIER IN CITY POUND

City pound keeper Thomas Thorn has a black female mongrel terrier pup which was picked up on James Street on Thursday. The puppy will be kept the customary 48-hour period awaiting an owner, and if no owner turns up the dog will be disposed of.

BIG PRICE PAID FOR BOLOGNA MEAT

Five hundred and twenty-four dollars worth of bologna in one piece is a lot of meat but that is the price paid for one bull this week at the Belleville Livestock Sales, by Fred Scott, local drover.

The bull was one owned by the Quinte district breeding unit west of the city and weighed 2150 pounds. The price paid for the bull was slightly over 24 cents per pound and the total amount represented the highest price ever paid locally for any one animal for beef purposes.

INQUEST WILL BE HELD AUGUST 22ND

The inquest looking into the death of Robert Zeender, Washington, D.C., who died in Belleville hospital following a motor accident at Shannonville on Wednesday will be held at eight-thirty on August 22nd, it was learned today. The preliminary hearing was held Wednesday afternoon before Coroner Dr. R. T. Potter.

Seven persons went to hospital as result of the accident with two still being in serious condition. They are Roland Zeender, son of the dead man, and Morris Martin, of this city, passenger in the second car.

Board Will Hold Conference at Whitby College

The Board of Evangelism and Social Service of the United Church of Canada has announced that in connection with their program of evangelism they are holding a two day conference at he Ontario Ladies' College, Whitby, next month.

Speakers at the conference scheduled for Thursday and Friday, September 7th and 8th, are Rev. George D. Kelsey, Ph.D., of the Federal Council of Churches, New York City; Rev. W. G. Berry, M.A., B.D., Regina; and Reverend Callum Thompson, B.A., B.D., St. Paul's United Church, Dundas, Ontario.

The conference, for men only, both ministers and laymen, from the five central conferences of the United Church of Canada, includes a full program for both days, with seven topics up for consideration.

Chairman of the Conference Committee is Rev. James Semple, Th. D., Peterborough, formerly of Bridge Street United Church, Belleville.

Two Pay Fines On Gambling Charges at Fair

Two operators of midway concession paid a total of $80 into city coffers today at magistrate's court when fines of $25 and $15 costs were levied on two charges of gambling.

The charges were preferred by the O.P.P. anti-gambling squad from Toronto against Mr. and Mrs. R. Cooper who operated the two concessions at the Belleville Fair. The pair pleaded guilty to the charges.

The concessions operated were two numbers boards, it being stated the operators were paying off customers in cash. The two boards were confiscated.

Lindsay Irvin, city, pleaded guilty to two charges of charging an excess rental for two dwelling accommodations at 116 Dundas Street, West, and fines of $5 and costs of $2.50 in each case.

Ad Correction

In the advertisement of Tiny Tot Town in Thursday, August 17th paper, the boys' three piece suits, long and short trousers, should have read $14.95 and $15.95 instead of $14.95 and $25.95.

TEST FIRST JET-POWERED BOAT

The former River Clyde paddle steamer Lucy Ashton becomes first jet-propelled ship in the world as the 62-year-old craft is used in an experiment of pure jet propulsion at Gourock, Scotland. The four jet engines are mounted in a bank amidships and each develops a thrust of 3,500 pounds, equal to 5,000 horsepower. The purpose of the test was to determine the effects of the added pressure on hull resistance. — Central Press Canadian.

Exhibitors Are Moving Out, Grounds Begin to Assume Usual Appearance as Fair Ends

All is not quiet on the western front, the western front of course, being Belleville's fair grounds. Despite mounds of paper, piles of bottle tops and hordes of kids, manufacturers and exhibitors were moving out this morning.

All morning long, tractors and trucks moved out of the grounds. Pickup trucks and vans were loaded with furniture, refrigerators, ranges, and so many other exhibition articles they were impossible to count. On the midway, most of the booths and games had been torn down by early morning. Majority of the rides were already packed on the huge tractor trailers.

The children were having a field day. Some enterprising types were scouring the grandstand seats for loose change that might have fallen out of fairgoers' pockets. Others roamed the grounds for the same purpose.

Inside the Commodore building, paper decorations littered the floor, electric wires snaked crazily all over the place. Displays that took hours to conceive and set up were being torn down in a matter of minutes. Trucks were backing right inside the buildings to load the exhibits.

In front of the grandstand, workmen were dismantling the performers' stage. Back of that, some of the show people still slept in their tents and trailers. On the other side of the track, the horse barns were almost deserted.

And all over the ground there is paper, paper and more paper. Bottle tops show where each cooler sat for four days. One little girl came prepared to carry off loot with a baby carriage. In it she had pieces of wood, a doll some concessionaire had discarded, bottle tops and shells from the shooting gallery.

After four days of show life, the fair grounds is returning to normal for a while.

Montreal Woman Winner of Car Of Kinsmen Club

A lucky young Montreal woman, Miss Elsie St. Hillaire, 2280 Pie IX Boulevard, was the winner of the 1950 Packard sedan which was drawn for last evening following the final grandstand performance at the Belleville Fair. The big black sedan was raffled off by the Belleville Kinsmen Club as a project to raise funds for their community swimming pool.

Seller of the winning ticket was also from Montreal and J. Emerson, 5374 Sherbrooke Street, of that city, will receive the $200 cash prize for selling the prize winning ticket.

Elmer Sandercock, M. P. P., for Hastings West, drew the lucky ticket from the huge drum in which thousands of pasteboards rested.

A brief wind and rainstorm had discouraged a great many of the grandstand patrons during the evening grandstand performance but the stands were still approximately three quarters full when the big Packard rolled down the racetrack, coming to a halt in front of the stands.

The drum full of tickets was hoisted onto the platform and with Fair President W. Harry Rollins acting as master of ceremonies, Kinsmen president introduced Mr. Sandercock who "dug deep" and came up with the Montreal ticket. There was distinctly audible a massed groan of disappointment when the Kinsmen president read the name on the winning ticket.

Mr. Sandercock also drew the winning ticket for the Navy League draw for the $100 bond. Tickets on the bond had been sold during the fair by Sea Cadets and proceeds will do toward sea cadet w[illegible]. Winner of the bond was T. S[illegible]lthorpe, Bleecker Ave.

Obituary

LATE MRS. LENA McGINN
(Frankford)

The funeral of the late Mrs. Lena McGinn was held from the Rowe Funeral Home in Frankford on Thursday morning to St. Francis Church. The mass was celebrated by Rev. Father O'Hearn of Stirling, who also conducted the last rites in St. Francis Cemetery. A large number of spiritual and floral tributes testified to the esteem of the deceased.

The bearers were Ross Turley, Bill O'Ray, Vincent MacCauley, Calvin Patrick, Jack Bashaw and Marvine Dafoe.

MISS MARGARET ORR
Toronto - Belleville

Following an illness of short duration, Miss Margaret Orr and formerly of 68 Yeomans Street in Belleville, died in Toronto on Thursday evening. She was born in this city, being the daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. James Orr. For the past ten years she has resided in Toronto but for many years she lived in this city, where she was well and favorably known by a wide circle of friends.

While living in the city she was a member of the Emmanuel Church and active in all branches of the work. Surviving are one brother William Orr of Edmonton, Alberta, and one sister, Mrs. George (Lila) Anderson of Regina, Saskatchewan.

Resting at the Thomas C. Thompson Funeral Home on Sunday, the funeral announcement is made elsewhere in this edition.

Portable Mill Of Wilson Lumber Company Burns

Madoc—(Special)—Fire of undetermined origin early Friday morning completely destroyed the portable sawmill owned by the T. A. Wilson Lumber Company at Madoc. The mill was situated approximately one half mile south of the village on the Belleville Road.

Although the portable mill itself was a complete loss there was very little lumber burned as the flames failed to reach thousands of feet of sawn lumber piled within a short distance of the mill. Loss of the mill would run close to $10,000, it was estimated.

About 15 men were employed at the mill with some of the employees living close by the mill in cabins. The mill cut was practically completed with only two or three weeks work left, it was stated.

The Wilson Company have a second mill at Madoc near the station, and another in the Denbigh district. Head office for the lumber firm is at Cannington, Ont.

More Money Is Needed by Recreation Com.

Contributions to the Belleville Recreation Committee fund are still trickling in but more money is needed if the full program planned by the committee is to be completely carried out. Subscriptions should be mailed to Mr. Drury Denyes, treasurer, in care of the city hall. All subscriptions to the fund will be most helpful and sincerely appreciated.

FUGITIVE

Typical of the plight of South Koreans is this photo of an aged man fleeing the communist troops who have swept down and engulfed his peaceful village. Carrying his meagre possessions on his back, and calm with the philosophical attitude of his many years, he turns his back on communism and plods wearily to the safety of the South Korean line. —Central Press Canadian.

Fred Mitchell Seriously Burned While Threshing

2nd. Thurlow — Fred Mitchell, well known Thurlow township, farmer, was seriously burned on Thursday afternoon while threshing at the farm of Harry Grills, gasoline in the tractor caught fire setting his clothes afire.

Mr. Mitchell was sitting on the tractor when for some unknown reason the gasoline caught fire. When his clothes caught fire he suffered serious burns to his legs and lower part of his body. He was taken to hospital where his burns were attended to by Dr. J. H. Bateman. He was over two hours in the operating room and will be confined to hospital for some time.

When the gasoline in the tractor caught fire help quickly extinguished the flames but not before dry grass and straw was set afire. Had there been a wind blowing a serious fire would have resulted as the tractor was but 50 feet from the barn.

N. KOREANS

The masses of refugees who had poured into Taegu ahead of the reds from the north presented a grave problem for overworked local police.

Threat of Infiltration.

There was a threat of an infiltrated communist outbreak inside the city among the refugees.

The capture of Pohang port on the Sea of Japan coast by the South Koreans permitted U. S. planes to resume using the airstrip six miles southeast of Pohang.

The American advances in the Changnyong Bulge gave rise to optimism at U. S. Eighth Army headquarters in Korea. It had described the red threat against Taegu as the most serious one in Korea.

The U. S. 1st Marine Brigade and the 24th Division tackled 12,000 river-crossing reds and drove well into their bridgehead on the eastern Allied bank of the river.

AP correspondent Jack MacBeth on the Changnyong fighting front said some of the battered North Korean 4th Division's troops, about a battalion in one place and a small group in another, were pulling back across the river.

DEATHS

ORR — At Toronto on Thursday, August 17th, Miss Margaret Orr, formerly of Belleville.

The body will arrive on Sunday to rest at the Thomas C. Thompson Funeral Home, Everett Street, whence the funeral will be held on Monday, August 21st. Service in the chapel at 2.00 p.m.

Interment Belleville Cemetery.

THREE YOUTHS INJURED

Windsor, Aug. 18 (CP) — A joy ride in an allegedly stolen car ended in hospital early today for three Windsor youths after the car smashed against three heavy wooden poles several miles south of Windsor.

Gerald O'Bright, 19, was injured about the head; Earl Collins, 19, suffered a fractured hip, and William Percy, 19, was cut and bruised. None is considered in serious condition.

Police have placed a guard on O'Bright and Collins, and said charges of car theft may be laid against them.

TORONTO STOCKS

Toronto, Aug. 18 — CP) — Prices were lifted over a broad list of issues on the Toronto stock exchange today. The advance was slow compared with yesterday's strong climb. Volume for the first three hours was 551,000 shares.

Most industrial changes were held to fractions. Papers, steels, refining oils, textiles and foods climbed quickly. Manufacturing and utilities were easier. Dominion Foundries added ¼ at 35 and Dominion Steel B gained ¾ at 22½. Refining oils jumped as Imperial Oil gained ⅝ at 27⅛ and McColl-Frontenac rose ¼ at 15⅝. Massey-Harris was unchanged and Ford A dipped ¼ at 57. C.P.R. slipped ⅛ at 20.

Base metals lost ground quietly. Quemont, Noranda and Consolidated Smelters were fractionally lower. A few issues were ahead including Normetal, Golden Manitou and Labrador, all gaining five cents.

Golds, after posting early gains, lost ground later in the day. A few seniors pushed upward while on the secondary board losses ranged to five cents.

Western oils jumped ahead after a slow start and showed a majority of advances.

GOING BACK TO JAIL

Toronto, Aug. 18. (CP)—Frank Perry of Windsor, released from Mimico reformatory Aug. 6, is going back to jail, the attorney-general's department said last night. A spokesman said Perry was released—because of a clerical error—after serving only 40 days of a 120-day sentence. He was convicted of keeping liquor for sale.

Business Spotlight

Office Gadgets Do Everything Almost but Talk

By FORBES RHUDE
(Canadian Press Business Editor)

They say you can get a machine to do every job in an office except to tuck letters into an envelope. Apparently that has to be done by a girl, or boy, or even the boss himself.

Who says this? The makers of office machines, of course, as quoted by a release from the National Office Management Association, Toronto Branch.

The reason for the release is that N.O.M.A. is sponsoring a big display of office machines at the Canadian National Exhibition, with exhibits from 35 firms.

Some New Ideas

Here are some things the release tells about:

A device which folds letters or booklets into almost any shape you can dream up. A stamping machine which will sign cheques.

An office communication system which has been sold, not only to office, but to dog kennels and cattle stables. Purpose: If thieves come around, the barking or bellowing will wake you up and you can get out the shotgun.

Exhibition dates are Aug. 25-Sept. 9, but there'll be a two-day preview Aug. 23-24 if you go to N.O.M.A. or the telegraph companies for complimentary tickets.

Industrial Expansion

Here's a capsule picture of the sort of industrial expansion that is going on in Canada. In the one township of Scarboro, Toronto suburb, six companies will build plants within the next two years which will cost $12,500,000 and employ some 4,000 people. They include:

Rootes Motors (Canada) Ltd., 32-acre site on which they will start immediately a 40,000 square-foot group of buildings as a first step toward establishment of a Canadian assembly plant for Rootes British cars and trucks.

Frigidaire Products of Canada, Ltd., 86-acre site for a $7,500,000 plant.

Canada Foils, Ltd., $2,000,000 plant; Canada Glazed Papers, Ltd., $800,000 head office and plant; Canada Metal Co., Ltd., 15-acre site for factory.

TINY TIM PACKS MIGHTY WALLOP

A "Tiny Tim" rocket similar to those used by carrier planes attacking North Korean installations is released from a U.S. navy plane in a test. This is the World War II type, weighing 1,284 pounds and 10 feet, three inches long. New type in use against the Korean foe is slightly heavier and has more explosive power. — Central Press Canadian.

LIFE BEGINS AT 70

Port Elizabeth, South Africa — (CP) — Seventy-year-old Hendrik Britz grinned broadly as he entered the births and deaths registration office here to register his first child Plistina Rebekka. His wife Liesbet is 20 and the pair were married two years ago.

STRUCK BY CAR

Oshawa, Aug. 18. (CP)—John Hodgson, 14, was killed and a companion seriously injured when struck by an automobile last night on a highway three miles north of here.

Bruce R. Jemmett, 30, of Oshawa, was charged with drunken driving.

James Hutcheon, 13, is in the hospital where his condition is described as "serious".

HENRY TAYLOR ROSS DIES

Toronto, Aug. 18 — (CP) — Henry Taylor Ross, 89, Secretary-treasurer of the Canadian Bankers' Association for 17 years before his retirement in 1933 and a leading authority on modern Canadian banking, died today.

Born in Margaree, N. S., he was called to the Nova Scotia Bar in 1889 and was created a King's Counsel in 1910. He served as Assistant Deputy Minister of Finance in the Federal Government from 1906 to 1916.

THE CHOCOLATE BAR

Disaster has struck the pocketbooks of the young. Those nickel chocolate bars which have been gracing the counters of the candy stores for the past few months will now cost seven cents. And so the parade of chocolate bar prices continues.

Do you remember back in 1939 when, to paraphrase Gertrude Stein, "a bar was a bar was a bar?" The chocolate bars of those days often served as a light lunch for hungry office workers. And for the school children, it spoiled suppers when eaten after school was out. It became the symbol of a child's wealth — with a nickel for a chocolate bar, a boy was a capitalist.

Then came the war, and the bars went under the counter, along with the gum, the cigars, and the nylons. They stayed there, and in overseas packages, until war ceased. Cautiously, the makers put them back on the market again, perhaps not sure that the kids would remember what a chocolate bar was. And did they? They certainly did, even though the price had advanced to seven cents.

Last year, amid storms of disapproval of the two cents tax money on every nickel bar, the Government decided prices could go to a nickel again if the manufacturers wanted. So off went the taxes, and away went the kids in even finer style. But there was still another hitch — if the revenue was to be only five cents from the bars, the bars would have to be smaller.

And so the new bar appeared.

Perhaps that was all right, too, for a nickel. Times were tough, it was said. Prices were rising. Can you expect as much far the same nickel? And the children said no, maybe you can't. And they bought the slivers of chocolate.

The latest slap on the wrist came just the other day. Prices are going up again to seven cents, this time for the nickel bar.

FORCED LABOR IN RUSSIA

The existence of forced labor in the Soviet Union and Soviet satellite countries has been further confirmed, says the United Kingdom Information Office.

"Important new evidence has come into the hands of the United Kingdom Government, and has been made available to the Canadian and other delegates to the United Nations Economic and Social Council, presently sitting in Geneva, Switzerland.

"Britain has for some time been studying from official Soviet sources the existence of labor practices in Soviet Russia. In a debate in the House of Commons on 21st July, 1949, the then Minister of State, Mr. Hector McNeil, announced the United Kingdom Government's intention to offer "irrefutable evidence" on the subject. This, he said, would show "Something we have previously maintained, and which is quite shocking to everyone who remotely thinks as we do, namely, that by arbitrary decree people are removed from their homes and jobs and committed to forced labor or forced labor in exile in Soviet Russia."

This preliminary evidence was produced, and the Soviet Government has since entirely failed to refute it, the Information Office declares.

Announcing at Geneva Britain's further researches into the subject, the United Kingdom delegate said that his Government "would have been most willing to disbelieve the earlier evidence which had been submitted at the council but their further investigations had unfortunately merely produced further serious documentation from Soviet sources."

The main source of evidence of Soviet slavery is given in the current edition of the unabridged Soviet Encyclopedia, Volume 29 (published by the State publishing house of the Soviet Union), in which it is stated that " . . . with the entry of the U.S.S.R. into the period of socialism, the possibilities of using coercive measures of corrective labor have immeasurably increased." Forced labor is shown as one of the basic disciplinary measures of Soviet administration.

The United Kingdom delegate also revealed that other Soviet legislation deals with the rights of the Soviet Secret Police to enforce administrative deportation," i.e., without trial in a court of law. Some of the "crimes" mentioned in articles 58 and 59 of the Soviet Criminal Code, such as being innocent and unwitting members of the family of a service deserter, would hardly be considered as criminal and punishable in any civilized country.

Additional evidence now produced also contains examples of Soviet legislation against what are regarded in the Soviet Union as dangerous religious criminals, who may be subjected to the armed supervision of common criminals.

Usually a pretty safe authority to accept, Mr. Churchill declares that, for the time being at any rate, the superiority of the United States in atomic weapons is the only deterrent to a general communist onslaught. This may more than explain Moscow's phoney peace drive. — Hamilton Spectator.

In this world it is not what we take up but what we give, that makes us rich. — Beecher.

EMPTY HOUSE

Wooden horse is in the hall,
Lonely as can be.
Now the times I go to call
None to climb my knee.
Little feet no longer race
Round about at play.
Very quiet seems the place.
Terry's gone away!

Toys that used to lie about
Now are in a box.
I can walk the floor without
Stepping on his blocks.
Little bus and truck and car
In the corner stay.
Lonesome, just as I, they are,
Terry's gone away!

Only grown-up talk to hear.
Strange it seems to be.
Just his father sitting near Gossiping with me.
"Restful to be left alone,"
Did I hear you say?
Dreary 'til a month has flown!
Terry's gone away!

HOUSE PLANTS

House plants lose their leaves when they are taken out into the warm summer air. Likewise, when they are brought into the house in the fall, they tend also to lose their leaves. They can't take the early summer air which, even at best, is not so even in temperature or so comfortable as a well-heated house. But having become accustomed to the variations of the out-of-doors and the relative inclemencies of this weather, they appear to be not at all happy when taken back into the comfortable security of the house.

Human beings behave very much the same way. Children who are sheltered as house plants generally experience considerable distress when they go out into the cold world. In fact the world doesn't need to be very cold to make them unhappy, if the sympathy of those about them is not so warm as that of their adoring family and relatives. As the house plant loses its leaves when taken outside, these children lose their good cheer and often become what the psychologist terms "frustrated" amid the inclemencies of everyday living.

But those who do get used to the world are never willing to accept again the soft security and pampering of a sheltered home. These have got used to taking things as they come, and they like it.

THE PACKSACK

By GREGORY CLARK

A dog likes to be in front. In a motor car, his insistence on being in the front seat amounts to a nuisance. If he can stick his head out the side window and protrude his muzzle still farther in front, he is so much the happier.

In a motor boat, he will climb out on deck if he is permitted, and perch on the very peak of the bows.

Out walking, where does a dog invariably take post? Out ahead of you, of course. Unless he is one of those unfortunates who has been trained to heel, he patrols ahead of his master.

Those are two things to bear in mind in speculating about this habit of dogs. The original contract between man and dog, dating back a good deal farther than Magna Carta, stipulated that the dog would guard and protect his master and, when abroad in the land, would scout ahead of his lord both in search of danger as well as in quest of something for him to kill and eat.

Many may have forgotten some of the clauses in this ancient contract. But dogs never have. To this day, little dogs that could not protect their master from a gopher still range ahead, valiant and alert, faithful to the first tradition of dogdom.

In motor cars and launches, however, there is probably another reason for the dog's determination to get up front. Into a dog's nose is concentrated more than half, maybe seven tenths, of his perceptive sense. His nose is an intensely developed organ through which he perceives, analyzes and comprehends. It is so closely associated with what brain he has that his nose might be said to be half his brain.

Man has, with all his stinks, the smoke of his fires, the odors of his cave or cabin, and now with the engines, the reek of gasoline, so abused the nose of his dogs that the poor chaps must often be in a state of desperation. They can't think, for the smells.

PITCHING HORSESHOES

EIGHT LITTLE LETTERS

Last Saturday, Eleanor and I herded our weekend guests into the midget movie theatre in our barn at Mt. Kisco, and ran off "Three Little Words," a technicolor tap-and-tunner which stars Fred Astaire and Red Skelton. This new MGM musical is based on the careers of Harry Ruby and Bert Kalmar, a couple of Tin Pan Alleycats who used to be as close to me as the chin under my chin.

As the title card and screen credits flickered on, I was plenty apprehensive about what I was going to see. Last summer I had squirmed through "Oh You Beautiful Doll," the celluloid biography of Fred Fisher, another song-writing buddy of mine, and I had resented its inane inaccurate portrayal of an amusing and endearing man. And the year before, I had been left more overwrought than overwhelmed by Hollywood's treatment of the George Gershwin and Cole Porter stories.

What, I asked myself, are they going to do to Harry and Bert, a pair of good-natured hombres whose lives, as I knew them, had been singularly undramatic? In reel one, would they enlist in the Foreign Legion, and in reel seven, swim the English Channel because a certain girl was on the other side?

Well, I'm happy to report that, for once, the gold-plated popcorn machine called Hollywood didn't let me down. Although "Three Little Words" does take a few minor liberties with the facts, it manages to stick pretty close to unhistoric truth, and the end result is a sweetie pie of a picture which hit me squarely where I reminisce.

After I saw it, I couldn't help but wonder how it ever got to be made. The Kalmar-Ruby song catalogue is respectable enough, but hardly in a class with those of Romberg, Friml or Youmans, song writers whose life stories have so far been bypassed by the movie moguls. Who was the gent on the coast who was venturesome enough to pass up the heady stuff of which celluloid dreams are made for a simple story about two sweet guys? Who was bright enough to realize that such a story, if told without too many trimmings would be a welcome antidote to the snarl-and-slash epics currently cluttering up our screens.

By dint of considerable master minding and one quick phone call, I discovered it was producer Jack Cummings, a sweet guy on his own who is married to Jerome Kern's daughter. When the studio gave him the go-ahead signal, I further learned, he went out of his way to enlist the services of several other what's-all-the-shootin'-for gents: George Wells, the scripter and Fred Astaire and Red Skelton who play Kalmar and Ruby.

The performance of Fred Astaire—well, what can one say about the great nimble-foot of our generation except that when he is in motion this is still the best of all possible worlds? As for the performance of Red Skelton I have a-plenty to say. This comic has never been my cup of oolong, and his mirthful muggings have generally left me unmoved. His impersonation of Ruby, however, is a restrained and believable one, and for the first time I found myself warming up to him. As Deems Taylor, one of our guests, put it, "Whoever thought Skelton was an actor?"

"Three Little Words," I hasten to add, isn't the greatest movie that ever came out of Hollywood. Nevertheless, it's head and hip-boots above most of its current competition, and if feel like having your nostalgic nudged, I recommend its 90 minutes of unadorned and unabashed sentiment.

Mackenzie's Column:

Moscow Driving To Win Germany From the Allies

By DeWITT MACKENZIE
(Associated Press News Analyst)

Persistently and methodically Moscow is campaigning to win West Germany away from the Western Allies, join it to Eastern Germany and then incorporate the reunited Reich among the satellites.

The great drawing card offered by the reds is the promise of reunion with Eastern Germany, now pictured by the Russians, but not by other observers, as a land of milk and honey under Soviet occupation.

Unity — that's a goal never absent from the average German mind. There are no more nationalistic folk in all Europe than those of the Reich.

Germany's former powerful position as the military and economic keystone of continental Europe makes this aspect of the cold-war crucially important. It is so important that time may record it as one of the decisive engagements in the conflict of the ideologies.

Western Germany is the defensive barrier between the Soviet zone and the democracies. It was disclosed in Frankfurt the other day that nearly all western military men and most officials stationed there agree Europe couldn't be defended against Russia without the arming of Germany.

Born Out of Common Sense

That's a striking admission — by experts who not long ago swore that a guilty Germany shouldn't be allowed to rearm. It's an admission born out of common sense — and out of the potential dangers of a "cold war" which is "cold" only in the sense that Vesuvius is "cold." It could get mighty hot — and quick.

As things stand at the moment, the Soviet campaign to win West Germany is in what may be called the political stage — with the reds carrying the ball.

The communists are offering all sorts of attractions in their crusade. Among these are advantages supposedly to be gained through trade with Eastern Germany under red rule.

However, the east - German politburo also is concentrating on underground work to sabotage economic recovery in the western zone. This is calculated not only to make the citizens discontented but to embarrass the western occupation powers.

In the red propaganda was an announcement the other day in the red army's official newspaper in Berlin, Taegliche Rundschau. This proclaimed a sweeping program for all Germany, including the "liberation" of West Germany. There was no talk of using arms to achieve this. The communists can be discreet.

The big question about the Soviet campaign in Western Germany is when (if at all) the red "political" activities may be converted into physical action. That's a development which most of the world doesn't want to see, but one which the western countries are preparing to counter.

TODAY'S TALK

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

EQUIPMENT

We are all born with a certain amount of natural equipment. It may be much or little, but the important thing is what we do with it, or the use to which we put it! Many of the great of this earth came into it with meager equipment, but they made the most of everything through skill and vision, increasing the value of that equipment.

Whittier's delightful poem "The Barefoot Boy" gives us a picture of a boy with natural equipment that cost him nothing—his "cheeck of tan" as evidence of his love of the out-of-doors. And there was his whistle that evidenced his happy heart, and his "turned up pantaloons" proved that he was ready for any romp. Simple equipment, but adequate for the joy that he welcomed.

Recently I visited a place in Nova Scotia which exhibited the equipment of the early Acadians. Crude indeed were those things, but they were adequate for the time, as were the early things that our forefathers introduced, and which became the foundation for all that has followed since. Light, and crude equipment often calls for courage, patience, and faith—but the rewards are worth it.

Explorers and pioneers carry as light equipment as possible. Only the essentials count. Too much baggage often dampened a vacation jaunt! The champion golfer sticks to a minimum of clubs—but not often the beginner. He is apt to allow the salesman to sell twice as many clubs as are essential for a good game. It only takes a handful of tools to build a good house.

The intellectual equipment of Abraham Lincoln was meager but he made the most of what he had. A copy of Blackstone's commentaries was found in a barrel of trash—and from it he was inspired to take up the study of law. Many a boy, who later as a man became great, often walked miles to gain the knowledge from books that gave his mind equipment to carve out a notable and useful career.

Light equipment is best for the long journey. What wonderful equipment we have in just a handful of friends! Dependable, never failing—anchors to which to tie!

FLUORINE IN TRISTAN DRINKING WATER

Tristan water is not a brand of spring water, mineral water or bottled water. Tristan da Cunha is one of three wee little islands—the "lonely isles" far in the south Atlantic midway between Montevideo, Uruguay, and Capetown, South Africa. Nearest inhabitated place is St. Helena, 1320 miles to the north.

The people (white, of European origin) of Tristan are famous for their good teeth. Having visited the place and seen for myself the conditions, I feel safe in saying that, although they do not brush their teeth at all, they have the finest teeth in the civilized world. That is, their teeth are far better preserved than the teeth of even the most meticulous tooth-brushers, namely, you gullible Yankee Wiseacres who fall for the slogan "a clean tooth never decays."

Tristan da Cunha is a volcanic island only 20 miles or so in circumference. The drinking water comes from numerous brooks flowing down to the sea from a small crater lake.

Only after our ship had sailed from Tristan did it occur to me that I should have brought home samples of the drinking water to determine the flourine content. It has been established in recent years that the intake of a minute quantity of flourine or flouride, in water, food or medicine, has considerable caries-inhibiting value, that is, it tends to prevent tooth decay. Authorities who have given the matter a good deal of study now agree that the desirable fluorine content of drinking water for this purpose is approximately one part per million.

In certain regions where the drinking water contains much more than that, it has caused mottled enamel. This occurs only where the water contains more than two parts per million.

Commenting on the conditions I saw in Tristan I said I hoped any one of a scientific turn of mind who may have the opportunity to visit Tristan da Cunha in the near future will at least bring back a flash of the drinking water for a flouride test.

You have no idea how far-reaching this column is. A few days after the article appeared in print I received a personal communication from a professor in one of the top notch dental schools. He told me that he has two flasks of Tristan drinking water , one collected by himself when he spent four months there with a Norwegian Scientific Expedition—why, oh, why don't people tell me these things? — and the other shipped to him ten years later. The fluorine content ranges between 0.20 and 0.35 parts per million in different brooks of the settlement.

That would be about one part to five million and one part to three million, less than the one part per million which authorities agree tends to prevent tooth decay.

The dental school professor made no allusion to the teachings in this column, but the mere fact that he troubled to write me at all restores me to fine fettle to carry on my bitter fight with the dentists at large. What we are fighting about I'm not quite sure, but I have thick stacks of letters and clippings that show how bitter the fight is. I serve notice now that what I learned on Tristan da Cunha is not going to sweeten the fight much, so far as I am concerned.

QUESTIONS & ANSWERS

Nails Brittle

My nails are very brittle and have furrows straight across the back, or several of them have. I wonder... (Mrs. P. H.)

Answer—Yes, it is a common manifestation of the national malnutrition—deficient daily intake of these essentials of good nutrition: Calcium, phosphorus, iodine, thiamine (vitamin B1), riboflavin (vitamin B) and vitamin D. Send stamped self-addressed envelope and ask for the pamphlet Young Folks and Old Folks. It tells how to supplement the ordinary refined diet with these elements.

Foot Itch

Fifteen or twenty years ago you gave me a recipe for fungus infection on the feet, a liquid preparation which cleared it up in short order. (O. F. E.)

Answer—It is probably one of the formula given in the pamphlet on foot itch, athlete's foot, ringworm, dermatophytosis. Ask for the pamphlet in writing (no clipping, please) and inclose stamped self-addressed envelope. Clippings sent in lieu of your own written request are too easily mislaid in the handling of many letters.

PRESS BREAKS DOWN

Ellwood City, Pa., Aug. 18 — (AP) —The Thursday edition of the Ellwood City Ledger was late coming off the press. It might have been because the paper printed a picture of its editor.

The editor, Charley Cox, had said for years he didn't want his picture in the paper. Staff members laughed, saying he was afraid the press would break down.

Well yesterday, Cox retired after 28 years with the paper and the Ledger printed his picture.

The press broke down.

News of Trenton

Trenton Defeats Cobourg 13-10 In First Game of O.A.S.A. Intermediate 'B' Playoff Series

Trenton—(Speial) — Chronic fumbleitis plagued both teams, as Trenton Chevrolets lurched to a 13 to 10 victory over Cobourg Orphans at Bayshore Park Wednesday night. The game was the first of a best of three series between the two clubs who are meeting in the semi-final round of the zone 4 intermediate "B" O.A.S.A. playoffs.

In spite of spotty fielding, Harry Farr turned in a stellar performance on the Chevrolet hill as he went the nine inning stretch, giving up seven hits and had a perfect night at the plate with a double, three singles and a walk in five tries.

Cobourg fell apart in the second inning when the Chevies broke out in a nine run scoring splurge that blasted the Orphan's starting hurler Don Platt off the mound. Norm McCue's boys had Platt's number from the start but it was not all Platt's fault as his slippery fingered teammates bobbled five Chevrolet drives to help seal his fate. The five Cobourg errors plus two singles, a double and Joe Scott's grand slam homer accounted for the eight Trenton runs.

Don Ball relieved Platt with none away, retired the next three batters and went the rest of the way holding the Chevrolets to five hits.

Plenty of Errors

In the top of the third, Chevrolets collapsed almost as badly as they matched the Orphans miserable performance in the second by helping their visitors with five errors in the third. Cobourg took advantage of the poor Chevrolet fielding to get back in the game, picking up five runs on doubles by Bob Cooper and Chuck Johnston, aided by the five errors and Lyle Ball's single.

Both teams seemed to be trying to pile up the most errors but the two teams tied for error honors with nine each. Bob Cooper for the Orphans and Joe Scott for Chevrolets were the star fumble artists. Scott booted three in the third, while Cooper muffed a total of four, two in the second and two more in the eighth. Cooper delighted the Trenton fans with his juggling show as he handled the ball like a hot potato.

Scott and Cooper, Heavy Hitters

However, both Scott and Cooper helped their teams at the plate, as both connected for homers. Cooper added a double and a single, while Joe Scott smashed a single in the eighth that drove in what proved to be the winning run.

After racking up a 9 to 1 lead in the second, the Chevies threw in the clutch and coasted for the next six innings while their lead shrunk to a ten all tie in the eighth. Four Cobourg runs crossed the plate on a lone single by Lyle Ball while three Orphans were safe on errors.

In the top of the eighth frame, the Orphans returned the Chevrolet's sporting gesture by making three errors. With Buck Stacey and Karl Austin safe on errors, Ernie Curtis walked and Joe Scott connected for his game winning single. In the ninth, the first three Cobourg hitters were retired in order.

Two Trenton Men Join Korean Brigade

Trenton—(Special)— Believed to be the first Trenton men to join the Special Korean Brigade, Alex C. Miller, 103 Byron Street, and Dave Shuttleworth, 89 Bay Street, report at Chorley Park recruiting centre, tonight.

The two Trenton men were accepted Monday of this week and expect to be sent to Calgary immediately for a three-months concentrated basic and advanced training course. Neither Mr. Miller nor Mr. Shuttleworth have had any previous military training.

Rotary Club Plans Concert For Sunday

Trenton—(Special)— A unique stage setting is planned for the community concert being sponsored by the Rotary Club on Sunday night.

The band stand will be a flat scow anchored near the stone wall of the Trenton Cold Storage plant just south of the government docks on the west side of the Trent River.

Featuring the Dominion Championship R.C.A.F. Band which will play from the barge, the Glee Club quartet from R.C.A.F. Station, Trenton, will also be in attendance at the concert, along with several soloists and musicians from Trenton and district.

The concert is entirely free and the Rotary Club is expecting a really large turnout as there is plenty of room for spectators on the newly paved dock area. The entire dock will be lit by floodlights for the occasion and the program will be broadcast over the local radio station.

The R.C.A.F. Band which won their Dominion Championship honors at Waterloo Musical Festival recently will be a feature attraction on the program which starts at 8.15 Sunday evening. The Rotary Club hopes that its concert will be as successful as a recent concert that the R.C.A.F. Band played at in Cobourg when several thousand people attended.

R.C.A.F. Station Jets, Harvards In C.N.E. Show

Trenton—(Special)— An aerial demonstration featuring two high speed jet Vampire fighters from Central Flying School, Trenton, will take place at the Canadian National Exhibition at 12 p.m. and 6.15 p.m. on August 25, and 26. The two jets will be piloted by F.O. Harold Knight of Cobourg and F.O. Jerry Billing of Windsor.

The R.C.A.F. announced Wednesday night, that a daily air show will be put on by Vampires and rocket-firing Harvard trainers in place of the naval aerobatic team that performed over the Lake Ontario waterfront last year.

During the rest of the C.N.E. four Vampires from the R.C.A.F. Air Defence Group, St. Hubert, Quebec, will perform nightly at 6.15.

The rocket firing demonstration will be similar to the one which took place at R.C.A.F. Station, Trenton on Air Force Day in June. Daily during the C.N.E. four Harvards from the fighter-gunnery squadron of the Trenton Air Armament School, will fire three inch rockets carrying 25-pound concrete heads, at a brightly colored target anchored off the water front.

OUR TOWN

By JACK SCOTT

BIG DITCH

Gretna, Man. — Imperial Oil Co., which you may have heard about, is laying a pipeline from the Alberta oil fields to Lake Superior, and invited a bunch of us down here to see how they're getting along.

It was a gamble for Imperial. Most of us were daily newspapermen or weekly editors and, thus, keen students and critics of all forms of construction. I have yet to meet a newspaperman who could decently put together a set of alphabetical blocks or one who didn't feel qualified to dispute the technique of any large dam, bridge or skyscraper.

As it was, Imperial came off very well, mainly because this is a romantic, dramatic construction job employing some of the most fantastic, Rube Goldberg machines extant and also enough Texans and Oklahomans to delight any spectator. The joy of listening to a gigantic, suncured Texan explain his welding technique ("Fust, yuh got yuh stringah-beat, yuh hot pass and yuh weld on the insaid from the outsaid, etc.") was worth the trip alone.

Imperial was wise enough, too, to provide some public relations men with the kind of figures newspapermen adore. We learned that merely to fill the pipeline will require 64,330,000 gallons of oil, or enough to supply the whole of Canada for six days. If it was gas it would drive a car 46,300 times around the earth. Steel in the pipe would make two and a half ships the size of the Queen Elizabeth.

Filled with these splendid figures, plus enough Scotch to fill two and a half bathtubs and a filet mignon apiece, we all agreed that it was a fine ditch.

The Ditcher

What Imperial is hoping to complete before winter is a steel pipe something like 1200 miles from Edmonton to Superior, Wis. The crude oil from the Leduc field and the newer Redwater field (where we recently met the fabulous Mulligan clan) will be pumped under the prairie to the lakehead and tankers.

Some of it will be dropped off at Regina refineries. More will go to a new 10 million buck Imperial plant now under construction at East St. Paul, about eight miles north of Winnipeg. (None of the publicity men knew how East St. Paul was named.)

It was the 75-mile spur line from Gretna, on the Manitoba-North Dakota border, that we were invited to see. It turned out to be well worth seeing. A year from now there'll be nothing visible down that corridor of prairie but the thick, rippling wheat. Now you see a four-foot deep trench and beside it, waiting to be lowered into position, the 10-inch steel pipe, made in bonny Scotland.

This ditch is dug by the most fascinating machine you ever did see. There is a 16-foot front wheel, with fanged scoops all around it, attached to a ponderous sort of tractor. As the tractor thing inches along the great wheel revolves, biting into the soft, stoneless soil and leaving behind a ditch just exactly two feet across and so straight and clean and tidy that someone is bound to exclaim "Like a knife through butter!" I was just nosed out for this honor by a Mr. Martin from the Country Guide.

Those scoops not only chew into the soil like an angry terrier, but carry the dirt up to dump it neatly on the left hand side of the ditch. Later on, when the pipe is down, a bulldozer can just nose the soil back into the trench.

Before the pipe is interred it goes through an elaborate processing including an operation by one single machine in which hot coal tar enamel is smeared on the 10-inch pipe and layers of fibre glass paper and asphalt-based felt are wrapped like puttees around it. They had a time getting us away from that, I'll tell you.

Jim Wagner, one of Imperial's representatives, told us it's a good deal more involved than it looks to lay down a pipeline like this.

After the route is surveyed, for example, each individual farmer must be approached. On the 90 million dollar interprovincial line this meant interviews with more than 2000 farmers, one of whom talked from in behind a shotgun.

Imperial compensates for crops, fences, timber and live stock and when the line has gone on the farmer may work the land over it as he always did.

Here are some more notes I have if you happen to be interested in pipelines:

The lucky man who operates the mechanical ditcher is "Smitty" Smith, who comes from Broken Bow, Okla., and doesn't seem to realize how envied he is . . . Oil moving through the line makes about 45 miles a day, nudged along by pumping stations every 200 miles . . . Airplanes will patrol the route on schedule, looking for oil stains that reveal a leak . . . Imperial doesn't worry about anybody tapping the line. You'd have to have your own refinery to make use of it.

The spur line between Gretna and Winnipeg goes under seven provincial trunk highways, 10 secondary roads and 12 railway lines . . . First oil is expected in Regina this fall and it will serve not only Imperial's plant, but a CCF government refinery. . . . Company figures it can move its black gold underground at about a third of the cost of freight shipping . . . Choice job of all on the line is that of the gink who simply walks along the pipe with an X-ray listening device that picks up any breaks. . . . Most of the key men in the crews — or "spreads" — are veterans of Venezuela, Texas, Peru and other points, some of them making a thousand a month.

Oh, yes, Earth from the trench in which the pipe will be placed would make a pile 100 feet square and more than a mile high.

WEDDINGS

DALY—SEMARK

St. Michael's Church of the Archangel, Belleville, was the scene of a pretty wedding on Saturday, August 12, at 10 a.m., when Teresa Mary, daughter of Mrs. Carmel Semark, was united in marriage to George Cartmill Daly, son of Mrs. Ethel Daly, of Kingston, and the late Mr. J. P. Daly. The Rev. Father Charles E. Baker officiated before a background of pastel-tinted gladioli and gypsophelia.

Mr. Dean Whalen beautifully rendered the wedding music, and the soloist, Miss Helen Grant, sang before the ceremony, "Ave Maria", and during the signing of the register "On This Day, O Beautiful Mother".

The bride, who was given in marriage by her brother, Mr. Donald Semark, wore a charming bridal gown of white Chantilly lace over white taffeta, featuring a molded bodice, with high collar, coming to a point at the front over the skirt, which was fashioned with a panel front, with full back gracefully falling into a long train. Her sleeves were long and tight-fitting, coming to lily points over the hands. The fingertip veil of tulle, edged with matching Chantilly lace, was caught by a Juliet cap of matching lace edged with braided taffeta. She wore a single strand of pearls, and carried a crescent-shaped bouquet of white gardenias, Sweetheart roses and stephanotis.

Miss Shirley Sagadore, of Belleville, was maid of honor, wearing a floor-length gown of pink net over taffeta, having molded bodice, pointed at the front, boat neckline and bouffant skirt, matching headdress of summer flowers and matching mitts. She carried a basket of summer flowers similar to those of the headdress.

Miss Antionette Amodeo, of Belleville, was bridesmaid, gowned in soft moss green net over taffeta, fashioned similarly to that of the maid of honor, with matching headdress of flowers and carrying a similar basket of summer flowers.

Mr. John Daly, of Cornwall, Ontario, was groomsman, and the ushers were Murray Daly, brother of the bridegroom, and Leo Mooney, uncle of the bride.

The wedding breakfast and reception was held at Golden Acres Inn, where the bride's mother received, wearing a powder blue gown of faille, with navy accessories and corsage of pink Sweetheart roses and violets. She was assisted by the bridegroom's mother who was gowned in beige printed silk, with navy accessories and corsage of red Sweetheart roses.

For the wedding trip to Wasaga Beach, Midland, Hamilton and Niagara Falls, the bride donned a suit of pink gabardine with matching pink straw hat, and corsage of pink and white Sweetheart roses. Upon their return, they will reside in Belleville.

Out-of-town guests were present from Kingston, Toronto and Cornwall.

COBURN—SALISBURY

The marriage took place Saturday, August 5, at 10 a.m., in Trinity United Church, Cobourg, of Della Maude Salisbury, only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. Salisbury, Cobourg, and Arnold Leonard Coburn, only son of Mrs. Gladys Coburn, Salem. Dr. W. P. Woodger was the officiating clergyman.

The bride was dressed in a pale blue gabardine suit with navy accessories. Her corsage was of pink roses.

The bride was attended by her friend, Miss Janette Oakman, who wore suit of navy blue with white accessories and corsage of pink roses.

The groomsman was Mr. Franklin Smith of Salem.

The reception was held at the home of the bride's parents, the bride's mother wearing a navy blue ensemble and the groom's mother in black and white ensemble.

The honeymoon will be spent in Huntsville and Algonquin Park, the bride travelling in navy satin dress and white accessories. They will make their home in Oshawa.

A beautiful three-tiered wedding cake graced the centre of the bride's table, Three relatives served the guests. They were Mrs. W. Brooks and Miss Ruth Brooks of Plainville, and Mrs. Norman Armstrong, of Port Hope. Both the bride's grandmother, Mrs. Brooks, of Cobourg, who is 91, and the groom's grandmother, Mrs. Sabins of Salem, who is 87, attended.

Other out-of-town guests included, Mrs. Sabins, Salem; Mrs. H. Carter, Colborne; Mr. and Mrs. R. Snider, Toronto; Mr. and Mrs. W. Brooks and Ruth of Plainville; Miss H. Owens, Belleville; Mrs. J. Bennett, Mr. Howard Anderson, of Peterborough.

JOHNSON—DARLING

On Saturday, August 12, Morganston United Church was the scene of a pretty wedding, when Rev. J. E. Griffith, assisted by the groom's brother, Rev. Walter Johnson, Toronto, united in marriage, Lorna June Darling, second daughter of Mr and Mrs. Lorne Darling, Morganston, to Allan Nicholson Johnson, second son of Mr. and Mrs. S. A. Johnson, Toronto.

The bride entered the church on the arm of her father, to the strains of the wedding march from Lohengrin, played by Miss Myrtle Hardy, A.T.C.M., L.C.C.M., of Morganston. The church was beautifully decorated with ferns, snapdragons and gladioli.

For the double ring ceremony, the bride looked lovely in a gown of white Swiss eyelet embroidered organdy, over taffeta with tiers of Victorian ruffles falling in a graceful train. She wore a white tiara headdress, trimmed with silver and a fingertip veil and carried a bouquet of red roses.

The matron of honor was the bride's sister-in-law, Mrs. Ivan Darling, of Belleville, who was gowned in delphinium blue nylon marquisette, over taffeta, with matching headdress and a fingertip veil, carried a bouquet of pink roses.

Little Miss Verlie Massey, cousin of the bride, looked sweet in a long yellow organdy dress, with matching headdress and carrying a basket of sweetpeas and snapdragons, was flower girl.

The groomsman was Mr. Russell Nicholson, of Toronto, cousin of the groom. The ushers were Mr. Ivan Darling, brother of the bride, and Mr. Van Darling, cousin of the bride.

Mrs. John Goodfellow of Codrington, sang before the ceremony "The Lord's Prayer", and during the signing of the register, "At Dawning".

The bride's mother received wearing navy blue sheer with grey accessories and corsage of deep pink roses. The groom's mother wore grey blue faconne crepe with navy accessories with a corsage of pink roses.

The reception was held in the church parlors, decorated with pink and white flowers.

The wedding supper was served by Mary Massey, Eunice Turney, Helen Hardy, Audrey Pollock, and Bernice Davidson.

For travelling the bride chose a suit of rose biege with brown accessories and a bronze corsage. Amid showers of confetti, they left for a motor trip to Georgian Bay and north, and will reside in Toronto.

PALMATEER—CHAMBERS

On Saturday, August 12, at one o'clock a pretty wedding was solemnized in a double-ring ceremony, at the bridegroom's home, Castleton, Ontario, when Isabelle Livinia, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William H. Chambers, of Hastings, Ontario, became the bride of Lorne Neil Palmateer, son of Mr. and Mrs. Clem Palmateer, of Castleton. The Rev. Mr. Griffith officiated beneath an arch of pink and white streamers, bells and flowers.

Miss Velma Palmateer, sister of the bridegroom, wearing a floor-length gown of white, pink corsage and a rhinestone necklace gift of the bride, rendered the wedding music which consisted of Wagner's "Wedding March", as the bride entered, before the ceremony "I'll Walk Beside You" and during the signing of the register, Mendelsshon's "Wedding March" and 'My Beautiful Lady".

The bride, given in marriage by her father, was becomingly gowned in a white satin bridal gown, with lace trim, featuring a nylon sheer yoke, molded bodice with long sleeves, and full skirt ending in a long train. Her fingertip veil of tulle illusion was held in place by a white satin headdress and orange blossoms. She wore a double strand of pearls, the gift of the bridegroom, and carried a shower bouquet of red roses tied with white satin ribbon.

Miss Agnes Chambers, of Hastings, and sister of the bride, was her only attendant, wearing a floor-length gown of turquoise blue net over taffeta with matching headdress and gloves, and strand of pearls. She carried a bouquet of summer flowers.

Mr. Robert Glenn, of Hastings, was groomsman.

The reception was held at 'Woodlawn' Campbellford, where the bride's mother, gowned in grey with black accessories, was assisted in receiving the guests by the bridegroom's mother, who also wore grey nylon with black accessories. Both wore corsages of red and yellow roses.

For the wedding trip to Halifax, Quebec, and other eastern cities, the bride chose a light blue ensemble trimmed with navy, with navy blue accessosies. Upon their return, the young couple will reside at Holland's Landing, where the bridegroom is principal of the school.

Out-of-town guests were Mr. and Mrs. John Flagler, (sister of the bride), of Belleville; Mr. and Mrs. John Duff, of Roseneath, grandparents of the bridegroom; Mr. Don Sine of Foxboro, Ont.; Mr. and Mrs. George Peoples, of Norwood; Mr. Donald Graham, also of Norwood.

CRAWFORD—DUNCAN

Madoc—Saint Paul's Episcopal Church, Troy, N.Y., was the setting for a pretty wedding on Saturday afternoon August 12, when Diana D. Duncan, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles C. Duncan, Hoosick Road, Troy, N.Y., became the bride of James A. Crawford, son of Dr. and Mrs. E. C. A. Crawford, of Niagara Falls, and Madoc, Ontario. The church was prettily decorated with white gladioli and the ceremony was performed by Rev. Frederick Thalmann.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride was charming, wearing a white gown of Chantilly lace and nylon tulle, made with an illusion neckline, with appliqued scrollwork of lace at the shoulder line, cap sleeves, a fitted lace bodice and full skirt of lace and tulle ending in a long train. Her fingertip veil fell from a pearl-studded Chantilly Juliet cap. She carried a centre cascade, bouquet of double orange blossoms and swainsonia and white gladioli florettes.

The maid of honor was Miss Nancy Bryce, of Troy, New York, who wore a gown of pink satin and marquisette made with a fitted strapless bodice, a full skirt, short bolero of accordian pleated ruffles. She wore a matching picture hat of horsehair trimmed with satin and carried American Beauty gladioli florettes.

The bridesmaids were Miss Jean Crawford, of Montreal, Miss Carolyn Tayler, of Troy; Miss Ruth VanDusen, of Albany; Miss Barbara Yanney, of Albany; who were gowned alike in nymph green with matching picture hats and carried American Beauty gladioli florettes.

The best man was Dr. E. C. A. Crawford, father of the groom, the ushers were, Charles Orenstein, of Kingston, Ont.; Donald Boyce, of Belleville; Jack Baker, of Madoc; John W. F. Munro, of Madoc; John Arakelian, of Troy, and Donald Lewis, of Albany.

The wedding music was played by Mrs. George D. Morris.

The reception was held at the Troy Country Club, the bride's mother wearing a gown of cocoa Chantilly lace and matching accessories with a corsage of green orchids. The groom's mother was in navy blue with matching accessories.

Following a trip to Canada, Mr. and Mrs. Crawford will reside in Albany, N.Y.

No. 1 Gaiety Girl Cecile Sorel Enters Convent

Paris, Aug. 18. (Reuters)—The No. 1 strip-tease girl at the Casino de Paris in 1901 has become a Franciscan novice at the age of 77.

Turn-of-the-century playboys heaved a sigh and a gasp this weeke when they heard about Cecile Sorel.

Indefatigable Cecile was the girl who filled the naughtiest of music halls during the first two decades of the century.

Last week she drove away from the luxurious hotel du Palais in Biarritz to be invested with the insignia of the Third Order of Franciscans at a nearby Caupchin convent.

Conversion Close Secret

The conversion of France's No. 1 Gaiety girl, who once boasted that she did enough in a week to keep six gossip columnists and their wives and children living for a month, had been kept a close secret.

Cecile left her hotel in her chauffer-driven limousine dressed in a black robe, torn away at the knees in sign of humility.

Father Remy of the Caupchin convent tied round her waist the white Franciscan cord of purity and austerity, and enjoined her: "Abandon the life of the world, show proof of humility, lead at all times the simple and austere life taught to us by St. Francis of Assisi and his disciples."

Cecile was placed on probation for a year, at the end of which Father Remy will decide whether she is fit to complete her novitate in a Franciscan convent.

Cecile Sorel's ample bust and long retrousse nose were in pre-war years the most cartooned features of the Parisian theatrical world.

Cecile tore up her contract with the Comedie Francaise in 1901 when the Casino de Paris offered her a fabulous salary to walk down their newly-constructed stage staircase in the role of "Eve in the Garden of Eden". She took Paris by storm.

Noted for her caustic and biting wit and her ribald sallies, Cecile delighted Paris in 1926 when, at the age of 53, she married young actor-peer Count Segur and became a countess.

Cartoonist Andre Rouveyre decided to display his own wit in 1907 when he exhibited at the humorists' salon an unflattering portrait of Cecile.

She sent for Rouveyre "to congratulate him". When he arrived, Cecile, without a bat of an eyelid, lifted the picture neatly off its hook and rapped it smartly over the artist's head.

RAWDON

Bride, Bridegroom Presented With Gift of Money

Rawdon—A large number of folk from Rawdon township and Mount Pleasant community attended a shower Wednesday evening in honor of Mr. and Mrs. Gerald Morrison (nee Eleanor Johnson).

The evening was spent in dancing with music supplied by several friends.

At the refreshment hour the newlyweds were presented with a purse of money and a number of individual gifts for which Gerald and Eleanor expressed their thanks.

Princess Interested In Garbage Man's Wife and Young Child

London, Aug. 18. (Reuters)—The world has been reading bulletins about the health of Princess Elizabeth and her new baby—but the Princess herself has been asking about a garbage-collector's wife and child.

Princess Elizabeth and Mrs. Violet Wells, 30, wife of a garbage collector at Romford, England, had their babies within 20 minutes of one another Tuesday.

Yesterday, the Princess told her lady-in-waiting to find how Mrs. Wells was getting on. The report: "Mrs. Well had a good night and is quite comfortable. Her baby boy could not be healthier."

Mrs. Wells told the Princess and baby were doing well, too.

Glorified Gingham

By ALICE ALDEN

COTTON, even gingham, has ceased to be a fabric for summer country wear, and goes smartly to town when well handled. This two-piece dress is of fine gingham in a rich cinnabar brown with an etching of black check lines. It is a far cry from the usual blue or red and white check weave. A piping of black faille ribbon and a row of jet buttons dresses up the jacket top and points the way to the neatly pleated slim skirt.

GOOD MANNERS

Hosts 'insulted' by guests early departure

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Last Saturday evening one other, couple, my husband and I were together at the home of another couple. We arrived at about 8:30, and all there was to do was to drink and talk. This is considered a good time by some, but not by us. My husband likes to drink to be sociable, does his share of drinking, but knows when he has had enough. I do not drink at all; my husband is very proud that I don't, and I want to keep the situation that way, for it has taken more than twelve years to make this adjustment. I'd do anything to keep my husband happy, and so I go along to the parties, let him have a good time as he wants to have it, and do as he wishes about drinking, knowing that he won't go too far. We both love to have fun, love to joke. About 10:30 this particular evening, the four of us decided to leave, my husband and the other man thinking that just contining to drink was not their idea of a good time. Our leaving at this hour has resulted in a great commotion! The couple who invited us over claim that we insulted them by leaving so early, that we should have stayed until at least twelve or one o'clock. They say (and this is true, for they often come to our house) that they never leave anyone's house before twelve or one o'clock. The wife is particularly critical of me, and her husband told my husband that he was positive that his wife and I wouldn't continue to be friends, but even so he would like to continue his friendship with my husband. My husband doesn't want to be friendly with them any more. But when this occurrence is discussed, I would like to be able to make a point with all concerned, as to what hour is the proper hour to leave the home of people you are visiting in the evening. What is the proper hour?

R. R.

There is absolutely no rule about what hour to leave after an evening party of such informality and casualness. . . and having stayed two hours, chatting together and having some drinks, naturally you, your husband the other couple had the privilege of leaving if that was your wish. The 'social requirement' was not the hour-of-departure, but only that you were all gracious in your leave-taking, explaining perhaps that you were tired, or had to be up early for a long day the following day. If the hosts' idea of a perfect evening was to sit and drink for hours. . . just to keep up the record of drinking to a certain 'deadline' . . and this was not the idea of you four, why waste your time waiting only for twelve or one o'clock to arrive? Please let me repeat . . the only question of propriety is that you departing ones should have been very polite and very gracious in your explanation of your leaving.

Fiance does not provide flowers for showers

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

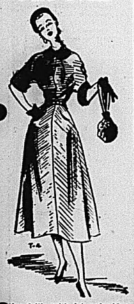
My son is to be married next month, and the relatives of his fiancee are beginning to give parties for her. Two showers and two luncheons so far, and many more to come. The mother of the bride-to-be says that when a shower is given, my son should supply and pay for the flowers. We've never heard of such a thing. When I gave a shower for 65 women guests, the flowers (corsages, centrepieces, orchids and so forth) cost me more than $35; and when my sister-in-law recently gave a shower in a fashionable hotel here, the flowers were about $25. She and I supplied the flowers for our parties, and thought no more about it. But now comes this question, and we would like to do the right thing. Please tell us what is the right thing.

Fiance's Mother

The correct thing is for each hostess of a party given in honor of the bride-to-be to pay for every detail of her party . . . the flowers, as well as the foods. Just as you and your sister properly took it for granted that each should pay for the flowers for the party.

Of course your son may, if he wishes, send a corsage to his fiancee and her hostess-of-the-day . . . . but this gallant gesture is not to be taken for granted, and he would not supply and pay for any of the other flowers.

Date Dress



Beige faille with jet embroidery.

By GRACE THORNCLIFFE

BEIGE rayon faille is the material for a delightful little date dress that is cut on simple but effective lines. The double collar and cuffs have a top layer of jet embroidery on black velvet which is removable. Two diagonal folds from under the collar are released to make for some bodice fullness. There are small curved pockets at the hips of the four-gored skirt. This is a nice back-to-college choice.

Favorite Fall Shades

By ALICE ALDEN

BROWN is very much to the fore, particularly the rich deep tones of this favorite Fall shade. For the new season Penart does a rich brown sheer, a nice choice for town. A flash of red flowers at the velvet-cinched waist makes another nice color note, and for flattery there's a deep scooped neckline set off by a horseshoe roll, while delicate strips of velvet are worked into a lattice pattern across the shoulder line. It is nice in black too, and nicely budgeted to boot.

Use More Luscious Melons

The common edible melons are divided into several classes. The watermelon is quite distinct in appearance and texture. Other types such as muskmelon, cantaloupe, Casaba and Honey Dew have a firm, thick flesh with a centre seed cavity.

The names cantaloupe and muskmelon were once used for quite different melons but have become interchangeable. These melons have netted skins and are more or less musk-scented. The flesh may be green or salmon-colored but the flavor is similar.

The melon which is considered to be the choices of all grows on the Island of Montreal and is known as the Montreal melon. These melons reach the weight of fifteen pounds and have a delicate, light green flesh.

Watermelon grow naturally in Africa and are much enjoyed by the people and animals for their refreshing cool juiciness. The cultivated varieties have the appeal of color added to the other qualities. The thick white rind is not edible in the raw state but makes a delicious pickle.

Casaba and Honey Dew melons are grown in mild climates and in Canada and are often called winter melons.

Serve Often

Cantaloupe, muskmelon and watermelon will be at the peak of perfection soon. While these melons may be cooked in various ways, the flavor changes considerably and so the fresh, uncooked fruit should be served often while in season.

Opinions vary greatly on what to serve with melon. The gourmet feels that a sprinkling of salt brings out subtle flavors. Some authorities say that the slight tartness of lemon is required to bring out the real flavor while still others like a little sugar. All agree, however, that melons should always be thoroughly chilled.

Melon balls, combined with other fruits and pointed up with a sprig of mint, make a perfect appetizer to start off a summer meal.

Melon balls or cubes set in a tart lemon jelly are delicious for the salad course. If a mound of cottage cheese is served on crisp lettuce beside the moulded jelly, the salad would be substantial enough for a main course at luncheon.

These receipts come from the home economists of the Consumer Section, Canada Department of Agriculture.

Melon Velva

2 tablespoons gelatine
½ cup water
Juice of 1 lemon (about 2 tablespoons)
¼ teaspoon salt
1¼ cups sugar
5 cups melon puree (about 5 lbs. of melon, as purchased)

Soak gelatine in cold water for 5 minutes and then dissolve by heating over boiling water for 10 minutes. Add lemon juice, salt and sugar to puree. Have the puree mixture at room temperature and slowly add the dissolved gelatine, stirring constantly.

Place in trays and freeze until firm, having temperature control at coldest point. Then turn into a chilled bowl and beat with a wooden spoon or electric mixer until it lightens in color, increases in volume and has a smooth texture. Beating must be rapid to prevent complete melting. Return mixture to trays and leave in the refrigerator a few hours to harden. Yield: about one quart.

Fresh Fruit Cup

1 cup melon balls
1 cup diced fresh pears
1 cup diced fresh peaches
½ cup diced apples
¾ cup marshmallows (optional)

Prepare the melons, either as balls or cubes. Dice other fruits and combine with melon balls and quartered marshmallows. Chill and garnish with blue grapes or mint sprigs. Yield: six servings.

ADVICE to the LOVELORN

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

Is she brushing him off politely?

Dear Miss Fairfax:

A few months ago at a party I met a girl I used to know and was quite fond of back in elementary school. I am 19 now. We had a nice time at the party, and a week later I telephoned her and asked her for a date. She said she was sorry she couldn't come, and gave me what seemed like a flimsy excuse, but said she would consider going out with me some other time. I haven't called her since, because I don't know whether she was just giving me a polite brush-off or really meant that she would go out with me at a later date.

Please advise me whether to call her or not.

J. D.

Dear J. D.:

If this girl is one with whom you would really like to cultivate a friendship, by all means give her another chance. Even though her excuse may have seemed flimsy, maybe she was really telling you the truth. At any rate, I'd give her the benefit of the doubt.

Of course, if you do call her again and she makes another excuse that sounds equally flimsy, I'd let things rest right there. Two moves in a row on your part without sincere encouragement on hers, would, I think, be enough.

Dropped her without a word.

Dear Miss Fairfax:

There is a fellow in my office of whom I have grown very fond, and who has also given me reason to believe he cared for me. If we didn't go out every night, he would call me on the 'phone. Suddenly, he stopped all this, and has neither telephoned nor come to my home to see me.

I see him every day, as we work together, but I can't bring myself to ask him what happened. My friends tell me to leave it up to him, because if he still cares for me, he'll come to me. But it hurts me very much not to have him even speak to me very often any more.

Should I ask him why he acts this way, or wait for him to make the first move?

D. C.

Dear D.C.:

In such circumstances as yours, the most dignified and effective thing you can do is to keep still and see what happens. Don't act as though you were angry at the young man by being cold to him, but just reply in a friendly manner when he speaks to you, or say "hello" nicely when you meet, and let it go at that.

Oddly enough, situations of this kind are apt to get more complicated, instead of less, if one tries to start the business of explaining and questioning. When in doubt, smile, be friendly, but guard against saying too much.

BEAUTY

Mid-season good looks care.

On days when the thermometer mounts hotly, the uppermost beauty fear of the fastidious woman is that she will look bedraggled. She would like to retire to some vast wilderness where a shining nose and stringy hair would be observed by none.

The cold shower is her good friend; if she takes two a day she will be likely to appear fresn and cool. Between times she can let cold water flow over her wrists, a practice that brings a measure of relief.

Helen Stevens
8-17
Distributed by King Features Syndicate

She would like to retire to some vast wilderness.

She keeps to a light diet which is just as well, and it wouldn't be a bad plan if she took her face off solids, too. A cream of light consistency, or a cleansing oil, should be substituted for her usual massage emollient. After its application, and for its removal, she should use a freshening lotion of which there are many to be found at cosmetic counters. These skin tonics are cooling. They sweep away the oily application, leaving just enough moisture on the flesh to make powder stick correctly.

Powder should be of the lightest. Those with an oily base are of no help when sebaceous and sweat glands are rampaging.

Use cool looking make-up. Flaming cheeks add to the flustered, over-heated appearance. Many women cease being chummy with the rouge compact during the summer season. The skin is inclined to be golden then, doesn't need the commercial blushes. Lipstick too should be of modest coloring.

There is the matter of the hair-do. The fewer curls, the better. Permanent or no permanent, something has to be done about ends of tresses at this season of the year. If you are a homebody you can use metal curlers during the day, but heaven help any woman who ever tries to sleep with hardware on her head She will probably dream of being bludgeoned and wake up, wondering if she is dead.

It is not too early to consider getting the complexion in form for Autumn; this is, if you want to start the Winter season with a normal skin. Many a vacationer has returned home with a built-up body, and a run-down face. They failed to follow the order of beauticians—and physicians, too—to protect sensitive flesh with a sun-tan oil.

In a few weeks now, beauty shops will be packed with clients seeking to be restored to a normal state of appearance. In the meantime, the summer girl should attend to her pulchritude chores since such ills do not cure themselves.

Fashion Flashes

BRIGHT LIGHTS next season will glow over beautiful fur fashions. Black Russian broadtail for a cowl-shaped evening cape with long tuxedo revers of white ermine on the front panels.

A WORLD of wear for the new little wool jersey dresses to be shown later on. The practical fabric has been made up into smart dresses, at home anywhere during the day, save for real occasions. Beige wool jersey is nicely printed in a white foulard pattern, and its rounded collar, front closing and cuffs are all bound in brown braid.

SLIM is the word for the new suits, the smartest of which are cut on tailored lines. Black velvet for a handsome suit, its crepe-lined jacket with a double-breasted cutaway front has a low neck filled in with a pink chiffon scarf.

SHARPLY DIVIDED into loose, wrappy, tent-like shape or in slim and sheath-like lines is the word on new fur coats. The sharply flared coat seems to be in eclipse, as does the slim-front, full-back design. Cut on slim lines is a beautiful black Alaska seal coat with rich scrolls of black silk braid outlining the big horseshoe pockets and the round collar. Full, push-up sleeves.

EARLY headlines for smart heads include many braid-trimmed little pillboxes, as well as lacquered felt cloches and bonnet trimmed hats. Some hats, braid trimmed, have braid covered buttons on either side to hold detachable little veils of stiffened coarse mesh.

LUXURY pervades handknits for Fall. For evening one designer shows a deep scoop-necked blouse of white silk ribbon knit covered with metallic mesh crochet to match the flared peplum on the slim skirt of black silk ribbon knit.

LUXURY fur wraps are attracting interest, and orders, at the wholesale furrier showrooms. White ermine for a wrap cut like a loose shirt, even unto notches at the hem and a slight dip in back. The coat is worked in horizontal bands, with a softly shirred yoke line in back. Big cuffs of Russian sable on the push-up sleeves.

Relatives, Friends Honor Recent Bride And Bridegroom

Rawdon.—The spacious home of Mr. and Mrs. John Ryan, 4th Concession of Rawdon, was filled with relatives and friends on Friday evening last to honor their daughter, Barbara, and her husband, on their return from their honeymoon.

Mr. John Morrison was master of ceremonies, and gave a brief address, while Mr. Kenneth Broadworth led the community singing of sentimental songs.

Miss Barbara Green with Miss Ruth Mumby playing the guitar accompaniment, sang two selections.

Mrs. Edgar McKeown read a selection of interest to the farmers.

The Broadworth girls delighted with four quartets, and were heartily applauded on their renditions.

Mrs. Walter Warren contributed two vocal solos and Mrs. Percy MacMullen gave two humorous readings on "Special Advice to the Groom".

The newlyweds were given seats of honor, and Mrs. Bob Merrick read an address of appreciation.

Barbara and Allan opened their large array of gifts and expressed their thanks and invited one and all to visit them in their new home at Oshawa.

The ladies served refreshments and on departure the guests extended their best wishes to the happy couple. The guests also viewed the wedding gifts which were on display.

STIRLING

Stirling—Mr. and Mrs. Jeffrey Russell, of Edmonton, Alberta, spent a recent afternoon with her friend, Mrs. Janet Utman, whom she has not seen for 45 years. Mrs. Russell was formerly Miss Hazel Merrill of Campbellford.

Mr. and Mrs. Harold Baker and children, of Pembroke, are spending two weeks' vacation at their cottage, Oak Lake.

Mr. and Mrs. William Montgomery and family and Mr. Jack Tullock spent the weekend at Niagara Falls, and Buffalo, N.Y. They were accompanied home by Mrs. Tulloch, who has been visiting her sister, Mrs. O'Brien at Niagara Falls, N.Y.

Recent visitors of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Sarles, were: Miss Sybil McLeaming, Barrie; Mr. and Mrs. Nelson Hanna, Foxboro; Mrs. Susan Marshall, Parry Sound; Mr. and Mrs. A. Armstrong, Toronto; Mr. and Mrs. Russell Wannamaker and Harold, of Frankford and Mrs. Leo Chappelle and Ricky of Toronto.

Mr. and Mrs. Roy Eggleton, Marilyn and Bobbie, have returned home after enjoying a month's motor trip through the Prairie Provinces to the Pacific coast, thence south to Albany, U.S.A. and east through the central states. Points of interest included the Calgary Stampede, Prince of Wales' Ranch, Banff, Lake Louise, Victoria, B.C., Yellowstone Park, and the Grand Canyon in Colorado.

Mr. and Mrs. William Vardy and family spent last weekend in Pembroke.

Mr. and Mrs. Ted Stewart and family of Oshawa, are spending this week with Mr. and Mrs. Herb Stewart and family.

Shopping For New Clothes

For late summer wear, pretty Diana Lynn of the movies, chooses a cool-looking black-and-white-checked dress; wears it with a big hat

By HELEN FOLLETT

SOME women believe that shopping for pretty clothes is the grandest fun in the world, others consider it a bore and a burden, start out with dour faces and no enthusiasm. The happy buyers are likely to tote home frocks, hats and coats that glamorize them; the doleful ones, eager to be finished with the tiresome business, will purchase the first offerings and hate them ever after.

Clothes help to make the woman and the smartie will cultivate a taste for line and color, will know exactly what's what in fashions, be a treat to the public eye. To be well-dressed is to have poise, a feeling of confidence. The frump is ever conscious of her frumpiness.

No movie star would ever have made the grade if she had not given herself a certain amount of sartorial training. It is not enough to be able to afford the creations of expensive dress makers; one must know one's type, understand what colors are becoming, what modes promote ease.

It is possible for every woman who is blessed with a seeing mind to determine the type of attire that is most fitting to herself and to recognize designs that seem to have been created especially for her.

It is a mistake to limit oneself to a single definite mode, varying it now and then, but still sticking to the general character. All costumes then look pretty much alike, and make the wearer less interesting than if she had a more varied wardrobe.

MOUNTAIN VIEW

Mr., Mrs. Ogilvie Conducts Fine Bible School

Mountain View—Mr. and Mrs. Ogilvie, of Chicago, last week conducted Bible School classes from Monday to Friday for children under 14 in the Mountain View Sunday School rooms.

The children were taught illustrated Bible lessons, as well as handicraft work, the girls making lovely dressed dolls and the boys doing plaster-paris plaques and painting them.

Miss Yvonne Poste presided at the organ for the hymns taught, which was duly appreciated.

Friday afternoon at the close of the classes, a picnic was sponsored by the superintendent Mrs. P. B. Hamilton and presided over by Pearl Hamilton, Reg. N.

After playing games and contests the children were treated to ice cream, cake and oranges.

This picnic is a yearly treat given them by Mrs. Hamilton and Seymour.

On Friday evening the adults also attended and were shown what the children had been taught.

Slides were shown and an illustrated lesson given by both Mr. and Mrs. Ogilvie which proved interesting to all attending.

Certificates were presented to the pupils and prizes for good attendance. Mrs. Ogilvie also presented Miss Yvonne Poste with a gift in appreciation of her helpfulness with the classes.

The sincere thanks of the Sunday School and all its members is extended to Mr. and Mrs. Ogilvie on their successful week.

RAWDON

Twenty Girl Friends Honor Bride-to-Be With Gifts of China

Rawdon.—On a recent Monday evening, Miss Eleanor Bush with Miss Doris Pollock, as co-hostess entertained 20 girl friends, cousins and school chums, to honor Miss Marjorie Bush, who was married on August 12.

The spacious home of Mrs. John Kane, of River Valley, was decorated with summer flowers for the occasion and the dining table and chair were aglow with pink and white streamers with numerous confetti-filled balloons.

Several sentimenal songs were sung and each guest presented her favorite recipe. A bride's scrapbook caused much merriment, after which Miss Doris Pollock, in an address, presented Marjorie with the gifts.

The guest of honor unwrapped the parcels which revealed a nice assortment of lovely china, for which she graciously thanked her friends.

The hostess served refreshments and the girls enjoyed a social half hour and wished the bride every happiness.

Does Your Favorite Restaurant Comply With These Practices?

By KAY REX
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Ottawa, Aug. 18 — (CP) When "eating out," pick a clean-looking restaurant to begin with and chances are you'll find the food will be good and carefully prepared.

Health Department experts warn that the germs which cause food poisoning, dysentery and typhoid are invisible. But their presence can usually be determined by certain danger signals given by the premises itself; the equipment and utensils used; the way the food is prepared and served; the appearance and habits of the staff.

There should be no flies buzzing about; no chipped plates or cups or greasy dishes.

The good waitress does not handle the inside of glasses nor invert a glass over a bottle thus contaminating the rim.

The customer is served with a pair of spotless hands which pick up knives and forks by their handles, lift ice with a scoop or spoon and butter with a fork.

The customer can assume his responsibility and protect his health by patronizing safe eating places and by reporting infractions of sanitary regulations to his local health authority.

A new synthetic sweetening agent (sucaryl) is being produced in Montreal and its manufacturer claims it will be of great importance in restricted and low-caloric diets such as those followed by thousands of diabetics and reducers in this country.

It is claimed the new product has the ability to sweeten foods without adding forbidden calories or carbohydrates to the diet; that with it diabetics and reducing patients now may include a variety of foods in their diets which formerly were restricted because of sugar content.

Incidentally there now is a variety of sugarless tinned fruits and vegetables on the Canadian market especially prepared for diabetics and others who must watch their sugar intake.

An invalid in the house? Egg noggs are excellent to help poor appetites along.

Ingredients: three - quarters cup milk or milk and cream; one egg; one tablespoon sugar; one-half tablespoon vanilla; salt.

Beat egg, add sugar, salt, vanilla and milk and blend thoroughly. Ingredients should be well chilled before combining.

During this hot weather pineappleade can be especially refreshing for the invalid.

Ingredients: one - quarter cup orange juice; one - quarter cup pineapple juice; one-half cup water; one tablespoon lemon juice; one tablespoon sugar.

Make a syrup of the sugar and water. Cool and add strained fruit juices. Serve with chipped ice.

MARIO ... in his distinctive feature about Food ... What's Cooking ?

Both eggplants and tomatoes were once known as "love apples". Eggplants enjoyed the additional distinction of being called "mad apples". Since this sedate, vegetable is not likely to stimulate either madness or love, it is best to forget the apples entirely and simply recognize that eggplants are so-called because of their egg shape.

Eggplants in this country have a deep purple satiny skin. In Europe eggplants are grown with a white skin.

In the summer months small eggplants, about the size of very large pears, make their appearance. Use such eggplants, if possible, in today's recipe. If small eggplants are not available in your neighborhood, use a medium size eggplant allowing about 1 pound for 4 servings.

Stuffed eggplants are made by hollowing the eggplant shell, chopping and seasoning the meat and then refilling the shell.

Stuffed Eggplant, 4 Servings

Cut 4 small eggplants in half lengthwise. Wrap in parchment paper or aluminum foil for baking. Or place in a covered baking dish with 1-4 cup water. Bake in a moderate over 30 minutes or until tender when cut side is pierced with a fork.

Remove eggplant from oven. When cool enough to handle, cut out meat of eggplant, leaving a shell about 1-4 inch thick. Chop meat fine.

Chop 4 slices of bacon into small squares. Place in a sauce pan with 1-4 cup finely chopped onion. Simmer slowly until onions turn yellow. Add 1-4 pound fresh mushrooms chopped fine. If fresh mushrooms are not available, chop the contents of a 4-ounce can of mushrooms which have been drained. Add 1 green pepper chopped fine. Cover pan with a tight lid and cook over a slow flame until all ingredients are tender, about 10 minutes. Stir frequently.

In a mixing bowl combine the chopped eggplant, 1 beaten egg and all the ingredients from the sauce pan. Mix well. Add enough sifted white bread crumbs about 1 cup to make a moist stuffing that holds its shape. If mixture is too dry, moisten with a small amount of milk; if too moist, add bread crumbs. Add salt and pepper to taste.

Fill eggplant shells with stuffing, patting into a smooth mound. Sprinkle with 2 tablespoons grated Parmesan cheese. Sprinkle lightly with paprika and salad oil. Place in a greased baking pan. Bake at 375 degrees 20-30 minutes or until brown.

How to Help a School Budget

By PRUNELLA WOOD

TWO versions of a shirtmaker campus coat for teen-agers (or anyone, anywhere, who wears teen-age sizes and needs a warm casual winter coat) are shown here. Very budget-priced indeed, the models are excellently styled and of good fabric, and are really toasty warm.

You can see the big pockets, shirt sleeves, rolled collar, big patent leather buttons; we can tell you that the fabric may be chinchilla or wool cut suede, that the coats are semi-fitted and fully

2ND THURLOW

Ninety-Five Friends, Neighbors Honor Young Couple

2nd. Thurlow — About 95 friends and neighbors gathered at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Donald Leeming on Friday night in honor of Mr. Donald Jackson and his bride (nee Donna Lloyd), who were recently married and tendered them a miscellaneous shower.

The gathering was called to order by Mr. Arnold Mitchell who, after a few brief remarks, asked the bride and bridegroom to be seated. Mrs. A. Mitchell read an appropriate address, voicing the good wishes of all for the future which was signed on behalf of the community by Messrs Laurence Dent, Donald Mitchell, and Lloyd Greatrix.

After the unwrapping of the parcels, Donna and Donald thanked all for the lovely and useful gifts. All sang "For They Are Jolly Good Fellows." The bride wore her wedding gown and was assisted by her bridesmaids, the Misses Betty Mastin and Jean Lloyd, who also wore their bridesmaid gowns

Refreshments were served and the evening spent in dancing with the McAvoy Brothers furnishing the music and calling for the square dancing.

QUICK ACTION SAVED LIVES

Prompt, cool action of these three Montreal women is credited with saving the lives of many aboard the cruiser Quebec which caught fire in the St. Lawrence river but steamed to Tadoussac, Que., where all but five persons were saved. The three women discovered smoke belching from a linen closet, turned in an alarm immediately. Left to right, Garbielle Marcoux, Mrs. Simone Sanche and Anna Senecal. — Central Press Canadian.

TRANSPLANTING

Anti-tank and personnel mines, familiar to veterans of the last war, are being liberally spread in the paths of North Koreans by U.S. forces. But here an infantryman is digging one up to allow his own forces to pass after having planted it for a red attack that never came. — Central Press Canadian.

IT SOUNDED LIKE WAR, ANYWAY

Realism was the keynote of the Operation Hippcorates in which Canadian army troops manoeuvred to "recapture" Owen Sound, Ont., from a theoretical enemy. This is a tank-led advance by attacking White troops against Red troop positions. Thunderflashes and blank rounds of ammunition were used. — Central Press Canadian.

BRAVE MEETS CHIEF

An Indian chief himself (honorary), Health Minister Martin paused to talk to one of his tribesmen during a visit to the site of Fairfield Mission, near Chatham in Southwestern Ontario. Mr. Martin, who was named Chief Nod-Mah-Gao-Ne-Ne (Man who Does Good) a year ago, was speaker at an international ceremony at the old mission. A MACE FOR HALIFAX

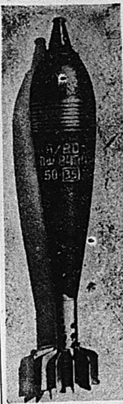
Mayor Gordon S. Kinley of Halifax, in his new fur-trimmed scarlet robes and fore-and-aft hat, receives a hand-carved, 18-pound mace from Commodore A. M. Hope, acting flag officer commanding the Atlantic coast. The presentation took place as Halifax celebrated its 201st birthday. The mace is valued at $1,000 and will be used to open and close city council meetings — in parliamentary style. — (CP Photo.)

MADE IN RUSSIA



First substantial evidence that newly-made Russian munitions are being used by the invading North Koreans is this photo of a 120-mm. mortar shell. Picked up by American soldiers in South Korea, the shell contains the Arabic numerals "50" and Russian lettering on its side which indicates the missile was made in 1950. — Central Press Canadian.

BELLEVILLE, ONTARIO, FRIDAY, AUGUST 18, 1950.

Enemy Aerial Attack Almost Anywhere in United States Would Get Bombs Through

Washington, Aug. 18 (AP)—An enemy probably could make an aerial strike at almost any place in the United States today and get some bombs down on the target.

It is not considered within the realm of possibility that the resent sparsely-spotted radar system—even though on a round-the-clock operating basis—would detect all approaching bombers or that existing fighter forces would destroy every one of them.

Competent military sources ·ubt if more than a quarter of an attacking bomber force coming over the polar regions could be knocked down before it crossed the northern border of the United States.

U. S. air force strategists hold that the most effective way to halt air attacks on the United States mainland would be destruction of the bases from which the attacks are launched and of the industrial centres supporting the attacks. It is on this theory that the retaliatory strike by long range B-36s, B-29s and B-50s are planned.

Following this same reasoning, defence officials believe that the bases for those planes, in the continental U.S. and Alaska, would be prime enemy targets, the spots for which sneak raiders would head first. Making the bases useless for launching retaliatory strikes would be of prime importance to the enemy. Any bomber they got past the radar warning system and fighter defences could be expected to streak for air bases.

Defences Not Satisfactory

Next in importance probably would be the great industrial areas and the nerve-centre of government and military direction, Washington.

When asked about defences against a surprise air attack, the air force's frank answer sums up to this:

The country's air defences today are not satisfactory. The stations comprising the warning net are composed of Second World War equipment and are located on government sites — apparently places where the government has land on which to locate them, but not necessarily the most desirable locations.

The stations are too few to give more than a limited warning to certain industrial and military areas.

The number of fighter squadrons backing up the radar system, although growing, is still inadequate. At present, it is said by one expert, they could "afford only a token defence against even a moderate force operating against the United States."

Only a Fraction Expected Damage Suits are Filed

Cleveland, O., Aug. 18. (AP)—Eleven months after the cruise ship Noronic burned at her Toronto dock, only a fraction of the expected damage suits have been filed. Estimates of the amount to be demanded run as high as $16,500,000.

Many of the claims for death, personal injury or loss of property have not reached the filing stage because of a legal battle in Federal Court here on the question of whether all claims shall be centred here. The Federal Court for Northern Ohio has ruled it has jurisdiction. Pending an appeal on that point, claimants have been given until next Jan. 2 to get their suits into court.

Late Sept. 17 the Noronic disaster took 119 lives. Fire trapped most of the victims in their staterooms. Many of the 524 passengers were on a pleasure cruise from Cleveland and Detroit.

The steamship line has filed a petition for limited liability in the Federal Court here. This would place a maximum amount in suits which the line could be forced to pay.

About 170 persons have filed suits asking nearly $6,500,000. These suits include about one-sixth of the death claims, along with other claims for personal injury and loss of property. These persons recognize the jurisdiction of the court, but they disagree that the steamship lines' liability should be limited.

Hire Five Lawyers

Another group, organized under the name "Noronic Survivors Committee," hired five lawyers, three from Cleveland and two from Detroit, to battle the lines' petition. This committee says it represents about 260 additional claims. The lawyers say they have no exact figure for the amount of damages to be asked, but that they may total nearly $10,000,000.

Potential claimants in Canada have filed no damage suits in Ontario as yet, but there is no time limit there for filing. Two suits against the company have been filed in Montreal, on behalf of the vessel's employees.

Under admiralty law of both countries involved, a steamship company's liability can be limited according to the vessel's size. Under Canadian law there is a formula for determining the vessel's legal tonnage, and this figure is multiplied by $72.95. In the case of the Noronic, the total liability would be $448,409. Under American law, the figure a ton is $60 and the size is figured a little differently, so that the total would be about $50,000 less. The steamship company has posted bond for the higher amount in Federal Court here.

If the courts should determine that the liability is limited, any damages would have to be prorated among all the claimants.

Jury Holds Youth Responsible For Passenger's Death

Grenville, Que., Aug. 19 (CP)—A coroner's court jury Thursday night found Rene Duval, 20, of Vankleek Hill, Ont., criminally responsible for the death of fellow-townsman, Rodrique Dewar, 22, who died following an automobile accident near here last Sunday.

Witnesses at the inquest told the court that Dewar was a passenger in an automobile owned and driven by Duval when it went out of control and overturned on the highway a mile east of this lower Ottawa Valley community. Dewar was thrown from the car and suffered a fatal fractured skull.

Provincial police officers testified the auto had been speeding on a dangerous curve.

Duval was taken into custody of the provincial police and was transferred to cells at nearby St. Jerome, pending trial.

Four Baptists Found Guilty Of Trespassing

Val d'Or, Que., Aug. 18 (CP)—Four Baptists, charged with a breach of municipal traffic laws, were convicted Thursday in record's court in this northwestern Quebec mining town. Sentence may be imposed today.

The four, who pleaded not guilty, are: Rev. Murray Heron, pastor of Noranda Baptist Church Ernie McWilliams, Eileen Veals and Howard Killock, all of Noranda.

Police testimony was that all four, following arrest, had been taken to the ploice station shown a by-law prohibiting street gatherings, had it explained to them and then were released. Police said they continued to hold street meetings and then were taken into custody.

Meanwhile, as Mayor Oza Tetreault returned from hospital care in Montreal, a number of "Judgment of God" telegrams were received at his home. Friends of the mayor said the telegrams threatened both the mayor and the city with the fate of Biblical cities.

In connection with the situation, Mayor Tetreault issued the following statement:

"Val d'Or is a town of 8,000 people with some 20 nationalities represented. The entire population here lives in harmony and there is no question of prejudice on account of race or religion.

"As civilized people, we have traffic regulations. Local and imported evangelizers have broken our traffic by-law and defied police under pretence of evangelizing persons who have every right to regard themselves as Christians.

"We have asked the Baptists to abide by the law and hold meetings in their own church, the same as other denominations do. . ."

Cashier Robbed By Remote Control

Hollywood, Aug. 18 — (AP)—A theatre cashier was robbed of $64 today in a "remote control" holdup.

Gloria Scheu, 19, told police she answered the boxoffice telephone to hear a man's voice:

"In a few seconds, you're going to be held up. Do as you're told, as I have a high-powered rifle with telescopic lens, and I can knock you off like a clay pigeon."

The caller's confederate came as scheduled and fled with the money.

Believe Russia Will Grab N. Korea Rather Than Allow UN Forces to Restore Peace

Washington, Aug. 18—(AP) — Many of the best-informed American officials now believe Russia will openly grab off North Korea—above the 38th parallel—rather than let a victorious United Nations force restore peace and unity to the country.

It is assumed here that the precise steps to be taken have been under negotiation between the Soviet Union and communist China. It is also assumed they will act jointly when the time comes.

United States government officials, however, give little credence to reports which have come mainly from Chinese Nationalist sources that Russian vice-premier V. M. Molotov has been in Peiping, Red Chinese capital, negotiating with Premier Mao Tse Tung and other officials on this and related problems.

See Chinese, Russians Involved

Whether Molotov has or has not been there, the belief of responsible authorities here is that the Soviets and Chinese must be deeply involved in fateful talks at this time, concerning not only Korea but Formosa and other far eastern political questions.

Increasing evidence of the build-up of U.N. power in southern Korea, it is believed, must now give the Russians and Chinese virtual proof of the determination of the U.S. and other countries associated in the Korean struggle to drive the invaders out of the south.

For the United Nations the prospect of eventual success in south Korea already raised the question, thus far unanswered, as to what U.N. forces should do when they reach the 38th Parallel. Should they then stop short on the theory that the invader has been driven out of south Korea? Or should they drive on in the belief that only by crushing the communist military power can real peace be established in Korea?

There is wide-spread belief here that the latter course is the only defensible one. This belief, however, is based on an assumption that neither Russia nor communist China will become directly engaged in the Korean conflict.

If the Russians, perhaps in collaboration with the Chinese reds, re-occupy northern Korea which the Soviets left about two years ago, the whole problem for the U.N. powers will take on a new color. They then will have to decide whether to accept Russian domination or northern Korea as a fact to live with, of whether to try to drive the red occupation forces out— which would mean fighting with Russia directly and which appears to be an unlikely course.

Two Fishermen Of Five Missing Rescued by Navy

Victoria, B.C., Aug. 18—(CP)—Two of five fishermen reported missing after a savage gale ripped the west coast Vancouver Island fishing fleet were rescued last night by the Canadian Navy tug Heatherton.

Rescued near the northern tip of Vancouver Island were Albert Hadley and Leonard Root, both of Qualicum, B.C., whose 39-foot boat was lost in the Monday night storm.

The storm took probably one life when gales reaching 60 miles an hour battered the area. James Watt of Nanaimo was believed drowned when the trawler Riptide capsized.

Word of the storm at isolated Sea Otter Cove, 10 miles from the northern tip of the island, reached here only yesterday.

It struck some 100 ships sinking two, blowing eight ashore and damaging 40 others.

One ship was discovered south of Cape Scott today by the Heatherton. It was a total loss.

Numerous vessels are searching for the missing fishermen.

U.N. Demands Any Korean Settlement Must Provide Unified, Independent Country

Lake Success, Aug. 18—(AP)—The Security Council last night heard a United States demand that any Korean settlement provide for a unified, independent country. Later the council adjourned until Tuesday.

Warren Austin, chief U.S. delegate, made his country's major policy statement at yesterday's public session. The meeting was preceded by a private session at which council members tried again in vain to break the procedural blockade imposed by their Russian president, Jakob A. Malik.

Austin said the primary U.N. objective in Korea must be cessation of hostilities. But "The Korean people expect that when their gethsemane has passed, they will all have the right to freedom and unity," he declared.

Austin's statement did not stipulate whether the U.S. thinks U.N. forces should go beyond the 38th Parrallel to conquer the north Korean invaders of south Korea It refrained also from knuckle blows at the Russian role in north Korea and contended itself with an appeal to the Soviet Union to use its influence to end the conflict.

In a brief reply Malik made new assertions that the U.S. is trying to extend the scope of the war. He charged that proposals for a unified post-war Korea were only to hide civilian deaths from U.S. bombing.

The Soviet Union, he declared, "will not use its influence in the American way, the way secretary of state Acheson uses it with (south Korean president) Syngman Rhee."

Austin's speech was the first official statement of full U.S. aims in Korea since fighting began June 25, an American delegation source said. Austin declared, in substance, that all of Korea must come under U.N. supervision as a step toward independence.

Austin did not say whether this would be accomplished by military conquest or by negotiation. But he made clear that hostilities must end in such a way "that no opportunity is provided for another attempt at invasion."

CAMPBELLFORD

Removing Meters

The Campbellford Town Council decided at a special meeting held on Monday night, to have stickers printed to place on all the parking meters in the town, stating that the meters are no longer in operation and it is not necessary to pay to park. The Mi-Co Meter Company is to be notified to remove the meters within the next 15 days, or else council will remove them and deduct the expense incurred in so doing from the "take" of the meters themselves.

The agreement between the Mi-Co Meter Company and the town expired on August 4, at which time the one year trial period was up, and the town has no legal authority to collect money from the meters, after passing the by-law to have them removed.

Many visitors to the town, especially American tourists and others, have been dropping their pennys and nickles into the meters in order to park, but with the stickers which are to be printed immediately, everyone will know the meters are not in operation.

Lands Lunge

Mr. S. E. Manning of Monongahell, Pa., together with his wife, who operated the motor, was successful in landing a 22½ pound 'lunge from the waters of Percy Reach at Percy Boom, a few miles south of Campbellford, on Monday morning.

INDEPENDENT TESTS PROVE THAT B-A 98 GASOLINE GIVES MORE POWER

Mr. Fred Ainsworth, Vice-Pres. of Ainsworth Motors in Toronto, Chevrolet-Oldsmobile Dealer, tested his own car before and after it was tuned to use B-A 98. Here is what Mr. Ainsworth discovered:

"The road horsepower (power output) of my automobile was 53 (at 2,000 R.P.M.) before being 'set up' to take full advantage of B-A 98 Gasoline.

At the completion of the tune-up, I was able to obtain 66 road horsepower (at 2,000 R.P.M.)—an increase of 24½% in power output!"

Six different cars were tested before and after. Each one showed an increase in power output of at least 15%. New B-A 98 Gasoline does give you greater power, proven by actual tests. It enables you to tune your car to greater power output than ever before. You get faster, smoother acceleration and no power-robbing knock. Drive into your neighborhood B-A dealer and fill up with new B-A 98. You can feel the difference in power and performance. On sale at the sign of the big B-A.

Duck Shooters Have Same Break As One Year Ago

Ottawa, Aug. 18 — (CP)—One hunter, one gun, is a new regulation in the voluminous set of rules laid down for those who go after game birds this fall.

There are other changes in the order-in-council issued today by the Resources Department covering the killing of migratory birds, but the average hunter will find his season and daily bag limits about the same as last year.

The orders are so complex that no generalization of them is possible, for they vary in each province, and in each meticulously-laid-out section of each province.

The wise hunter will have to check his own district regulations before being safe from the game warden.

Generally, the supply of game fowl seems to be up to last year's level at least, and the Resources Department, fixing regulations after careful consultation with the provinces and the U. S. authorities, has few new rules.

For example, the daily bag of woodcock to be taken in Prince Edward Island, Nova Scotia and New Brunswick is cut from eight to four, and from 100 to 50 for the season.

Killed Under Permit

There are new regulations covering the killing of loons in Quebec, great black-backed gulls in Saguenay County and Newfoundland, American and red-breasted mergansers in Newfoundland, the Maritime provinces, Ontario and British Columbia. These birds, a menace to fish conservation, will be killed only under permit. Heretofore they have been subject to a fairly open season.

The new regulations are effective Sept. 1, 1950. Seasonal dates are only slightly changed, largely to offset the fact that Oct. 1 falls on a Sunday.

But there are many regulations in the 38-page order-in-council. Details went out today to all provincial wild-life officials and to Fish and Game Associations so that each hunter may become familiar with the regulations.

Hunting in Boats

In Ontario, at the request of organized sportsmen and with concurrence of the provincial government, the prohibition on use of boats for hunting waterfowl in Rondeau Bay has been cancelled. Hunting there will be on the same basis as in other public hunting grounds in Ontario.

Another change affects Alberta. Last year's regulations prohibited shooting geese in the vicinity of certain waters and this list has been increased to include prohibition against the shooting of geese within 100 yards of the Smoky and Little Smoky Rivers, and the shooting of migratory game birds within a half mile of Sullivan, Beaverhill and Buffalo Lakes.

Reduction in Bag

Reduction in the woodcock bag in the Maritime provinces arises from the fact that a late snowstorm last April caused heavy losses to the flock arriving on their spring migration. The bag cut is expected to help restoration of the species to normal numbers.

The rule against multi - gun carriers is humanitarian and in the interests of conservation. Officials said the habit of carrying two or more loaded guns enabled hunters to fire a large number of shells in quick succession with the result that many birds were hit when nearly out of range, beyond possibility of retrieving. It caused unnecessary waste and suffering.

The one gun carried may not be loaded with more than three cartridges—no more than two in the magazine with one in the barrel.

Under existing regulations there has been an open season on certain migratory birds considered a menace to fisheries conservation — particularly loons, great black backed gulls and the American and red - breasted mergansers.

To put this slaughter on a more orderly basis the new regulations require permits from the Resources and Development Department and these permits will be issued in areas where the necessity arises to kill off fish-killing birds.

Four Horses Fall in Mishap On Stretch Turn

Racing for position entering the home stretch in the second heat of the slow class at the meet staged by the Belleville fair on the closing day, four horses went down in a heap, but fortunately no drivers were injured seriously. Racing equipment, including bikes, harness and rigging was badly damaged.

Mike Dolan the eventual winner of the heat and race was in the lead when mishap occurred. Lee Mainsheet was making his drive on turn with Teddy Harvester moving up fast. In some way Lee Mainsheet made a bobble and started to "roll" and Teddy Harvester coming too fast went into his bike and both horses went down. The drivers of Destroyer and Wee Willie, trailing the field did not see the mixup in time and their horses plowed into the tangle. Willing hands rushed to the assistance of the drivers and the horses were soon on their feet and not injured.

Allowed To Start Back

The judges held a consultation and allowed all of them to start back in the next heat with the standing to count for the heat raced and the one missed. Mike Dolan was easily the best in the class and made every post a winning one but Lee Mainsheet proved a winning contender. ved a worthy contender.

In the Free-For-All Stan Blewett piloted his Victory Hi to another victory during the meet, when he captured the Free-For-All pace after dropping the first heat to Peter Aubrey. Harry Inglis' horse did not have enough foot during the stretch drive to catch the chestnut gelding once he got "rolling." The meet as a whole was a successful one, but the horsemen complained about the condition of the track, claiming the footing was not at all good. It was noted that considerable work must be done on the racing strip to bring it back to its condition of former years. At one time, Belleville had the best half mile track in the province and the record for it is 2:06 1-2 held by Lastic Grattan, who was driven by Wilmer Hillock.

ONE-THIRD HARVESTING DONE

Simcoe, Ont., Aug. 18 (CP) — Growers of flue-cured tobacco are reported to be about one-third finished this year's harvest. Growers expect an average yield of 1,100 pounds per acre, slightly below the 10 year average of 1,150 pounds.

Brewers Swamp Planters Under Barrage of Runs

Six home runs, one triple and seven doubles in a 21-hit attack were more than enough to insure Brewers Warehouse a 24-6 win over Stephens-Adamson last evening in a dispirited contest at the Alemite Field.

The threatening weather provided as much excitement as the ball game. It was doubtful for a while whether either team would be able to field nine men but there were still two minutes of the fifteen minutes grace left when the first ball was pitched.

Brewers had a hard time getting started against the deceptive slowness of Bill Frain scoring only two runs in the first three innings and those runs unearned. They cut loose for four in the fourth on four hits.

Stephens Adamson struck back in the bottom of the fourth with Page clubbing a home run with Powers aboard.

John Hurrie and Leo Goyer opened the fifth for Brewers with tremendous home runs to left field. Two singles and an error produced two more tallies in the fifth and the Brewers slogged along counting twice in the sixth.

An error with two out and no one on gave the Brewers the opening they needed to score five runs in the eighth frame on three hits. Jim Barriage, Ray Nolan, and John Hurrie led off the ninth with home runs as the Brewers poured over seven runs on six hits, to make it a complete rout.

Stephens-Adamson, held to one hit, Page's home run, for six innings came up with two hits in the seventh for two runs, and finished their scoring in the ninth with three hits going for two counters.

Makeshift Lineup

Brewers used a makeshift lineup last evening and had to make it do as they had no reinforcements on the bench.

A corporal's guard was on hand to witness the Brewers batting fireworks. On the whole, the contest, if you will excuse the expression, was one of the dullest on record this season with neither team, nor any of the fans being able to muster a feeble cheer.

Rex Young went the route for Brewers walking seven, striking out eight, and giving up six hits for six runs. Bill Frain toiled on the firing line for Stephens Adamson walking two, striking out four and giving up 21 hits for twenty four runs as his mates booted the ball nine times behind him.

Kent Peterson One of Best Hurlers in Loop

(By The Associated Press)

Kent Peterson, 24-year-old lefthander with Syracuse Chiefs, is shaping up as one of the best pitchers in the International League.

He went to the Chiefs in May from the parent Cincinnati Reds, and dropped his first five decisions. But starting June 28, Peterson has been going great guns. He now has won eight of his last 10 decisions.

Peterson turned in his eighth victory last night as he pitched the Chiefs to a 4-3 victory over the league leading Rochester Red Wings in the second game of a doubleheader.

The Chiefs supported Peterson's eight-hit pitching with a 10-hit attack. Fletcher Robbe hit a double, triple and single.

Ortiz banged a two-run homer and Ed Mierkowicz one with the bases empty to account for all of Rochester's runs in the first game.

Baltimore Orioles moved back into second place by two percentage points over Montreal Royals by splitting with Toronto Maple Leafs while the Royals lost to the Jersey City Giants.

Baltimore beat the Leafs 6-4 in the opener with home runs by Butch Woyt and Ed Pellagrini the deciding factors.

Lou Possehl turned back the Orioles 6-1 on five hits in the second game.

Alex Konikowski, recently acquired from Minneapolis, pitched the Giants to a 6-0, six hit victory over the Royals. Springfield Cubs shaded Buffalo Bisons 2-1, scoring the winning run in the ninth inning.

Three Players Leave Terriers, No Reason Given

(By The Canadian Press)

As if Galt Terriers weren't having enough trouble trying to make the Intercounty Senior League playoffs!

Now three of their key players have quit on them, just when the seventh-place Terriers needed a strong closing drive to overhaul St. Thomas Legion, in sixth place.

The players — infielder Tom Lynett, catcher Babe Roberts and pitcher Jim Bagby — were all counted on heavily to aid Terriers in that drive. No reason was given for their quitting, but rumors had been prevalent lately that Bagby and club boss Gus Murray were at odds over expense money.

Despite the loss, the Terriers managed to hand Guelph Maple Leafs a 7-2 walloping Wednesday, playing with a patched-up infield that had Don Gallinger at first, and McGillis behind the bat in Robert's spot. Terriers got six runs in the second inning off George Patte, and it was all they needed.

Stars from the Galt viewpoint were Gallinger, who bagged three hits, Andy Garbas who batted in two runs on two hits, including a home run, and old Alex Martin. Martin came in to relieve Harry Sollenberger in the second after only two days rest, and he restricted Leafs to one run after that to gain credit for the win.

The result just about wrote finis to Guelph's playoff chances, while it left Galt a half-game behind St. Thomas.

Two Teams Tied

Meanwhile the league-leading Brantford Red Sox and London Majors each dropped their scheduled games to remain tied atop the ladder. Kitchener Legionnaires edged a game closer to the leader by downing Red Sox 8-5.

Wally Beggs got credit for the Kitchener win, but he was tagged hard in the 5 2-3 innings he was in there. It remained for manager Bobby Schnurr to take charge and blank the Sox batters one on hit over the rest of the route.

Shorty Miller was the big gun for the winners, connecting safely three times in four trips, while centrefielder Lockington of the Sox got three for five. Kitchener built up a five-run lead in the first two innings, and then watched it dwindle to almost nothing before they revived, ending with two counters in the sixth.

Waterloo's slumping Tigers snapped out of it with a 7-4 win over London Majors, rallying behind Al Dumouchelle's steady nine-hitter to blast Tommy White, Duane Gottschall and Ted Alexander for 13 hits. Dumouchelle whiffed 10 batters, but walked seven and was in frequent trouble.

The break came in the fourth when Tiger catcher Johnny Fornari blasted a two-run triple to snap a 4-4 deadlock. Fornari crossed the plate behind Fisher's single.

Frankford Wins First Playoff Game From Army

Picton—Frankford won the first game of the Intermediate 'C' Ontario Amateur Softball Association playoffs when they defeated Picton Army, 7-4, here Wednesday night. The second game is being played at Frankford, Friday night in a two-of-three series.

Don Boyle on the mound for the winners, let the army men down with five hits. He struck out 12 and walked 4. He was given airtight support in the field with Picton rallies being cut offby some fine catches. Ernie Smith, for the locals, was touched for 12 hits. He fanned ten and walked one. His team mates committed six errors, two of which accounted for runs.

Army took the lead in the first innings and it was tied 4-4 at the end of the fifth. Frankford added two in the fifth and one in the sixth.

Gilmour led Frankford hitters with three singles; Jackson had a triple and a single; Murphy a triple; Darke and Wickson, each two singles; Rankin and Boyle, singles. For Army, Jacklyn got two singles; Hubbard, Guy and Smyth each a single.

Three Hamilton Rinks in Finals

Toronto, Aug. 18—(CP)—Three Hamilton teams reached the semi-finals Thursday in one of two top events of doubles competition in the Ontario Provincial Lawn Bowling Tournament.

The competition, North America's largest, started Monday with 512 bowlers from Ontario, Quebec and the United States.

Going into the stretch for the Townsend-Clark Trophy, main doubles event, three Hamilton entries and one from Toronto Rusholme still were in the running.

In the second of the four doubles' events, the Parker Pen trophy, pairs from Brooklyn, N.Y.; Cleveland, O., and Beamsville, Ont., vied with an entry from Toronto Withrow Club.

Meanwhile, play reached the third round in the Birks-Ellis-Ryrie and Rennie Trophies hunt.

Finals in the doubles will be played this afternoon.

CHIPS OFF THE SPORTS BLOCK

By GEO. H. CARVER, Sports Editor

It is not enough to have to sit around twiddling their thumbs waiting for the baseball gods to speak with regard to their Belleville District League playoffs, but now some person or persons have dug deeply beneath the figurative epidermis of the Belleville Cubs by stating they are a team of worn-out veterans, or words to that extent.

All of which has raised the temperature of Coach Speedy St. Louis and some of his beardless proteges no end.

"Look at this!" he thundered this morning, flashing a slip of paper in the air. "Here is a list of the Cubs and their ages. Look it over. Does that look like the nominal role of the Chelsea pensioners, veterans of the Riel Rebellion, or even 1940 Boy Scout troops?"

Looking the list over we discovered that Lupinetle, Garry Schreider and C. Doran are staggering under the weight of seventeen years. Next in line for a pension comes Gabby Moynes who squinted at his first light of day eighteen years back, while Al. Galbraith, Peter Jones, and Dave Lockyer have a year to go before they can cast their first ballot.

Elder Neilson, has just celebrated his 21st birthday. Huck Reeves is a year older. Bobbie Bunton acknowledges the "skidoo" age, 23, while Brian Mulvihill and Cookie will answer when the call goes out for 26-year-olds. The "Rip Van Winkles" of the team include Jack Elliott, 33, "Cuffer" Noakes, who confesses to 31 years on this mortal coil and the veteran "Chuck" Barriage who owns up to two score years. And no wise cracks as to what detained him.

So there are the ages of this bevy of decrepit, emaciated diamond crocks whose ages average 24 years. That is not including the coach who admits to having been around these and other baseball and hockey parts for the past 37 years.

Seven players of junior age on any team would hardly classify it as a squad of "worn - out" veterans".

CO-OPERATION

Meanwhile the Cubs have been getting in some strenuous practice licks under Coach St. Louis. Thanks to the generosity of the Point Anne team management, they have been using the Ox Point diamond in order to keep in readiness for the all-important finals series which should be looming up soon. St. Louis expressed his appreciation of the Point Anne gesture today and added that of his team.

* * *

And this announcement came in early today. President Jack Carson of the B. and D. League informs us that Cannifton has withdrawn from the league playoffs, and the Cubs will meet Sixardee on the latter's diamond on Monday night in the first game of the finals series. The second game will probably be played here on Wednesday, if Fair Board arrangements can be made.

* * *

Should the Cubs grab the league gonfalon, it is extremely doubtful the management will send the team to the playdowns. After all railroad and bus tickets do not grow on apple trees, neither do baseballs, bats, other equipment and meals. Messrs. Grandame, St. Louis, Lockyer, Mott, Mercier, McNab and the rest of the directorate have done a man's job in trying to keep the spark of life in city baseball this year, but they are not of the Midas type, nor has assistance to any great extent been forthcoming, either through the box-office or other sources.

* * *

We are not aware of the intentions of Group Captain Greene and his No. 6 Repair Depot squad. One story has it, the team is being flown to Calgary where it will take part in a baseball tournament. That is only the story as we heard it. We have no confirmation.

FRIDAY FIREWARKS!

Fred Atkins, the hot-headed Australian grappler, is not noted for his cool-headedness at any time. At the moment, however, the agitating Atkins is more infuriated than ever. The reason is the decision in last week's mat test against Whipper Watson, when Flinty Fred had the verdict reversed on him.

When he meets Watson again this warm evening in the Memorial Arena, the ostentatious Aussie declares he'll finish off Watson so fast and so decisively that Watson won't want to be able to get in a ring with him or anybody else for a long time.

Those are strong words, but Whipper declined to comment in reply to them. All Watson did was continue his training, with particular emphasis on his Canuck Commando Unconscious hold. Could be this has dire portent for Flinty Fred.

Another highlight of the card is the semi-final, in which Rapid Ray Villmer, the human buzz-saw from St. Louis, will take on the newest mystery man, the Masked Marvel.

Plenty of action is expected of the first match, with Warren Bockwinkle tackling Jim "Goon" Henry in this event.

AT LONG LAST!

And so ends another fifty-week columnar effort. Tomorrow we are away on the annual vacation, part of which will be spent in the peaceful "wilds" of Algonquin Park as the guests of mine host, genial Elwood Moore of Killarney Lodge. Be seein' yuh — and remember, only twelve short weeks to the opening of the hockey season.

Pre-Season Flag Favorites, Red Sox, Dodgers Show New Spark of Life After Faltering

By JACK HAND
(Associated Press Sports Writer)

The pre-season pennant winners were down but not out today—6 1-2 games back with about six weeks to go.

A Red Sox-Dodger World Series is a slim possibility, but still possible.

Surging at Fenway Park, 4th place Boston has a five-game winning streak going in the American League. All were scored at the expense of the tattered Philadelphia A's, 10-6 victims last night.

Brooklyn, cooling off New York Giants yesterday in both ends of a doubleheader, 8-6 and 5-1, regained second place in the National League from Boston. But those Phillies, idle yesterday are showing no signs of slacking their pace, threaten to romp home. The Phils open a series in New York tonight while Brooklyn entertains Boston.

Home runs by Gene Hermanski, Gil Hodges and Billy Cox helped Don Newcombe struggle to his 12th victory in the opener. Still the Dodgers needed a fine relief job by Preacher Roe to hold their lead against a Giant rally in the eighth inning.

The crowd of 47,148 lured by the Giants' spurt toward the first division, watched Erv Palica take the home club with four hits in the second game. Carl Furillo ruined New York with his 14th homer, a single and fly ball to drive in three runs. Pee Wee Reese and Sam Calderone each hit inside-the-park homers. Caldrone's smash ruined Palica's shutout in the fifth.

Cincinnati shaded Chicago 2-1 in the only other National League game. Kenny Raffensberger scattered six Cub hits and Connie Ryan drove in both. Cincy scored with a homer and a single off Bob Rush.

Rain washed out the Pittsburgh-St. Louis night game.

Tigers Cling to Lead

Philadelphia and Boston were not scheduled. Detroit clung to its three-game lead over runner up Cleveland in the American chase. New York lost to Washington.

Detroit mauled Randy Gumpert for a 6-1 lead in the first three innings to coast home. The final score was 8-3.

Cleveland had to go 12 innings to whip the stubborn St. Louis Browns, 5-4. Early Wynn's pinch single following Ray Boone's triple did the trick. Reliefer Steve Gromek was the winner over Cliff Fannin.

St. Louis pulled a triple play in the second on Dale Mitchell's liner to Owen Friend with the bases full It was the second in the 19-year-history of the Cleveland Stadium, both within a week.

New York Yankees, only first division club to tumble, bowed to the Senators 2-1. After pitching no hit ball for 6 1-2 innings Allie Reynolds finally bowed to Sid Hudson. In addition, the Yanks lost the services of outfielder Hank Bauer, hit on the head by a throw from catcher Al Evans, trying to pick him off third.

Boston ruined the debut of rookie Joe Murray, a southpaw just moved up from West Palm Beach of the Florida-International League. Murray gave up six hits, struck out one, walked four and heaved a run-scoring wild pitch before he gave way to Carl Scheib in the third.

Galt Terriers Staging Strong Bid for Playoffs

(By The Canadian Press)

Galt's fighting Terriers are staging a courageous bid to make the Intercounty Senior Baseball League playoffs.

The Terriers, shorthanded by the loss of three key players two days ago, battled into sixth place Thursday, a whisker ahead of St. Thomas Legionnaires.

Terriers handed Waterloo Tigers and Joe Yosurak a 7-5 defeat in a game that had Galt Nans on the edge of their seats until the last out. Galt trailed 5-3 going into the seventh, but plated four runs in that inning and blanked the Tigers the rest of the way.

Waterloo threatened in the first of the ninth, but Galt's third pitcher, Bill Klim, came in and forced Manny McIntyre to ground out with two on and two out. Harry Sollenberger and Bill Leader preceded Klim to the mound. Offensive star was Billy Metral who banged out three hits, while Andy Garbas performed enough defensive miracles at short to satisfy a dozen players.

St. Thomas, previous holders of that key sixth-place slot, dropped a tight one to Brantford Red Sox 9-7. Each team used three pitchers in a wild, free-slugging game that featured home runs by shortstop Randall of Legion and Tommy McGrattan of the Sox.

Randall was the game's top slugger, pounding out a triple in addition to his circuit clout, and batting in four runs. Pedro Juarez had a triple for Brantford.

Brantford won the game in the sixth inning when they came from behind a 7-6 deficit to score three runs. Tom Quest, third Redleg pitcher, was the winner, while Walt Wilson got nailed with the loss.

Five home runs featured London Majors' 12-6 win over Stratford Nats. Russ Evon hit two of them, with Tim Burgess, Billy Flick and Irish MaKimmons adding single homers.

Majors outhit the Nats 11-9. but they required some good relief pitching to put out a late Stratford rally. George Edwards, who gave up two runs and five hits in the seven innings he pitched, was the winner. Billy Russ was the loser.

Cleveland Pins Pennant Hopes On Luke Easter

Cleveland, Aug. 18 — (AP) — Before the baseball season opened, the Cleveland Indians pinned their pennant hopes on "luscious" Luke Easter. And those hopes still are pinned on large Luke today.

Both manager Lou Boudreau and general manager Hank Greenberg agree that the Tribe's failure to overhaul front-running Detroit is because "our hitting is off."

"We need one more long-ball hitter," says Greenberg. "One player getting hot for four or five weeks could do it — that is, one player other than Doby or Rosen, who have been carrying the load."

Larry Doby has hit 10 of his 19 home runs in the last month, and Al Rosen has rapped out seven round-trippers to bring his total to 32.

Veterans Joe Gordon, Dale Mitchell and Boudreau have been off their hitting. So the finger points to Easter's slugging potential as the key. Currently Luke is in a slump, although he showed signs last night of snapping out of it. He had three hits and drove in three runs.

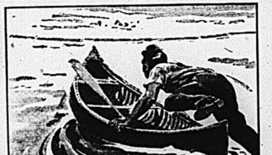
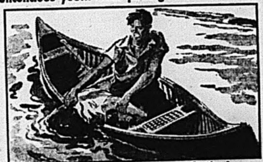
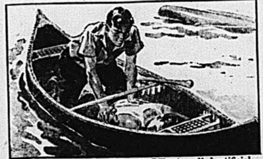
CANOE EXPERT PERFORMS UNIQUE AND DARING RESCUE
Paul Gilbert, of Shawinigan Falls, Que., Revives unconcious youth after pulling him into canoe.



1. It was about 8.30 one evening a few weeks ago. Three young men were out in the St. Maurice River in their canoe when suddenly it overturned—hurling the three of them into the water. Two managed to start swimming for shore, but 16-year-old Jean-Marc Thibodeau sank beneath the surface. Within seconds, Paul Gilbert had jumped into his canoe and headed out.



2. Paddling furiously, Gilbert crossed a floating boom and reached the scene of the accident just as Thibodeau was going down — probably for the last time! With great skill he managed to drag the unconscious victim's body over the gunwale and into the canoe. Quickly, and with amazing coolness, he stretched the body out on the bottom.



3. Then, right in that frail craft, Gilbert applied artificial respiration until, ten or fifteen minutes later, the young man regained consciousness. Thibodeau is the tenth person Paul Gilbert has saved from drowning! His gallant feats of bravery are in keeping with the highest traditions of good citizenship. We are proud to pay him tribute through the presentation of THE DOW AWARD.

Ezzard Charles Will be Underdog Against Bomber

New York, Aug. 18 — (AP) — Ezzard Charles, the N.B.A.-recognized heavyweight king, will be the underdog Sept. 27 when he meets Joe Louis at Yankee Stadium. First odds offered were 3 to 1 that the Brown Bomber, now 36, would recapture the title he surrendered 18 months ago.

Charles, 29, never has made a hit with the public. He was too cautious the night he beat Jersey Joe Walcott to win recognition. He was dull and unimpressive Tuesday night at Buffalo when he stopped Freddie Beshore of Harrisburg, Pa., in the 14th.

Nobody knows if Louis still can fight. Walcott almost whipped him in their first meeting. Many still think Jersey Joe won. But the Bomber knocked him out the second time around. He hasn't had a real fight since that second Walcott bout June 25, 1948.

In line with their drawing power, Louis will get 35 per cent and Charles 20 per cent. Their managers agreed to that yesterday in phone conversations with International Boxing Club officials.

Eddie Eagan, chairman of the New York State Athletic Commission, said the winner would be recognized as world champ in New York. Charles, champion in 47 states, never has been crowned in New York.

Charles, resting in Cincinnati, will start training in a week. His camp will be in the vicinity of New York. Louis, bringing himself along slowly at West Baden, Ind., is due to move into his old Pompton Lakes, N.J., camp Aug. 30th.

Louis to Meet Ezzard Charles In New York

By The Canadian Press

Everything is set for the heavyweight title bout between Ezzard Charles and Joe Louis at Yankee Stadium Sept. 27.

James D. Norris, president of the International Boxing Club announced in New York that Louis, the challenger, will receive 35 per cent of the net receipts, while Charles, the champion, will get only 20 per cent.

Louis, who has been in preliminary training at West Baden, Ind., will move to Pompton Lakes, N. J. at the end of this month for the serious phase of his workouts.

Donald Campbell, who hopes to regain the world water speed record for Britain, had a close call during a trial run yesterday.

Campbell said the cooling system of his boat broke down as he was entering the measured mile at well over 140 miles an hour. The 2,400-horsepower engine would have seized up, probably causing a crash, if his 50-year-old chief mechanic, Leo Villa, hadn't noticed it and brought it to his attention in time. As it was, the engine was ruined.

Patrick F. (Paddy) O'Connor, 71, old-time major league baseball catcher who helped launch Lou Gehrig on his career, died yesterday in hospital at Springfield, Mass.

Good Time, from the stable of William H. Cane of Goshen, N.Y., set a world record for pacers over the mile and one-half on a half-mile track last night in winning the $25,000 Yonkers Derby.

The time of 3:08 flat bettered the mark of 3:09 set by Jimmy Creed at Roosevelt raceway, Westbury, N.Y., in 1944.

Johnny Mitchell, 48, business manager of Pittsburgh Hornets, signed a two-year contract Thursday as coach and general manager of St. Louis Flyers of the American Hockey League. He will succeed Ebbie Goodfellow, who resigned to take a job as a coach with Chicago Black Hawks.

The world speed skating championships for men will be held at Davos, Switzerland Feb. 10-11, the International Skating Union announced Thursday.

World figure skating championships for men, women and couples will be held at Milan Feb. 23-25, while European speed skating championships are scheduled for Oslo Jan. 27-28 and the European figure skating in Zurich Feb. 2-4.

Bermuda's touring cricket team ran into stiff competition yesterday before downing St. Catharines all-stars 144-122.

The visitors started poorly and lost two wickets for only five runs. A strong stand by W. Simmins with 21 and captain Hunt sent them into a good lead. Crowley with 38, led the St. Catharines batsmen.

The amazing progress of 44-year-old Harry Hopman of Australia, and Chicago veteran Seymour Greenberg, who joined forces only four days ago, in the United States doubles tennis tournament continued in high-gear Thursday at Brookline, Mass., when they gained the semi-final round.

Those oldsters, who hit their peaks more than a decade ago, battled almost three hours under a blistering sun to subdue Mervyn Rose, 20, and George Worthington, 21, of Australia, in a highly exciting quarter-finals engagements, by 7-9, 15-13, 2-6, 6-3, 6-4 margins.

Briefs From Training Camps

(By The Canadian Press)

Let a word to the wise Western football fan be sufficient—watch out for Montreal Alouettes.

Lew Hayman, coach of the Grey Cup champions, said Thursday he figured his club will "figure well" in its two exhibitions tilts this weekend against Calgary Stampeders and Edmonton Eskimos.

Lew had good reason for his statement. The Larks signed two U.S. imports to plug what Hayman considered the team's only weak spot, the line. The players are Len Canavan, who played with Ottawa Rough Riders last year, and Nick Scollard, formerly with New York and Boston in the All-American Conference.

But Edmonton fans were by no means gloomy. Good news, in the form of quarterback Lindy Berry, will be in the Esk lineup when they face the Als.

Berry, a former Texas Christian race, has recovered from an injury. That was all coach Annis Stukus was waiting for. Said Stuke:

"We may not have as many spectacular players as the other teams in the West, but you know how we'll win? With depth, that's how. We'll just wear the opposition out."

Calgary's hopes were bolstered too this week. Line coach Rattler Matheson, a conference all-star last year, arrived in camp, complete with his uncanny ability to spot plays. Matheson was for many years a top pro player in the U.S.

With little Normie Kwong and Royal Copeland wheeling freely around Keith Spaith's expert quarterbacking, sideliners can figure only one possible weakness in the Calgary lineup. They say Stamps could still use a battering ram—a Paul Rowe or a Rod Pantages—to pick up yards through centre.

Toronto Argos will also give a public performance Saturday — an intra-squad game for a young hockey player who lost the use of his legs in a recent accident.

Coach Frank Clair has been most impressed in recent workouts by the running of U.S. import halfback Ulysses Curtis. Clair smiled as Curtis sprinted 80 yards for a workout touchdown and said "there's a man who's touchdown-happy."

In Winnipeg the Blue Bombers play an inter-squad game tonight. So far, they've been attracting anywhere from 1,500 to 2,000 fans to practice sessions.

Injuries are plaguing Regina Rough Riders. Centre Len Ortman is still wearing a cast on his right leg, guard Wayne Pyne is suffering minor injuries and lineman Ken Weir is out with a broken arm. Cutting the squad, coach Fred Grant released George Giokas, halfback with the club last year.

Joey Maxim of Cleveland, world's light-heavyweight champion, will referee at an amateur fight card in Hamilton Wednesday. The main bout will match Gordon Wallace of Brantford, Canadian amateur middleweight champion with Rufus King of Windsor.

Sports Roundup

By GAYLE TALBOT
(For Hugh Fullerton, Jr.)

New York, Aug. 18 (AP) — Now that the furious Phillies are starting to run off and hide from the rest of the National League, what club are they going to meet in the World Series?

The hunch here still is Cleveland, as it was 'way back last spring when Lou Boudreau, relaxing in the clubhouse at Tucson Ariz., said his athletes had their feet back on the ground and the swelling removed from their heads and were ready to play baseball again.

He explained that his Indians still were the "solid" club in the American League, and that was before he knew that Luke Eastern was going to be his first baseman and that Flip Rosen was going to bid for rookie-of-the-year laurels at third.

So there is no reason to weaken on the Tribe now, even if they are finding it difficult to carve those last few games off Detroit's lead. Mostly they are veteran stars, especially their pitchers, while the Tigers' line-up is sprinkled with youngsters who have not gone through the crucible of a hot pennant drive.

What Again?

That could well prove the pay-off when the two clubs meet in the final two games Sept. 30 and Oct. 1st in Detroit. With what has been happening the last few years, it is only sensible to assume that the flag still will be up for grabs at that stage.

Most of the Indians went through such a dogfight two seasons ago when they were forced to lick Boston Red Sox in a play-off game. Such experience can be a help in the clutch, other talents being approximately equal.

Of the current Tigers, only the veteran pitchers Hal Newhouser and Dizzy Trout were around when the club won the '45 series from Chicago Cubs. Another hurler, Virgil Trucks, was in the '45 playoffs, but he has been out practically all year with an ailing arm.

Wild of Rochester Best-Looking Hurler in Loop

(By The Associated Press)

St. Louis Carinals have a fine-looking pitching prospect in 23-year-old Ken Wild, now toiling for Rochester in the International League.

The young righthander, a home-town product signed by the Cards following his graduation from St. Louis University, is the ranking pitcher in the loop.

Beaten only once in 11 decisions, Wild racked up his 10th triumph last night as this league-leading Red Wing mates clubbed three Syracuse hurlers for an easy 14-3 victory. He gave up only seven hits.

Outfielder Russ Derry, former Yankee and Cardinal player, clouted his 27th homer and a single to bat in five runs. His homer came with the bases loaded, his third this season.

Montreal Royals moved into second place by whipping Jersey City 8-3. Joe Landrum spaced eight hits for his third in a row since his was sent down by Brooklyn. Don Thompson paced the Royals' 16-hit attack with five hits in as many times.

Bill Voiselle pitched Springfield Cubs to a 7-3 triumph over Buffalo Bisons.

Bobby Rhawn's 10th-inning single drove in the two runs that gave Toronto an 8-6 victory over Baltimore. Paul Stuffel was credited with the victory.

Handicapper Picks Entire Card At Del Mar Track

Bel Mar, Calif., Aug. 18 (AP) —Paul Lowry, handicapper for the Los Angeles Times and The Associated Press, has achieved the dream of all handicappers. He picked eight straight winners on the eight-race card at the Del Mar track yesterday.

Only once before since racing was legalized in 1933 has a handicapper swept the program. Lowry had, in order, Short Thorn at $3.70. Madam Fury at $6.60, Your Came at $6.30, Competino at $7.40, Cubette at $6.80, King Rhymer at $3.80, Hidden Moon at $4.20 and Montanes at $8.50.

A parley on these, discounting the odds change, would have netted $3,033.

"After switching to B.F.G's, I've driven 29,450 miles without a flat. These tires are still in very good condition."
D. M. McDonald, Calgary, Alta.

* A nation-wide survey of the tire customers of B.F. Goodrich dealers from coast to coast shows — that 3 out of every 5 B.F. Goodrich tire buyers switched from some other brand.

Why did they switch?

Salesmen can tell you why they switched. They wanted to get trouble-free motoring . . . wanted to make their calls on time . . . to cover routes on schedule, in safety, and at low cost per mile.

Mileage, safety, comfort, economy — aren't these what you want, too? You can have them! You can get the superior performance made possible by B.F. Goodrich manufacturing and engineering skill. You can enjoy the benefits of B.F.G. research—cooler-running, longer-lasting rubber compounds, improved tread and body design and the advanced tire building methods. When you switch to B.F.G., they are all yours!

There's a friendly B.F.G. tire dealer near you. He's one of the B.F. Goodrich family of 5,000 trained tire specialists and service experts. He'll help keep your tires in first class condition, the year 'round!

Ask him to show you the new B.F.G. Silvertowns and the famous Seal-o-matic safety tubes that seal punctures instantly . . . permanently, as you ride! See him today!

Gloria Swanson Amazed By Renaissance of her Career, Life in Hollywood Too Easy

By BOB THOMAS

Hollywood, Aug. 18 (AP)—"I am sick and tired of me."

I thought I had heard everything from the mouths of movie stars, but this was something new. The speaker was Gloria Swanson. She had just returned from touring the United States, and talking 14 hours a day, mostly about herself.

She had holed up in her mountaintop home and was virtually incommunicado. But she consented to see me, particularly since I promised not to make her talk about Gloria Swanson. Not much, anyway.

"The living is wonderful here," she began. "That's the trouble; it's too good. This is not the right place for the movie industry.

"That may sound like treason, but I've always believed it. I think it was a shame when the entire movie industry moved to California.

"The trouble with Hollywood is that everybody eats, breathes and talks movies here. You can get no different viewpoints. The living is easy and people get lazy and their creative powers suffer because of it.

"If I were a producer, I would insist that the creative workers, particularly the writers, had to spend at least six months out of every two years away from Hollywood.

The glamorous grandma is still amazed by the renaissance of her career. I remarked that it closely paralleled that of Bill (Hopalong) Boyd, who was a silent star of the same vintage.

It's Wonderful

"Isn't it wonderful about Bill?" she said. "I went up to his house not long ago and we had a nice, long chat. We were both amazed."

What about the future for La Swanson? First of all, she'll take a rest at Malibu Lodge in British Columbia. Then she'll return to consider the many scripts she has been reading.

"What can I do after 'Sunset Blvd'—retire to a monastery and quit, as some have suggested? No, I've got to keep working. And the best thing I can see is to get as much of a chance as possible. Who knows—I might do a musical western.

"I can see it now: "Hopalong Swanson sings again'."

HORSE SENSE BRIDGE

By SAM GORDON
The Kibitzer

Bridge is a game based on rules. It goes without saying that many exceptions exist. Skilled players are familiar with both. My beef against experts is their methods of teaching these things.

Read any book of theirs and you will see what I am driving at. Their rules and exceptions tumble all over themselves. They seem to settle on no marked dividing line between the two.

My contention is that rules alone should first be learned. On these basics will depend your sound partnership game. Not only with beginners but also with the most experienced players.

With rules definitely established, the exceptions may be added gradually. By then the exceptions will fit into place understandingly. Their purpose and need will stand out where they belong.

Take the lead against a no-trump contract. The only objection is: Don't lead a suit bid by opponents. Rule also says: The order of choice is tops, longies, shorts.

Knowing this, there could be an exception when a long suit lead is preferred to a top card lead. As when it is advisable to set up your long suit in a hurry and your top lead suit would take too long.

South is in three no-trump when you hold this west hand:

♥6 4
♦A Q 7 4 3
♣J 10 9 6

Rule says your first choice is the top of a sequence. So, the lead of your jack would seem to take preference. But it may take a long time for you to establish a club trick.

On the other hand, if you get four tricks in diamonds it may defeat the contract. So, lead first the diamond four. If partner can take a trick of any kind, a return diamond is all you need.

This may misinform your partner as to your club holding. So what? The important thing is to defeat the contract.

Rules of utility by-pass futility.

COMING MONDAY TO THE DRIVE-IN THEATRE

"Not Wanted" starring Sally Forrest and Keefe Brasselle.

"The picture with new faces."

That's how Ida Lupino describes "Not Wanted," the semi-documentary drama dealing with the plight of unwed mothers in the American scene which she produced for release by film Classics.

Because of the documentary flavor of the story, Miss Lupino and her associate, Anson Bond, decided to cast newcomers for their leads.

"Stars of Tomorrow"

Out of an intensive search for talent ermerged Sally Forrest, Leo Penn and Keefe Brasselle whom the producers of "Not Wanted" are confident will be "stars of tomorrow."

For three years an extra and a dancer in musical pictures, Miss Forrest portrays her first featured assignment as the typical small town girl whose unrequited love leads to a born out of wedlock baby.

Penn is cast as an itenerant musician who weaves a romantic spell over the girl. Penn's acting background includes "Undercover Man" with Glenn Ford and Nina Foch. On stage, he has won critical and public acclaim for his performances in 'Home of the Brave.' 'Abe Lincoln In Illinois" and other productions with the Hollywood Actors Laboratory Theatre.

Magazine Discovery

Brasselle, the third principal in the moving emotional drama came to Miss Lupino's attention as the result of the Movieland Magazine which informed Hollywood producers in its pages that they were missing a bet in unrecognition of talents.

Brasselle, who appeared opposite Gloria Jean in "River Gang," was selling trucks and cars when he signed for "Not Wanted," having given up all thoughts of acting career due a siege of remarkably bad luck. Mark Hellinger was about to cast him in "Knock On Any Door" but on the eve of this opportunity the producer died. Eagle-Lion set him for Louis Bromfield's "Kenny" and the picture ulitmately was shelved, leaving Brasselle without a chance to step in front of the camera.

Producer Lupino is enthusiastic over the potentialities of her three players.

"Here's our answer to the public demand for new talent," Miss Lupino said. "These young people had loads of ability to start with. We're making it possible for them to show it."

R.H.A. is Anxious To Get Horses

London, Aug. 18 — (Reuters) — The Royal Horse Artillery wants horsemen.

The king's troop of the R.H.A., which fired the salute Tuesday in honor of Princess Elizabeth's new daughter, appealed today for recruits who can handle horses.

The troop commander, Maj. F. W. C. Weldon, said he had written to trainers at racing stables "and other similar establishments" telling of the need for horsemen

He said he had promised the trainers that if any jockeys offered themselves, he would see they kept their weight down while they were in uniform.

One Man Killed As Storm Rakes Toronto Area

Toronto, Aug. 18 — (CP) —One man was killed by lightning on Thursday as torrential rain and hail raked the Toronto-Oshawa area in one of the worst storms in years.

Ernest McLean, 39, was struck by lightning as he looked for a lost ball at the West-End Lambton Golf Club. He was a nephew of J. S. McLean, president of Canada Packers Ltd.

Main force of the storm's fury appeared concentrated on Toronto where stalled cars, flooded streets and damaged houses bore evidence of its severity. Many areas of the city were without light at the heights of the storm.

Officials at the Dominion Weather Office reported from 1 1-2 to three inches of rain fell in one hour and twenty minutes. Hailstones a half-inch in diameter fell for about ten minutes.

Hamilton's streets, unswept since some 1,000 civic employees struck a week ago, were flushed clean by the rain and hail. No damage was reported in the city itself.

More than 2,000 night shift workers were called off their jobs at the General Motors automobile plant in Oshawa when rain swept into pits housing conveyor motors. Lights were out for about 20 minutes at the General Hospital as surgeons were completing an operation.

Temperatures Fall Sharply

The storm resulted from a cold mass of air moving down from the north, the weather office said.

Temperatures, hot during the day, fell sharply as the rain struck.

Fire department officials in Toronto said the flooding was the worst they had seen. Most of the department's equipment was put to work pumping flooded cellars and fighting fires started by the lightning.

Water was past the six-foot mark in some subways, and street car and motor traffic was halted.

The city's sewage disposal plant failed at one point, and all repair crews were called from other jobs to repair the damage. Service was resumed within an hour.

Many small yachts were caught on Lake Ontario in the storm and had to be towed to shore by police launches.

Little Benny's Note Book

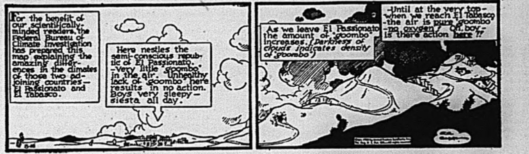
Sam Cross was away at his cousin's house for a week for a private vacation, and today us fellows saw him sitting on his frunt steps, proving he was back again, and Puds Simkins said, Hay, let's make hom jelliss by telling him about the exciting things he missed by not being here last week, before he gets a chance to tell us a buntch of lies amout what didn't happen where he was.

Sam being te most famous liar around and we all went over and Shorty Judge said, Hay, Sam, you missed it last week. Rite the day after you left, there was a fire in a garage up on the Avenue, and they had to rescue the cars out of it, he said, and I said, And Reddy Merfy had a fite with some tuff kid that came around and got fresh, and oh boy it was some fite. Reddy was pritty near sorry he started it, I said.

Yeh, and that's not all, Glasses Hagee said. We gave Sid Hunt a suddin serprise party just on generel principals because nobody's had a serprise party for so long. and we sure had fun ,he said, and Sam Cross said, Well talk about people missing things, wait till I tell you what happened at my cousin's house. Berglers broke in and stole everything out of the dining room, even the table and chairs, and we had to eat on the floor sitting on cushions, like Japanese. And another da ythe boiler exploded and my cousin and I used the basement for a swimming pool till the plummers came. And another day a runaway bull came galloping down the street charging everybody with its horns, and my cousin and I lassoed it with clothes lines before it killed anybody, and we may get a meddle for bravery for it, he said.

The result being we all laffed and yelled ot prove we didn't beelve him, releeving our feelings but not seeming to hert Sam's.

LI'L ABNER — By Al Capp



For the benefit of our scientifically-minded readers, the Federal Bureau of Climate Investigation has prepared this map explaining the amazing differences in the climates of those two adjoining countries — El Passionato and El Tabasco.
Here nestles the semi-conscious republic of El Passionato. -Very little "goombo" in the air. Unhealthy lack of "goombo" here results in no action. Boys very sleepy - siesta all day.
8-18
As we leave El Passionato the amount of "goombo" increases. (Darkness of clouds indicates density of "goombo")
-Until at the very top - when we reach El Tabasco - the air is pure "goombo" - no oxygen! Oh, boy - is there action here !!

Mr. E. Black, of Ottawa; Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Thompson, of Noranda, P.Q. called on Miss Eliza Bell on Tuesday evening.

Mrs. Bertha Juby, of Smith Falls, is spending a few days at her home here.

Mrs. Herb Housten spent Thursday afternoon with Mr. and Mrs. Horace Wright, in Belleville.

Miss Gale Juby spent three weeks' vacation with friends at the Rideau Lakes.

Mr. Albert McDonald is seriously ill at his home.

Friends of Mrs. Currie English are sorry to hear she is not so well. She is a patient in Belleville Hospital.

Mrs. Gerald Sager and two sons have returned from a two months' vacation with relatives in England.

Mrs. Arthur Kilburn spent Tuesday with her mother in Toronto.

FRANKFORD

Siege of Derry

Frankford—Last Saturday the 260th anniversary of the Siege of Derry was celebrated in the village of Frankford with the 25th R.B.P. Preceptory, and the 5th Crystal Chapter led by Stirling brass band. Lodges in attendance were from Blackstock in the west, to Ottawa in the east. Chairman was Sir Kt. George Prown M.P.

The address of welcome was given by Reeve George Spencer. Grand Master C. Palmer; Past Grand Master, A. Houlden; Reverend Hodgson; Past Grand Master, William Goodfellow, M.P.P., Minister of Welfare; Elmer Sandercock, M.P.P. of South Hastings; Sir Knight R. C. Darling and assistant Deputy Grand Master, were in attendance.

Prizes were given to Kingston, Ontario, Crystal Ladies Chapter, Trenton, Ontario R.B.P., the largest Preceptory was Havelock, Ontario, and the Pipe band, the best band. Frankford was presented with the Union Jack for the Tourist Park by R.B.P.C. 31, Frankford.

The ladies of the Frankford Orange Lodge catered to the visiting lodges with a banquet in the Community Hall. A dance followed later in the evening. This marked the biggest parade of the Royal Black Knights ever known in Ontario East.

The Salvation Army band from Peterborough, Ontario, were guests at the Frankford United Church last Sunday morning. The church service commenced with Major Everett at the organ with several band selections being played before the service. Reverend R. McEachern welcomed the band to which Major Everett responded, and opened the service with this thought, "May we worship the Lord in the beauty of holiness."

Major Flannegan of Toronto, read the scriptures, followed by a band selection under the leadership of bandmaster Routley. Testimonies were given by two young men, bandsmen Bill Scott and Ron Butcher. A message in song, "I Love to Tell the Story," was sung by ten bandsmen and a story for the children was given by Major Everett, entitled "Flying Kites."

The offering was presented to the Legion.

The Message

The message, given by Major Flannegan, of Toronto, was "Triangle of Christian Service." "I am not ashamed of the Gospel of Christ" is the base of the triangle. "I am a debtor." We need a sense of obligation to present the gospel. When men do not read the Bible they read our lives. "I am ready to preach the gospel to those around me. I am prepared to serve God. Are you? are the three points of the triangle.

Following the church service, the bandsmen separated to different homes for their dinner. A vote of thanks to these families is extended.

Memorial Service

In the afternoon, a parade to Frankford Memorial Park was led by the Frankford Salvation Army band flag bearers, different Legions, the Ladies' Auxiliary, the Boy Scouts, and the Salvation Army band. The civic welcome was given by Reeve George N. Spencer. The opening hymn, "O God Our Help in Ages Past", was followed by scripture reading taken from Isaiah and Revelation, read by Reverend R. E. McEachern. Major Flannegan of the Salvation Army led in prayer.

The address, "And this day shall be to you a Memorial," was given by Major Everett of the Salvation Army. "Wherever this gospel is preached this shall be to you a memorial." Today is a day of challenge, commented the speaker. Jesus said: "He that would follow Me, let him take up his cross and follow Me." We are to become good soldiers of Jesus Christ, equipped with the sword of the spirit and the shield of faith.

Colonel Roscoe Vanderwater voiced a few remarks in honor of the ex-service men.

The Last Post was given, followed by two minutes silence, and the Reveille hymn "Abide With Me," was sung and the placing of the wreaths was as follows: The Legion, by Mr. Harold Gage and Mr. Doug Ketcheson; The Women's Auxiliary, by Mrs. Charlie Harvey. Mr. Sid Wilson placed a wreath in memory of his son. Prayer was given by Reverend W. Campbell, of Frankford.

The March Past followed with the "Salute" taken by Colonel Vanderwater.

A vote of thanks to the families for the entertaining of the band at dinner was given. A band concert was enjoyed followed by refreshments, served by the Legion's Women's Auxiliary, in the Memorial Hall.

Those who furnished flowers for the cenotaph were, Mr. Jim Ford, Mrs. William Simmons, Mrs. Dick Acton, Mrs. D. Vandervoort, Mrs. H. Caldwell, Mrs. A. B. Loney and Mr. and Mrs. Hugh Badgley. A vote of thanks was extended to Mr. Arthur Southworth who spent much time and energy to make it a day to be remembered.

The Gentle Heart

By Kay Hamilton

"We're going to get the license tomorrow and be married on Monday before she leaves," Faith said. "A really quiet ceremony, but I do want you girls there if you can come. I'm not asking anyone else, and Max has a friend in Bridgeport who will serve as best man. Jenny, Jenny, pinch me! I can't believe it's true!"

The sky had lowered all day and the wind had been piercing sharp, but Jenny had made up her mind to do her Christmas shopping in New York on this particular Wednesday, and so she had gone in to town anyhow. Now, at the end of a strenuous day, she walked homeward with weary feet but a sense of accomplishment. It had not been easy this year to decide what to get everyone, and her list had been the result of deep thought.

Some of the things were to be sent but she carried the smaller packages and now going up the walk, she realized how tired she was. It was a good thing there was some pot roast left. She could warm it up with tomato sauce. Noodles and buttered crumbs would be good with that she could open a can of peas. She hoped Natalie had set the table.

But when she came indoors, the house struck her as being unusually empty and silent. Come to think of it, there had not even been a light showing from the studio. Where was everyone. Only Ghillie came running to meet her.

She laid down her bundles hung up her coat and called out, "Nat! I'm home!" There was no answer.

The table was set for three and there was a note on the kitchen sink. 'Have gone to Westport with Brent. Back by seven. Don't bother with anything much for dinner. We'll have had tea."

Jenny put down the note with a puzzled frown. Why had they had to go to Westport so suddenly? There had been no mention of it when she left this morning. And why would they be home so late? The shops would be closed so they couldn't have gone to buy anything. The unhappy feeling in the back of her brain, which was there so often lately, stirred to new life.

Westport. They had friends there older people who had known their parents, but if Natalie had gone to visit one of them, why wouldn't she have said so.

She fed Ghillie, gave him fresh water then went unstairs to shower and change. There was plenty of time if they were not coming home until seven. She put on a soft blue wool dress, the color of her eyes. The house seemed a little chilly. or was it the threat of snow in the air?

She looked from her bedroom across to the lighted windows of Faith's house. Faith and Max were back from their brief honeymoon so happy in their new life together that it was a joy to watch them. Jenny thought, perhaps Faith knows where Natalie and Brent have gone. But she hesitated to ask her.

They came in a little before seven, bright-eyed and laughing. Jenny seeing them with a new perspective as she came into the hall to greet them, was struck with what a handsome couple they made. She said, "Where have you two been? To see the Hemingways You didn't say Nat."

"No," Natalie smiled, "I didn't say. And it wasn't the Hemingways. It was just a matter of business, Jen. Nothing important."

But her vivacious manner belied her words. The excitement in her shinning eyes the vivd color in her cheeks, the look of secret meaning which she flashed at Brent, said clearly that the trip had been important. Important to her and Brent.

Neither one of them was hungry. They pecked at the hot meal with a poor imitation of appetite and Jenny, too tried and depressed to eat, followed suit. For the first time in many months she begrudged the effort which had gone into preparation of the meal.

"What kind of day did you have Jen?" Bent asked her.

"Good enough," she answered without enthusiasm. "I got Dick a basketball. I had no idea they cost so much, either. And Elsa says Pete will put up a basket for him in the back yard, but of course he won't be able to use it until spring."

"He'll be keen about that. From the way he's shot up this fall he'll be able to play centre in a couple of years."

"Yes, hasn't he grown, though? Elsa says she hardly dares buy him more than one thing at a time, because it's too small in a couple of weeks."

"What else did you get Jenny?" Natalie inquired.

"Oh some odds and ends. A purse flacon for Di and some monogrammed hankerchiefs for Fred. What I got you and Brent is a deep dark secret, and I'm warning you—no peeking in my bedroom closet from now on! I got Ghillie a plaid coat to wear in the really cold weather. Probably he'll scorn it, being a scottie of the old school," she added humorously. "And for Mrs. Folsom, I found a. . . ."

At that moment Ghillie who had slipped from the room a moment before uttered a loud painful shriek and at the same instant the doorbell rang.

Brent jumped to his feet. "Who on earth?"

They heard him fling open the door heard Ghillie yelp again and Brent's surprised, "Well speaking of angels! Come in, Mrs. Folsom!"

By the time Ghillie's piercing barks of welcome had died down and they had all been greeted appropriately. Mrs. Folsom's face wore a flush of excitment "It certainly is nice to have a homecoming like this. I'm glad I came directly here instead of to my house. Ghillie, you can stop now. That may be the vociferation of pleasure, but it sounds more like a dog who's been run over by a truck. Down, sir!"

"Have you had dinner?" Jenny asked.

"Well, no I haven't I couldn't wait to get back to Green Ridge, so I took the first train out. But don't bother to get anything, my dear. I'll open a can when I go home. It just does my heart good to look at all of you, and to know that I can rest awhile. I made up my mind to come home for Christmas. Maybe longer, if the lawyer I've engaged turns out to be any good, because it was simply too depressing to stay there in my sister's home, sorting and dismantling. Besides, I need to get my perspective back again. It's a dreadful thing to pry into another person's life so intimately, even if they have passed on."

Mrs. Folsom sank back in her chair and closed her eyes for a moment. The flush was dying down now, and she looked very tired and old Jenny said. "It will take me only a little while to heat things up again."

Mrs. Folsom revived by the pot roast and noodles, told them some of her experiences in the Indiana town where her sister had lived. "The people are so kind and helpful, and, of course after all these years of separation some of them knew a great deal more about her and her affairs than I did. But I did miss my friends here. It wasn't the same thing after all, and if I can arrange to have the lawyer take care of things from here on I'm going to do it. After all, I have enough to live on, and it's worth the money to be relieved of such a painful duty. Now tell me what you children have been up to?"

For a while Brent and Natalie talked to her. The old lady sat with one hand deep in Ghillie's shaggy coat and listened with a smile. But every so often her eyes wandered to where Jenny sat, silent and composed. And at last she said, "What about you Jenny? I can see that you've taken good care of Ghillie, and your house looks spick and span, as usual. You haven't lost your knack for cooking either. But what about yourself?"

Jenny glanced up startled. Yes what about herself? What had happened to her since Mrs. Folsom was called away by her sister's death? She thought back for a moment, and one fact loomed large in her consciousness: She had discovered how much she loved Brent.

It was hardly the sort of thing she could state publicly and she said now, "I'm just the same person I was before, I suppose."

But Mrs. Folsom said with surprising decision, "No, you're not You've grown older—a great deal older. I noticed it right away when I came in. It's becoming my dear, but don't let it go any further now. Stay young as long as you can. I've always said your heart is too kind for your own good. You must learn to be selfish once in a while."

Jenny laughed. "That's heresay."

'No it's not. For you, at any rate Well, Ghillie, I shall leave you here for the night but tomorrow you'll be home again. Will you like that?"

Brent escorted her home and helped to open the house. Then he came back to the Mayhews briefly. "She's settled for the night," he told them. "Now I'll be running along, 'Night, Jen!"

But Jenny saw him move his head a fraction of an inch in a beckoning gesture saw Natalie follow him into the hall for a low-toned conversation. She stacked the dishes wearily. What could they have to talk about so secretly after their afternoon excursion? And then it struck her suddenly. Christmas! Hadn't she spent the day Christmas shopping? Why shouldn't they have? The thought petered out as she remembered the lateness of their return. No, she had already decided that the stores had been closed. But they might have been planning some other sort of surprise. She put this thought in the front of her mind, and clung to it.

Dick came to see her the following afternoon, while she was doing the ironing. This was one household chore which Jenny actually disliked and she was delighted to have the interruption.

His first words were, "Where's Ghillie?" and he stared about the kitchen with an air of injury.

"Mrs. Folsom came home last night unexpectedly," Jenny told him.

"Golly! You mean he's gone for good?"

"Yes, of course. But I think Mrs. Folsom might be glad to have you walk him. She finds it pretty strenuous at times, and besides, she knows what friends you and Ghillie have become."

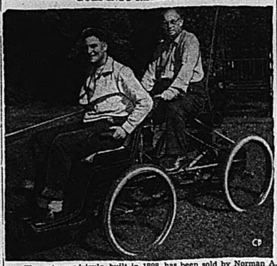
GOES INTO RETIREMENT



The auto-quadricyle, built in 1898, has been sold by Norman A. Thompson of Windsor, Ont., to a Chicago museum. The one-cylinder engine of this early automobile is still in running order but in recent years, the vehicle has been used only in street parades. In its heyday it could hit 15 miles an hour — enough to blow a man's handlebar moustache back and to frighten every horse on the street. Mr. Thompson is in the driver's seat while a neighbor rides in the passenger carrier. — (CP Photo.)

SURPRISE LANDING MADE IN RED TERRITORY

Govt. Appoints Dr. W. Mackintosh Strike Mediator

Vice-Principal of Queen's Ready to Meet Disputants

Montreal, Aug. 19—(CP)— A government-appointed mediator, fighting against time, today is scheduled to meet management and labor in an effort to avert an ever-nearing, country-wide railway strike, set for Aug. 22.

Appointment of the mediator—Dr. W. A. Mackintosh of Queen's University, Kingston, Ont. — was the latest development in a day that saw discussions between unions and companies once more drag to a stop here.

Involved in the rail-wage dispute are 124,000 non-operating employees, comprising 15 international unions with 90,000 members and two Canadian brotherhoods with 34,000 members.

The vice-principal of Queen's set his first meeting for 10 a.m. today.

Major developments in yesterday's broken off talks was renewal by the railways of a "final" compromise offer they had withdrawn Aug. 10 after the unions rejected it. The international unions offered the railways leeway up to the start of next year for putting into effect a demanded 40-hour week with unreduced take-home pay, main stumbling block to conciliation.

Prepare For Tie-up

Meanwhile, preparations for the strike, set for 6 a.m. local time, continued on both sides.

The railways already had embargoes in effect against accepting shipments of livestock and perishable goods. They also announced an embargo on all freight shipments to go into effect at midnight, local time, Monday night.

A Canadian Pacific Railway spokesman said their hotels will operate in the event of a strike and will make no substantial lay-off of employees.

Earlier this year, the Canadian Privy Council ruled that C.P.R. hotels were under provincial jurisdiction. Consequently they are not a part of the current wage-hours dispute between the railways and the unions.

The government's decision to send a mediator came late in the week's third day of Cabinet sessions on the rail crisis.

Cabinet on Alert

There were no indications of further government moves in the event Dr. Mackintosh's efforts should not be successful but it was expected the Cabinet would be kept ready for quick meetings as developments warranted.

Here is the picture that brought about the stalemate:

The Unions demand a five-day, 40-hour week, effective Jan. 1, 1951, with maintenance of take-home pay on a 48-hour week basis, plus wage increases of 10 cents and seven cents an hour —seven cents for the international unions:

The railways "final offer" consisted roughly of a moral obligation to institute the 40-hour week when conditions warranted; and, either a 44-hour week with the same take-home pay, or the present 48-hour week with an 8 1-2-week when conditions warranted; cent hourly increase.

Communist Party Chief of Belgium Shot in Home

Liege, Belgium, Aug. 19—(AP) —Two mysterious gunmen were being hunted today as the killers of Julien Lahaut, Belgian communist party chief and veteran member of parliament, who was shot down in his home last night.

The 66-year-old red leader riddled by four bullets as he stood in the doorway of his home here. His wife was standing behind him.

Lahaut's assassination came one week after he was reported to have shouted "vive la republique" in a defiant gesture during the swearing in of crown Prince Baudouin, as King Leopold's successor, at a joint session of parliament in Brussels.

Bitterly anti-monarchist, Lahaut represented in the chamber of deputies a constituency in industrial Liege, one of the storm centres against Leopold's return from exile.

Communist followers said it was too early to know the reason for Lahaut's murder. It carried the potential seeds, however, of further repercussions within Belgium, brought recently to the verge of civil war by the reappearance in the country of the determined monarch.

Lay-Off Order Has Been Revoked

Toronto, Aug. 19 — (CP) — Possibility of a strike at the Royal York Hotel, Canada's biggest, was averted Friday with cancellation of an order laying off 400 of the 1,200 hotel employees.

The lay-off order effective Aug. 23, was issued by the hotel yesterday because of an expected drop in business in the event of a railway strike scheduled for Aug. 22. The Royal York is owned by the Canadian Pacific Railway.

Emanuel Schofield, spokesman for the Hotel, Restaurant and Bartenders Union (A.F.L. - T.L.C.), to which the 400 belong, said Thursday night the hotel's other 800 employees would be called out on strike in retaliation.

Mr. Schofield and John Johnson, Royal York manager, issued a statement saying the lay-off order has been revoked.

FIRES LEGAL VOLLEY

Los Angeles, Aug — (AP) — Bobby Riggs former United States tennis champion, has fired a return legal volley against his wife, Kay. Riggs filed a cross-complaint for divorce yesterday, alleging cruelty Her suit last month made the same charge against him. They were married in 1939.

Hong Kong Uneasy Over Position In Relation to Communist China

Hong Kong, Aug. 19 (Reuters) —Hong Kong is uneasy about its military strength in relation to communist China.

Some quarters emphasize that while the colony's garrison has been reduced in recent months, communist military strength has been reduced in rercent months, communist military strength in south China has increased enormously.

They believe Peiping's attitude to Hong Kong, never cordial, has become even less friendly as the result of recent actions by the Hong Kong and United Kingdom governments.

Hong Kong has drawn the wrath of communist China by closing Chinese schools suspected of teaching communist doctrines, by deporting alleged political undesirables and by restricting, for economic reasons, the entry of Chinese into the colony.

Now Hong Kong, at the behest of the United Kingdom government, has banned the export of oil to communist China to reserve supplies for Royal Naval use in Korean waters.

The importance of the oil ban lies in the fact that it strikes at the very foundation upon which the colony bases her immunity from communist China.

BURGLAR SUSPECT TO BE QUESTIONED ABOUT KILLING

Toronto Police Believe Man Canadian Bandit

Los Angeles, Aug. 19. (AP)—Frank T. Miller, burglary suspect recaptured recently after a bed-sheet escape from a 13th-floor hospital ward, is wanted in Toronto for questioning in the killing of a bystander at a robbery.

Toronto authorities telephoned Los Angeles police yesterday that they have reason to believe Miller is actually Stanley Buckoski, Canadian bandit.

Miller, or Buckoski, now is lodged in the Los Angeles County jail on five counts of burglary, two counts of robbery and one of escape.

Toronto police said Buckoski is wanted for the murder of a school teacher, Albert Layng, on July 30, 1949. Layng, with his wife and small daughter, was walking past a Toronto store when Buckoski emerged from within. Layng, then 25, was killed when he grappled with the bandit.

Los Angeles Police Lieut. L. T. Hale, who discussed the case with Toronto's detective bureau chief, said he was informed that the Federal Bureau of Investigation gave Toronto police their first tip that Miller and Buckoski are one and the same.

Miller is being held under $27,500 bail. He recently escaped from the general hospital prison ward by fastening nine bed sheets together and shinnying down to the ground. He later was recaptured after a gun battle.

Lieut. Tony Ruez, who questioned Miller last night, said he admitted he had once been in Toronto, but refused further comment.

The slaying of the 25-year-old Layng when he grappled with a fleeing bandit outside Loblaw's groceteria on Toronto's east-central Parliament Street touched off a hunt that started with a chase through backyards and alleyways in the surrounding section of the city and, during the next few days, embraced the entire city and district. A $3,500 reward was offered.

Bystanders' descriptions of the bandit helped police in dressing a store dummy in clothes similar to those said worn by the slayer. Police displayed the dummy in a downtown store window for several weeks in the hope that someone might recognize the suspect from his dress.

Traffic Across Cornwall Bridge Hits New High

Cornwall, Aug. 19 — (CP) — Traffic across the Roosevelt International Bridge hit a new high in May, June and July this year, M. A. Seguin, general manager of the bridge, reported Friday.

In the three-month period, 66,664 automobiles crossed the bridge compared with 62,156 in the same period last year. The passenger total, however, was slightly lower at 219,254 persons compared with 219,911 in the same period last year.

Canadian cars crossing the bridge totalled 34,103 against 31,671 in the same period last year, while American cars totalled 32,561 against 30,485.

Gen. Bedell Smith Given Post Chief of Central Intelligence

Washington, Aug. 19—(AP)—Walter Bedell Smith, the American general who spent three years watching the Russians from the United States Embassy in Moscow, is going to be the new chief of the Central Intelligence Agency.

The priority job of that agency is to learn what the Soviets are up to now.

Announcement was made last night that Smith, United States Ambassador to Russia from February, 1946, to March, 1949, would become director of the political-military intelligence unit in September. Smith succeeds Rear Admira Roscoe H. Hillenkoetter.

Ross Goes With Navy

Charles Ross, White House secretary, took pains to declare the change does not reflect any presidential dissatisfaction with Hillenkoetter's work as C.I.A. director. He said the admiral had requested months ago to be relieved so he could take sea duty with the navy.

Ross' statement obviously was directed at offsetting speculation the change in C.I.A. command was linked to the North Korean communist invasion of South Korea.

Some congressmen, aroused by what they regarded as failure of United States intelligence to warn of the attack, had demanded a shake-up in the agency headed by Hillenkoetter. The admiral has denied C.I.A. was caught napping.

Smith, 54, was chief of staff for Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower at Allied Supreme Headquarters in the Second War.

While serving as U.S. ambassador in Moscow he got to know Stalin. He came away with a feeling that top Russians think war with the U.S. is inevitable.

Essentially, the C.I.A. is a coordinating agency. It fits together the bits and pieces of information filtering to it through its own sources, from other government intelligence outfits, including the F.B.I. and from non-governmental organizations.

Out of that mosaic is supposed to come an over-all and constantly-revised picture of that current political and military trends in foreign countries which indicate peaceful or warlike intentions.

Dig Tunnel To Rescue Boy Wedged in Shaft

Fairmont, Minn., Aug. 19 — (AP) — Jimmie Zarling, 3, fell into a 10-foot well shaft yesterday and became tightly wedged in the tapering hole.

A dozen men dug frantically for two hours to rescue the lad, trapped with his hands over his head and his nose pressed against the wall of his prison. Oxygen was pumped down to him.

The shaft was about a foot across at the top and narrowed to only a few inches at the bottom.

The rescuers dug a second hole nearby, 15 feet across and about 9 1-2 feet deep. When they reached that depth, they tunneled across to Jimmie. He was sent to hospital for a checkup.

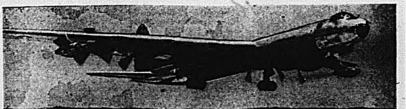
Warrant Issued For Man's Arrest

Windsor, Aug. 18—(CP) — A warrant has been issued for the arrest of Frank Perry, convicted bootlegger who was released from reformatory before his sentence was completed, police said today. Perry served only 40 days of a 120-day sentence for keeping liquor for sale.

An investigation was launched by the attorney-general's department in Toronto after Perry was seen on a Windsor street recently.

The investigation showed that Perry was released from reformatory through a clerical error which showed that Perry had been in custody during an appeal against the April 24 conviction. In fact, he was free on bail until June 27. The appeal failed and he was sent to reformatory at Mimico, where he was released Aug. 6.

FIRST FLIGHT OF JET-POWERED B-36 BOMBER



Here is the first take-off view of the B-36D bomber, equipped with four J-47 jet engines in addition to six 3,500 horsepower piston engines. Theselatest models of the long-range bomber are now coming off the assembly line at Fort Worth, Texas. Mounted in pairs in a "pod" beneath the bomber's outer wing panels, the four jet units provide additional power for take-off, improve the rate of climb, raise the service ceiling and increase the speed to over 435 miles an hour. They are believed to be the most powerful bombers in the world. — Central Press Canadian.

STORM-BATTERED SHIP WALLOWS WAY TO COAST

Freighter First Beset By Fire, Then Tempest

Miami, Fla., Aug. 19 (AP) — A hurricane-battered freighter, forward hold still smouldering from a fire at sea, wallowed through 40-foot waves toward Wilmington, N.C., today. Two Coast Guard cutters were escorting it to safety.

The 7,247 ton Russell R. Jones, first buffeted by 70-mile an hour winds from the fringe of a giant hurricane and then beset by fire, churned toward the mainland at a scant five knots. All crew members were safe: there were no injuries.

The United States Navy ship Kleinsmith was first to reach the burning freighter after a dramatic full speed mercy run through seas still mountainous in the aftermath of the hurricane.

It reported the stricken freighter's lifeboats were knocked awry by the waves but the Russell Jones showed no major damage from the beating it took.

140-Miles an Hour Rate

The hurricane which had created havoc aboard the freighter, bound for Los Angeles from Norfolk, Va., still had lost none of its 140-mile-an-hour punch but posed no immediate threat to the mainland.

At 5.30 a.m. EDT today, the hurricane was about 400 miles east of Jacksonville, Fla.

The Miami Weather Bureau reported at that time that the big blow had turned to a north north east course during the night and picked up in its forward speed to about 14 miles an hour.

A continued northeasterly course with acceleration in its forward speed was forecast.

This predicted course would take the giant twister along a path that woud offer no threat to any and area.

ArgentineConsul's Wife Says He Beat Her Seven Times

Los Angeles, Aug. 19. (AP)—"He hits me once; he hits me two, six, seven times!" complained the young wife of the Argentine consul here. "My love for him—poof—is no more!"

And with that, Maria Pagliere 24, instructed her lawyers to draw up a separate maintenance suit against Saul Luis Pagliere, 40.

Her decision followed a neighborhood incident yesterday which police said was most undiplomatic. Mrs. Pagliere told officers her husband beat her and then told her to "get back to Buenos Aires any way she felt like." She fled to the home of neighbors with 22-month-old Alicia and Eduardo, 10 months.

"It is sad," Consul Pagliere told investigators. "My wife, she is upset. She should go home to see a psychiatrist. As for me—my life is broke."

THE WEATHER

Toronto, Aug. 19 (CP)—Synopsis: Rain fell again in most of the lower lakes district last night. The rain changed to occasional drizzle in southwestern counties this morning, and will end in the remainder of Southern Ontario by late afternoon, as a small disturbance passes eastward just south of Lakes Erie and Ontario.

Showers in Northwestern Ontario, caused by a disturbance north of Lake Superior, will move through the remainder of Northern Ontario today, and spread into the lower lakes district tonight or early Sunday.

Cooler air will follow the showers. Skies will clear in Northern Ontario tonight and in Southern Ontario by Sunday afternoon.

The Atlantic tropical storm is now less than 300 miles south of Cape Hatteras, but appears to be recurving northeastward.

Tokchok Island Near Seoul May Be Used by Planes

Communists Fall Back In Two Danger Spots

Tokyo, Aug. 19 (AP)—A surprise Allied landing deep in red territory was announced today as north Korean communists retreated on two fronts—beaten back from the most serious threats to United Nations forces.

At some points the reds avoided contact entirely with American and south Korean troops. At others their resistance was described as light or moderate.

The reds fell back before United Nations assaults on the road north from Taegu and in the Changnyong sector to the southwest. Both were danger spots earlier in the week.

Shelled by Cruisers

The surprise landing was the first Allied action of its kind in the war. It was made by south Korean troops Friday on Tokchok Island after a brief shelling by British cruisers and destroyers. The island is 35 miles southwest or Inchon, port of Seoul on the Yellow Sea.

Full significance of the landing was not explained by the spokesman at Gen. MacArthur's headquarters who announced it.

A navy spokesman said Tokchok may have been a red centre for waterborne communications.

The MacArthur spokesman also disclosed that south Korean guerrillas—or possibly regular army units—may be operating behind communist lines.

"I think the enemy's back areas are not too quiet," he remarked.

He said he lacked details on both this and the island landing.

MacArthur's communique said the amphibious force took Chinni village on Tokchok without incident. There was no hint of the size of the landing force.

Great Strategic Valve

Tokchock Island could have great value to the allies as a marine observation port.

Possibly, it might be used as a forward air base.

As allied air strikes have made land travel more hazardous and dangerous for the North Korean reds, they have turned increasingly to the sea. The reds have made repeated attempts to slip material and men down the west coast in junks and small craft. Tokchok would be a natural stopping point for such traffic which must hide in the daytime from allied sea and air patrols. This would be true of small craft coming either from Inchon, 35 miles to the northeast, or from farther up the coast.

Gen. Douglas MacArthur's headquarters made no suggestion that the allies might establish an air base there—behind red lines. But topographical maps show considerable level ground on the island, possibly making it suitable for forward air strips.

Only Emergency Measures in Case Of Railway Strike

Montreal, Aug. 19 — (CP) — A railway spokesman, in a statement issued Friday night, indicated what an impending rail strike by 124,000 non-operating railwaymen would mean, by outlining arrangements reached with unions involved for protection of railway property should the stoppage occur as scheduled Aug. 22.

"The term 'essential services' has been used and is very misleading for full railway operation is essential to the needs of the country," the spokesman said. "In the event of a strike, only emergency measures can be considered."

These emergency measures would call for the operation of trains only in case of fires in forest areas, or for use in the rare possibility that some train or trains might be involved in accidents close to the time of the strike deadline, he said.

Otherwise, agreements between management and strikers would provide watchman service or patrol operations to protect railway property against fire, pilferage or sabotage. In many cases, small towns depended on railway water supplies for fire protection and domestic uses.

Some railway bridges, swing or draw, are also used for vehicular or pedestrian traffic. Those would be manned. Where railway facilities provide electric power or steam for hotels, municipalities or outside industries, service would be maintained.

Passengers stopped at any terminal at 6 a.m., local time, the strike hour, would find station employees ready to help them detrain up to 10 a.m.

Otherwise, the spokesman said, all normal rail, telegraph and express services would be completely discontinued as of 6 a.m. Tuesday.

BIG PAYOFF

Freehold, N.J., Aug. 19 (AP) — Mary Lou O'Connor is the first girl winner in the history of the Freehold Trotting Raceway.

Those who backed the Warwick Downs, R.I., Miss and Spencer's Betty in the Allentown Special yesterday were rewarded with a mutuel payoff of $105, $29.40, and $13.

PRAISED FOR HONESTY

Darenth, Kent, England (CP) — Ruth Poole, 15, smashed a police station lamp with a ball, but instead of running away she reported the accident to a policeman. The authorities were so pleased they sent the girl's parents a letter of congratulation.

Correspondent's Life in Korea No Fun But It's Tougher For Doughboys

By HAL BOYLE

Somewhere in Korea, Aug. 19 —(AP) — It is night and you are miles behind your own line.

You may have gone up to the front and been scared during the day, but that was earlier. You have come home to a shower to wash away the road dust that feels an inch deep on your skin.

You have got back in time to eat a meal. Or you may be forced to try to digest something out of a can you have stuffed under a bunk.

But bad as the food may taste or persistent as the mosquitoes are buzzing around to dagger you, you are among the fortunate ones of the Korean war. You at least generally sleep free from danger.

This is the greatest advantage a correspondent has over any one group of soldiers. They had to stay and take it — and he comes up for a visit and then gets the hell out of there.

The disadvantage of the reporter covering a war is that he

DR. JAMES SEMPLE ACCEPTS CALL TO NORTH BAY

Dr. James Semple, former pastor of Bridge Street United Church in this city, has accepted a call to Trinity United Church, North Bay. For the past six years Dr. Semple has been in charge at George Street United Church in Peterborough. He has also served in Palmerston and Smiths Falls, and has been president of the Clergy School. He is to preside at the School of Evangelism in Whitby College September 7th and 8th.

SHORT CIRCUITS IN TWO VEHICLES

Short circuits in two motor vehicles, one at the fair grounds, and the other a car on Ann Street, resulted in two brief runs for the fire department Thursday. Both blazes were put out before much damage resulted.

Brush in the thicket at the end of Victoria Avenue, in the Parkwood Heights district got afire yesterday afternoon, with firemen being called on to extinguish the blaze. No damage resulted.

DUMP ON FIRE FOR SEVERAL HOURS

Firemen were called to the city garbage dump yesterday afternoon being called to spend several hours before the blaze was finally extinguished. Several hundred feet of hose was run in order to bring sufficient water to put out the fire.

MINOR SCRATCHES SUSTAINED IN CRASH

Minor scratches were sustained by occupants of two cars involved in a collision near the R.C.A.F. station early this morning. They were taken to the air station hospital for check-up but were later permitted to go home.

An eastbound car driven by David Walt of Trenton with Mrs. Walt as passenger was in collision with a west-bound car driven by Howard Tasker of this city. Tasker was accompanied by his sister, Miss Evelyn Tasker. Both cars were damaged on the left front, where they came together.

IN DEMAND AS SOLDIER

Hagerstown, Md., Aug. 19. (AP) —Robert Vidoni, 20, has just received a letter indicating there's a great demand for his services.

The letter is from a cousin in Italy who says Vidoni has been ordered to report for duty with the Italian army.

When he was six months old Vidoni was brought to the United States by his immigrant parents.

A few days ago his Hagerstown draft board notified him he has been classified 1A—U.S. style.

Composing Room Staff Member Given Purse

George Cole, member of the composing room staff of the Ontario Intelligencer, who has joined the Canadian Army Special Service Force was the recipient of a substantial purse of money today on the eve of his departure for Calgary, where he joins the Princess Patricia's Canadian Light Infantry.

Members of the composing room staff through its foreman, Charles Hardwick presented the purse with their best wishes for a safe return.

George was taken completely by surprise but recovered sufficiently to voice his appreciation.

He was also presented with another memento from the staff of the newspaper.

Service Station Operator Averts Attempted Holdup

Presence of mind and more than a bit of daring on the part of J. A. Osterhout, Shell Oil service station operator, Rossmore, averted what was an attempted holdup shortly after eleven o'clock Friday night.

Osterhour was just checking his cash in preparation for closing for the night when two men walked into the service station office, one carrying a nickel-plated revolver. "We'll take that money," one of the men said.

Prior to this Osterhout had paid no attention to the two men, thinking they were acquaintances playing a joke replied, "Oh no, I'm not giving away any money tonight."

Then glancing up and seeing the revolver he bent over behind the counter and picking up the waste paper box, threw it at the men as he ducked under the counter. The men then ran out of the office and jumped into their car and disappeared, apparently toward Belleville.

Osterhout was unable to give a good description of the two men who entered his office, nor of a third man, who remained in the car. The car the men were driving was believed to be a 1941 green Pontiac club coupe.

Investigation by provincial police officers at Belleville revealed that two Picton couples had seen three strange men changing their clothes at Tobe's a short time prior to the time of the attempted holdup, while a Picton service station attendant said the men were seen to have been acting suspiciously in Picton on Friday afternoon.

Fused Coin Passed, One Half Cent, Other Half Dime

A ten-cent piece, which could change its color and value while passing from one hand to another had a certain man in the city a bit confused today until he discovered that someone had played somebody a trick.

At least he decided it must have been a trick because he could not see anyone going to so much work merely to turn eleven cents into twenty cents.

The coin in question was one which appeared as a dime on one side and a common cent on the other. A dime and a copper had been split through the centre, the two thin halves then being fused together to appear as one coin.

"It must have been somebody's idea of a joke," he said, "because I cannot see anyone going to all that work just to make nine cents."

Obituary

MRS. AGNES THOMPSON (Springbrook)

Stirling— Following an illness of one week's duration, Mrs. Agnes Thompson died at her home in Springbrook early this Saturday morning. She was born in England, 82 years ago, being the daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Richard Bates and came to Canada sixty-nine years ago. With her husband, Walter William Thompson, she resided in Western Canada for some years, later moving to Stirling, where she has resided for the past 20 years. Ten months ago the late Mrs. Thompson moved to Springbrook.

While a resident of Stirling she was a faithful member of St. John's Anglican Church and took an active interest in church work when health permitted. She is survived by her husband.

The funeral announcement is made elsewhere in this edition.

LATE HARRY B. DAY

Funeral services were held on Friday, for Harry Bolton Day, for 70 years a resident of Belleville, who died at Belleville General Hospital late Wednesday afternoon. He was 80 years old.

Services were conducted by Archdeacon Arthur Smith, and interment was in Belleville cemetery. Bearers were four sons, Walter, James, Horace (Bud) and Ronald, and two sons-in-law, John Sweet and John Bunnett. As a tribute to Mr. Day's long service in the community there were many floral offerings.

LATE MRS. FREEMAN SINE

Rawdon—A number of Rawdon folk attended the funeral of Mrs. Freeman Sine at the home of her niece, Mrs. Everett Eaton on Tuesday afternoon, August 15th. Rev. Boyd Beckel of the Ivanhoe circuit conducted the service. She was a valued member of Salem United Church.

The bearers were all old neighbors from the sixth concession of Rawdon: Messrs. William Donald, Murney Johnson, James Johnson, Murray Roy, Orval Jackson and Frank McGee. Interment was made in the family plot in Sine cemetery, 6th concession Sidney beside her late husband who predeceased her 13 years ago.

Mrs. Sine was in her 86th year and was formerly Miss Abbie Jane Sine, a daughter of the late Tobias Sine and Ruth McMurray.

Just a few weeks ago she visited at the homes of her nephews and nieces in Rawdon. Deceased was another of Rawdon's pioneers.

Heavy Market Despite Rain In Early Hours

Despite an early discouraging downpour a heavy market was registered this morning. Vendors were out in full force in the early wetness and by ten o'clock their efforts had been justified, as the rain held off.

Prices, for the most part, remained on a par with last Saturday. The last of the raspberries made their appearance at 40c and 45c and were quickly snapped up by eager buyers. Blueberries stayed at the $2.25 level they have maintained for weeks.

In the vegetable line, tomatoes were 50c for a six-quart basket, carrots, beets and onions stayed at 10c per bunch, three for 25c.

Corn, depending on size and quality of ears, moved between 25c and 40c; it had its heaviest offering to date.

Radishes and green peppers were five cents, cabbage was 10c to 25c, beans were 10c a berry box or 40c per basket, eggplant was 25c, vegetable marrow 10c. Cucumbers were varying from three for 5c ,to three for a dime. Cauliflower, in large heads, was going for 25c to 35c.

Better quantities of apples were offered this morning. Astrakans, out in full force, were selling for 15c per berry box, or two boxes for 25c; they were also offered at 45c per half peck, 85c per peck, or 60c for a six-quart basket. Duchess were priced at 50c per basket, yellow transparents at 40c.

Grade A large eggs were 55c per dozen, with medium prices two cents lower.

INVITED TO LONDON

London, Ont., Aug. 19 (CP) — An invitation to hold the 1951 Convention of the Canadian Association of Mayors and Municipalities here will be presented to this year's convention opening this weekend in Saskatoon. The invitation will be carried by Mayor George Wenige, Ald. A. M. Towe and City Clerk R. H. Cooper.

Y.P.U. Council Given Example Of How Money Donated is Used

Delegates to the annual National Council of the Young People's Union of the United Church in Canada visited Quin-Mo-Lac Camp as part of their six-day program Thursday night. There they were given concrete examples of what is being done with money donated to the missionary program of the church by Rev. Fredricko Missita, native of Angola, Africa.

Mr. Missita, who spoke in his native Ubundu tongue, which was interpreted by Rev. T. Tucker, a United Church missionary at present on furlough in Canada, was educated and trained in missionary schools in Angola, and now serves a charge there. He told of his life in Africa and of the hardships faced by missionaries in that country.

Dr. A. B. B. Moore, principal of Victoria College Toronto, also spoke at the lake gathering, and used the theme of the Council "Alternative to Futility" as a basis for his talk The true church Dr. Moore told the delegates, no matter what its denomination, is a society which has been called into existence by Jesus Christ in the calling of men to receive forgiveness and to enter on the ways of life which He would have people take.

Four Characteristics

The church, Dr. Moore continued, had four characteristics, inevitable, historical, world-wide and fellowship with eternal destiny.

Third speaker of the evening, Dr. Kenneth Beaton, secretary of missionary education for the United Church, said that Christianity as a faith could only be kept alive by missionary education The power of Christ will and must prevail for the freedom of bondage from sin, Dr. Beaton said.

More than 175 delegates from all across Canada are attending the six-day session.

Inspiring Messages Concerning Work of Young People in United Church Given by Two Speakers

In a banquet which celebrated the 25th anniversary of the union of the United Church of Canada, delegates from coast to coast Friday night heard two inspiring messages from two men who have been concerned with the work of young people within the church ever since union. The two were Dr. Manson Doyle, of Hamilton, and Dr. T. W. Jones, of Montreal.

The banquet was held in the dining hall of Albert College, where the National Council is today entering its fifth day of discussion and program. The Council meets every four years.

Dr. Doyle, described as the "daddy and granddaddy" of Y. P. U. work in Canada", reviewed the steps and the difficulties leading to union of the Methodist, Presbyterian and Congregational churches in 1925. There were three facets of the union, Dr. Doyle pointed out. First was that it provided unique fellowship, not only on a horizontal plane, man with man but, in a vertical plane with God.

Made for Fellowship

"God made us for His fellowship", Dr. Doyle said, "and we must live for it." The second was the environment that the church provided for the people and thus the environment the adults provided for their children. "Environment dominates heredity", he said.

Third on the list was that Christians are out to satisfy their existing appetites," but also by God's grace, to create appetites in young people they would never have known if they had not come in contact with a Young People's Society. That was what had happened in the past 25 years," Dr. Doyle said, "and it must be continued on by the young people of the United Church."

The second speaker of the evening, Dr. T. W. Jones, told the delegates that the young people of today must "take their hats off to the past and their coats off to the future. "Only in that way" he said, "can the Christian faith live."

"What a miracle has been brought about", Dr. Jones said. "Only 25 years ago it was regarded as a miracle that these three great religious bodies should come together."

Men Risk Lives

On the question of religious faith, Dr. Jones said that men have risked their lives since the time of Christ until this very day rather than give up their faith. That heritage of Christian liberty, which is a part of every Christian man today, must go on in the same spirit.

Two original planners of union 25 years ago, the speaker added, had the conviction that they might render more effective service to Jesus Christ by uniting. Their motive was to gain larger opportunities and greater truths by moving forward. "They did not believe they were following their own guidance, but the guidance of the Lord", he said.

"The men of union," he continued, "moved forward into unity with passion and devotion. From Newfoundland to British Columbia the three elements are side by side in the United Church. From the Presbyterians was gained order and dignity of government; the passion of evangelism came from the Methodists; and freedom and right of truth sprung from the Congregational side."

Regard Selves as Trustees

"We should regard ourselves as trustees of this great heritage that has come to us", the speaker urged. In asking that each delegate take something home from the National Council other than the resolutions that were passed, Dr. Jones said: "I trust that there will be a fire burning in each one of your hearts. See to it that the evangelistic fire is kept burning in the heart of this church."

"Go back not merely with mind aglow, but carry back that deeper devotion to Christ the King", Dr. Jones told the group. "The only way to build a better Christian nation", he said, "was to build better Christians, and that must be done by passionate evangelism."

"There are voices from outside the church bidding for the young people of this nation," Dr. Jones said. "That is one of the greatest of the challenges facing us. God pity us if we lose the spirit of evangelism."

Dr. Doyle was introduced by Harold Taylor, and Dr. Jones by Vern Hoover. Immediately after the banquet, retiring president Dr. Graham Hudson was presented with a gavel to remind him of the four years he spent as head of the group. Sing-songs made a break between the dinner and the speakers.

STILL SEEK MISSING BOY

Hamilton, Aug. 18. (CP)—Police said today they are still searching for 11-year-old Jimmy Gautreau who has been missing from his home since July 26.

His mother, Mrs. Jean Gautreau, said that the boy left then to work on a farm on the outskirts of the city and has not returned home. Since that time, he has been seen on a number of occasions at different points in the city.

Donald Reid New President Y.P.U. Council

Coincident with the election of a new executive for the National Council of the Young People's Union of the United Church in Canada, currently being held at Albert College, delegates have formed a new purpose. In a business session held by the outgoing president, Dr. Graham Hudson, of Ottawa, the following was adopted:

"The purpose of the United Church Young People's Union is to lead young people in Christian fellowship and to help each to know, love and serve God as revealed in Jesus Christ.

Elections of new officers have been running through the week, and will be concluded over this weekend. For the first time in history, the National Council has elected a representative of the Maritimes to the presidential chair. The new national head is Donald Reid, 25, of Shubenacadie, N.S. He succeeds Dr. Hudson.

Mr. Reid has been a long-time participant and leader in church work in his home town, and in 1947 attended Oslo as a delegate to the World Conference of Christian youth.

Also elected were associate president Barry Brooks, 22, of Alberta, head of leadership training Isabel Frith, of Montreal, and head of publications, Gala Rodgers, of Lindsay, Ont.

Kathleen Homan Takes First Prize

Kathleen Homan, Corbyville, took first prize among members of the Belleville Calf Club, who held their annual achievement day in connection with the local fair. Eighteen members brought their calves to the fair, the members being judged for showmanship.

There were 14 holstein calves exhibited, the winning calf having been sired by one of the bulls at the Belleville artificial breeding unit. The first prize Jersey calf was shown by Bob Mallory, Trenton, R.R. 7, and the first prize Guernsey calf was shown by Joyce Lott, Halloway.

The holsteins were judged on the group system. In the first prize group were Kathleen Homan, Griffin Ketcheson, John McComb and Frank Harry. In the second prize group were Lyle Leavens, Gerald Harry, Glen Reid, Lorne Sine, and Wayne Herrington. Third prize group included Bob Bush, Bruce Walker, Ross Cole, Ralph Sine and Raymond Stickle.

In showmanship the members placed as follows: Gerald Harry, Frank Harry, John McComb, Bob Mallory, Raymond Stickle, Griffin Ketcheson, Bob Burkitt, Kathleen Homan, Wayne Herrington, Lyle Leavens, Ralph Sine, Doreen Lott, Glen Reid, Joyce Lott, Bob Bush, Lorne Sine, Ross Cole and Bruce Walker.

Judges were W. N. T. Ashton, Napanee, Agricultural representative for Lennox and Addington and D. A. Taylor, Picton, representative for Prince Edward county.

MacArthur's Need of Infantry Is Indicated

By DEWITT MACKENZIE
(Associated Press News Analyst)

Gen. MacArthur's call for more ground troops from the United Nations membership, to bolster his badly-outnumbered forces in Korea, has brought to light a lot of interesting facts—some a bit disconcerting.

While there have been numerous offers of various kinds of aid, there has seemed to be a considerable reluctance on the part of some countries to send ground forces.

As a result, thus far only eight countries have been announced as offering to send troops. The rest still are considering the matter—or have decided to let the United States do it.

(Canada is recruiting an infantry brigade to fight under the United Nations flag in Korea or elsewhere.)

Washington has been proceeding circumspectly in handling details. Until yesterday three offers of troops had been formally accepted—those of 4,500 men from Turkey, 4,000 from Thailand and about 5,000 from the Philippines. Also accepted "in principle" were offers of troops from Britain, New Zealand and Australia.

Much Planning

Naturally many details have to be discussed. Twenty-three days elapsed between Turkey's offer and the formal acceptance.

After offers have been accepted there still remains the great problem of transportation for troops, equipment and supplies. Logistics are a major consideration.

One thing which has delayed the sending of troops has been the desire of the donors to train new units for the Korean theatre. That takes a lot of them, and Gen. MacArthur has urged that organized units already in existence be sent, rather than spend time training new troops.

Signs are that the magnificent job which MacArthur's American and south Korean troops have been doing has blinded the outside world to the urgency of more ground troops. There even has been a request that the United States send troops to western Europe to bolster spirits there—a request which isn't likely to be met at this juncture.

We once more are getting a striking demonstration of the fact that it still takes infantry to win wars. And MacArthur hasn't the infantry he needs. He is up against the bitter fact that north Korea is a red cornucopia through which pours a never-ending stream of fighting men. The forces of the U.N. commander in chief could knock out every north Korean and still Manchurian and Chinese communist fighting men could pour down.

Thirty thousand or more ground troops already have been pledged, and presumably a good many more will come from countries which haven't fully recognized the emergency and have been moving slowly. MacArthur's report should help to put that right.

EVER WATCH A PHARMACIST FILL A PRESCRIPTION?

Each drug the pharmacist uses was produced by a responsible pharmaceutical or chemical company in which he has implicit confidence. He knows that every medicinal substance on the shelves of his prescription room has been subjected to strict tests and analyses to insure its purity, quality, and strength. He would use no drug which hadn't been so tested.

Even with this knowledge, however, the pharmacist fills every prescription with a deep sense of personal responsibility. He checks and rechecks every ingredient he uses and every step in his compounding technic. He examines the contents of each bottle carefully as he takes it from the shelf. He looks at it critically, he may take the stopper out and smell it, he may even taste a bit of it. He fills every prescription with the exacting care he would exercise if the medicine were for a member of his own family.

The drugs he uses are old friends to your pharmacist. He met them first in his early days at college and he has worked with them daily ever since. Their color, texture, odor, and taste are closely associated in his mind with their actions and their uses.

It is second nature for the pharmacist to check drugs by sight, by taste, and by smell. His knowledge and training are as much a part of the prescription he fills as are any of its ingredients.—Reprinted from a copyrighted advertisement published by Parke, Davis & Company.

Beautiful Windows

By A. Henderson

(Third Instalment)

Many moons have waxed and waned, and much water has passed under the bridge since the last instalment of "Beautiful Windows" appeared in these columns. Because of the repeated requests, and because there yet remain many more of these lovely pictures, which are so often noticed, yet so seldom seen, we shall continue our itinerary wherever they may be found and see what story they have to tell us and what message they would have us to remember.

As mentioned in a former article, most stained glass windows are mosaics; that is, they are formed of small pieces of colored glass, held together by tiny, leaden frames, known to the manufacturers as 'cames,' forming composite pictures, radiating a kaleidoscopic or jewel-like glow of prismatic colors. This delightful art was brought to perfection during the 12th century. In the 13th century the vine-scroll and acanthus leaf were introduced as additional ornamentation backgrounding the central figure or figures. The acanthus leaf, because of its graceful outline was much used in Greek architecture; especially in the formation of the Corinthian pillar capitol; it is quite natural that it should also find its way into the art of stained-glass windows.

Later, however, the grape-leaf which is similar in shape was substituted for the acanthus, in conjunction with the vine and grape cluster; ostensibly to emphasize the Palestinian source of the sacred figures so represented, as the grape is the national emblem of Palestine.

* * *

In our last itinerary we visited St. Thomas' church on the hill and gazed in wonder at the matchless colorings of its windows, whose radiance and spiritual appeal "made the things of earth grow strangely dim in the light of their beauty and grace." Today, we shall pass across the street to another church whose grey, stone pile is the successor to the first Methodist Church in Upper Canada, and the first church to use a bell to call the worshippers to service, and also the first Methodist church in upper Canada to have a spire. The bell has since been replaced by sweet-toned chimes, the gift of Mrs. Fred S. Deacon, in memory of her late husband. On special occasions they may be heard chiming out the old familiar hymns, "Rock of Ages Cleft for Me," "There is a Green Hill Far Away Without a City Wall," whose simple messages still have the power to cheer many a burdened heart and calm many a troubled mind.

In 1862 when Bridge Street Church was erected, it was known as the Wesleyan Methodist Church. Most of its congregation included members from the old parent church which had stood on Pinnacle Street. The first pastors of the church were the Reverend John Douse, and the Reverend William Hall. Twenty-five years ago three churches, the Presbyterian, the Methodist, and the Congregational, united, and formed what is now known as the United Church of Canada.

The windows in Bridge Street United Church, are of two distinct types: the pictorial, which depict the well-known Bible characters, and the allegorical or symbolical geometric. The former are found in the large Sunday school room; the latter in the nave of the church. Unlike the pictorial windows, whose messages flow out, crystal clear in floods of beauty to the beholder, the allegorical-symbolic type tend to conceal theirs, yielding them up only to those who are willing to search diligently and to dig deeply.

* * *

As we pause before the twin, pictorial windows in the Sunday school room, we are struck by their peerless coloring, and the intricate beauty of the golden ornate apexes, the exquisite loveliness and infinite detail portraying the temple altar at Jerusalem. The colors are lovely: glowing scarlet, deep sapphire blue, iridescent green, and rich purple. In the panel at the left, backgrounded by the purple-hued, fleur-de-lis embroidered, golden fringed curtain, which also backgrounds the panel at the right, is the full length figure of the beloved apostle, St. John the Divine.

His robes are rich in coloring: the outer cloak or ephod, is a soft, mossy green lined with mulberry, having a silver border showing the cross section of the pomegranate flower, which typifies 'fruitfulness.' The ephod is worn over a luxuriously brocaded robe of golden bronze also richly brocaded, displaying beneath it the fringed white, lustrous linen coat denoting the 'priest of God.'

In one hand he holds a golden goblet, bringing to mind the yearningly tender words of the Lord Jesus at the feast of the last passover when He instituted the "Feast of Remembrance" or "The Lord's Supper;' "This cup is the new testament in My blood; this do ye, as oft as ye drink it in remembrance of Me." In the other hand he holds the word of God, reminding us of David's testimony: "Thy word is a lamp unto my feet, and a light unto my path." The face of St. John is portrayed with infinite care showing forth the sensitive sweetness of his character.

If we bear in mind that the various colors in the Word of God have each their own peculiar significance, it will be much easier to interpret the pictures. In the deep sapphire blue of the sky which surrounds his head and the head of the "Good Shepherd" in the panel at the right, we at once think of 'heaven' which was opened to the beloved apostle during his exile on the Aegean island of Patmos where he had been banished because of the Gospel, and where the Lord revealed to him things to come, the fringe of which we are now touching.

The green and mulberry coloring of his ephod, signifies faithfulness and sacrificial love for the Master, for whose sake and the Gospel St. John laid down his life. The mulberry being a mixture of the green and the wine-red of blood. As we gaze, we seem to hear those imperious words," ". . . he that taketh not his cross, and followeth after me, is not worthy of me . . . for whosever will save his life shall lose it; but whosover shall lose his life for my sake and the gospel's, the same shall save it." The white, priestly robe denotes personal righteousness and purity.

In the panel at the right is the well-known and much-loved picture of the "Good Shepherd" clothed in an exquisite scarlet outer garment outlined by a golden border showing the vine and the grape; again impressing upon the beholder's mind the land where Jesus chose to spend the short time here on earth. It is to this land of Palestine that the eyes of the nations are being focused more and more in these days of unrest, rumors of wars, and of wars. Those who are acquainted with His words concerning the end days of this age will remember His prophecy: "Now learn a parable of the fig tree: when his branch is yet tender, and putteth forth leaves, ye know summer is nigh; so likewise, ye, when ye shall see all these things know that it (the end of the age of grace, previous to the days of tribulation) is nigh, even at the doors."

We know, of course, that the 'fig tree' represents the Israel nation; that the budding of the leaves has to do with the return of the Israelites to the land God gave to them through Abraham, forever; that 1948 saw the flag of David unfurled for the first time in 2,000 years; that the Gentile nations have accorded to Israel the status of a nation among nations, and that the Israelites are returning from the four corners of the earth to their homeland; returning in unbelief, but 'returning' in fulfillment to Jesus' prophecy. Again, looking into the majestic face above, we hear the words, "Other sheep I have which are not of this fold; them also I must bring, and there shall be one fold and one shepherd."

The scarlet or blood-red robe speaks of 'sacrifice': "The good shepherd giveth his life for the sheep." The golden border of grapes, outlining His robe, denotes 'Diety in manifestation' and the white linen coat, as mentioned above, that of personal righteousness and purity. The purple curtain forming the background, with its golden fringe, signifies 'royalty'; the fleur-de-lis, or 'lily' emphasizes 'purity,' and is the national flower of Palestine, somewhat similar in form to the narcissus of Canada, and sometimes called "the rose of Sharon," lovely in its spotless purity, and exceeding sweet in fragrance. The writer of the hymn: "He's the Lily of the Valley," had this thought in mind.

* * *

The face of the "Good Shepherd" is an arresting one: love, tenderness and compassion are intermingled in the gaze He fastens upon the helpless lamb in His arm. The lamb is resting peacefully, secure in the fold of the shepherd. In His other hand He holds the shepherd's crook, which eastern shepherds still use on their daily rounds to rescue the perishing; to halt the straying, and to hold the injured till healing balms can be applied. This beautiful window was presented to the church in memory of C. P. Holton, by his Bible class, many years ago.

Leaving the pictorial windows, we now enter the church nave to find here a totally divergent type, that of the allegorical-symbolical-geometric, with their hidden messages which lie almost solely in their shape and colorings. These are quartet windows; four on the south side and four on the north side, composed of three spheres each, having a large sphere at the top and a large sphere at the bottom, with a smaller one between the two larger spheres, twelve spheres in all, reminding us of the twelve tribes of Israel, while the three spheres of each window, bears the stamp of the trinity, thus joining the old and new testaments in one. The smaller spheres are used, no doubt, to prevent monotony, and for artistic purposes, rather than for any particular meaning.

The outside spheres of the quartet windows are surrounded by a narrow outer band of blue, which in turn surrounds a band of yellow bounding the centre diagram showing the cross section of the grape leaf and grape cluster, in tones of gold and silver resting on a sapphire field of blue, which has a band in rose color of an alternating leaf and grape scroll. The inner pair of the quartet carry out the same design with the exception that the outer band is of red instead of blue.

Remembering what colors signify in Biblical language, we see that the spheres, which typify the 'earth,' are bounded by blue, which is 'heaven,' and also the color of 'love.' The band of yellow denotes the 'Holy Spirit brooding over the earth,' reminding us again of Jesus' words before His ascension: ". . . and if I go, I will send the Comforter, which is the Holy Spirit . . . and he will guide you into all truth . . . for he shall testify of me, and shall bring all things to your remembrance whatsoever I thave said unto you."

The red band on the inner spheres denotes the blood that was shed for many! "For God so loved the world that He gave His only begotten son that whosoever believeth in Him should not perish, but have everlasting life." The sapphire field again points to heaven, and the grape and leaves to Palestine.

We come now to the allegorical windows in the choir loft, and in the galleries at the south and north. In the choir loft is the large, oval-topped window centred by a panel rich in the vine and grape motif, surrounding an open Bible, a golden harp, and a golden crown. This is an interesting window, showing through the Word comes 'faith,' from faith comes 'praise' as signified by the harp, and after praise and faithfulness comes the 'crown of righteousness.' It was this crown that the Apostle Paul spoke of when he said, "I have fought a good fight, I have finished my course, I have kept the faith, henceforth there is laid up for me the crown of righteousness which the Lord, the righteous judge, shall give me at that day, and not to me only, but to all them also that love His appearing."

The crown and the Bible are superimposed upon a rectangular field of sapphire blue, denoting that heaven from which "the Word was made flesh and dwelt among us," and where the faithful servants shall receive the reward — the crown. If we look closely we shall see that the points of the crown are composed of the grape leaf, always bringing us back to the design theme. The golden harp denotes the intrinsic worth of true praise and worship: "They that worship Him, must worship Him in spirit and in truth." The position of the harp, surrounded by a narrow green band in the form of a six-pointed star, which is the star of David, but whose apexes are rounded off or blunted, typifies the Israel nation in dispersion among the Gentile nations of the world, but still existing, as by the green band. Since this window was made, the chosen people have been accorded a national status, bringing once more the six-pointed star into its pristine glory.

Little rectangular squares, each centred with four grape leaves, interspersed with the grape, form the background of the entire window. Around its outer edge runs a wide border of red bounded circles enclosing the grape leaf motif, which in turn is backed with the same design, thus emphasizing again and again the earthly home of our Lord, and by so doing, keeps our attention fixed on Him who came "that they might have life, and that more abundantly." This is the deeper interpretation of the window, but it also refers to the lives of those in whose honor and memory it was presented to the church, that of Nathan and Jane Clement-Jones, 1847-1895, by Ella Bancroft-Jones Holden. Nathan and Jane Clement-Jones were faithful and devout Christians, as well as gifted musicians.

Above in the gallery, at the north and south sides, are the Rose windows, or as they are sometimes called, "St. Catharine's wheel," for as the name implies, they are shaped like a huge wheel, the spokes of which are represented by the petals of a daisy-like flower, having fifteen petals. The apex of each petal is set with a green or amethyst jewel, in the order of two green jewels alternating with three amethyst; each jewel is enclosed in a small rectangle of grape leaves, a leaf pointing to each of the four corners of the rectangle. The amethyst denotes 'royalty,' and the emerald 'perpetuity;' the Scripture bringing out the meaning of this, as we shall see presently, is: "If ye suffer with me, ye shall also reign with me."

At the hub of the 'wheel' or heart of the flower an anchor is superimposed upon a crimson field, denoting faith in the atoning blood of the Lord Jesus. Between each spoke of the wheel or flower petal, is fixed a golden triangular spike, symbolizing in what manner the virgin, St. Catharine of Alexandria, was tortured in an endeavor to make her recant her faith in the Gospel.

The legend or story is that in order to force St. Catharine to deny the gospel, which she had dauntlessly confessed at a sacrificial heathen feast before the Emperor, Maximus, in the year 307 A.D. the Emperor had her chained to the spiked wheel. The legend also states that fifty heathen philosophers were sent by him to convert her during her stay in prison, but were themselves converted by her winning eloquence. St. Catharine is known as the patroness of philosophers, and her festival falls on the 25th day of November.

In the Rose window at the south, which is identical with that of the north side, saving that, instead of the anchor there is an open Bible. Upon its white pages something appears to be written. We wonder what it might be, what the last message for us here might be. Knowing that all Scripture is given by inspiration of God, and is profitable for doctrine, for reproof, for correction, for instruction in righteousness, it may be that the writing reads: "Study to show thyself approved unto God, a workman that needeth not to be ashamed, rightly dividing the word of truth."

Our itinerary for the week is over! Silently we descend the gallery stairs, pass along the aisle to the door, and turning, cast one last long look at the picture window above the choir with its Holy Bible, its golden harp of praise, and the golden crown of righteousness, sensing deep within us, the quiet tones of the still, small poice, "Be thou faithful unto death and I will give thee the crown of life."

Hay Bay Church Pilgrimage Set For August 27

The annual pilgrimage and anniversary service in connection with the historic church at Hay Bay, Adolphustown, will be held on August 27th at 3 p.m.

The Right Rev. Willard Brewing B.D., D.D., Moderator of the United Church of Canada will be the guest preacher. The presence of the Moderator and his message should give this event an unusual significance. The committee has made every possible effort to ensure that its arrangements for the service will result in the greatest consequent inspiration for all who participate.

This building was erected in 1793 on Paul Huff's lot on the Hay Bay shore, the first Methodist Church in Upper Canada. As the church expanded and grew, this building was abandoned as a preaching appointment. But some time later, in the year 1910, it was reclaimed, reconstructed and rededicated as a historic religious shrine.

This year the committee conceived the idea of erecting on the property a cottage to be used as summer lodge by ministers of the church, in return for which some service of oversight and ministry in connection with the property will be expected. Already this summer approximately five hundred persons as tourists and guests have visited the site.

The cottage is now built. It has been done through the generosity of Mr. Harvey MacFarland who erected it without cost to the church. A rich bedroom suite in maple finish has been donated by Mrs. McPherson of Napanee. Further equipment to add to the comfort, convenience and attractiveness of the cottage has been purchased by the committee.

The committee acknowledges with profound gratitude the fine generosity and good will of these several friends and interested parties in making this cherished dream an actual realization.

SHIPPING DISASTER

One of the steamships lines is having bad luck with fires on its passenger vessels. Last year, in one of the greatest ship holocausts the world has ever witnessed, 119 persons lost their lives as the Noronic burned at a Toronto pier.

Now the Quebec has burned at Tadoussac, and previous to the Noronic disaster, the Hamonic, a sister ship, burned at Sarnia. As yet, no concrete reason has been given for the fire aboard the Noronic, and it is entirely possible that the public will have to wait a considerable period of time before the results of the inquiry into the Quebec fire are announced.

Five persons as far as known lost their lives in the Tadoussac occurrence. Yet five is still to great a total to pay. The loss of the ship is as nothing when compared with the snuffing out of five lives.

When the Noronic burned, the cries were loud and long from the public against repetition of such disasters. The whole world was shocked that so many people could die in the happy surrounding of a holiday cruise ship.

All credit is to be extended to the crew and captain of the steamship Quebec for their actions in warping the craft into the pier at Tadoussac in such short time. Their agility undoubtedly saved many lives. But it does not solve the reason for the fire. Eyewitnesses have reported that they believe that the fire started in a closet, in the same manner as the Noronic blaze.

Whatever the cause there should and must be better fire hazard inspection on passenger ships.

SHAW RECOGNIZED ABROAD

For a man of ninety-four years Bernard Shaw gets about a great deal. Recently there was a broadcast from the little town of Moelln, thirty-six miles east of Hamburg in the British zone by the BBC's correspondent in Germany Patrick Smith, and the news is now that the great Irish playwright has been invited to that city to become one of its freemen. By the way, it is worth notice that Moelln is well known to most Germans in connection with the famous practical joker Till Eulenspiegel, who died just six centuries ago.

Now Shaw is one of the master wits of all ages and is considered in Germany to be the Till Eulenspiegel of the twentieth century. Therefore it is not at all surprising that Mr. Shaw has accepted the invitation of the freedom of Moelln.

Shaw actually wrote one of his famous postcards — his invariable means of correspondence — accepting the invitation and expressing his willingness to be placed on the same level as one of the greatest story-tellers of all time. The mayor and corporation feel extremely proud to possess the Shavian postcard. So much is this so that after the celebration the Shaw card will be placed on show in the local exhibition.

Moelln, proud of its Till Eulenspiegel, is rightly proud of the fact that the great Irishman who has added so much to the reputation of the British theatre and is one of the greatest figures of this age long ago expressed his recognition of Till Eulenspiegel, whose name lives in Germany as one of her greatest of wits.

SHIPWRECK SURVIVAL TESTS

Back in the 30's we were always reading about crackpot endurance contests, such as flagpole-sitting and marathon dancing, the usefulness of which was open to question. But endurance tests soon to be undergone by a number of volunteer British seamen are calculated to save lives.

Last week the party, which includes scientists and medical experts, left for tropical waters. Their aim is to determine how long life can be maintained after shipwreck in these seas, and what are the basic essentials for survival.

The volunteer "guinea pigs" have already undergone similar tests in the Arctic, so it is out of the ice-box into the frying-pan for these intrepid sailors.

They will be set adrift in floats and will exist for days on a diet very low in caloric content. The effects of this special food in reducing danger from heat exhaustion will be closely studied.

Naval authorities of all nations will be interested in the results of these tests, which will determine the best types of emergency rations and life-saving equipment for seamen shipwrecked in tropical waters.

ENVOY TO MOSCOW

A red-headed Irishman who likes roast beef must surely be a bit of a puzzle to Stalin. That is Sir David Victor Kelly, British Ambassador in Moscow.

But the superficial description of Ambassador Kelly is quite illusive. It hides the personality of one who is rightly accounted, and already well-tested, as one of the ablest diplomats in Britain's service.

His good-natured smile is reserved for his friends, to whose number he adds wherever he goes. A greying moustache is the only visible sign of his age; he was 58 last year.

His father, another David Kelly, was a don at Trinity College, Dublin. From that not too severely academic environment the son went via St. Paul's School to Magdalen College, Oxford, where he was nominated for a diplomatic career, the start of which was interrupted by the First World War.

In this he served for three years in France as a brigade Intelligence officer, was awarded the MC, and recorded his experience in a book, "Thirty-Nine Months," before entering the Foreign Office in 1919. — London Daily Mail.

OTHER PEOPLE'S QUARRELS

Strange what father said to me
I remember now:
An interferer never be
In a family row.

Don't forget this counsel true
For a single day.
Both of them will turn on you
If you join the fray.

Let them battle if they must;
Tables break and chairs.
You'll miss trouble if you just Mind your own affairs.

THE ELECTRIC CLOCK

Electric clocks keep absolutely correct time. That is, if you set them with precise accuracy they will stay that way. The reason is that at certain times every electric clock is corrected from the power house. If you have set the clock right, the power house will see that it is kept right.

The electric clock therefore is ideal for people who want absolutely accurate time. There is a great lesson in the fact that if the clock is set right in the beginning, the power house will keep it right. If we set our feet in the right pathways, God will see that we continue to walk therein. If we think right every day, the Power which is higher than ourselves will see to it that right thoughts result in right acts. It's up to us to set our lives according to the high standards of God's law. If we set them that way, the Divine Power House will see that they are kept that way.

The only trouble about electric clocks is that sometimes the power goes off for a while. But this never happens in the case of the Divine Power. There is never any break-down at that Power House. "God is a Spirit, infinite, eternal, and unchangeable, in His being, wisdom, power, holiness, justice, goodness, and truth." He is to be relied upon without fail. His power operates without interruption.

THE PACKSACK

By GREGORY CLARK

Man's tidiness is very disturbing to nature. If the fishing was not up to standard this summer at your favorite resort, tidiness may be one of the reasons.

Everybody likes a nice clean shoreline. Nature doesn't. Man sees a deadhead floating, end up, along the shore, and he promptly hauls it out, as a menace to outboard motors and other craft. He has also hauled out the favorite hide of a whale of a fish.

When trees fall into the water, man goes or hires another fellow to go — and chop them up and remove them. Nice, clean beaches are preferred by man —and ladies — to a rush-grown and weedy shore. All the natural shelters of insects upon which fish feed and where infant fish can take cover are destroyed in the name of tidiness.

We may suppose there are many times more people who like a pretty scene than those who want good fishing. Tidiness will triumph.

But owners of trout streams, for example, are careful to cut down trees to fall into the water to make inaccessible shelters for fish. And in the east, bass and muskie fishermen of the sterner sort make it their business to create- dead-heads in discreet, out-of-the-way bays, and to shove the odd brush pile into the water's edge for the benefit of minnow and insect. Manuring trout ponds has been standard practise now for twenty years, and those determined to have fish are starting to wage a counter-offensive against the tidy majority.

The tidiness of the pioneers, who destroyed not merely the forests but also every vestige of brush and marsh, resulted in the vanishing of the birds and animals who kept the insects and weeds in check. Now costly departments of government all over America are studying how to restore shelter for the wild creatures which man must have as co-workers in agriculture. Tidiness can be carried too far.

OUR TOWN

By JACK SCOTT

WHO'S TYPICAL

Winnipeg—This is a sort of half way point in our tour across the country and I feel I should take stock of the west.

Indeed, I have been lying in the hammock most of the morning, frowning up into the leaves of two cottonwoods that support it (and the sensible place to be, with the temperature at 94 degrees), but nothing very positive or penetrating has emerged.

Must be a blind spot with me.

Other writers can go across the country and come up with a complete description of the Canadian character, usually unflattering and trends of Canadian thought and goodness knows what else and get acclaimed for their sensitive perception.

All I have done is leave behind an unbroken string of news paper editors calling me "unpatriotic" because I have been carping about the roads.

The smart writer in this country is the guy who damns the people and keeps his trap shut about the roads.

You take a real pro like John Fisher of the CBC, who is more Canadian than a beaver (and prettier too). John takes a tour across the country and before you know it his typewriter is smoking with significant things about our national sense of inferiority and our lack of unity or pride in our dominion . . in other words, just the kind of stuff Canadians like to hear.

Or Bruce Hutchison. I see in Time magazine that Bruce has given the Typical Canadian another autopsy and announces that we are "certainly the world's unequalled deadpans," an observation bound to make the old codger thousands of new friends. (He isn't really an old codger, at all; just makes a noise like one).

What do I find when I go out searching for the grass roots and the typical Canadian? I find an English midget!

Mass Anxiety

Fact is, we've met a whale of a lot of honest-to-goodness Canadians in covering the four western provinces and I am determined to assess them as objectively as I can. If nothing else it will give a few of these Canadian editors something for an editorial in this hot weather.

The first, the lasting, the most vivid impression of The Typical Canadian is of a man who is worried about making a buck.

We are not a nation of people pondering which version of our national anthem to sing, as old John seems to think. We are a nation of anxious individuals concentrating heavily on getting by or maybe showing a little profit.

Looking back now on the Canadians we've met I find they all were worried. A peach grower I met in Kelowna was worried about how much of his crop had been killed by frost. An engine fireman I met in Kamloops was worried about a transfer to another run. A musician in the band at Banff was worried about a winter job. Every farmer we've met is worried about almost everything.

What the men of this nation, and their wives, are discussing, what occupies their attention to the point of obscuring nearly everything else is the job and how to get along on what it pays. I never wrote a sentence I believed more than that one. For the concentration on individual economic security is everybody's No. 1 concern. All else is secondary.

A reporter abroad in this country can get some opinion on almost any subject but when you listen rather than ask, when you've nothing you want to prove you find that the people are talking about the high cost of living, the personal problems of making both ends meet and the plans and dreams for "something better."

I don't claim to know if it's a sign of the times or even if it is a national characteristic. What it adds up to is about equal parts of discontent and anxiety.

On 'Opinion'

I have given up trying to get a cross-section or a Canadian-man-in-the-street opinion about anything. In Regina, for example, I wasted a day trying to find out what people thought about the war in Korea and the possibility of world conflict.

It seemed a good idea. I'd read two stories that day in the Leader-Post. One was about Brook Chisholm, who had said that only 10 percent of the world population might survive the third go. Another was a speculation story out of Chicago about a new "death sand" of radio-active dust that may help Chisholm's grisly prediction. I started asking people what they thought about all this.

I got nothing I thought was worth passing on. People just don't seem to feel a sense of identity with themselves and another war, any more than they think of their individual role in national unity.

Yet when we'd disposed of the question and the vague answers, I frequently found myself hearing an intense monologue from these "typical" Canadians. Found that they might not be worried about a 90 percent world casualty list, but were plenty worried about prices going up with this trouble in Korea, deeply concerned about living up to their income and filled with a sense of foreboding about the future.

Making any nice, neat generalities about a people plagued by such gnawing unrest I will leave to the other guy. I only know that the roads are bad.

No More Scares In Report Card - - No Failures

By TOM MADDOX

Carbondale, Ill., — (AP) — Primary grade report cards no longer scare small fry.

Educators won't come right out and say no one flunks anymore in the lower grades. It seems they are afraid to—on the ground that some elementary pupils still need the threat of failing to spur them on. But it's true, fewer are flunking.

For a test, graduate students at Southern Illinois University checked the elementary picture in their own campus town of Carbondale.

Report Outlined

They found the trend is for 100 per cent promotion of pupils. So they asked city schools superintendent Clyde V. Winkler about it. They reported:

1. Little is learned by repeating;
2. Failure merely discourages, does not aid pupils.
3. There is no reliable way of determining failures.
4. Real failures cannot do the work no matter how often they repeat.

To sum up, their report put the blame for failure on another foot.

"Non-promotion is an admission of an inadequate school program and has no place in a school where children are properly motivated and work to the level of their capacities.

"What is looked on as a pupil failure may be a teacher, supervisor or administrator failure."

An education expert added another interesting slant. Dr. Douglas E. Lawson, Dean of Southern's College of Education who has been studying education problems 25 years, put it this way:

"When a child is taken into a store and his parents say to him: 'Johnnie, you are going to quit running around barefooted and wear shoes whether you like it or not,' then it is up to those parents to see that there are shoes to fit their child's feet.

Fitting Curriculum

"Likewise, when compulsory attendance laws force a child to attend school whether he likes it or not, then it is up to the school to make every possible effort to see that there is a curriculum which fits the child's capacities."

From his files, Lawson pointed out an extreme of the old failure policy. A boy was kept in the first grade from the age of six until he was 17.

He said that statistics kept by a fellow educator showed that the ability to master a study such as algebra decreased every year of repetition. By the sixth year of repeating, a pupil's chances of failure is 100 per cent, this study showed.

Lawson had a case of his own in which a failing second grader proved in a test he had a learning capacity 57 points above average. Pressed for an answer as to why he did no better, the boy replied, "Aw, that's baby stuff."

Instead of failing the boy, Lawson entered him in the third grade and within two weeks he put the boy in the fourth, and a year later it was debated whether the boy should skip the fifth.

TODAY'S TALK

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

Most of us have a number of talents, and they run in different directions. But there is one that overshadows them all — the talent for appreciation. With this we can build a world of our own, and the more we appreciate the richer we become.

The appreciation that you have for your friend becomes the measurement of his value to you. This applies to everything. Appreciation is the ozone of our vibrant life. Without it we wither like the flower that weeps for water.

Many a great human being has died, not from a disease, but from lack of appreciation. All through the pages of history their names now shine out like stars in the firmament. Edgar Allan Poe, George Gissing, Herman Melville, Vachel Lindsay, Lafcadio Hearn, Richard Jeffries, and perhaps even Henry D. Thoreau, just to name a few names that are familiar to lovers of fine literature. The list is a long one, extending in all directions.

This talent for appreciation is a wonderful one — and it can be enlarged and happily loaned out, as well, for our appreciation may become infectious. It can ripen with the years. A little praise may be given without thought, but we never know how far its influence may spread. What a talent this is, to be constantly developed. The poorest may have it, and that is what makes them actually rich.

It is said that people die of broken hearts, but I believe that it is for lack of appreciation and love. Note how happy that one is who is greatly appreciated. And so long as he is appreciated, he does his best work. In 1923, I think it was, Edith Sommers Kelley had published her first and only book, called "Weeds." Outstanding critics praised it, but few bought it, yet Paul Jordon Smith, the able and appreciative critic for the Los Angeles Times, wrote in his book "Of the Love of Books," that it was one of the greatest books written by an American! I prize my copy, inscribed to me by the author.

You may have a few of the talents bequeathed to many, but if you have a talent for appreciation —and keep perfecting it, you will both live and die a superior human being!

Personal Health Talks

(Signed letters pertaining to personal health and hygiene, not to disease diagnosis, or treatment will be answered by Dr. Brady if a stamped self-addressed envelope is enclosed. Address: Dr. William Brady, care of this newspaper.)

DIAGNOSIS OF DIGESTIVE DISEASES

Pain, burning, nausea, sourness, cramps, diarrhea, constipation, belching and lack of appetite comprise the bulk of symptoms commonly complained of in digestive disorders. All of these can occur without organic disease—such as ulcer, cancer, gall bladder disorder and the like. Contrarily, many organic diseases of the digestive tract may exist in the complete absence of any of these symptoms.

Emotional disturbances as described above—in the complete absence of organic disease. At other times, digestive symptoms may result from heart disease, arthritis of the spine, brain disorders, pelvic disease and tuberculosis—to mention a few.

The notion that sourness, pain and belching always means "ulcers," is firmly fixed in the public mind. Thousands of persons use "bicarbonate," and other over-the-counter "remedies" for the relief of burning and sourness, under the impression that they have "ulcers." A large part of this group does not have ulcers, but an even larger part of the group have never been sufficiently examined to determine the cause and nature of their trouble.

There is no such thing as a certain symptom or group of symptoms being infallible indicators of certain diseases. Many persons who have suffered symptoms common to peptic ulcer for years, have been permanently relieved of their distress by discontinuing the use of coffee—or tobacco.

Diarrhea may be due to a number of causes other than "ptomaine poisoning." Lack of appetite may be due to causes having nothing to do with digestive disease. Constipation is ordinarily a bad habit—not a disease.

"Bloating" is usually imaginary. The doctor is rarely able to substantiate the "bloating" the patient mentions. Bloating is a concept—an opinion of the patient's—based upon the assumption that an excess of "gas" has formed in the digestive tract. It seems to the patient that he should be bloated so he says he is. Examination of patients who complain of "gas" and "bloating" rarely ever reveals any more than the usual or normal amount of gas in the digestive tract.

So firm is the patient's conviction in reference to "bloating", that he invariably concludes the doctor does not know the score when he (the doctor) brushes off the remark. Many persons who complain of bloating after meals, which they may ascribe to various foods, are actually suffering distress from inadequate heart function.

It is impossible for any doctor, on the basis of a short conversation with the patient, followed by a prefunctory poking of the abdomen, to diagnose the nature of his digestive disorder. No intelligent patient should expect any such thing.

The diagnosis of any digestive disorder calls for a careful history of the case, followed by a painstaking physical examination not only of the abdomen but of the entire body. This examination often indicates the necessity of further special examinations involving X-ray, protoscopy (examination of the interior of the bowel through the rectum) and laboratory tests.

All of this takes time, skill and the sustained interest of the physician. Like the preparation of a law suit, it is of necessity sometimes expensive. But it is never as expensive as a funeral —or a new car. The expense involved in obtaining a proper diagnosis rarely equals that expended in fruitless self-medication over a period of months or years. What may appear to be an expense is very likely to prove a great economy.

The "two minutes to a patient" plan in foreign countries where the government dominates medical practice is not that kind of medicine. It is a step back into the 19th century type of medical service—a pill for the pain here, a plaster for the weakness there, or a good tonic when the doctor has no idea what in Sam Hill is the matter.

QUESTIONS & ANSWERS

Cocoa

Is cocoa harmful for children or adults? My boys want it frequently. I was forbidden to eat cocoa or chocolate by a doctor but he wouldn't say why. I would like to know also what name you will call me for writing to ask these questions. I really enjoy your column except the name calling. (Mrs. M. B.)

Answer—Would ninnyhammer do? Any one who pays a doctor for advice when the doctor refuses to tell why he forbids this or that is a ninnyhammer, in my opinion. One reason why cocoa or chocolate in any form is not desirable food or beverage, particularly for children and youths, is that it contains theobromine; a drug which overstimulates kidneys, brain and heart. Another reason is that chocolate or cocoa in beverage, as a flavor or in the form of candy interferes with the absorption of calcium from the food—and calcium deficiency is one of the principal faults of our modern diet.

God Heart Tonic

My physician (Dr. ———) tells me I am in good condition but I am conscious of heart beats, which the doctor tells me to forget. (A. V. G.)

Answer—The doctor's advice sounds good. To help you forget it the heart tonic described on P. 21 of CVD booklet would at least do no harm. For the booklet send 25c and stamped self-addressed envelope.

Thelma Brewis of Toronto Crowned Miss Quinte of 1950 At Sports Day of R.C.A.F.

Trenton (Special) — Thelma Brewis, an 18-year-old brunette from Toronto who is holidaying in Brighton, was crowned Miss Quinte 1950, at the RCAF Station Sports Hangar last night.

The beauty contest was one of the features of Trenton RCAF Station's 16th annual sports day.

Second prize was awarded to a former Brighton girl now living in Toronto, dark haired Connie McKinnon, who is also 18. Miss McKinnon has competed in several beauty contests throughout Ontario during the last three years and is now a professional model. In 1947, Miss McKinnon won a Miss Quinte contest staged in Trenton and this year she was third in the Miss Toronto contest.

Audrene Martyn of Belleville, who represented this district in the Miss Canada contest in Toronto last year, was second runner-up to Miss Quinte. For the information of those who are interested in facts and figures and who isn't when it comes to beautiful girls, Audrene is blond, 21 years old, 5 feet 7 and one half inches tall and she is employed as a secretary at a Belleville insurance agency.

Brighton made a clean sweep of the beauty honors, as Audrene also calls Brighton her home town. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Avery Martyn of that village.

Twelve Contestants

The three winners were chosen from a field of 12 contestants and appeared before the judges twice. Once in the afternoon, in bathing suits and at night, the dozen lovely ladies paraded across the stage of the R.C.A.F. Sports Hangar in evening gowns and the three finalists were picked.

In addition to the gold statuette Miss Quinte was presented with a $100 cheque and $180 worth of valuable merchandise prizes, which included a table lamp and a mantel radio. For coming second Miss McKinnon was awarded $25 in cash and approximately $75 in other prizes. Miss Martyn, in third place, was given $10 in cash and merchandise gifts to the value of about $50.

The pleasant task of presenting Miss Quinte with the trophy fell to Frank Follwell, M.P. for Hastings South, who was one of the judges. Mr. Follwell did not hesitate to oblige cameramen by kissing the newly crowned Miss Brewis while the flash bulbs popped in unison.

Frank Follwell, Dr. J. E. Renton, Ed. A. Simmons and Dr. E. A. McQuade of Trenton and Flight Lieutenant Links and S.|L. Higgins, RCAF Station, Trenton, were the six judges.

MORE MEN REQUIRED

Wellington, New Zealand, Aug. 19 (Reuters)—Tom MacDonald, New Zealand defence minister, said in a statement today that many more men than were required had volunteered for service in Korea.

He said the New Zealand contingent which is to serve with American ground forces in Korea would go into training camps, Aug. 29.

In selecting men for the force the army had given preference to single men under 27.

MAKE MOVIE OF LIFE

Paris, Aug. 19 — (AP) — A young European producer said today he will make a movie of the life of the Aga Khan, one of the world's richest men and spiritual leader of the Ismaili sect Moslems. Producer Alexander Salkind, 29, said the Aga has not only agreed to the movie but will supply his own castles and elephants for scenery.

C of C Replies To Criticism From Town Council

Trenton (Special)—"The idea of urging council to pass an early closing by-law did not originate with the Chamber of Commerce, we are simply following a suggestion from several members," stated Chamber of Commerce President T. L. McNeill, Friday.

Mr. McNeill made this statement in reply to criticism directed at the Chamber of Commerce by council on Monday night, for circulating a petition among Trenton merchants which urges council to pass an early and uniform closing by-law.

"We are attempting to perform a service. Several members have asked the Chamber to establish standardized retail store closing hours in Trenton. A preliminary poll indicated that a majority favored the proposal and we are only acting according to the will of the majority of our members," said Mr. McNeill.

This is not an attempt by the Chamber of Commerce to "regiment store closing hours," in Trenton he said. "However, if the members want to use the facilities of the Chamber of Commerce to achieve this or any other end in a democratic fashion, then those facilities are certainly open to them."

Chamber of Commerce manager, Ezra Smith confirmed Mr. McNeill's statement that the early closing by-law was not the Chamber of Commerce's idea nor he added was it mine.

"I am merely following directions which have come from the members themselves," said Mr. Smith. "The Chamber of Commerce is organized and operated in such a way, that the members can decide on what should and should not be done."

Ottawa Surplus For Four Months Is $252,900,000

Ottawa, Aug. 19 (CP) —Despite a sharp increase in defence spending the government's budget surplus amounts to $252,900,000 in the first four months of 1950-51 fiscal year, Finance Minister Abbott announced Friday night.

This amount, exceeding many times Mr. Abbott's hope of a $20,000,000 fiscal surplus, gave emphasis to possibility, official sources said, that the government this year may finance the Korean force and defence planning without going into the red.

As the months go by, however, it is likely that the surplus will be sharply cut by increasing defense and other spending. Even so, with business at highest peace time levels, it is likely that the government's surplus will be several times greater than the $20,000,000 Mr. Abbott predicted at the beginning of the year.

The $252,900,000 surplus for April-July compared with a surplus of $254,000,000 in the same period last year.

Revenues from income and excise taxes and customs import duties put the government's four-month take at $862,000,000, down slightly from last year's $879,000,000.

In the same period expenditures were down, too. Government spending dipped to $609,000,000 from $624,000,000 last year, following an economy drive that hit almost every department with the exception of defence.

Significant was Mr. Abbott's appraisal of government income and expenditures during July when the world's democracies began stepping up their defences. During the month government revenues climbed to $227,600,000, about $23,000,000 greater than in July last year. But expenditures more than kept pace, touching $188,300,000, about $34,000,000 greater than last year.

Although increased spending tended to knock down the surplus slightly the government still showed an excess of $39,300,000 in July. This compares with one of $51,000,000 in July, 1949.

National defence took precedence over all spending during the first four months of 1950. The $117,800,000 spent compared with $102,000,000 for family allowances $95,700,000 for interest on the public debt; $64,500,000 for veterans' administration and $22,700,000 for old-age pensions

In revenues, the biggest chunk —$2,147,000,000—came out of personal income tax. This compared with $2,921,000,000 last year. Corporation tax provided another $196,000,000, compared with $194,500,000 a year ago.

Succession duties were down at $8,800,000 compared with $9,632,000 in the four months of 1949.

MacArthur's intelligence spokesman gave these estimates of the whole Naktong battle picture are three days of the heaviest fighting of the war:

1. The threat to Taegu, abandoned this week as the provisional South Korean capital, "does not exist today as it did Thursday." But three to five red divisions, possibly 50,000 men, still were poised north of the city.

2. U.S. marines and infantry mauled the elite North Korean 4th division so badly in the Naktong bulge near Changnyong that "for the immediate future it can no longer be considered a fighting division."

3. The enemy lost an estimated 2,200 men Thursday along the whole perimeter—the biggest single day's bag for the Allies.

Meanwhile, North Korea was served a grim warning that 10 major cities, including the capital of Pyongyang, are about to be bombed.

Canada's Trade In First Half Of 1950 Record

Ottawa, Aug. 19 — (CP) — Canada's international trade during the first six months of 1950 shattered all previous peace-time records.

The Bureau of Statistics Friday reported peaks in both imports and exports. Most significant change was a sharper shift to the U.S. market with that country absorbing an unprecedented 63 per cent of Canada's total exports.

Gaps in trade balances with both the United States and the United Kingdom were sharply reduced.

In June the values of imports and exports both were maintained at high levels. Imports from and exports to the United States climbed. Imports from the United Kingdom reached a peak. Domestic exports moved to a lower level.

Canada's total exports during the six months to all countries climbed to $1,448,000,000 from $1,438,400,000 last year. Imports also increased from $1,409,400,000 to $1,453,100,000. This made for a total trade of $291,000 — highest in peacetime history, but leaving a small deficit balance of $4,900,000, compared with a surplus of $29,100,000 last year.

In June, imports totalled $282,500,000, against $250,500,000 last year. Domestic exports reached $289,200,000 compared with $255,100,000. Foreign exports amounted to $2,600,000 compared with $2,300,000. The over-all credit balance with all countries was $9,300,000, against $6,900,000.

Half-year imports from the United States were moderately lower at $1,004,500,000 against $1,008,800,000, accounting for 69 per cent of total imports, against 71 per cent last year. In June imports rose to $188,300,000 from $176,900,000.

U.S. Exports Rise

Six-month exports to the United States rose to $904,900,000 from $690,900,000 amounting to 63 percent of all exports—an unprecedented proportion — compared to to 48.5 percent in 1949. In June exports to the United States advanced to $177,700,000 from $113,900,000.

The trade deficit for the half year was $87,600,000 sharply below last year's $308,300,000 and in the month was down to $8,400,000, compared with $61,300,000.

Imports from the United Kingdom in the half year advanced to $187,200,000 from $163,200,000, and in June to $37,100,000 from $27,000,000. Domestic exports for the half year fell to $235,900,000 from $335,600,000 and in June to $52,500,000 from $60,700,000. The favorable balance in the six-month period fell to $50,000,000 from $174,200,000, and in June was down to $15,500,000 from $34,100,000.

Merchandise imports from Commonwealth countries other than the United Kingdom, rose in the six months to $97,100,000 from $91,300,000 and also were higher in June at $23,400,000, compared with $19,200,000. Half-year purchases from foreign countries other than the United States, moved up from $145,000,000 to $164,300,000 and in June to $33,600,000 from $27,500,000.

Slightly Lower

Imports from Latin America countries as a group were slightly lower in June at $15,205,000, against $15,999,000 a year earlier, but were up in the half-year at $90,054,000 against $86,450,000. Purchases were higher in both periods from Brazil and Mexico, but lower from Venezuela.

Imports from Europe at $8,116,000 in June, compared with $9,030,000 a year earlier, and in the half-year at $41,588,000 against $44,703,000. Purchases from Belgium and Luxembourg, France and Italy were lower both in June and the six month period. Buying from Switzerland was higher.

Purchases from other foreign countries climbed to $10,154,000 in June from $2,342,000 and, in the half-year were more than doubled at $31,746,000, compared with $13,022,000. This was due mainly to increased buying of petroleum from Arabia and other purchases from Japan, Netherlands Antilles, Philippine Islands, Siam and China.

By late today, the weather bureau said the storm would be a considerable distance off the North Carolina coast and would lessen the danger to the Carolina Capes.

Cause of Fire Unknown

Three vessels reached the side of the stricken Russell R. Jones shortly after midnight. The freighter Tulane offered any assistance and stood by until the Coast Guard cutters Anroscoggin and Paw Paw arrived.

Cause of the fire was not known, but experienced seaman said it was not unusual for fire to break out in a vessel which was subjected to the battering the Russell R. Jones took.

A Coast Guard plane which answered the vessel's SOS estimated the winds at close to 80 miles an hour when it first reached the vessel. Mountainous waves were breaking over the superstructure and the Jones barely making headway through the wind-whipped seas.

Wood-pulp and "a large amount of toilet paper" was burning in the forward holds. At 11 p.m. EDT the ship radioed that the fire in the No. 1 hold was under control and the fire in No. 2 hold "nearly under control."

The after holds carried lubrication oil anl chemicals, but the holds were not endangered.

WEDDINGS

GATCUM—McCORMACK

A quiet wedding took place in t. John's Anglican Church, Bancroft, on Monday, August 14, when Eliza Amelia, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John G. McCormack, of Musclow, was united in marriage to George Charles, only son of Mrs. Amy Gatcum, of Belleville, and the late Roy Gatcum. The Rev. Walter F. Smith officiated.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a blue sheer street length dress with a shirred bodice. Her three-quarter length veil was held in place with pink roses. She wore a corsage of pink roses.

Her sister, Pauline, acted as bridesmaid, wearing pink eyelet over organdy with shoulder-length veil.

Mr. Howard McCormack, brother of the bride, was groomsman.

A reception was held in the evening at the bride's home.

The young couple will reside in Belleville.

SHERRY—WILKINSON

The marriage of Dorothy Elaine, daughter of Mrs. H. Wilkinson, of Lindsay, Ont., and the late Rev. H. Wilkinson, and Charles Edmund Sherry, son of Mr. William Sherry, Belleville, Ont., and the late Mrs. Sherry, took place at Queen Street, United Church, Lindsay, on Saturday, August 12. The Rev. W. E. Honey officiated.

Mrs. Allan Blewett, Lindsay, was the soloist, while Mr. H. Beard presided at the organ. The church was decorated with white gladioli and ferns.

The bride was given in marriage by her brother, Mr. Ronald Wilkinson and wore a gown of blush satin designed with sweetheart neckline and gathered skirt, flowing into a train. Her shoulder length veil of tulle was arranged from a headdress of seed pearls. She carried her father's Testament bound in white satin with white roses.

Attending the bride was her sister, Mrs. D. L. Irving, as matron of honor. She wore a floor-length gown of delphinium blue nylon and matching headdress. Her Colonial bouquet was of white gladioli with a centre of colored garnet roses.

The best man was Mr. Maitland Duff, of Batawa, and the ushers were, Mr. D. L. Irving, of Peterborough, and Mr. David Arbuckle of Belleville.

The reception was held at the bride's home. The bride's mother received in a gown of grey crepe and lace with accents in black and a glamillia corsage. The groom's stepmother wore aqua crepe with navy accessories and a corsage of red roses.

For travelling, the bride wore a dress of silver grey faille with navy accessories and a gamillia corsage. The couple will reside in Belleville.

FAULKNER—O'SULLIVAN

Gladioli and ferns formed a lovely setting on Wednesday, August 9, at 10 a.m., in St. Mary's Church, Marysville, when the Rev. Father Donoghue united in marriage Mary Edna O'Sullivan, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William O'Sullivan, of Marysville, to William Eric Faulkner, of Brighton, son of Mrs. Grant Quick, and the late William H. Faulkner. Present in the Sanctuary was the Rev. F. L. Rishea, of Wooler. The Nuptial Mass was served by Delbert Ronald O'Sullivan, nephew of the bride.

The wedding music was rendered by the organist of the church ,and the soloist, Mr. William Hanley, of Read, Ontario, sang before the ceremony, "Ave Maria", and "Panis Angelicus", and during the signing of the register, "On This Day, O Beautiful Mother".

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, was radiant in her bridal gown of white French lace over slipper satin, featuring a round neckline, yoke of nylon net embroidered with seed pearls, fitted bodice, long tight sleeves ending in lily points over the wrists. The skirt, which was fashioned with a peplum, fell into a graceful train. Her full-length veil of tulle illusion was held by a coronet of seed pearls, and she carried a cascade bouquet of red roses and "fleur d amour".

Mrs. W. R. Callaghan was matron of honor, gowned in nile green faille taffeta, with matching picture hat. She carried a bouquet of mauve gladioli and yellow rosebuds.

Miss Vivian O'Neil, of Kingston, was bridesmaid, wearing figured organdy over yellow taffeta, with matching picture hat, and carrying a bouquet of orchid-tinted gladioli and yellow rosebuds.

Mr. Clare O'Sullivan, brother of the bride, Belleville, was groomsman, and Mr. H. Morrow, of Brighton, and Mr. Jerry O'Sullivan, of Belleville, were ushers.

Following the reception, which was held at the home of the bride's parents, where the bride's mother, gowned in grey sheer with black accessories, and corsage of Talisman roses, received the many guests. She was assisted by the bridegroom's mother, who wore a gown of blue sheer with natural accessories, and corsage of yellow rosebuds, the young couple left for a wedding trip to the Muskoka district and other northern points. For travelling, the bride chose a printed nylon sheer gown, with green accessories, white gabardine shortie coat, and wore a corsage of white carnations.

Out-of-town guests were present from: Brighton, Kingston, Belleville, and Detroit, Mich.

Upon their return, Mr. and Mrs. Faulkner will reside in Brighton, Ont., where the bridegroom has a business.

British Visitors Enthusiastic Over Canada and Canadians, Impressed by Friendliness

By BOYD UPPER

"I can't find an adjective descriptive enough for your country," said Mrs. E. M. Jones, Liverpool, England, yesterday morning in an interview just prior to her return to the Old Country. Mrs. Jones and Miss W. E. Wood of London, sisters of Mr. J. M. Wood of 142 Queen Street, Belleville, have been spending a month's holiday with their brother.

"Everything here is so full of surprises and so staggering," they chorused. "I guess staggering is the only word that comes close to saying what we feel about Canada. Colossal and stupendous don't seem just right. No, staggering is the word."

The most 'staggering' thing and the most striking feature of Canadians and Canada is, to quote the ladies again, "the generous hospitality of the people; the friendly welcome which they give you, friendliness to the point of lavishness. Things are more formal in England", they pointed out, adding that "we like the people here."

Sincere Admiration

It is hard to capture on paper the sprightly enthusiastic conversation of these two thoroughly interesting visitors, and to convey their sincere admiration for Canada, Canadians and all things that they have seen and done here.

"Everything in Canada seems to be done for the comfort of the people. We have been amazed at the quantity of equipment in the children's playgrounds. We had never heard of Drive-in Theatres. We like all these labor-saving gadgets Canadians have."

Turning to the weather the sisters had this to say: "The weather is hot, the drinks are cold and the people are warm-hearted. Men dress sensibly for the hot weather here. In England the poor men go about in coats all the time. But of course your weather here is hotter than in England. We love your central heating here. There is very little central heating in England and in the winter we just freeze until even our tempers freeze. We go about swathed in woollens. And in the summer you have air conditioning here too."

Police uniforms provided the only subject where disagreement with the general Canadian scene was noted, and even in this the sisters were divided. Mrs. Jones contended that the policemen here "were less formal than in Liverpool going about in their shirtsleeves making them hard to distinguish from anyone else in the population." Miss Wood contended that the London "bobbies" were much like our own policemen.

Impressed by Food

"You have so many varieties of food here, and such quantities of it too," Mrs. Jones said. "In England some things are still rationed. I have received many recipes since coming here, and I would like to use them when I get home but we don't have the variety. Of course you pay more for your food here than we do. Butter, milk, tea, and bacon are subsidized at home and do not cost nearly as much as they do here. However, we have noticed that the men here are plumper than they are in England. Over there they are are all thin. I guess that everything in Canada is double size, including the appetites. Why even the robins in Canada are twice as large as they are at home. We haven't seen two eggs on a plate in England in years and years."

Mrs. Jones and Miss Wood, kept returning to the people whom they had seen and met, obviously delighted with what they had encountered.

"People here are so happy," they said. "We haven't seen an unhappy face yet. In England the people are frustrated. They are controlled and have no freedom to do as they like."

"The children here, just as they are in England and I guess everywhere, are so well looked after. They are well cared for, beautifully dressed and so friendly. Everyone is so excessively clean. Even the girls going to work in the morning are beautifully dressed and well-scrubbed."

Teach School at Home

Both Mrs. Jones and Miss Wood are school teachers in England. Miss Wood is the principal of a primary school in London and naturally the conversation turned to education. Their general impression of the educational systems in the two countries, gleaned from what they have heard here is that "education in England is more academic while education in Canada is more socialized."

"I like the more social nature of education in Canada," Mrs. Jones said," because people are better prepared for life when they graduate."

It was learned from the two ladies that the school-leaving age in Britain has been raised from 14 to 15 years within the last two years, and that students write their university entrance exams at 16 usually. However, they take the first year of their university course in their high school and enter university usually at 18, just as is done in Canada.

"Many more students take jobs here when they leave school. It is not so common in England although it is becoming more common now."

Salaries Higher Here

"School teachers' salaries here are much higher than in England. We were talking to a 22-year-old Canadian teacher who has been teaching only two years and her salary is twice as high as ours."

These two vivacious persons have not been idle either while in Canada and although they have been here just a month they have driven more than 2,000 miles. They have been to Niagara Falls and have seen Michigan State University at Lansing, Michigan; and have visited the 1,000 Islands and Algonquin Park. They enjoyed every minute of it.

Coming closer to home they commented on what had impressed them about Belleville.

"People here are more sociable, and entertain far more than they do in England. The shortages though make it almost impossible although people would like to do more of it," they stated. "'Few houses here are fenced off. There are fewer bicycles here too. In England cars are very expensive and most of the people ride bicycles. If you want a car you have to wait about four years. There are fewer dogs here too, and everyone leaves them out. At home we have to keep our dog under lock and key.

Dislike Train Whistles

The worst feature of the city though is "the noise of the trains at night. They are like the sirens in England at the start of the war. They sound like people screaming. They really make a horrible noise and we don't know why the people here put up with it."

Coming indoors for a comparison of houses the ladies waxed enthusiastic over most features of the Canadian home.

"Of course the central heating is the big difference. And your kitchens. All those gadgets. Here people consider a toaster a necessity while in England a toaster is still a luxury. You have electric refrigerators and electric stoves, items possessed only by a few in England. And you seem to light your rooms with floor and table lamps all the time. At home we have one light in the ceiling. Here you turn on all the lights in the room. It must be very expensive."

Canadians had to back down slightly though when it came to gardens the ladies said. "Here you call a lovely garden a yard. In England a yard is an area covered with cement. At home though the gardens are nicer than they are here."

The fact that the rooms lead into one another here, without having doors on them seemed strange to the two visitors. 'But they added you also have mosquito nets here and we don't have them in England because we do not have mosquitos."

Shops Fascinating

'The shops here are fascinating," Mrs. Jones and Miss Wood said in unison, "but we are not allowed enough money to take anything back to England but memories. The churches here have wonderful congregations. Sometimes there are only a dozen or so in the churches at home."

Little things that the average Canadian takes for granted caught the fancy of these two ladies. "We like ice cream but not the root beer, and we do not like your salted pop-corn. The pop-corn in England is candied. The roadside tables are marvellous when you are travelling. The drivers here go awfully fast but they seem to be excellent drivers. You have lovely china dishes. They all come from England, too, while we in England have to get along with the plain china. The roadside canteens are a very good idea. You get service right at the curb. There is nothing like that in England. I guess it must be the competition. And they serve you a glass of water with everything, too. They never do that in England. And the water is so good, too."

"Sports start at night here, too. In England everything shuts down when it gets dark but here everything just begins. And you have white bread here too. In England we have a whole grain bread that is between a cream and a brown in color. There are baggage lockers at the stations, and escalators in the stations and stores. Even your railway stations here seem so clean."

Canadian money posed a problem for the two ladies. "We are just getting used to it," they said.

Miss the B.B.C. Programs

One of the things which they both miss is the British radio. 'We don't like commercial radio. There are no commercials in England. The radio is government sponsored and is the best in the world."

Juke boxes came in for comment: "Crude but nice," is the way they described them. And why Americans eat with only a fork while everyone in Britain uses a knife and fork posed a delicate problem as well. Drug stores here are "chemist shops" in England and dispense cosmetics, nursery supplies and "chemicals" (drugs) only. The profusion of paper towels in all public places is just another sign of the tremendous cleanliness in Canada.

The phonetic spelling in Canada was a surprise to Mrs. Jones and Miss Wood. "Thru" for through, and "nite" for night, were only two examples of what they meant. The slipshod diction of the people also came in for good-natured censure. "Sometimes we have a hard time understanding what some people are saying," they stated laughingly.

At this point the two ladies had to be off about their packing as they start for home today.

"We have enjoyed every minute of our stay here," they finished, "'and we hope to come back again.. In summing up, young man," they said, "we think that the outstanding thing in Canada is the warm-hearted, generous hospitality and friendliness of the people."

It was easy to see why they found everyone so friendly. They themselves were two of the friendliest persons we have met in a long time.

Mr. and Mrs. A. C. Faulkner Formerly of Belleuille, Mark 60th Wedding Anniuersary

Former residents of Stirling, Ont., Mr. and Mrs. Ambrose C. Faulkner, of Edmonton, Alta., recently celebrated their sixtieth wedding anniversary.

More than 100 friends called at the Faulkner home to offer felicitations on the occasion of their diamond wedding. The home was tastefully decorated with sweetpeas, roses, carnations, gladioli and garden flowers.

The Faulkners were married 60 years ago in Stirling. Their only daughter, Mrs. Clarence Vermilyea, lives near Foxboro. They have two granddaughters and four great grandchildren.

Well-known in agricultural circles of this district, Mr. Faulkner early became associated with the International Harvester Company. He with Mrs. Faulkner went to Edmonton in 1913 when they bought their present home in the Highlands. Later his work took him to Minden, Alta. During the First Great War, he was secretary-treasurer of that village.

Following this, Mr. Faulkner became manager of the Monarch Lumber Company at Gilroy, Saskatchewan. Four years later he took up residence at Central Butte. For 20 years, he was the secretary-treasurer of the rural municipality of Enfield and Mrs. Faulkner was official secretary-treasurer of the village. They returned to Edmonton in 1945.

Mr. and Mrs. Faulkner have returned to their former home in Stirling on various occasions, the last being two years ago.

The "sixty-year newlyweds" are looking forward to many more years of marital happiness. The Ontario Intelligencer joins with their many friends of the city and district in wishing for them continued healthful activity.

Blithe Profile Beret

By ALICE ALDEN

THERE is no need for pretty youngsters to join the hatless brigade and forfeit some of their femininity, not when there are neat little numbers like this at budget prices. Bertly designs a pretty profile beret, a nice choice to wear while travelling or in town. It is fashioned of powder blue belting and the little cuff brim of pink belting is stitched in matching blue.

MARIO . . . in his distinctive feature about Food . . . What's Cooking?

It may not come as a stunning revelation to you but it has now been proved that fish drink water.

If this seems like an absurdly simple truth, there were until recently scientists who were convinced that fish did not drink water. At least fresh water fish, it was thought, had no need for water in their bodies.

Two University of Chicago zoologists, setting out to discover the truth, dropped tiny particles of a radioactive chemical into the water. A few hours late when they X-rayed the fish, they discovered the chemical in the intestines of the fish, proving that fish weren't tee totalers after all.

Bivalves like oysters or clams have no choice in the matter. The only way they can get nourishment is to take in sea water through their bodies. This is the way a clam grows to proper size. When you make clam chowder, clam cakes or clam fritters, you should measure the actual clam meat rather than just count the shells. The necks of soft clams, for instance, must be discarded before cooking. The best way to get 1 1-2 cups of clams, as called for in today's recipe, is to have the fish dealer open the clams and measure the amount of clam meat.

You can use canned minced clams or buy clams in jars and chop them to make clam fritters, but they will not have the lively flavor of fresh clams.

Clam Fritters. 4-5 Servings

Order enough freshly opened clams to fill 1 1-2 measuring cups. If soft clams are used, discard necks and use only bellies.

Pick over clams carefully to remove any pieces of shell or foreign matter. Chop clams fine.

Measure 3-4 cup sifted all purpose flour. Combine flour with 2 teaspoons baking powder and 1-2 teaspoon salt. Sift all dry ingredients together.

Beat 4 eggs well. Mix chopped clams and eggs. Add 1 tablespoon finely chopped parsley and 1 tablespoon grated onion.

Add liquid to dry ingredients, stirring well. If batter is too stiff to lift by spoon, add a small amount of milk. The batter, however, should not be so thin that it pours.

Drop clam batter by spoonfuls into hot clean fat heated to 360 degrees or hot enough to brown a one inch cube of bread in 60 seconds. Brown fritters on both sides. Drain on absorbent paper. Serve with tartar sauce.

BULLETINS FROM BIRDLAND

BY WINIFRED E. WILSON

RICE BIRD

Never has any human being come nearer to possessing a dual personality than Mr. Bobolink. We Canadians know him as a beneficial member of society, well dressed, and having a most pleasing voice — a perfect Dr. Jekyll. To "Southerners" he is a wicked thief, drably dressed, with a harsh voice — another Mr Hyde. So changed is he, that those acquainted with him in springtime only, can hardly credit the tales told of his autumn escapades.

The bird that we have learned to love, subject of the poets, arrives in May, when his rippling, happy sing is heard from fence posts surrounding fields on the outskirts of cities and towns. True, he is not as good a family man as he might be, so much of his time is engaged in singing, even on the wing. But a little freedom might be allowed one who is a master at his art; and besides, he is useful as a watchman. At the slightest sign of danger his wife is warned. She leaves the well-hidden nest immediately, knowing that without her presence it will never be found in the tall grass.

Probably papa's seeming neglect is actually good judgment. Mama's buffy dress might pass unnoticed, but his conspicuous suit would certainly be seen. Unlike any other song bird his under side is entirely black, his top side mostly light. A yellow three-cornered scarf is draped over the back of his black head, and the lower half of his back and his shoulders are white. The pointed, bristly endings of his tail feathers are characteristic.

The nestlings are fed injurious insects, and once they are able to fly the entire family takes to the marshes, joining others of their kind. There they live on weed seeds and insects until late August, while the adult male takes off his handsome costume and dons a garb similar to his wife's. Now he is Mr. Hyde, the juveniles are ready to travel, and off they all go.

A few weeks later, rice growers of the Southern States waken up one morning to the sound of hundreds of Bobolinks uttering their monotonous "pink" call. Buffy colored, striped birds are swarming down on their precious fields of rice, getting ready for a good feed before continuing their trip through Florida and the West Indies, across the Caribbean Sea, and on to South America. Their objective is Paraguay, or the most southern corner of Brazil. Other species use parts of this route, but it is known as "the Bobolinks' flyway".

U.S. INFLUENCE STRONG?

Moscow (CP) — The Helsinki correspondent of Pravda says that Finland is becoming more and more subject to American influence. He accused the social Democrats of having opened the country to American spies disguised as mormons, quakers and other tourists.

OPENED AS DIRECTED

Lucan, Ont., Aug. 18 (CP) — Robbers who broke into the I.B. Langford Company office last night found the printed instructions were correct. The safe was opened as directed but it also contained no money—just as the notice said.

DiMaggio's Game-Winning Home Run in Philadelphia Inspires Hope of Yankee Fans

By JACK HAND
(Associated Press Sports Writer)

Can Joe DiMaggio do it again?

The Yankee Clipper's dramatic ninth inning home run in Philadelphia last night recalls his stirring deeds of 1949. How he came off the bench, plagued by injuries, to loosen a home run flurry that spurred the New York Yankees to the American League pennant.

So far DiMaggio has been a bitter disappointment in 1950. So much of a flop that Manager Casey Stengel benched him last week for a "rest." They whispered Joe was washed up; that he never again could demand $100,000 a year salary. Maybe they were wrong.

Restored to his old No. 4 clean-up spot in the batting order last night, DiMaggio responded with a home run that shaded Philadelphia 3-2. It was his first homer and first run batted in since July 30.

DiMaggio went hitless until the ninth of a tight battle between the Yanks' Vic Raschi and the A's Lou Brissie. With one out and nobody on base, he hit Brissie's first pitch some 400 feet into the upper left field stands at Shibe Park.

It was an important win for the Yankees because both Detroit and Cleveland were rained out. As a result New York gained a half game on each and now trails the league-leading Tigers by four games.

Detroit was to have played St. Louis. Cleveland was scheduled to play Chicago.

Boston reeled off its sixth straight at Fenway Park 7-6, after a 10-inning struggle with Washington. Bobby Doerr's 21st homer off Elmer Singleton, leading off the 10th, broke up the ball game. The Red Sox also gained on the Tigers and Indians. They are six games out of first place.

Dodgers Cut Game Off

Brooklyn cut a game off the Phillies' lead in the National League as that race also tightened. By whipping Boston 8-3, while New York dumped the Phils, 714, the Dodgers moved to within 5½ games of first place.

Big Jim Hearn, the $10,000 bonus bargain, beat the Phils for the second time within a week. The ex-St. Louis Cardinals right-hander, allowed only five hits including homers by Andy Seminick and Willie Jones.

Hank Thompson's three-run homer and Whitey Lockman's long drive into the stands with nobody on both came off starter Russ Meyer, the Phils' loser.

Carl Erakine almost lasted the route last night for the Dodgers. The rookie had a no-hitter until Sam Jethroe beat out an infield hit with two out in the sixth. After the Braves got to him for three in the eighth, Ralph Branca came in to relieve him in a ninth-inning jam.

Red Schoendienst's 11th inning single shoved St. Louis home in front of Cincinnati, 2-1. A throwing error by Grady Hatton set the stage for the winning single.

Pittsburgh staged a four - run first inning to flatten Chicago's Walt Dubiel, 9-3. Cliff Chambers allowed nine hits in winning his 10th game. Roy Smalley hit his 17th homer in the ninth inning.

Alex Kvasnak Leading Hitter Of Intercounty

By The Canadian Press

It was wetter than a fish pond on Western Ontario diamonds last night and it soaked the intercounty senior league.

The Saint Thomas - at - Kitchener game was postponed. Guelph and Brantford gave up after four innings at Brantford with no score.

Stratford Nationals and Galt Terriers played the final six innings in the rain at Stratford with Nationals winning 14-8 in a wild-hitting bilt. Nationals collected 18 hits from three Galt pitchers while the Terriers got 12 off Tony Busco.

Manager Goody Rosen of Galt almost went to the mound himself — but found he wasn't eligible because he isn't named as a pitcher on the Galt roster.

In the Niagara District League, St. Catharines Stags defeated the second-place Niagara Falls Fords 3-1. The game was called after six innings because of rain. Ricky Kosko whiffed 12 and yielded four hits for St. Catharines.

Waterloo's Alex Kvasnak still leads the Intercounty League in batting, league statistics released today show. The statistics include games played Monday night.

Kvasnak has collected 72 hits in 192 trips to the plate for an average of 375. Bill McArthy of St. Thomas has .349 on 65 safeties in 186 trips while Rosen has hit 25 for 73 for .342.

Behind them are Miskimmons of Stratford and Thomas of Kitchener with .322, Bechard of London with .318, Judd of Guelph and Kaiser of Galt with .317 and Beggs and Cott of Kitchener with .314.

Top pitcher still is Bob Schnurr of Kitchener with seven wins and two losses for .777. Bill Gibbs of Brantford with nine wins and three losses and Dick Long of St. Thomas with six and two have an average of .750.

Gibbs string of nine wins, however, is equalled by Tommy White of London, Joe Yosurak of Waterloo and Bill Russ of Stratford.

In Defence of Largemouth Bass

By JOHN ALDEN KNIGHT
(Noted Sportsman, Author and Creator of Solunar Tables)

Every once in a while I bump my head against the ancient fallacy having to do with the alleged superiority of the smallmouth over the largemouth bass.

The largemouth, they tell you, can't fight for sour apples. As bass go, he's a hollow shell, unfit to swim in the same water with the battling smallmouth.

They give him nicknames such as "straw bass," "green bass," "green trout," "welchman," and "slough bass" (pronounced "slew bass".) In some localities he is known, of all things, as a "chub."

I don't get along very well with the men who scorn the largemouth. In my not-so-humble opinion, such fishermen don't know what they're talking about —a failing all too common in the noble sport of angling.

Consider for a moment the seasonable habits of the two species. When spring arrives and the bass waters begin to take on summer temperatures, both species get their spawning done.

Keeps to Shallow Water

For a while thereafter, a short while, both species can be found in shallow water and a fellow can have quite a time with bass bugs and surface lures.

The warm sun, however, continues to raise water temperatures. The smallmouth, who likes his water in the upper sixties, moves into deeper water where he can find suitable temperatures. Not so the largemouth.

Warm water doesn't bother him a bit. Usually he will take up residence under convenient cover along the shore line or near the weed beds, handy to the food supply. Thus, he is still available to the fly-rod fanciers and the casters of surface lures.

As the summer progresses and the warm temperature layers go deeper, the smallmouth lies too deep for satisfactory fishing with top-water lures. If you want to take him in quantity you must use deep-running lures, fished well down under.

Shucks — If I had to spend my time using sub-surface lures, I don't think I would do much bass fishing. Like many fishermen, one of the things I like most is to see the strike.

Vicious Hitter

That is where the largemouth really shines. The unrestrained, wholehearted, enthusiastic way in which he wallops a surface lure endears him forever to my heart.

A few years ago some of us went up to Georgian Bay for some bass fishing. For the first day or so we fished as the guides told us, using minnows and letting them sink well down towards the bottom.

Using this method, two men who would fish diligently from dawn till dark could have come pretty close to filling the boat with bass if they wanted to keep that many.

The sad truth of the matter is that such fishing simply isn't very much fun. Two days of it were enough for my partner and me.

So we made inquiry among the guides. Then we did some exploring. Sure enough, we turned up some spring-fed, weed-choked coves that held largemouth. Then we went to work with artificials.

Never have I seen better conditioned largemouth—big, husky, fat fellows that were a joy to behold. For ten days they showed us sport I'll never forget. We broke lines, lost lures, skinned knuckles on reel handles and, withall, managed to land plenty of fish. I can't recall ever having so much fun on a fishing trip.

Good Fighters

And what about comparative fighting qualities of the two species? Well, Dr. J. A. Henshall in his "Book of the Black Bass" states that one fights as well as the other when taken from the same water.

By that, I suppose the good Doctor meant that one was as strong as the other of equal size. What he did not discuss, however, was the character of the fight — the tactics.

Each year I manage to catch a good many large smallmouth. They all fight about the same. They take a bass plug in a rather leisurely fashion. Then they head for deep water.

When they jump, they move rather slowly toward the surface, using only the last two feet or so for the take-off. Now and then you will find an acrobat but not often. Usually you know a jump is coming well before it is made. Most of the fight is simply a pulling contest until the fish tires and is netted.

Not so with a largemouth. He's full of surprises. He will take advantage of every bit of cover available and will tangle your gear in the most frightful places. Most of his jumps are unannounced, some of them starting right from the bottom and ending with the bass several feet above the water.

Added to this, the largemouth grows to greater size and his bulk helps him in his battle for freedom. By and large, day in and day out, he will give you better sport for your money.

Last but by no means least, he responds as well or even better than the smallbouth to the stimulus of a Solunar Period. To be sure, he will keep you busy pretty much all day long but when a Solunar Period rolls around, then he is even more on the job to take almost any surface lure you show him.

Next week, guess what we're going to do. That's right — back to Ontario for some more of that largemouth fishing. The smallmouth can wait. I want to do some real bass fishing while the season is still young.

Canadian Boxers Invade Britain Ready to Fight

(By The Canadian Press)

Canada's annual invasion of British boxing opened Friday and it looks as though it's going to be bigger than ever.

Lew Alter, 26-year-old Montreal featherweight, arrived on the Empress of Scotland ready to go into training for a shot at the British feather crown, now worn by Manchester's Ronnie Clayton.

Alter is the first of a Canadian contingent expected to number about 10 when the winter boxing season gets into full swing.

Other fighters expected in the United Kingdom include Stan and Frank Almond of Vancouver; Tiger Warrington of Kentville, N.S., Roy Wouters of Montreal and Winnipeg; Earl Walls of Windsor, Ont.; Vern Escoe of Toronto; and Manny Spivack and Maxy Spoon, both of Montreal.

Canadian clouters made their first serious assault on British rings last winter and more than held their own. The man behind the invasion is Montreal-born Harry Sheppard, a 50-year-old former fighter who turned trainer because he didn't like having to do roadwork.

If you have any idea of writing to the Philadelphia Phillies for world series tickets, don't bother. There will be no requests accepted until commissioner A. B. Chandler gives the go ahead sign.

Nathan (Babe) Alexander, the club's public relations director, said Friday 25,000 requests have been returned with checks and money orders.

An Ontario Lacrosse Association official said Friday that Toronto's homeless Riverdales of the senior A loop have arranged to be put up for the night for some of their unplayed home games.

The Toronto club, prevented from playing at home by delays in competition of their Riverdale terrace playing surface, started their home - away - from-home schedule by meeting Hamilton Tigers at Hamilton last night.

They'll face Owen Sound under similar circumstances tonight before shifting to neutral ground for games against Mimico at Woodbridge Monday and against Peterborough at Oshawa Wednesday.

The Brooklyn - New York Giants series at the Polo Grounds produced a record for inside-the-park home runs.

The Giants' Hank Thompson hit two in the Wednesday game, won by the New Yorkers 16-7. The Giants' Sam Calderone and Brooklyn's Peewee Reese cracked two Thursday in the second game of a doubleheader swept by the Dodgers 8-6 and 5-1.

Alexander (Woody) Wood, 41, of Ottawa, former professional goaltender, has been named coach of Toledo Buckeyes of the International Hockey League.

Wood replaces Andy Mulligan who was named general manager of the Toledo Sport Arena, owner of the hockey franchise.

Wood began his professional career with Cleveland in 1931 and played for Philadelphia, Buffalo, New Haven, Minneapolis and St. Louis before retiring in 1943.

Murray Tucker Wins Open Golf Title of Ontario

Toronto, Aug. 19 — (CP) — A six-foot putt that missed gave Murray Tucker, a pro for only two years, the Ontario Open Golf title Friday and $1,000 prize money.

The 26-year-old professional at the London, Ont., Sunningdale Club fired two par-breaking rounds for a 54-hole total of 215 over the par-72 St. George's Club.

His opening day score was 75, six strokes off the leader's pace. But he came back yesterday with a 71 and 69 to wind up one-below par over the 54 holes.

The man who taught him to play golf, Gordon Brydson of Toronto Mississauga, missed a six-foot putt on the 18th green and finished with 216.

Tied with Brydson was Dick Metz of Virginia Beach, Va. He missed on the 18th with a beautiful blast from a trap that left him inches from the pin.

Most of the 68 who teed off Friday — the qualifiers from the starting field of 117 — head for Quebec next week for the Canadian open and professional championships.

Last year's winner, Windsor amateur Nick Weslock, was third with 217.

Phil Farley, Toronto amateur and two-time winner, almost blew himself out of the race with a 78 on opening day. But a 70 and 73 yesterday gave him 221, second score in the amateurs.

Three-Way Tie

After a scorching first round of 69, Bob Gray of Scarboro, a former winner, faded into a 75 and 74 to wind up with 218 in a three-way tie in fourth place.

With him were Stan Leonard of Vancouver Marine drive and Jules Huot of Montreal Laval. Leonard had two 73s and a 74; Huot shot 73-71-74.

Pat Fletcher of Saskatoon started the final round only two strokes behind the leaders. But he ran up 75 on the last 18 and finished fifth with 219.

Tucker went to work in Brydson's pro shop after being discharged from the R.C.A.F. at the end of the Second World War. He flew a Spitfire overseas. He went to London two years ago.

Brydson said later he wasn't worrying about missing the putt "for the first time in my life."

" . . . If I couldn't win, there was no one I wanted more to than Murray," he said.

Gerry Proulx of Montreal, in second place at the end of the first round, wound up with 221, tied with Farley. With him were Bill Ezinicki, Toronto Maple Leafs hockey star, and Bill Kozack.

Gerry Magee, a 16-year-old Toronto amateur who's been playing only three years, faded to 238 after a surprising 75 on the first round.

Four-Run Rally Saves Latta From Defeat

A four-run rally in the top of the fifth inning saved Latta from a defeat last evening as they struggled to a 5-5 tie with Read in the fourth game of their best-in-five series in the semi-final round of the South Hastings Baseball League playdowns. The game was called at the end of six innings because of darkness. Latta leads the series two games to one.

Read scored all their runs in a third inning uprising.

Tracy started for Latta and was yanked in the third when Read broke through for all their runs. Hull went the rest of the way.

Shannon went the route for Read.

Rigby of Latta and Walsh of Read both tripled.

Lacrosse Squads True to Form

(By The Canadian Press)

Ontario Lacrosse Association squads ran true to form last night as league leading Owen Sound Mercuries extended their edge and Toronto Riverdales sank deeper in the cellar. St. Catharines Athletics scored a 13-8 victory over Brampton Excelsiors in a third game.

Owen Sound, sparked by defenceman Don McWhirter put down Peterborough Petes 23-7 in Owen Sound and Hamilton Tigers, paced by Red Grainger took an 8-7 victory from the Toronto squad in Hamilton.

Mercuries' McWhirter accounted for four goals and assisted on three others. Riverdale led 3-1 at the first quarter before tabbies caught their stride. The Hamilton game was called after the third quarter because of rain and the St. Catharines fixture was rained out with three minutes to play.

Tennis Talk

Gossip From The Courts of The District

BY "DIG"

The big event to report in the tennis world this week is the grand tournament that is being sponsored by the Bay of Quinte Tennis League at the Quinte Tennis Club tomorrow. Entry is open to all players of league calibre and competitors pick their own partners. The competition is limited to men's and mixed doubles. Trophies are being given to the winners and runners up in each series and there will be prizes for the winners of the consolation events open to those who are knocked out in the first round of the main competition.

Holloway St. are well ahead in the Intermediate League standing having won all their matches. The standing is at present Holloway St. 24 points with Quinte second having accumulated 12 points, Point Anne are in the cellar with 5 pts. The league schedule has been extended until the first week in September giving each club two more games.

Monday should see the completion of the senior league schedule when Point Anne meet Batawa in a game that was postponed from tomorrow to permit the league tournament to be played. After this match has been concluded the play-off for the Corby Cup will begin with the teams playing off as follows:-

Fourth team vs fifth team

(a) first team vs third team.

(b) second team vs winner of fourth and fifth.

Final—winner of (a) vs winner of (b).

The standing in the league up to last Wednesday evening is as follows:-

	Played	Pts.
Point Anne	10	35
Trenton	12	34
Quinte Two	12	29
Batawa	11	22
Quinte One	10	20

Thus the Canada Cement squad are champions of the League for the third season in succession. A very creditable performance.

Mercuries Move To Top of Loop Beating Batemans

Belleville Motor Car Mercuries, sharing the top perch in the B Section of the Commercial Softball League with Bakelite, made their position somewhat more comfortable last evening when they downed Bateman motors 15-9 at the Alemite Field. The loss leaves Bateman's a little deeper in fourth place.

Belleville Motor Car opened the scoring in the first frame, pushing over two runs on a single by Stone, a double by Burns, and a fielder's choice. They pushed over four more in the second with two walks, a single by Culhane, and triples by Emmerson and Burns doing the damage.

Bateman's came back into the picture briefly in the third counting two on two singles and an error.

The Mercuries put together two singles, a double, a walk, and an error in the fourth for three more tallies. They rallied for four runs in the sixth and finished things off with two more in the eighth.

Bateman's took full advantage of singles by Callaghan, O'Brien, and Thompson, an error to the Mercuries' centrefielder, and a subsequent home run by Jud Semark to score five runs in the top of the sixth frame.

They collected single runs in the eighth and ninth to end their scoring.

Stone toiled the whole way for the winners, walking none, striking out two, and being nicked for 13 hits and nine runs. Wright did the firing for Bateman's walking 11, striking out one, and surrendering 12 hits for 15 runs. 'Warpy' O'Brien threw two balls to Culhane in the eigthth to end the inning.

Bateman second baseman Dick Thompson, with four hits in five trips led the batters.

Line ups:

Bateman Motors: Thompson 2b; Hatfield ss; Semark 3b; Bone c; O'Brien rf; Callaghan 1b; Carmichael cf; Davis lf, replaced by Brown in 8th; Wright, p, replaced by Brown in 8th.

Atkins And Crowd "Owled", As the Whipper Held His Own Against "Ferocious Freedie"

By GEO. H. CARVER
(Sports Editor)

Whipper Watson proved two things at Memorial Arena last night. One, that Ferocious Freddie Atkins mouthings means nothing to him, and second, that he can hold his own and better against the fiery Australian minus the aid of one "Bugs Bunny" Dunlop or any other gink that goes in the ring as a hand-tapping spectator.

Yup, that's what the Whip did albeit he did not come out of the brawl with the laurel wreath of victory adorning his handsome noggin.

For that matter, neither did the Atkins. After Referee Sammy Goddar, allegedly out of Toronto discovered what was going on round about him we'll be dagnabbed if the gong didn't resound and the huskies wound up where they started.

But Atkins lost a lot of face, and the Watson regained some of the prestige that slipped away from him last week.

But he got it the hard way. Atkins is nobody's fool when it comes to the rough stuff, and he doesn't pull punches or breathe his cusswords softly when the bite is on him.

Applied the Backbreaker

He punished the Whip aplenty especially during that first fall which he won after 20 minutes of gruelling grappling winding the matter up with the application of his Australian backbreaker hold.

Application of that clutch, kiddies, would make the College of Applied Chiropractic go into ecstacies of delight. Atkins hoists his victim aloft, lets go and the body smashes off an out-thrust knee and rolls to the floor. Try it on your piano sometime.

But that was the first fall. The Pride of East York was madder than a socked biddie when he recovered from the spine-shaking antics of Atkins. And he was in the same mood when he entered the ring for the second jousting.

He applied the rope treatment to Ferocious Freddie and used the hemp to every advantage with the exception of arranging a noose, fashioning a cravat about the bobbing Adam's apple of the mouthing Atkins and tossing the other end, the rope that is, over a convenient rafter. The crowd howled its approval and nearly tore the arena from its moorings when the Whip applied his Canadian Commando Unconscious hold and the "Austrylian" murmured "Uncle" through tense tonsils.

Battle Furiously

The pair battled furiously through the third fall with the edge going to the Whip and then to Atkins. The gong finally ended matters, but the pair raged through a few extra minutes while the mob milled ringside and Referee Goddar was hard put to get the boys to sign the official peace treaty.

It is quite likely the affair will be settled in another rematch next week.

The hooded horror tabbed in the ads as the Masked Marvel is proving a villain of the darkest hue. Last night he bedraggled the popular Ray Villmer through twenty minutes of grappling gusto using everything but the United States Marines, the Liver Building and a squad of Chief Probert's "unbeatables" to finally put the quietus on the dynamic Villmer.

Popular Warren Bockwinkle was given the nod over boisterous Jim "Goon" Henry after sixteen minutes of milling in the opener.

A Weekly Peek At The Soccer Picture

BY ELDEE

Belleville United reopen their activities in the Eastern Ontario League today when they entertain Vimy Signals from Kingston at the Fairgrounds this afternoon. The local boys are hoping to give a good account of themselves and thus to improve their position in the league standing.

On Monday evening the semi-finals of the Trenton Challenge Cup take place. Both matches are drawn for Trenton, with Trenton Merchants and Belleville United playing off at Bain Memorial Park and in the other event Flyers meet Batawa at the Air Force ground. The final of the Belleville Merchants Charity is also called for next week being played on Saturday afternoon. Mr. Frank Follwell M.P. has kindly consented to be present to award the cup to the winning team.

On Saturday Belleville United journey to Brockville in search of Eastern Ontario League points.

Today is a big day in 'Old Country' soccer circles being the first of the new soccer season. The Scottish season opened last Saturday, one week before the English leagues. Four new teams are included in the English league this year Clochester United and Gillingham in the Southern Section and Shrewsbury Town and Scunthorpe United in the Northern Division.

On Labor Day, Monday, Sept. 4th, the Bay of Quinte All Stars play Toronto Celtic in an exhibition game in Toronto. The football Association are intending to charter a bus to Toronto for this occasion and any Soccer fans wishing to take advantage of this cheap trip to the Queen City are requested to give their names to the president, Les Digby or secretary, "Chaiky" Whyte as soon as possible. If sufficient people are interested the Toronto Celtic Club are intending to put on a dance after the match.

Remember When

Tiger Flowers became the first Negro to hold the World's Middleweight Boxing Title when he outpointed Harry Greb at New York, 24 years ago tonight. Flowers held the crown four months, losing it to Mickey Walker Dec. 3.

RAIN HALTS GAME

Napanee, Aug. 19 (CP)—Darkness halted the Smiths Falls-Napanee Central Ontario Baseball game here last night with the teams tied 7-7. Napanee's three run rally in the last inning fell one short, Jocko being stranded on second. Bud Green struck out to end the inning.

A win would have clinched second place for the Falls team.

YESTERDAY'S STARS

(By The Associated Press)

Batting: Joe DiMaggio — Hit home run in the ninth inning against Philadelphia to give New York 3-2 edge.

Pitching: Jim Hearn, Giants — Held league-leading to five hits in 7-4 victory.

The SHARP-TAILED GROUSE is a brown, chicken-like bird with a short, dark tail. This tail, and the absence of neck ruffs, separate him from the ruffed grouse. Sometimes called the "prairie chicken", he's a valuable northwestern game bird, and deserves protection.

Rochester Wings Virtual Cinch To Win Pennant

Rochester Red Wings are a virtual cinch to win their first International League pennant in 10 years. With only 23 games to go, Johnny Keane's leaders hold a 6½ game advantage on runner-up Baltimore.

What's more, the schedule favors Rochester. More than half of their remaining contests are at Red Wing's stadium.

The Wings edged two steps closer last night by sweeping a doubleheader from Springfield, 9-0 and 6-4.

Baltimore also won two games, shading Montreal Royals 4-3 and 2-0. It gave the Orioles second place over Montreal.

Other league action saw Buffalo, behind Lynn Lovenguth's six-hit pitching, down Syracuse 9-3, and Toronto trim Jersey City 5-3.

Mike Schultz went the route for Rochester in the opener, spacing six hits. Steve Bilko's 400-foot double in the seventh inning of the second game sent in the tie-breaking run and gave Johnny Wittig the nod over Bill Moisan.

At Baltimore, Ray Poat and Karl Drews held Montreal to 11 hits during the two games. Drews hurled two-hit ball to blank Turk Lown and Ronnie Lee. Poat, pitching the opener, gave the Royals seven hits, while his mates smacked nine off loser Tom Lasorda and Al Epperly.

HORSE SENSE BRIDGE

By SAM GORDON
The Kibitzer

The experts and I do not disagree on the bridge rules. They use roundabout ways of reaching the same decisions. What they determine by logic for each hand I put into simple rules for all hands.

My rule for leads is: Follow the order of preference in tops, longies, shorts. They follow this choice, too. Our only difference is that they do not express it so compactly and precisely.

South opens with a bid of one no-trump. North responds with two no-trump. South bids three no-trump and becomes the declarer. You hold the west hand shown here:

♥9 7 6 3 2
♣A 8

An expert in his book would explain that west should make a waiting lead. That is, he should not lead one of these minor suits. He should wait for these suits to be led by one of the other hands.

As between a short suit and a long suit, he would go on to say, it is best to lead the long suit. There is more likelihood of a long suit developing than a short suit, if at all, and less harm.

To all of which my rule agrees. Not in so many words. Not with so much reasoning out in the midst of the game. But with the same result and because of exactly the same logic pre-determined.

See how this is determined by rule. In the order of choice the west hand has no top card lead. Second choice is from a long suit. This he has in hearts. The lead is heart three; a fourth best.

The third and last choice would have been from a short suit of some kind. Lacking a suit of four or more cards not bid by opponents, the lead would resolve to a card from a short suit.

Before we could come to a lead of diamonds or clubs in this hand we would lack a four card suit or longer. And if our longer suit contained an ace or a king it would not be a bad lead.

Horse Sense has pools of streamliner rules.

Donna Reid Gets Real Romance On the Screen

By BOB THOMAS

Hollywood — (AP) — After years of puppy love with Mickey Rooney and platonic affairs with Alan Ladd, Donna Reed is finally getting some real romance on the screen.

"I feel like a new woman," she glowed. "I've got a new home, a new baby, a new contract and a new kind of role — the first I've ever had with any sex in it."

The sweet-faced actress has just signed a deal with Columbia. Her first assignment is to make torrid love in "The Hero" with John Derek, the most popular bobbysox idol of the moment.

"It's a real witchy part," she declared. "I couldn't be happier. And for the first time I get to wear some appealing clothes. I have the first low-cut evening gown I've ever worn in films."

Donna did 20 pictures in eight years at M.G.M. and she was inevitably cast as the home-type girl. Either she ended up in a nunnery, as in "Green Dolphin Street," or she held hands with Mickey Rooney, "or I was a mother with three children."

No Soap

"The only picture I had any romance in was 'They Were Expendable'," she sighed. "I had some wonderful love scenes with John Wayne. But then the real-life counterparts of our roles saw the picture and complained that they were both married and that there had been no romance between them. So the scenes were cut out of the picture."

Her film romances with Alan Ladd were no better.

"I played the widow of Alan's war buddy. The studio felt veterans would resent it if Alan tried to make love.

"And in 'Chicago Deadline' I was dead when the picture started. Alan and I were supposed to have some love scenes in dream sequences. But at that time, fantasy had failed at the box-office and the studio didn't want to take a chance on it."

CANNOT BUY A TICKET

Philadelphia, Aug. 19 (AP) — The Philadelphia Phillies may be leading the National League by 5 1-2 games but you still can't buy a world series ticket.

The Phils are turning down all requests until baseball commissioner A. B. Chandler gives the go ahead sign.

Nathan (Babe) Alexander, public relations director, said 25,000 requests have been returned, together with cheques and money orders.

Accused Woman In Mental Hospital

Sudbury, Aug. 18 (CP) — A 56-year-old woman accused of the fatal shooting of her husband left here last night under escort for a mental hospital in Toronto.

A charge of murder against Mrs. Ellen McKay, whose husband, William, 56 was slain as he slept at their Manitoulin Island tourist lodge Aug. 4, was withdrawn yesterday.

Defence Counsel L. A. Landreville said today the decision was taken after Mrs. McKay had been examined by psychologists. She had been treated last winter for a mental illness, Mr. Landreville said.

FOREFATHERS

Scientists have estimated that anthrapoid apes existed on earth from 30,000,000 to 15,000,000 years ago.

TAXI'S NOVEL RECORD

London (CP) —A 17-year-old London taxicab has crossed the Simplon Pass, Switzerland, at a height of 6,595 feet. Driven by four Cambridge University students on a 3,000-mile tour of Europe, the taxi covered the entire distance without requiring any additional oil.

ROYAL SWANNERY

A ten-mile lagoon near the old town of Abbotsbury on the south coast of England is the largest swannery in Europe.

Little Benny's Note Book

Ma was sewing up in her room and I was standing there getting reddy to ask her if I could go to the Satturday Kid Show at the Little Grand, only I didn't want to ask her too suddin on account of her having had severel things agenst me lately and I wasn't sure how many she remembered, so I thawt I better ask her for some worse things ferst and come down gradual.

Which I started to do, saying, Hay ma, I know a good way to make a lot of money.

I wish I did, ma said, and I said, Well I'll tell you my way and maybe you'll come in it with me. It's raising snakes and making belts out of their skins. What do you think, ma? I said.

I think you're getting more and more senseless every day, ma said. All I need is a house full of snakes for land sakes, she said.

Being what I thawt she would say, and pritty soon I said, Well hay, ma, can I take some blankets and sleep up on the roof the next hot nite?

Oh yes, certainly, by all meens, you can sleep on the very edge, with a rattle snake and a bore constrictor and a few lizards, ma said.

Being sourcastic, and I thawt, G, it's werking swell.

And after a while I said, Hay, ma?

Now that's enough, and that's sufficient, ma said. Dont you dare ask if you can do a single other thing of any shape, form or discription, she said, and I said, Well gosh, ma, G.

You heard what I said so dont make me repeet it, ma said, and I said, But heck, ma, jimminy roozalem.

Are you going to delibritly disobey me? ma said, and I said, No mam.

Well I should hope not, that would be the last straw, ma said.

Which it proberly would of, so I didn't even try.

MARMORA

'Hec' Boudreau Enjoying Life As Camp Operator

Marmora—Baseball fans over a wide area will be interested in hearing that 'Hec' Boudreau catcher for Deloro's baseball team for about ten seasons including the year 1926 when they won the intermediate championship of Ontario, has been enjoying a successful season in making his debut as a resort operator Hec's "Sunset Cabins" grace the pastoral surrounding of property 1-4 mile west of the Deloro turn on No. 7 highway. Hec, who is a native of Farnham, Que., retired this spring on pension from the Deloro Smelting and Refining Company Ltd., after being in their employ for the last 27 years.

When Deloro's ball team entered the C.O.B.L. in 1927 the Peterborough team furnished interesting opposition. Max Swanston, now mayor of Peterborough was the catcher for his city's team, and these two rugged catchers as their teams opposed each other, often stole the spotlight from the pitchers of the game. Hec is hoping to see some of the old boys call for a few minutes as they chance to use No. 7 Highway enroute to a vacation destination.

Paintings for Sale

Mrs. Nell Boudreau, his wife, is making her own special contribution to the business. On the walls and shelves in the refreshment booth are displayed for sale, specimens of her painting art. The first twelve years of her life were spent in Toronto and at an early age, she evinced a great liking for painting. Though receiving no professional tuition she used to watch her uncle. William Archer at work on some of his subjects.

The latter's murals in the Royal Hotel Marmora, continue to attract attention. Recently a caller at the booth, who is having a new residence erected, ordered an enlargement 44x36 inches of one of her paintings that he might hang over the fire place in what will be his new home. Besides her pictures which are of various smaller sizes she has also hand painted tumblers and other articles, while in the show case, there is on display, varied types of fancy work on crochet lines. The Boudreau's are enjoying this new enterprise of theirs and in dealing with the tourists so far, have had no complaints.

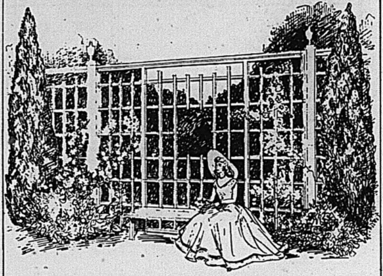
The TRELLIS in GARDEN DECORATION



The walls of a garden should let the breezes waft through them yet retain the sun's golden rays. They should harmonize with the lines of the garden and should be designed to become a part of the garden plan. The variety of design is wide in scope but should always be in good scale.

Walls made of light laths ¾" x 2", 2" x 2" with posts 4" x 4" should be constructed to leave large open meshes over which climbing plants may be guided in graceful profusion. Garden seats can be worked into the design and provide a pleasant resting place. Avoid complicated patterns as the vines and flowers will do their part in beautifying the boundaries of your property.

One Way to Get Train Crews Really Mad

When a St. Thomas man gained some fleeting fame by making a crack New York Central train stop at the platform to let him off, instead of his debarking far up on the cinders, he was only going through the motions of what the railroads have experienced for years, says a Windsor Star writer.

Every so often some passenger, or some individual, decided to stand up for his rights and compel the railways to act on the letter of the law. It makes a lot of anguish for the railroad operators, but they know when they have been had and they write it off as being a small victory for the individual who decides to score one for his side.

Lot of Baggage

The St. Thomas man was in one of the rear coaches of a long train. He had a lot of baggage. He would not get off and walk down the cinders to the platform and depot exit. He refused to get off. After some argument, the train crew pulled the train forward until the coach was opposite the station. Then, the passenger gathered up his bags and left.

Every once in a while the railroads catch a tartar in the man who carries the mails. The regulations stimulate that the mails shall be delivered from the platform. And, if the mail carrier wants to be sticky about it, he can make the train stop so that the mail coach will be opposite the platform.

This can be rather trying in some of the smaller places, where the depot may be a freight car that has been given a transformation so that it is no longer a box car, but a station. Usually the platform at these stations is only a few yards long.

That means that if there are passengers aboard the train who want to get on, the mail car is away up ahead of the platform, if the coaches are opposite the platform.

Pat on Platform

There have been cases where the mail carrier has stood on his rights, and also stood pat on the platform.

Refusing to get off the platform to carry the mail bag to the mail coach and receive one from it, the carrier has insisted that the train back until the mail car is opposite the platform. Then, he loads his mail and receives the mail for his station.

Whenever a carrier insists on this, the railroad men get angry. Sometimes the language is choice and there is a lot of argument.

But, in their heart of hearts the train people know that the mail carrier has the law and the regulations on his side. So, if the carrier insists on it, the only thing that can be done is back up the train and load and unload the mail with as good grace as it is possible to muster.

Irate Postmaster

There was one case in the West where the old Canadian Northern had a run-in with the postmaster. To save time, one train was being diverted along a cut-off switch that ran about 50 yards from the station platform. As no passengers got on or off there was no inconvenience.

But, the village folk were mad. They felt they were being slighted by the railroad. They wanted the train to come right in, then switch around and out again. They did not know what to do about it, but the postmaster had the answer.

He told the railroad that he would not put the mail on the train, because there was no platform. And, the regulations declared that the mail had to be delivered from the platform.

Shrewd Chap

That almost threw the whole arrangement for a total loss. But, the railroad superintendent was a shrewd chap. He also knew his law. And, he knew that while there had to be a platform, it did not say what kind of platform.

So, the bridge and building crew were put on the job. In a few hours they had constructed a platform one plank wide from the station over to the switch. And, it ran along the tracks far enough to avoid any backing or other trouble. The mail car could always be stopped alongside the platform.

Chuckle Fades

The postmaster had been chuckling about his victory over the railroad and how he was going to stop them using the cut-off switch. When he saw the one plank platform, he knew what it was all about. He understood the law, too, and he appreciated that he would have to carry the mail bag out to the train along the new platform.

These are just a couple of the things that have happened when people get sticky with the railroads.

And, of course, there are still men on the Canadian National who can get quite angry as they recall how a customs officer made the C.N.R. back their crack passenger train all the way from Walkerville back to Windsor, because the train had pulled out without proper customs clearance.

HONG KONG

It has long been accepted that Hong Kong was safe from an unfriendly China while she provided a source of supplies unaffected by the Nationalist blockade.

Irrespective of whether or not a third world war breaks out, such actions might well bring retaliation from the communists. Like the Nationalists before them, the reds are anxious to reunite Hong Kong soil with that of China.

Official figures have never been announced, but it is probable that Hong Kong's garrison does not exceed 20,000.

Hong Kong normally has the protection of a large section of the British Far Eastern fleet but many units are at present in Korean waters.

Air strength consists of two spitfire squadrons and a tiny volunteer air force.

The Chinese communists, on the other hand, probably have between 130,000 and 200,000 troops in the neighboring province of Kwangtung.

Plenty of fighter strips are available to the reds within easy range of the colony. If the Chinese communists can call on heavy bombers, there are suitable, well equipped fields at Canton and Kweilin.

In addition, the Chinese communists now occupy various islands from which big guns could dominate Hong Kong's western approaches and come near to closing the eastern entrance.

The communists, in event of turmoil, could also rely on the support of many sympathizers among Hong Kong's Chinese population of about 2,250,000.

Japanese White Paper Supports Action in Korea

Tokyo, Aug. 19 (AP) — The government today issued a 3,800-word "white paper" placing Japan squarely behind the United Nations in the Korean War as "a measure for our own self defence."

It was the Japanese government's first formal statement of policy since the outbreak of hostilities and agreed with past statements of political and industrial leaders.

Japan is the major forward staging area for the U.N. Korean effort.

The lengthy white paper did not specifically state how Japan proposed to assist but said:

"To co-operate with the democracies and assist in strengthening their unity should be considered as nothing less than a measure of our own self defence.

The paper also placed Japan in western democracies camp in the world struggle against communism.

"The only thing capable of defending us from the brute force of communism is the strength which comes from the unity of the democracies," it said.

The white paper called on all Japanese to help prevent acts of sabotage.

Insofar as the ideological war is concerned, the statement said, "we Japanese, who are already in the field of battle, cannot afford to take an ambiguous stand no more than we can flee before the enemy in a real war. It would mean nothing but ultimate destruction of our freedom and peace."

Minority opposition to the maintenance of allied military bases in Japan was condemned as one of the "instruments of the communists" for achieving their goal of control.

Japan, it said, is a "vital outpost for the United Nations forces."

The Gentle Heart

By Kay Hamilton

"I'll ask her." He put his books down and was half out of the door when he remembered what he had come for. "Oh, say, I want to ask you something. Can I work in your attic for a couple of weeks?"

Jenny looked at him questioningly. "In the attic? What do you want to do there?"

He twisted a little with embarrassment. "Well, I thought - - - everybody in my class made something for their family for Christmas, you know, so I—I did, too. Only I made two things, instead of one, so I won't have time to paint them at school. I thought if I could do it here—there's no place in our house, you might as well be living in a goldfish bowl—and I - - -"

"Why, of course you may!" Jenny said at once. "What did you make Dick?"

He scuffed over to the cookie jar. "Nothin' much," he said with a casual manner which did not deceive her. "A spool holder for Elsa, and a tie rack for Pete."

"Why, Dick, how thoughtful!" Jenny meant it, and Dick's ears grew red with pleasure. "You couldn't have chosen anything better for either of them! And they'll love the fact that you made them yourself."

"I don't know that they will," he said with sudden moroseness. "But I haven't got enough money to buy anything decent. I was always good at manual training," he added, "so they won't be too kiddish. But they won't look as good as something you get in the stores."

"Yes, they will. They'll look better, because they'll be individual. And you know how Pete and Elsa dote on individual things." Jenny saw that she had struck a happy note. "What color are you going to paint them "

"Maroon, I think it's called. That's for the tie rack. Anyhow, Elsa says their bedroom is done in maroon, powder blue and white, and I thought the dark color—you know, for a man."

"Of course. And the spool holder?"

"I don't know. Elsa's workroom hasn't got any color scheme. It's just a mess, most of the time, with stuff all over the place."

"Yes, it is." Jenny smiled. Elsa's workroom was every bit of that, she thought. She said, "Why don't you just varnish it or wax it? I Think that would be better, anyhow. The paint might stick on the spools, you know."

"Yeah, that's an idea. Okay! Be seein' you!" With an excess of high spirits, he bounded out of the door, and disappeared in the direction of Mrs. Folsom's house.

Jenny went back to her ironing with a pleased feeling. Apparently things were at last beginning to work out in the Torres household. She had known it would take time for three such divergent personalities to settle happily together, but now it looked as if the time of adjustment was really over. She picked up a pile of napkins, still warm from the iron, and carried them into the dining room.

As always, sorting the table linens made her think of her mother. So many times when she was little she had watched her lift them carefully from the drawer, or roll them on long tubes of cardboard. And one such occasion came back to her now. It had been when she was in her early teens. Diane had gone to a party that afternoon, and Natalie was in her first year of art school in New York. She could hear herself saying in a plaintive voice:

"Di's beautiful, and Nat is clever. But what am I, Mother?"

Her mother had put down the linens, as if recognizing that this was a moment which demanded all her mother love. She had gathered Jenny into her arms and had looked down into her face with infinite tenderness. "Yes," she had repeated, "Diane is beautiful, and Natalie is clever. But you have a gentle heart, mignonne, and I think that in the end you will be the one to get the most out of life."

Remembering those words Jenny stood still. Was it true? Or did a gentle heart only lay one open to more wounds and hurts than the average? She tried to comfort herself with a little philosophy. "I may be hurt more easily," she said, half aloud, "but perhaps I have the faculty of being happier too." And she went back to her ironing feeling comforted in some obscure fashion.

Jenny had never seen Elsa so distraught. She stood in the doorway wringing her slender- long-fingered hands in an unconscious gesture of distress. "You haven't seen him?" she repeated. "I can't imagine where—I've looked all over the neighborhood. His father will be furious. That's why I want to find him before—"

"When did you miss him?"

"When he didn't come home from school. Oh, I thought nothing of it, at first. I knew how fond he was of coming here for a bit of food and a gossip with you. You've no idea how attached he is to you, Jenny. But then he didn't come and didn't come, so I began telephoning his friends' homes. And they said he got off the school bus as usual, and that's where the trail ends. It's just luck that Pete didn't come home for dinner tonight. Do you think I ought to notify the police?"

Jenny bit her lip in indecision. If Dick were lying injured somewhere, certainly the police should be notified; every possible effort should be made to find him. But, somehow, Jenny felt Dick's disappearance had been a voluntary one, that putting the machinery of the police into motion was the last thing they should do. It would hopelessly antagonize and alienate him when he was found.

"Was there—" She hesitated, began again. "Had anything unpleasant happened at home?"

Elsa sighed on a ragged breath. "Oh, Jenny, something is always happening at our house that shouldn't! Things that used to crop up between Pete and me, and that we both used to brush aside without a second thought, are looming large nowadays. Just Dick's presence seems to make it so. Every time either one of us utters a cross word, it means a quarrel. Every time I get deep into my work and forget a meal, or it's half an hour late, that means I am Neglecting My Family. Every time Pete stays out for an extra cocktail, he is Running Around. That's the way things seem—things that we never even noticed before!" She put a shaking hand up to her head. "I've got to find him!"

"And nothing had happened this morning?" Jenny asked.

"No, everything was as smooth as butter at breakfast. I got up early and made waffles." Elsa laughed bitterly. "Imagine me. They weren't bad either, and Dick ate nine of them He even said he'd help me push the furniture around the living room tonight. We're having a Christmas tree for the first time in years, and we have to clear one end of the room for it."

"Perhaps he's Christmas shopping," Jenny suggested hopefully. But Elsa shook her head.

"I thought of that, too, and I've been all the way down Main Street, asking, in a covered-up sort of way, at every store. Nobody has seen him. I've tried to imagine where I would have gone if I'd been a fourteen-year-old boy who was planning to run away, and I'm a perfect blank. Oh, I do hope nothing has happened to him!"

Jenny was worried, although she tried to keep a serene face for her friend. If there had been some dreadful quarrel at breakfast, or if there had been anything at school to upset him, she could have understood better. But to go off like this without a word — without any apparent reason beyond the continuous one of maladjustment—She felt sure that Dick had run away, that he had not met with any accident.

She said, "Don't do anything for a few hours, anyway. Give him a chance to come back. Boys often do, you know. They give in to the impulse of the moment, and then later they're sorry they did. If they can come home again without too much fuss being made, it's easier all around."

"I'll ask Mrs. Folsom again," Elsa said, only half listening. "He might have gone there by now, he's so crazy about that dog." She went down the steps wearily, and Jenny stared after her, her brows knit in thought.

This was unfortunate. She had been so sure that things were working out at the Torres. Why, the very fact that Elsa would make breakfast waffles for Dick's sake showed what an effort she was making. Jenny was not so convinced about Pete. He had a regrettable tendency to walk away from any situation which distressed him emotionally, and she wondered now if Dick was not doing the same thing.

Newspaper Guild And N.Y. Paper Reach Agreement

New York, Aug. 19—(AP)—Negotiators reached an agreement at 5 a.m. EDT today in the two-month strike of the American Newspaper Guild (C.I.O.) against the New York World-Telegram and Sun.

The agreement came after nearly 15 hours of talks.

The terms, which were not made public, will be sent before the local executive board of the Guild Monday and will be voted on by the membership Tuesday.

The Guild walked out June 13, and the big afternoon paper suspended publication when A.F.L. mechanical unions honored its C.I.O. picket line.

Guild negotiations said they would recommend acceptance of the terms to the executive board and the 400 strikers.

"Both sides have agreed that there will be no discussion as to the details of the settlement until after the membership meeting," Walter A. Maggiolo, one of the three federal mediators, said.

In the meantime, the Guild will maintain its picket lines around the World-Telegram and Sun main plant, and the paper will make no new effort to resume publication.

B. O. McAnney, the managing editor, who was one of the negotiators for the Scripps-Howard paper, said that if the Guild accepts the terms the paper will publish" two or three days" later.

Maintain Picket Line

The time would be necessary to prepare the advertising and editorial departments and to get the mechanical plant running again. Pending presentation of the agreement before the Guild membership Tuesday night, the Guild will maintain its picket line, Thomas J. Murphy, executive vice-president of the Guild's New York local, said.

The strike was extraordinarily significant to the newspaper industry because it was the first test of a new agreement between the A.F.L. printing trades unions and the C.I.O. Guild to support each other in bargaining disputes.

The two labor groups had cemented the bargain only a few has to go up each day to the place where the battle activity is highest, or at least he does many days if he has a conscience. So he gets at least an admiring understanding of the average combat infantryman.

He gets an extra bonus — an understanding on the part of the days before the June 13 walkout.

Throughout the strike, the mechanical unions refused to cross the Guild picket lines and resisted bids to return to work.

The 400 Guildsmen include the bulk of the big daily's editorial, advertising and business office employees.

After the A.F.L. unions declined to cross the Guild lines, the paper suspended publication and no effort was made to resume operations. Some employees, executives and non-Guildsmen reported each day, however.

CORRESPONDENT'S

soldier of the job a correspondent has to do. This happens so often that it usually makes a correspondent feel ashamed. Many and many a time an infantryman will say to a reporter who goes up front:

"You're crazy. You mean you come up here when you ain't ordered to? Look! Be smart! Get the hell out of here."

But if you hang around for a while with them under mortar or artillery fire and still get the hell out of there they like you for it. They remember you as an old friend the next time you visit them — whether they are in combat or not.

For some reason this gives you a feeling of guilt at night after you have come back to what passes for a comfortable billet in wartime and have finished your writing for the day.

You go out on a small balcony and see the lights of distant guns and hear their far-off rumble. A few trigger-happy rear headquarters troops send up some red tracer fire and someone new to the front says:

"Look! Lightning bugs!"

And some more experienced correspondent says:

"Yeah, .50-calibre fire-flies!"

It's all so beautiful when you are out of range.

Oh, it feels good to be alive and so far away from it then. You don't think that tomorrow you will be up in that battlefront again yourself.

You just think that maybe you ought to write a letter home to someone you love — and you wonder whether the unseen and hidden hell of metal that breaks with each flash of light will kill an enemy — or touch someone you met yesterday or the day before.

Reds Building Up Concentrations For New Attacks

11,000 Casualties Inflicted On Enemy in Past 48 Hours

APPOINTED TO DIRECT INTELLIGENCE DIVISION

WALTER BEDELL SMITH

President Truman has named Lieut.-Gen. Walter Bedell Smith, former ambassador to Moscow, as director of central intelligence — an agency which gathers and analyses reports from diplomatic, military and all other sources. There have been demands in Congress for a shake-up of the agency since the Korean war. Some congressmen contended U.S. was caught flat-footed by the invasion of South Korea June 25 by North Korean Communist troops.

—Central Press Canadian

Tokyo, Aug. 21 (CP)—North Koreans, hard hit by Allied counter-attacks in the last two days, are building up threatening troop concentrations on two sectors of the Korean front.

Reports from the battle zone, where Allied forces claimed to have inflicted 11,000 casualties on the communists in 48 hours, said the reds appeared to be preparing major offensives on the central and southern fronts.

Reuters News Agency said the north Koreans were building up two new bridgeheads west of the Naktong river, one at Hyongpung, 15 miles southeast of Taegu, and the other in the Waegwan-Kunwi area about the same distance to the northwest.

Yanks Driven Back

Twelve miles north of Taegu in the central sector Allied troops were pushed back two miles Sunday night but checked the communist drive with the aid of night-flying fighter - bombers which attacked their targets by the light of blazing phosphorus shells.

The other immediate threat appeared to be in the deep south where the communists were building up at Chinju for a new offensive aimed at Pusan, main Allied port on the southeastern tip of the peninsula.

The communists have 10 more days to achieve their avowed objective of smashing the United Nations defence box by Aug. 31. By that time the defenders may have been strengthened by 1,500 crack British troops from Hong Kong.

In fighting during the weekend on the 120-mile front, communist losses were set at 2,000 in the south, 6,000 on the central front, and 3,000 on the east coast north of Pohang.

Red losses included an unspecified number of troops on two ships knocked out by the south Korean navy off southwestern Korea.

Crack British Units to Join Forces in Korea

Hong Kong, Aug. 21—(AP)—Two crack British battalions of the Argyll and Sutherland Highlanders and the Middlesex Regiments today were reported packing up to join United Nations forces in Korea.

An official source named the units, 1,500 strong, after Gen. Sir John Harding announced in Singapore that a British infantry force would be sent to Korea immediately.

Harding, commander of Britain's far east land forces, said Gen. MacArthur had asked him for reinforcements without delay.

Britain already has sea and air forces fighting, but these will be her first ground troops in Korea. She has promised 5,000.

Britain's decision came as communist China's premier-foreign minister, Chou En-Lai, said the "Korean question must and can be solved peacefully."

Chou gave red China's proposals in messages to Trygve Lie, United Nations secretary-general, and Jakob A. Malik of Russia, president for August of the U.N. Security Council at Lake Success.

China's Terms

Red China's terms, as reported by the communist new China News Agency:

Accept Russia's proposal for seating red china in the U.N. and then start talking over the Korean question in the council with a red Korean representative at the table as a witness.

The red agency said Chou's message "denounced America for creating the Korea incident, for attempting to broaden the scope of armed conflict, for aggression in Korea and Taiwan (Formosa) and for blocking peaceful solution of the Korean war."

(Red China troops were active meanwhile. A Peiping radio broadcast heard in San Francisco said the communists had captured Nanpang Island 140 miles southwest of Hong Kong, wiping out 400 Chinese nationalist troops.)

In Taipei, Formosa, nationalist premier Chen-Cheng predicted the next big communist move would come in Indo-China.

Inside China, guerrillas were

Who Will Count Flin Flon Parking Metre Pennies

Flin Flon, Man., Aug. 21 (CP) — Who's going to count the pennies collected from Flin Flon's new parking meters?

A bank has offered paper wrappers but won't fill them.

No city employee has volunteered for the job.

A pailful of pennies was dumped on the council table last week. Councillors reached the logical conclusion: It was their money and they'd have to count it themselves.

So they counted and wrapped, counted and wrapped. Nine man-hours of work were involved.

Then they reached agreement: at the next council meeting, somebody is going to be made official counter.

Gold Stops Rheumatoid Arthritis Especially When it is Used Early

By ALTON L. BLAKESLEE

New York, Aug. 20 (AP) — Gold is good medicine for rheumatoid arthritis, especially when it's used early, a new study shows.

The gold is given by injecting gold salts. It has been used in the United States for about 15 years against the pains and swellings of this crippling form of arthritis.

Gold stopped the disease nearly 80 percent of the time when used early, Drs. Russel L. Cecil and Chester Adams report in the annals of internal medicine. Early means within six months after the disease started. Gold was not so helpful if the arthritis had been under way longer.

They gave gold treatment to 106 men and women and compared them with 83 others who did not get gold. Both groups had the conventional treatments for arthritis, including rest, good tygiene, aspirin, exercises and orthopaedic help if needed.

Of all those getting gold, 66 percent had remissions or relief from the disease for a year. Of those starting gold within six months of getting arthritis, 78.7 percent got remissions. Of those who had arthritis six months to a year, 48.9 percent got relief.

But of those not getting gold, only 24.1 percent had remissions.

Patients getting gold treatments won relief from arthritis 10 months earlier on the average, than those not getting gold.

The hormones cortisone and acth bring dramatic relief from rheumatoid arthritis. But those recoveries last only as long as the hormone is given. And the hormones still are scarce and expensive.

TIME DRAWING CLOSE WHEN REDS MUST FACE ISSUE

Soviet May Move Openly in Korea

Washington, Aug. 21. (AP)—What will Russia do when her North Korean satellite begins to lose the war?

Reverses for the Korean communist army will force a decision by the Russians on whether to move openly into the Asiatic war or bide their time for another day when the stakes could be greater and the odds better.

The time for Moscow's decision apparently is coming nearer.

The swift and long advance of the North Korean army has ground down to at least a temporary halt. The build-up of strength by American forces, with more help from other United Nations members in the offing, is under way. An offensive to destroy the Korean red military force is in prospect for the months just ahead. And it is then Russia will have to decide.

She will have to weight the possible effect on other countries within the Soviet sphere of defeat for her Korean communist state against the risks of taking a direct hand in war with the United States and United Nations.

Russia, for reasons of her own, may conclude that the time to move isn't now but later, when her military strength is even greater, meanwhile using the Korean situation as material for her peculiar propaganda technique.

Some high officials in Washington incline to the belief that Russia doesn't want to provoke a world war until later, when she is fully prepared.

Two to Five Years

The time-table they use in these guesses varies considerably—from two to five years.

The Soviet Union has an immense army—some estimates range around 4,000,000—which is equipped with superior tanks and excellent artillery. They have a large tactical air force for support of the ground army.

But the Russians may want more time to improve and augment weapons in the highly-technical category.

Another two or three years may be needed for building a larger number of atomic bombs.

They have the beginning of a long-range bomber force for delivery of the bombs, but may need considerably more long-range bombardment practice.

They have begun a huge expansion of their submarine fleet. Although the Russian undersea fleet may number as many as 300 submarines, only a small portion of that fleet is believed to be of the modern high-speed type, equipped with snorkels for long underwater cruises.

These estimates and hopes that Russia may not be ready for war now are predicated on "evaluations" made by the military-political intelligence system of the western powers.

The danger is that the intelligence may be faulty as it has been on some previous occasions.

Embargoes on Parcel Mail, Freight, Express Shipments In Effect Across Dominion

Montreal, Aug. 21—(CP)—Embargoes on parcel mail, express and future freight shipments went into effect across Canada today as transportation and communications agencies prepared to meet a rail strike called for 6 a.m. local time tomorrow.

A blanket embargo on all express for Canadian roads and connecting United States lines, went into effect at noon today. Telegrams other than full rate and day letters that can be delivered "before the close of business" are not being accepted and cablegrams must be filed before 4 a.m. Tuesday morning.

Rail officials said telegrams or cables on hand when a strike is called will be forwarded by special delivery mail.

A blanket freight embargo will go into effect at 11.59 local time tonight if a settlement is not reached.

The post office department said an embargo on parcels for Canadian points is in effect and parcels for United States points will be refused after 7 p.m. tonight.

Airmail parcels will be accepted anytime. Officials said regular letters will be accepted and will be air mailed to their destination for the regular rate.

UK Labor Asks New Scheme To Succeed Marshall Aid

By GLEN WILLIAMS

London, Aug. 21 (AP) — The Labor Party has called for a new, long-term "world plan for mutual aid" to succeed the Marshall Plan in 1952.

The idea is to beat communism with butter instead of guns.

Britain and other western powers would contribute to it as well as the United States.

The party's powerful executive committee, which includes Prime Minister Attlee and several other cabinet members, set forth the plan yesterday in a pamphlet laying out, in general terms, some of its ideas for a new election platform.

Defence Against Aggression

The pamphlet, entitled "Labor and the New Society," called also for armed defences "strong enough to resist aggression."

But it added: "Reliance on armed strength is not enough. The democracies must be positive, constructive and progressive, not merely defensive. They should launch a program of mutual aid for world economic development."

It saw a new, long-range economic plan as an essential defence against the onrush of Russian-led communism.

"Rising standards of living are the strongest defence against infiltration by communism and fascism," the booklet said. "Poverty and despair are their best allies."

Morgan Phillips, secretary of the party, told a press conference that Britain herself would take the initiative in proposing and planning such a program. It would carry further the idea expressed in President Truman's inaugural address of helping develop "backward areas" of the world.

Free Peoples to Contribute

"All the free peoples would be expected to contribute to the world plan according to their ability," the party said. "The plan would be carried out through public as well as private investment, through national as well as international action, through colonial development as well as through the United Nations.

"The guiding purpose of such a plan would be to help the poorer peoples to help themselves, and the extension of democratic self government would accompany economic progress."

Phillips said that Russia and other communist powers would not be specifically excluded from such a plan but declared "we would not want a veto." This apparently would exclude the Russians, anyhow.

The party backtracked on an assertion in a previous pamphlet that Britain could co-operate only with socialist governments.

"We do not expect all the countries with which we co-operate to be a socialist," the new pamphlet said. "All we ask is that they should have sufficient mastery over their own economic systems to fulfil their obligations in international planning."

Railway Strike Forces Mills To Lay Off Men

Cleveland, Aug. 21 — (AP) — Plant railroad workers today began a five-day strike at Republic Steel Corporation, forcing the big steel producer to lay off 1,500 of its 7,000 employees here.

The walkout by members of the Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen began promptly at 6 a. m. EDT on Republic's 22-mile River Terminal Railway. It employs some 400 workers.

The trainmen represent about half of the line's workers. The others belong to the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers and the Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen and Enginemen, and cannot operate the trains without the trainmen.

Similar strikes were called on terminal lines in Louisville, Ky., and St. Paul, Minn.

The walkouts were ordered in the face of a request from President Truman that the terminals keep working. The unions said they would cancel the strikes only if Truman seized all the country's railroads. There was no indication he would do so at this stage.

Such seizure has been requested of the president three times by the unions, the Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen and the Order of Railway Conductors.

Two short - line railroads also vital transportation links to feed raw materials to essential industries, are to be strikebound tomorrow, in addition.

Too Often Leave School Too Soon Says Director

Ottawa, Aug. 21—(CP) — Robert Gauthier of Ottawa, director of French teaching in Ontario, last night told representatives of French - speaking co-operatives that French-speaking children "too often" leave school too soon.

Mr. Gauthier was guest speaker at a banquet during a two-day session of the Canadian Council of co-operatives, representing more than 1,000 French-speaking co-operatives from all parts of Canada.

He said there is a need for teaching the basics of co-operation in elementary and secondary schools. The whole task lay not only with the teachers, but with the family.

Aerial Acrobat Climbs Down After 37 Hours

Brighton England, Aug. 21 — (Reuters) — "The Great Reno" climbed down from a 45-foot pole at a circus here last night after sitting on top of it for 37 hours and 10 minutes.

He had won the country's queerest sitdown strike.

Reno, otherwise known as John Fossett, 26, aerial acrobat, climbed his pole Thursday morning, refused to come down until the circus management agreed to release him from a contract.

Last night, shortly before midnight, circus manager Vic Templar gave in.

HURRICANE TURNS WEST TOWARDS CAPE BRETON ISLE

Winds Rise to 40 MPH Shipping is Warned

Halifax, Aug. 21 — (CP) — A hurricane churning along the Atlantic seaboard curved inwards toward Cape Breton today and weather officials said the island may be battered by gusts of 90 miles an hour.

At noon ADT, the twister was centred about 70 miles off Halifax and winds of 70 miles an hour, accompanied by drenching rain, were general along Nova Scotia's south coast. Mountainous seas were predicted by Cape Breton and Newfoundland.

The weather office here renewed its warning to shipping that the hurricane — which already has damaged two ships — is 'still very dangerous.' It was following a course approximately parallel to the seaboard.

100 - mile Winds

Early this morning the storm was about 100 miles south of Yarmouth, N. S., and winds rose to 40 miles an hour in gusts in the south-shore town. The centre of the hurricane was expected to move along the coast about 50 miles offshore. Reports from ships in the storm area indicated that winds near the centre of the storm were more than 100 miles an hour. The weather bureau said that New Brunswick and the western half of P. E. I. will escape punishing winds.

The freighter Russel R. Jones, meanwhile, was headed for Wilmington, N. C., with a United States Coast Guard cutter escort after battling the storm. The S.S. South Ben Victoria, was wallowing in heavy seas with her engines and her lifeboats wrecked. The ship radioed for help and a Coast Guard cutter went to her aid.

Police and fire departments in this capital city prepared for any emergency. The entire police force was ordered on duty at midnight and will remain on emergency call until all danger has passed.

Dig Up Tombstone in Basement

Perry, Ia., Aug. 21 — (AP) — Mr. and Mrs. Victor Cornelius have a tombstone in their basement and they aren't happy about it.

The grave marker, bearing the date 1880, was uncovered by workmen digging out a basement area for placement of a new furnace.

Mrs. Cornelius says: "I told them they didn't need to dig any deeper."

Veil of Mystery Still Around Cryptic Killer of Leon Trotsky

By LAURENCE F. STUNTZ

Mexico City Aug. 20 (AP) — The 10 years since Leon Trotsky was assassinated still leave the veil of mystery around his cryptic killer.

Jacques Mornard, if that is his name, is serving a 20-year-sentence for the crime. But police are not sure of his name, of his nationality, of the source of the money which enables him to live in a comfortable suite of cells in the federal penitentiary.

They have not even established definitely a motive for the killing.

Mornard, now 46, has said he was "disillusioned" with Trotsky and that is why he killed the Russian revolutionary with a mountaineer's ax. Later he said he killed in self-defence.

But the 60-year-old Trotsky said before he died that Mornard was a Russian secret police agent.

Trotsky, exiled from Russia after he broke with Stalin, took refuge here. His fourth internationale, anti-Stalin communism, attracted adherents. Enemies tried to kill him. He lived through a machine-gun attack on the house he rented from the Mexican painter Diego Rivera. One of his secretary guards was abducted and killed.

Mornard had professed great admiration for Trotsky. On the afternoon of Aug. 20, 1940, Mornard obtained an interview. He said he wanted to show him a manuscript. A few minutes later Trotsky, blood streaming down his face stumbled out of his office. Behind him was Mornard, the mountain ax he had brought with him under his coat. Trotsky died next day.

Psychiatrists said Mornard had a mental fixation compelling him to strike other persons.

His trial continued for three years, Mornard remaining in the penitentiary all the time. Finally April 16, 1943, he was sentenced to 19 1-2 years for the assault and six months more for carrying a pistol.

After another five years — three quarters of his sentence — he will be eligible for parole. There has been nothing to indicate that he will be released within the next five years— or even, in view of what may await him outside the jail, that he wants to be released.

Situation Looks Grave as Walkout Deadline Nears

Up to Mid-Morning No New Parleys With Mediator Held

Montreal, Aug. 21 (CP) — Indications early this afternoon were that mediation efforts have reached a point of deciding whether, as a result of the wage-hour dispute between railways and non-operating employees, there is to be a Canadian railway strike tomorrow morning.

By FORBES RHUDE
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Montreal, Aug. 21 — (CP) — Railways and rail unions were still stymied on the strike issue today and as time ticked on toward tomorrow's 6 a.m. deadline the situation looked grave.

Up to mid-morning there had been no new conference of the special government mediator with either railway heads or representatives of the 124,000 non-operating union men who want more money and shorter hours.

But private conferences went on at a fast pace in the mid- town hotel where special mediator Dr. W. A. Mackintosh has been carrying on since Saturday morning his efforts to bring the two sides together

The tight-lipped character of the proceedings was exemplified in a statement from the Canadian National Railways which said:

"While negotiations are on the railroads refuse to confirm or deny any rumors of any kind or character."

Seventeen unions involving 124,000 non-operating workers declare they will go on strike at 6 a. m. local time Tuesday unless an agreement is reached, and by this afternoon many of the strike preparations would be so far under way that it might be difficult to recall some of them immediately.

Railways have cautioned passengers not to start on trips which last beyond the coming midnight, and already the movement of goods is being curtailed, and in some cases halted, so as to avoid spoilage should freight and express cars roll to a stop.

The running trades — engineers, firemen, conductors, brakemen — are not part of the present dispute; but the strike of the men concerned — shopmen, maintenance men, telegraphers and others — would effectively tie up all rail services and make telegraph service difficult.

Railways and unions ended their direct negotiations Friday. In brief, the men asked a wage increase — seven or 10 cents an hour for various union groups—and a 40-hour week to go into effect Jan. 1 next, with the same take-home pay as now.

The companies offered a 44-hour week with the same take-home pay as for 48 hours, plus a recognition that the 40 - hour week would be instituted "at an appropriate time." The alternative offer was the 48-hour week with an 8½-cent hourly increase.

Mediator Hears Story

That left a long way between them, and into this picture Saturday came Dr W. A. Mackintosh, vice-chancellor of Queen's University, Kingston, Ont., appointed a special mediator by the federal government.

Saturday he heard the stories of both sides in separate meetings and since then he has been trying to see how they can get together.

The implication, though unstated, is that both sides will need to give away somewhat if there is to be hope of averting the strike. This is difficult because both sides had already about exhausted their efforts in this direction.

Yesterday, meetings followed one another fast but left the two parties still some distance apart, First, Dr. Mackintosh met with the union representatives in the forenoon, and again in the early afternoon; then he saw the railways, and then the unions again.

TO MEDIATE RAILWAY DISPUTE

A slim hope of averting a national railway and telegraph strike, scheduled by 90,000 of the 125,000 railroad workers for morning of Aug. 22, rests with newly government - appointed mediator, W. A. Mackintosh, vice president and dean of arts at Queen's University, Kingston. Dr. Mackintosh was called to Ottawa while cabinet was still considering the strike issue. His appointment was announced a few minutes after the cabinet decision to start mediation. The union is asking a general wage increase of seven cents per hour retroactive to July 16, 1949. This was in addition to a demand for a wage boost that would compensate for the reduction in the work week.

BEAVER OATS RUN 100 BUS. TO ACRE

Beaver oats which turned out 100 bushels to the acre have been reported by Garnet Denyes, 7th concession of Thurlow township. Mr. Denyes reported that he threshed 400 bushels from four measured acres of land. Fertilizer recommended by the Department of Agriculture had been used on the land.

ONTARIO INTELLIGENCER MAKES ARRANGEMENTS FOR PAPER DELIVERY

With the railway strike still unsettled the circulation department of the Ontario Intelligencer has made arrangements wherever possible for delivery of papers by truck and bus.

All areas of Hastings county and Prince Edward county, as well as the east part of Northumberland and the west part of Lennox and Addington will be covered by bus or truck delivery. However, there may be still a few centres where delivery will be interrupted through advent of the railway strike but every effort will be made for delivery of the paper in these areas with as little delay as possible.

CHESTERFIELD BURNS IN STATION ST. HOME

A six-year-old lad playing with matches was said to be responsible for a fire which Monday morning burned a chesterfield at the home of George Gulliver, 245 Station Street. Firemen answered the alarm and succeeded in confining the blaze to the chesterfield with no other damage being reported.

$300 DAMAGES AS CARS COLLIDE

Damage amounting to over $300 resulted Sunday when two autos collided at the corner of Station and Emily Streets.

Clarence Cook, 40 Parker St., was said by police to have been driving east on Station Street and was making a right hand turn onto Emily Street, when his car was in collision with a car driven by W. C. Irvine, 83 Catherine St., who was proceeding west on Station Street and making a left turn onto Albion Street.

NORTHERN LIGHTS SEEN SATURDAY

The first in Nature's magnificent autumn display of pyrotechnics took place Saturday evening when residents of Belleville and District were treated to an awesome session by the Aurora Borealis, or northern lights. The ghostly fires lit up the whole heaven, shimmering from every compass point. The flickering silver-green lights attracted many spectators who shivered slightly from the cold and possibly from the thought that autumn is almost on us before we have really had any summer.

Seventy-Third Jump Made In Near Gale

Charlie Murphy, Belleville's intrepid parachute jumper made his seventy-third leap Sunday at Crystal Beach, Madoc, despite a 35 mile an hour wind that might have brought about his ruin.

Normally a wind of that velocity would have resulted in the whole thing being called off but when Charlie saw the large crowd that had gathered to watch his performance he decided to go ahead despite conditions.

On landing, after free-falling for 1,500 of the 2,000 feet, he reported that the jump was routine.

A week ago last Saturday, in an effort to improve his timing he leaped into the Bay of Quinte from a height of 2,000 feet. Only this time instead of opening at 500 feet he plummeted down to 200 feet before opening the chute. Since he jumped over the C.P.R. tracks and relied on the speed of the airplane and the wind drift to get him over the bay.

Final Sessions Of YPU National Council Held

Final sessions of the National Council of the Young People's Union of the United Church wound up the proceedings Sunday at Albert College. Elections and reslutions finished the business and almost 175 delegates started home.

Elected for the next four years were Ken Symons of Harwood, Ont., as treasurer. Others were Mary Holmes, Halifax, N.S., and Isabel Davidson, Turo, N.S., convener of stewardship and training, Audrey Brown, Hamilton, Ont., convener of faith and evangelism Val Anderson, Ituna Sask., convenor of missions and world outreach, Mary Kettles, Ramsayville, Ont., and convener of culture and recreation, Evelyn Lapp, Toronto.

The executive remined behind for a session that will last most of today to adopt the resolutions of the Council and organize commissions.

Success of the meeting this year officials said was indicated by the pledges of all delegates present to raise $4,160 among themselves for mission work in the United Church. They also voted to set a total objective of $100,000 for the Young People's Unions to contribute to missions. This latter total is double what the previous Council passed on.

Executive Installed

The new National Executive was installed Sunday morning immediately after the last theme address and period of worship by Dr. A. B. B. Moore, theme speaker for the six-day council.

Dr. Graham Hudson of Ottawa, retiring president of the Council, said this morning that the meeting this year was the "most successful ever held." He said that he felt that "the youth of the church is facing the problems of today both within the home and on a world basis, with greater concern and with a more straightforward, frank approach than at any time during the last 15 years."

Delegates attended the Council from all ten provinces of Canada. Sessions are held every four years. New president elected at this session is Don Reid of Shubenacadie, N.S.

Minister of Welfare Lays Corner Stone of New County Home Before Large Crowd

With completion of the structure expected early in the new year, the corner stone of Hastings County's new million dollar old people's home was officially laid Saturday afternoon by the Hon. Wm. A. Goodfellow, Minister of Welfare, for the province of Ontario.

County and city officials, as well as members of parliament for the local ridings and a number of interested spectators were on hand as the Welfare Minister applied the mortar with a silver trowel and declared the corner stone "well and truly laid."

In a metal container buried into a receptacle of the corner stone went a current copy of the Ontario Intelligencer and other documents bearing the names of county officials. This was placed in the stone by Elmer Sandercock, M.P.P., and former superintendent of the county old people's home.

Mr. Goodfellow said he was glad to see such a fine old people's home being constructed in Hastings county. "The provincial government would pay 50 per cent of the cost of its construction," he said.

Falls in Three Groups

Turning to the work of his own department he said that welfare responsibility fell into three groups—children, the disables, and the aged. "We don't have to worry too much about the others," he said, "but if democracy is to function we must give attention to these three groups."

The aged people were creating an ever increasing problem in the province, due to the increase in population and through a longer life span. To provide old people with security provision of the proper type of accommodation represented the great need.

Mr. Goodfellow referred to the present old people's home operated by the county and paid tribute to Mr. Sandercock who had acted as its superintendent for many years.

Served Usefulness

But he said the present old people's home had served out its usefulness.

Today, proper segregation of the different types of old people was necessary. Ontario owed its old people something better than quartering people with all their faculties with the senile or with a half wit.

Under the new system there would be preservation of family life as much as possible.

The Hastings county home was one of several which would be built in various parts of the province and these homes would do much to relieve congestion in crowded hospitals. He said it was ridiculous that old people without infirmities should be quartered in hospitals. Construction of old people's home was the answer as a home could be built for $4,000 per bed, while a hospital costs $10,000 per bed.

"This building will be a symbol of service for the care of the aged in Hastings for many years to come," the minister said in conclusion.

Splendid Co-operation

County Warden Clarke T. Rollins referred to the "complete co-operation" shown by members of the building committee, by members of county council and with officials of the city. "Progress in the construction of the building was due only to this fine co-operation between county and city officials and from members of parliament," he said.

Warden Rollins read the names of county official, building committee members who had assisted in getting construction of the new home underway. He said the building was expected to be completed early in 1951.

Charles Buskard, Deloro, chairman of the county home building committee, acted as chairman for the stone laying ceremony. Invocation was by Rev. F. R. Harback minister of Tabernacle United Church.

Mr. C. Craig of Craig and Madill, architects finalizing the home plans, told of completion of the plans started by the late J. Arnold Thomson of this city. The final plans followed closely the scheme planned by Mr. Thomson although details have been changed.

Seven Buildings

The new county old people's home situated approximately one and a half miles west of the city on No. 2 highway will be comprised of seven group buildings. General scheme is of one storey height with concrete block and brick construction. The buildings will be as nearly fireproof as possible.

Already the barns and other buildings connected with the county farm have been completed and are in use. It is expected by county officials that the general contractors, M. Sullivan and Sons of Arnprior will have the new home completed early in the new year.

Three Arrested Near Marmora Held for Theft From Service Station at Madoc Sunday

Apprehended by provincial police near Marmora after they had hid out in a woods for six hours, three young men are in custody here today charged with theft of money from a Madoc service station Sunday afternoon.

The three men are John Deserno, 19, of Oshawa; Thomas Henry, 21, and Orval King, 18, of Toronto. A fourth man, Wm. C. Bailey, of Kingston, was also apprehended by police but it is expected he may be released.

The three first named men also have been charged by Belleville police with theft of money from a Bridge Street service station in this city, and also for attempted theft at another gasoline station.

Provincial police believe they are the same men who attempted to hold-up a service station at Rossmore, one mile south of here, last Friday night, and it is expected the men will be charged.

Three Rifle Till

Shortly before five o'clock Sunday afternoon three men walked into the Clifford Rivers' service station at Madoc and as Mr. Rivers stepped out of his office into the workshop are said to have rifled the till of about $50. A small boy who happened to witness the act said the men "took a whole handful of bills."

Rivers notified provincial police at Madoc and a call for assistance was sent through to Belleville and Peterborough with result that road blocks were set up in the area.

An hour later Corporal Jack Hatch of Madoc spotted a car answering the description of the one used by the three men as he drove toward Marmora on highway No. 7. The men in the other car seeing the police cruiser ditched their vehicle and disappeared into the woods.

Emerged From Woods

Police then concentrated their search around the woods with about eight officers taking part in the search. Finally four men emerged from the woods shortly after midnight and they were apprehended by Provincial Constable J. A. Fullerton from Belleville.

The men were brought to Belleville and this morning they appeared in a police lineup.

Later a charge of theft and also of attempted theft of service stations in this city were laid by Police Inspector Hayes. Inspector A. McDougall of the provincial police said theft charges had been laid in connection with the theft at Madoc.

Grows Third Set Of Teeth Claims 83-Year-Old Man

Watertown, N. Y., Aug. 21 — (AP) — An 83-year-old man who says he never has been to a dentist claims he's growing his third set of teeth.

William Schweitzer of Perch River said he had only four of his second set of teeth left when he first noticed the third set edging through.

Schweitzer's daughter, Mrs. Mary B. Phillips, said "Father is uncomfortable, but pleased about the whole thing."

Obituary

HORACE A. E. WRIGHT

Horace A. E. Wright, grocer, at 82 West Moira Street, for some years, died suddenly of a heart attack at his home, this Monday morning. He was about his work in his usual good health earlier in the morning and suffered the attack while at work and died suddenly.

The late Mr. Wright was born in England being the son of the late Mr. and Mrs. William Wright. When he came to this country he settled on the 2nd concession of Thurlow, but 21 years ago he came to the city and established a grocery business, which he has continuously operated. He was well known and highly respected in the community and he took a great interest in all phases of civic life. A faithful member of Christ Church he acted as warden for six years. He was also instrumental in the formation of a men's club in that congregation and for three years served as president.

Surviving are his wife, the former Frances McFarlan, two daughters Mrs. Goldworth (Mary) Livingston of Belleville, Mrs. Douglas (Agnes) York of Thurlow township, and one son, James at home.

Resting at the Belleville Burial Company Funeral Home, the funeral announcement is made elsewhere in this edition.

JOHN BERNARD MACAULY
(Trenton)

John Bernard Macauly, a lifelong resident of Trenton and vicinity, died at his home, R. R. No. 3, Trenton, Thursday morning, August 17, following a lengthy illness. He was in his 81st year.

The son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Bernard Macauly, he is survived by his wife, the former Catherine Ambrose; five sons, Arthur, Robert, Ambrose, Bernard, and Jack, all of Trenton, and two daughters, Mrs. Emmett O'Malley of Trenton, and Mrs. Leslie Cox of Trenton.

He is also survived by 26 grandchildren.

The deceased was a member of St. Alphonsus Catholic Church, Wooler, and was a member of the Sacred Heart Society of that Church.

His funeral Mass was sung in the Church of St. Alphonsus, Wooler, Saturday morning, August 19th, at 10.00 a. m. Interment in Mount Calvary Cemetery Wooler.

Reverend Father F. L. Rishee of Wooler sang the Requiem Mass. The deceased five sons, and one grandson, Robert O'Malley, were pallbearers.

MISS FLOSSIE JANE HULIN

Stirling—The funeral of Miss Flossie Jane Hulin was largely attended on Thursday afternoon at the Duffin Funeral Home.

Deceased was in her 61st year and had been a partial invalid since four years of age when she was stricken with spinal meningitis. During her last illness of a few months she was at the Green Nursing Home but previous to that she was given loving care by her sister-in-law Mrs. Harry Hulin at whose home she had resided since the death of her parents the late Mr. and Mrs. David Hulin.

Deceased was a member of the Standard Church and her pastor and his wife paid her many visits. She also was visited by Rev. A. E. Baker pastor of St. Paul's United Church, Stirling, and she specially requested that he conduct her funeral service with Rev. B. Harpel assisting and both ministers gave special messages.

The hymns were favorites of the deceased "What a Friend We Have in Jesus" and "Abide With Me." Mr. and Mrs. John Reid, Stockdale, sang "The Old Rugged Cross."

The bearers were all neighbors, Messrs. Frank Whiteman, Bert Third, Sam Eggleton, Claude Tucker, Charles Faires and Geo. Carlisle.

Interment was made in the family plot in Stirling cemetery. Three sisters Lily, Mabel and Blanche Hulin and two brothers James and Harry Hulin are deceased. Three brothers survive, Arthur of Stirling; Fred of Trenton, and Wesley of Madoc.

HORACE THOMPSON
(Hillier Township)

Horace Thompson, a life-long resident of Prince Edward County, and for the past 40 years a resident of Pleasant Bay, Hillier township, died at his home, Thursday, August 17, in his 69th year.

The son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Walter John Thompson, he was predeceased by his wife, (Luella Roblinson) eight years ago.

He is survived by three sisters; Bertie (Mrs. Seaborn MacDonald), Wellington; Florence (Mrs. William Ellis), Niles Corners, Ont.; and Norma (Mrs. George Alexander), Hillier, Ont.; and two brothers, Charles Thompson, Bloomfield: and William Thompson, Wellington, Ont. He is predeceased by two brothers and one sister.

The late Mr Thompson was a farmer all his life. He was a member of the Anglican Church. He was also a member of the United Lodge, A. F. and A.M. No. 50, Consecon.

The funeral was held from the family residence, Pleasant Bay, Sunday afternoon, August 20th, at 4.00 p.m. Interment Wellington Cemetery.

Reverend C. P. Heaven, of Wellington officiated. Members of the United Lodge of Consecon were also present at the funeral.

School Boards in Cities, Towns And Other Municipalities Worried About Accommodation for Pupils

Toronto, Aug. 21 — (CP) — Empty, with doors locked and blinds drawn, Ontario's schools look roomy enough to house all the youngsters in sight.

But school boards in cities, towns and other municipalities throughout the province know better.

As the school-age population steps up its vacation activities in anticipation of the long months between Labor Day and Christmas, board members are counting desk-spaces and prospective customers and trying to make the totals balance. In most cases it's going to be a tougher job than ever.

New Desks

Some of the desks will be new and shiny. An official of the Education Department said a total of 71 new schools or extensive additions to existing schools will be ready for occupancy this fall for the first time. But a number of communities still have growing pains.

Public and separate schools in Windsor expect nearly 18,000 students — an increase of about 600 over last year. Officials say some additional accommodation may be necessary. High schools, with 3,800 enrolled last winter, look for little increase.

In Sudbury, where a staggered-attendance plan went into effect last year in high schools, the same system will be inaugurated in elementary schools to take care of the expected 2,700 attendance — an increase of 300 over last year's capacity figure.

Expect 100 more

Sudbury's high schools expect 100 more scholars, but opening of a $1,200,000 school next January will put operations back on a normal basis.

Brockville will have a new 17-room public school by the end of October. But the closing of three or four antiquated school buildings, an increase of 100 in the expected enrolment and a request by nearby Elizabethtown township for Brockville's help in relieving its overcrowded schools leave the city with plenty of headaches.

Peterborough expects to accommodate its 5,400 students, but only just. The high - school auditorium is being used as a classroom to look after an overload of 300 scholars and ratepayers will be asked to vote on a $550,000 expenditure for a new school at the next election.

Part Time Basis

Toronto's large school system is expected to absorb all comers, but the rapidly-expanding suburban area may have difficulty. No advance enrolment figures are available. More than 93,000 youngsters crowded into public and separate schools last year.

Hamilton has 40-odd public-school classes operating on a part-time basis, but a new school and additions to two others during the school year should take care of the estimated 700 increase in enrolment. About 27,000 youngsters answered the bell last year.

Public school officials in Ottawa expect an increase in enrolment over last year's 13,100, but by how much they wouldn't say. Four new schools, with a total of 34 rooms, are under construction as well as eight additions to present structures, expected to give 23 more rooms. Half should be ready for the first school bell. High schools are preparing for 5,600 students, 200 more than last year. One new school was partially opened last year, and eight additional rooms will be opened in it this year.

New School Opened

In Timmins, about 498 new public and separate school pupils are expected. One new public school will be opened but officials say all schools will be crowded to capacity.

London officials say that despite an increased city enrolment, space will be available for children from overcrowded suburban schools. A big kindergarten enrolment will account for most of the increase — about 300. Last year's elementary - school registration in London was 9,513. Two new schools are expected to be ready for September school opening.

Preliminary Work On New School Has Been Started

With assurance given by city council that there would be no delay in giving third reading to the by-law providing the board of education with $300,000 for the construction of the new public school in east Belleville, work preliminary to construction has already commenced, according to Harold Seldon, chairman of the sites and accommodation committee.

Mr. Seldon reported that the surveyor has already laid out the school dimensions on the lot and today a bulldozer is busy scraping off the top soil preparatory to excavating for the foundation.

Construction work on the school will be rushed with all possible speed in order that the building may be completed at an early date. St. Lawrence Contracting Company of this city have been awarded the contract for the construction of the school.

Board Secretaries Meet at Albert

Albert College, a hive of activity all last week as YPU delegates moved in from across Canada, will be busy again this week until Wednesday. Field secretaries from the Boards of Christian Education of the United Church from British Columbia to Newfoundland came to Belleville this morning to start a three-day meeting.

In all, about 14 secretaries and professional Christian education workers are expected to attend the conference. Purpose of the session, which will last until Wednesday, is to translate the message of the World Council on Christian Education, held in Toronto recently, into terms which will be useful to the United Church in Canada.

Field secretaries from Saskatchewan, Alberta, B.C., Manitoba, the Maritimes and Newfoundland, along with the United Church workers of Ontario, make up the gathering. Ontario has no field secretaries, but does have professional workers in the field.

B.C. Delegates Wondering How They'll Get Home

Officials of the Young People's Union of the United Church, which concluded a six-day meeting at Albert College Sunday, confessed today that some of their delegates, particularly those from British Columbia, didn't know how they would get home if the rail strike becomes a reality.

The British Columbians are sitting with crossed fingers, and are expecting to have to carry on to their homes by bus if trains are stopped. They have already left Belleville, as have all participants in the session except the newly-elected members of the National Executive.

Some of the delegates had planned to spend some time in Toronto before going home, they said, and they will likely remain there until the railroad issue is resolved. Others have plans to stop with friends along the way if trains are taken off the rails.

A few of the delegates came to the Council by car, and one couple brought their trailer with them, which they parked on the back lawn of Albert College, while the sessions were on. At any rate, some of the representatives are not too sure just when they will get home, or how they are going to get there.

Dogmas of Church Must be Respected Pope Tells Clergy

Vatican City, Aug 21—(AP)—Pope Pius today told Roman Catholic clergy throughout the world that dogmas of the church must be accepted and respected.

In a long encyclical he emphasized the necessity of safeguarding all religious instruction against the taint of error."

The encyclical was issued at a moment when the question of dogma has become a subject of controversy between Catholics and Protestants. This stems from the Vatican's announcement that the Pope will soon proclaim as dogma the Virgin Mary's assumption into heaven in body as well as spirit.

Recent References

The announcement provoked criticism in Protestant circles, especially on the part of Church of England, whose leaders said they saw in it the threat of a new obstacle to the movement for christian unity.

A formal statement by the heads of the Church of England, the Archbishops of Canterbury and York, expressed "profound regret" that the Catholic Church had "chosen this act to increase dogmatic differences in christendom and thereby gravely injured the growth of understanding between christians."

The Pope will pronounce the new dogma Nov. 1 as a dramatic highlight to the 1950 Holy Year. He will hold a secret consistory of the College of Cardinals the day before.

In today's encyclical the Pope reviewed at length what he termed deviations in faith in modern times, then concluded with these instructions:

"Let the teachers in ecclesiastical institutions be aware that they cannot with transquil conscience exercise the office of teaching entrusted to them, unless in the instruction of their students they religiously accept and exactly observe the norms which we have ordained.

Teaching Authority

"That due reverence and submission which in their increasing labor they must profess towards the teaching authority of the church, let them instill also in the minds and hearts of their students.

"Let them strive with every force and effort to further the progress of the sciences which they teach; but let them also be careful not to transgress the limits which we have established for the protection of the truth of Catholic faith and doctrine. With regard to new questions, which modern culture and progress have brought to the foreground, let them engage in most careful research, but with the necessary prudence and caution."

The Pope cautioned against indulging in the belief that the "dissident and erring can happily be brought back to the bosom of the church, if the whole truth found in the church is not sincerely taught to all without corruption or diminution."

RAILWAY STRIKE

17 Months Old

The dispute, already 17 months old, involves union demands for a pay boost for train service employees represented by the two unions and a reduced work week, from 48 to 40 hours, without a pay reduction, for yard service employees.

The demands apply to all major railroads in the United States. The union is striking on only a few of the lines at this time, however.

The scheduled strikes, while affecting relatively-small rail lines and terminals and only a few thousand of the 300,000 members of the two unions, are bound to dent output of major industries.

Halt Steel Production

Republic halted production of iron, steel and coke last night in preparation for the strike.

If the strike lasts the five days set by the union, additional workers will be laid off here and at Republic's two mines south of Pittsburgh— Clyde and Banning. The mines employ a total of about 1,000 workers.

Finishing work is not expected to be halted. Officials said enough material is on hand to allow operations to continue in the two bar mills and the 98-inch strip mill for as long as a week.

But over the five-day period Republic estimated 35,000 tons of steel production will be lost.

River terminal, which connects with interstate lines, is the only road serving Republic's huge installations here.

A general staff officer said the vigorous attacks of the Allies have put the general communist war plan off balance. But, he added, the North Koreans regained some stability after they lost most of their 4th Division in the furious battle for the Changnyong Bulge last week.

The general flare-up on the Taegu front came as Britain made ready her first ground troops at Hong Kong for a quick shipment to Korea. MacArthur has asked for them urgently, a British official said.

The North Koreans, MacArthur's headquarters said, face a mounting problem of supplying their front lines under constant air assault.

Princess Margaret, Sweetheart Of Commonwealth, Turns 20 Amid Crop of Romantic Rumors

Balmoral, Scotland, Aug. 21—(CP)—The sweetheart of the Commonwealth — Princess Margaret—turned 20 today amid a crop of romantic rumors.

With the King and Queen, she will celebrate at a small family birthday party tonight at Balmoral Castle, where the family is spending their annual Scottish summer holiday.

Missing from the party will be elder sister Princess Elizabeth, who gave birth to a daughter last Tuesday in London. That made Princess Margaret an aunt for the second time.

Princess Margaret was born at Glamis Castle, Scotland, and folklore in the district says that all girls born there must choose a husband before their 20th birthday.

Many are wondering whether Margaret has made her choice.

Some society circles believe the man in Margaret's life is the Earl of Dalkeith, who will one day inherit one of Britain's largest fortunes. His parents, the Duke and Duchess of Buccleuch, own six stately homes and more than 500,000 acres of land.

The Earl, 27 in September, has been one of Princess Margaret's frequent dates and his name has been repeatedly linked with hers. Once an official denial had to be issued, so widespread was the belief that the Princess was in love.

Today's newspapers devoted columns to Princess Margaret.

Only five-foot-two, she is always up-to-date with the latest fashion dictates.

Her favorite pastime is dancing. Jazz is one of her hobbies and friends frequently visit her in Buckingham Palace to hear selections from her record library.

Today the Princess accompanied her parents to church at Balmoral.

Princess Margaret is expected to remain in Scotland until the King and Queen return south in October. Then she will see Princess Elizabeth's baby daughter for the first time.

World Map of 25 Diseases Is New Approach to Health

By JOE WING

New York, Aug. 21—(AP)—An atlas of disease has been started by the American Geographical Society as a new approach to health.

Already the Society has made a world map of polio, the first in a projected series of 25. Next is cancer.

This attempt to throw the geography book at human ills is looked upon by its director, Dr. Jacques M. May, as military necessity as well as a great chance to advance basic knowledge.

"The society had a similar idea in 1944," he explains. "Now the pressure of events has forced on us an urgent study of these matters. We have to sum up our knowledge on the distribution of disease throughout the world since any area may become a battlefield."

World-Wide Experience

Paris-born and educated, 54-year-old Dr. May has had much first-hand experience treating disease in odd corners of the world. A First World War veteran, he formerly was a professor of surgery in French Indo-China and a medical officer in southeast Asia, central Africa, Europe and the Caribbean region. Now he is a lecturer at New York University.

"There is no other such concentrated study as this," he said in an interview. "It used to be that one of the few things known about a disease was where it occurred. Then, after the discovery of germs, interest in the Geography factor dropped. Now we realize more and more that disease is a product of the soil."

Polio was mapped first because of its relative simplicity, although you wouldn't believe it to glance at the map. As big as a desk top and showing the whole world in sections, it indicates with red lines, dots and grids the regions where polio epidemics have occurred this century, when they occurred and how serious they were.

The highly-civilized parts of North America and Europe have had more polio epidemics than other regions In primitive countries, Dr. May believes, the disease is present but does not flare up in big epidemics. It looks as though the virus is so common that everybody gets a chance to develop immunity at an early age. In advanced regions, people seem to encounter the virus late in life, with the result that public immunity is slow in developing.

If he can raise some $58,000, Dr. May hopes to map the 25 diseases in two or three years and then go on to 25 more. The maps are to be published for general distribution.

Vimy Signals Defeats United In Soccer Match

Vimy Signals of Kingston just managed to edge Belleville United by three goals to two in a keenly-contested Eastern Ontario Soccer league game at the Belleville Fairgrounds on Saturday afternoon.

Belleville won the toss and elected to kick with the sun in their favor. The local boys pressed from the start although they started shorthanded.

Gemmell opened the scoring for the homesters, after about twenty minutes of play. Shortly afterwards Anderson got the ball into the Belleville but the goal was disallowed for offside. Only one further goal was scored in the first period and this came from J. Cathcart giving the United a two nothing lead at the changeover.

The visitors put on the pressure from the start of the second and were much more effective than in the first period. Within fifteen minutes of the resumption of play they had equalised the score on goals from Anderson and Frame. Both teams went all out for the winning goal with the soldiers from Kingston getting the winning counter about twenty minutes before the final whistle on a shot from Ballard.

Teams:-

Belleville United—Blaker, Dale, Findley, Moody, Cox, Carter, J. Cathcart, Williamson, Gemmell, Scott, Alexander, sub T. Cathcart.

Vimy Signals—Orm, Hooton-Fox, Sanderson, Frame, Coe, Griesbach, Boyes, Parsons, Anderson, Alt, Ballard, sub McNamara.

Referee—Les Digby, linesmen Bill Harvey, Fred Terry.

Tennis

The draw for the Corby Cup has been made by the Bay of Quinte Tennis League as follows-

1st round—Wed. 23rd Aug. Quinte One vs Batawa at Quinte.

Sun 27th Aug Batawa vs Quinte One at Batawa.

Semifinals—Thurs. 24th Aug. Point Anne vs Quinte Two at Point Anne.

Fri. 1st Sept. Quinte Two vs Point Anne at Quinte.

Tues 29th & Wed. 30th Aug. Trenton vs winner 1st round at Trenton.

Sun. 3rd Sept. winner 1st round vs Trenton at Batawa or Quinte.

The dates for the final round will be announced later. The team winning the most events in the above matches is the winner and if a third match is necessary in any round it will be played as soon as possible after the second match.

Tennis Tournament

Some really excellent tennis was produced in the Quinte Tennis Club courts yesterday in the tournaments sponsored and run by the Bay of Quinte Tennis League. A real galaxy of stars were on view and all clubs in the league were represented. The play delighted all the spectators who turned up to see the men's and mixed doubles events. The final rounds went as follows:-

Men's doubles — Con Moolenburgh and Tom Burnett beat Perry Everett and Thorold Horwood 6-4, 6-3.

Men's consolation—Jerry Ireland and Harold Moon beat Jim Paton and Tony Cervinka 4-6, 9-7, 6-4.

Mixed doubles—Thorold Horwood and Hilda Finlan beat Con Moolenburgh and Jo Gist 1-6, 6-4, 6-4

Mixed consolation — Laurence Horwood and Iona McDonald beat Ed. Littlejohn and Elizabeth Pitney 6-1, 8-6.

Schedule For Postponed Games Is Announced

Postponed games in the COBL got their come-uppance today with the announcement of the schedule whereby the missing games will be jammed in prior to the playoffs.

The schedule is as follows:

Mon. Aug. 21—Batawa at Smith Falls; Kingston at Brockville.

Tues., Aug 22 — Napanee at Kingston.

Wed., Aug. 23—Kingston at Batawa; Napanee at Picton.

Thurs., Aug 24—Smith Falls at Picton.

Friday or Saturday: Kingston at Batawa.

This will wind up regularly scheduled activity in the COBL with the exception of two tie games. These games, one involving the Batawa Shoemen and the Brockville Memces, will not be played unless they have some bearing on the playoff standing of the teams concerned.

BULGARIA ACCUSES

London, Aug. 21 (AP)—Bulgaria accused neighboring Yugoslavia last night of indiscriminately imprisoning and persecuting Bulgarian citizens. It said in a note to the Yugoslav foreign ministry that an undetermined number of Bulgarians had been imprisoned—without charges—in the last year.

CLEANLINESS VS. POLIO

Cleanliness in the home is the first line of defence against disease and illness during the summer months, according to Canadian medical and health authorities. Simple sanitary precautions result in improved family health and well-being.

Health authorities agree that many diseases, perhaps even polio, are spread by unclean hands, and hands that are washed frequently are not likely to spread germs. Special emphasis of this fact is being directed toward children, who need this particular protection during the holiday months.

Youngsters will find it gay and amusing to "wash-up" if parents dramatize the business of cleanliness. Keep charts, award stars, anything to create an interest in the routine of keeping hands clean. Give children their own equipment; towel racks low enough to reach, personalized soap dishes, complete with soap. Brighten the job with small, gay, colorful towels made from unworn parts of old, discarded turkish towels.

The Canadian Foundation for Poliomyelitis (Canadian March of Dimes) reminds mothers of the important times that children must wash their hands whenever hands have been soiled by nasal or oral discharge. Make your child his own guardian against germs, is the advice of the Foundation.

BIRD MAN'S ACHIEVEMENTS

Percy Edwards, of Ipswich in Suffolk, has spent nearly all his life in studying birds, animals and plants, with birds taking the most important place. When Percy was seven he heard a starling singing and began to imitate it. Since then he has imitated dozens of birds until he can now produce the call notes and songs of one hundred and sixty-six British breeding species. His imitations are not just clever approximations of what a bird says; Edwards' trills and whistles receive the birds themselves and it is not until he has "tried the song on the bird" that he considers he has got it absolutely right and suitable for broadcasting. His repertoire is enormous and he can imitate all kinds of creatures from a wren to an elephant. The bird noises are made, not by whistling, as might be supposed, but in the throat, with the tongue used as a stop for the various notes. The only call he makes by whistling with his lips is that of the curlew, according to the B.B.C. letter.

When the ordinary man goes for a country walk he may or may not see many birds. When Edward goes out he knows he will see a great many because he gives their different calls as he goes along. Birds call in reply or fly out of cover to find the strange bird which is trespassing on their territory. No matter where Edwards is he can imitate the birds of the district. The harsh squawks of gulls and the throaty grunts of razorbills and other seabirds, the drumming of the greater spotted woodpecker, the turtle dove's purr and the cuckoo's bubble and song are all at his command.

He has been broadcasting his bird calls for the B.B.C. since 1929 and is on television. He provides the bird noises for film soundtracks. He lectures to schools of all kinds, from small country schools to the historic Eton College, and finds that when boys are told stories about birds and hear their calls it often initiates a love of ornithology that never leaves them. And that is his aim in life, to promote a real love of birds everywhere, so that egg and skin collecting are things of the past. When Edwards tours Britain to appear in variety programs, he finds this a valuable way of increasing his store of ornithological knowledge. While the other artists spend their days in a more orthodox manner he is out and about the countryside adding further bird songs to his repertoire. He prefers broadcasting to Variety, because it reaches such a large number of people, but best of all he likes to watch the birds that he imitates. In the spring he spends night after night out of doors, lying in an osier tree by the River Orwell waiting for the birds to begin their dawn chorus.

TO THE MAYOR OF "BRUMMAGEN"

(On receiving word that the Lord Mayor of Birmingham, England, is having my birth record checked.)

Your Worship, do not bother (as my mother used to say).
I have memories of my birthplace that will never fade away.
I was born, I think, in Handsworth, but the Birmingham abode
I remember sadly leaving was a house on Churchill Road.

I remember father talking. . . . It is strange what memories come.
He sometimes called it "Brummagem" or shortened that to "Brum".
He spoke about The Bull Ring. Is there such a section still?
And Elkington's, the silversmiths, are they on Soho Hill?

There was a church on Wretham Road, all covered with a vine,
'Twas there my mother took me as a little lad of nine.
They made ninety-nine year leases, which few holders can complete.
My dear, old Grandpa had one for his home on Abbey Street.

I've not been back, Your Worship. All the loved one now are gone.
But I was born in Birmingham in Eighteen-eighty-one.
And, if perchance you doubt it, I've a Bible, finger-worn,
With my name in Dad's handwriting, penned the day when I was born.

SECRET OF YOUR PRAYING

The English preacher Spurgeon was noted for the homely but graphic figures by which he described spiritual truth. Speaking once about prayer he said: "Prayer pulls the rope below, and the great bell rings above in the ears of God. Some scarcely stir the bell, for they pray so languidly; others give but an occasional pull at the rope; but he who wins with heaven is the man who grasps the rope boldly and pulls continually with all his might."

St. Paul urged his followers to pray without ceasing. By this he meant that they should maintain towards God at all times an attitude of attention and receptiveness and should interlard the events of daily life with brief petitions or exclamations of adoration and praise.

One reason why people often fail in prayer is because their prayer life lacks continuity. Facility in prayer grows exactly the same as facility in musicianship or athletics—by practice, diligent and continuous. We might as well expect to have facility at the keyboard by practicing once a week or once a month, as to expect power in prayer by occasionally resorting to its promised privileges. Continuity is the word—and the program.

THE PACKSACK

By GREGORY CLARK

A profiteer and a hoarder are the same thing, only a different size. The industrialist profiteer who, in war or in the threat of war, schemes to make himself a fortune, and the housewife, or house husband who fills the cupboards and cellar with such wares as sugar, tea, canned goods and other things, that are likely to be in short supply should war come, are both cut out of the same sort of cloth—shoddy.

What must be the effect on the children of profiteers and hoarders to know their parent's attitude in these things? How could a young man who, at the dinner table, hears his father gloatingly confiding his progress in profiteering, or his mother describing how cleverly she went from store to store, with sly innocence amassing a hoard of good things—how could such a young man offer bona fide service to his country? How could he, if faced with it, sacrifice himself for his comrades? It is from the homes of profiteers and hoarders that we get the malingers, lead swingers, draft dogers and those gentry who are indispensable on the home front.

If our nation or race is ever overrun and ploughed under by an enemy, it will largely be because we have developed more profiteers and hoarders and their breed than the rest of the nation can support.

It was pitiful to hear, in his first radio address to the nation in the recent war scare, President Truman wasting a good five minutes of his time uttering a plea to the American people not to continue a spree of hoarding which had, in some cities, already begun.

I know one hoarder who says in order to justify his conduct, that he only hopes the nation as a whole is using the same foresight he is displaying. If the government, he says, would prepare, as he is preparing, there would be nothing to fear. I am happy to report that this man has no sons.

PITCHING HORSESHOES

By Billy Rose

CHRISTMAS IN AUGUST

This morning's batch of mail included the following from a man in Great Neck, L. I.:

Dear Billy Rose:

As you probably noticed in the papers on August 7, a boy named Henry Turrill found a sack of undelivered mail in the rear of a junked automobile on the outskirts of Great Neck. It consisted mostly of Christmas cards which had been mailed in December, 1947, and the Post Office after apologizing for the delay, promised to deliver them the next day.

Well, one of the pieces of mail was addressed to me—a letter Cleveland Ohio, and dated December 19, 1947. But what was in that letter won't make much sense to you unless I first tell you something about myself.

Shortly after I was married in '44, the draft boards began taking anything with two legs, and after ten months in Texas I was put on a boat and shipped off to that swamp called Okinawa. By the time I got there, the shooting was over, so I guess I was better off than most of the boys, but it was a dull and muddy sort of life, and I was plenty glad when I was shipped back and discharged in '47.

It was two days before Christmas when I arrived in Great Neck, and you can imagine how let down I felt when I found that my wife wasn't there waiting for me. Instead, there was a note on the table saying her mother wasn't feeling well, and she had gone to Cleveland. She'd be back in a few days—that is, if everything was all right.

This, of course, wasn't the homecoming I'd been figuring on and I took it pretty hard: But realizing there was nothing I could do about it—her mother didn't even have a phone—I sent her a Merry Christmas wire and told her to hurry back as soon as she could. It wasn't until after New Year's, however, that my wife showed up.

That was in '50, and in the past three years a lot of nice things have happened to us——a son, a pretty good job, and most of the mortgage paid off on our house. None of which would have come about if the letter my wife sent me from Cleveland had arrived on schedule.

In it, you see, she confessed there had been another man while I'd been away—nobody she cared anything about, just someone who had happened along while she was lonely and miserable. She said if I didn't want her back to write and say so and she would understand, but if she didn't hear from me she'd figure I had forgiven her and would return and try to make it up to me.

When the mailman handed me this three-year-old letter a couple of weeks ago, I wondered what the heck was in it, so I ripped it open and read it right there on the porch. And corny as it sounds, all the time I was reading it I could hear the vacuum going inside and my son making a racket in his upstairs bedroom.

Chances are, had I gotten this letter when I was fresh out of the Army and plenty jumpy, I would have called my wife every dirty name and busted up our marriage as fast as the law would allow. But standing there on the porch I thought of the three good years we'd had together and the thirty more, maybe, coming up—not to mention the fact that I hadn't always been a saint myself. So I put the letter in my pocket, and that night after work went to a jewelry store and made a down-payment one one of those wristwatches with little red stones.

When I handed the present to my missus after dinner, she said, "What's this—Christmas in August?"

"Exactly, baby," I said, and then I told her I had finally gotten her letter and how happy I was it had come thirty months late.

Since then we have talked a lot about this lucky accident, and today we decided there's a lesson in the story which might help a lot of other couples who feel like busting up their marriages the first time something goes wrong. If you run this letter in your column, we'd appreciate it of course, if you didn't use our real names.

Sincerly,

—— ——

TODAY'S TALK

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

THE WIND AND SUN

In the city the Wind and the Sun are comparative strangers—taken as a matter of course, without notice. But in the country they are as gods, taking major control, conditioning the atmosphere, the Wind giving dancing lessons to the leaves and branches, and the Sun warming the earth and giving life to every thing that moves or grows.

It is interesting to note the movement of branches and flowers. They keep turning to the Sun. I watched them turn in the little garden before my summer cabin, as the Sun moved from East to West, as though not to lose one single look at its golden smile. And the Wind—how it distributes the earth's fragrance, and that of tree and flower. It rocks beauty in its arms, until nightfall when all life takes its little sleep.

Every once in a while these summer days I reach to a tree and crush its foliage in my hands and then partake of its invigorating smell. All over the ground and along the paths are great patches of wintergreen, and along the shore groups of wild mint. No human planted all this. The Great Gardner alone could have done it.

How fascinating is the song of the Wind, and sometimes only a faint whisper, as though Nature wanted to be in confidential mood, and full of the desire to tell its secrets! And what a silent physician is this Sun that casts its healing spell about us in the open! It has painted my skin a delicate brown and every organ in this body of mine has responded to its touch, welcoming it.

Nature is the kindest friend we will ever know, and the most intelligent, for it embodies all the knowledge of the world. Man has only discovered a small portion of its glory, and too many of its hidden secrets have been discovered, only to be turned to evil ways, when they were meant solely to bless mankind.

The sailor and the farmer both understand the language of the Wind, and carry on a silent conversation with it, and all life continually pays tribute to the Sun—a kind of a god over us all!

Drowning Toll Would be Staggering If All Distress Calls Legitimate

By SAUL PETT

Harmon, N.Y., Aug. 20 (AP)—If all the distress calls at the nearby Croton Point Park beach were legitimate, the drowning toll would be staggering.

But mostly the calls for help are simply the baying of wolves.

The explanation: All the lifeguards at Croton are girls — young girls, pretty girls, shapely girls. According to the American Red Cross, it is the only public swimming place in the United States with an all-female lifeguard staff.

"Out of 20 yelling for help, I'd say 19 were fakers," says Irene Hallstein, blonde, 17-year-old chief guard. "And it's not just the boys who try to get us to come out after them. Married men and middle-aged men try the same trick."

The eight girl lifeguards, who range in age from 16 to 19, have learned to distinguish between the fakers and those really in trouble. The fakers, it seems, make too much noise about going under.

Croton Beach, operated by the Westchester County Park Commission, began using female guards in 1944, when manpower was in short supply.

"We liked them so much we just kept on using girls after the war," says park superintendent Earl Clark. "We found them more efficient, more conscientious. The male guards too often were distracted by the feminine customers."

The girls haven't lost a life yet. Matter of fact, there hasn't been a fatality at the beach since 1924, Clark said.

On a busy day, there are as many as 2,000 persons in the water and about a dozen legitimate cases of people in distress. But so far, in seven years, not one of the girls had to get wet in pulling anybody out. All rescues have been made by boat.

THE ENGLAND GARGLE

Away back when Tony was a pup scrounging egg and cream from the nice kind lady who took him for a walk through the park every morning, you gave a recipe for a gargle which I and many of my friends used with great satisfaction to clear huskiness of the voice.

The pharmacist who used to make it up for us sold out since I lived in Buffalo and his successor knows nothing about the gargle. My daughter is now a music student at —— and I do hope you can give us the recipe once more. (Mrs. ——).

Philadelphia hospital pharmacist named Joseph W. England originated the formula long, long before Tony the Wirish Terror—I wonder whether Tony and Topsy the beautiful sorrel will come a-running to welcome me when I go where all good doctors go when they turn up their toes—but in view of the pleasant memories you revive I'll break my rule and take a chance printing the recipe for England's gargle, though it is only fair to warn you that I can't guarantee the printers will not make a dreadful mess of it.

As a preliminary precaution it may be well to bear in mind that the recipe calls for six (six) ingredients. Count 'em carefully, and if you find one or two missing, call up the publisher or the editor and give him what for.

Dissolve two drams (level teaspoonfuls) of potassium chlorate in four fluidounces (one-half glassful) of boiling water, cool, and preserve.

Dissolve I dram (teaspoonful) of powdered alum in two fluidounces (one-quarter glassful) and five fluid drams (teaspoonfuls) of stronger rose water, add one-half fluidounce (tablespoonful) of glycerin and one-half fluidounce (tablespoonful) of simple syrup, then add three fluid drams (scant tablespoonful) of fluidextract of eucalyptus rostrata (red gum).

Finally add the second portion to the reserved portion. If you have all six ingredients in the quantities mentioned the product should be a transparent ruby-red liquid with an agreeable odor and taste. Label it Doc B—— no, let's be honest about it and label it Ol' Joe England's Gargle.

Directions: Use a tablespoonful diluted with an equal volume of water as a gargle before singing or speaking.

Some singers or speakers find that gargling just once with the England gargle ten or fifteen minutes before going on clears the voice of hoarseness or huskiness. Others gargle two or three times at intervals of five or ten minutes before going on.

Man readers have been unable to obtain fluidextract of red gum (eucalyptus rostrata). Druggists may have in stock kino, which is similar to if not identical with red gum. If so, it may be used in place of red gum, but it is more astringent than red gum and hence only two fluid drams of fluidextract of kino should be used in place of three fluid drams of fluidextract of red gum.

Now I hope the printers are entirely sober and not on frolicsome mood. If this recipe is blotched the result may be annoying but not seriously harmful. That's why I break the rule I have followed for years, and give the recipe here. Remember, my copy of the recipe names one-half glassfull of water and five other items. Don't you believe anything else you may see in the paper.

QUESTIONS & ANSWERS

Ethmoiditis

Public speaker, constantly annoyed and embarrassed by accumulation of mucus on vocal cords. One M.D. ascribed it to a drip from ethmoid cells but had no remedy. (——, Pastor).

Answer—Give the England gargle a try.

Stuck With Plastic Pants

Purchased a plastic suit. Wear the pants while exercising every day, to get rid of my large hips. The plastic helps to perspire, thus helps me slim down. Mother is afraid I'll get rheumatism. (Miss E. S.)

Answer—No harm in wearing them as much as you like, but you've been sold a bill of goods if the suit or pants were offered with the suggestion that they would "help" slim you down. Watch out for that word "help" in the sales spiel—it is the way the swindlers evade complying with the regulations against false and misleading claims.

Ordinary Washing Enough

Is it dangerous for a person to wear any article of clothing once worn by a tuberculosis patient? (Mrs. D. H.)

Answer—Ordinary laundering, dry cleaning or just airing and sunning for a day, will make any article of clothing or furniture used by the patient perfectly safe for any one.

Prime Minister Nehru Great Figure of Our Time

By DeWITT MACKENZIE
(Associated Press News Analyst)

India's representation to the Chinese communist regime, in hope of preserving the political independence of Tibet, invites interested speculation.

When we speak of the government of India we instinctively think of Prime Minister Nehru, one of the great figures of our time. And that gives rise to the question of what special interest he can have in this state which perches among the towering mountains of the "roof of the world", like an eagle in its aerie. Tibet is an anachronism — a relic of the past.

Of course Tibet is an isolated northern neighbor of India and there is a tradition of "friendship" between the two. However, they have never been close, except in the geographical sense. Moreover from the military standpoint even the projected communist occupation of Tibet wouldn't create for India any threat which doesn't already exist.

Why then does Nehru emphasize the situation with a note to the Chinese communist government which, by the way, India has recognized officially? It strikes me that his move may have a special significance.

It certainly could be another indication that Nehru is heading towards the leadership of Asia. The man upon whose shoulders that mantle falls must be the big brother of the little fellows like Tibet, as well as the counsellor of the mighty.

In any event, Nehru is extending a helping hand to a small country that suddenly finds itself emerging into a strange new world which can be extremely self-centred and hard-boiled. And naturally the prime minister is well aware that his actions are being noted carefully by the chancelleries of many countries, both in the Orient and in the west.

India says [illegible] status will be settled in friendly negotiations. The Indian government will be pleased if there is a continuance of the status quo under which Tibet would be an autonomous part of red China.

The Peiping communists are said to have offered regional autonomy to Tibet if she will join the red regime without trouble. That puts her on a mighty tough spot, for this medieval state is a theocracy, governed by Buddhist monks, headed by the Dalai Lama. She is wholly unused to the way of the modern world, and certainly needs a friend as she comes up against an atheistic communism which is out to destroy all religion as "the dope of the masses."

Maybe that's what Nehru has in mind. That would fit in with his reported conviction that India should be the leading power in Asia. And although he lacks material resources now to progress as fast as he would like, his country is making great strides. Having spent nearly a year in India studying the country and its people, I personally have no doubts as to the greatness of her future. Whether that insures her leadership of the Far East obviously is on knees of the gods.

ONE MINUTE NEWS ABOUT JOHNS-MANVILLE

THING OF BEAUTY JOY FOREVER

"A thing of beauty" sang the poet, "is a joy forever". Keats might well have written his ode to the beauty and permanence of Johns-Manville Durabestos Roof Shingles.

In their old-wood grained effects and soft colour blends, J-M Durabestos Shingles harmonize with all types of architecture.

"A joy forever" is equally well earned! J-M Durabestos Roof Shingles are made of asbestos and cement. They cannot burn or rot, and in nearly four decades not one J-M asbestos shingle has ever worn out! This permanent roof is easily applied, and once on, your roofing troubles are over. Cobourg Legion Defeats Trenton In First Game

Trenton—(Special)— Cobourg Legion defeated Trenton MacDonald Hardware 17-6 in the first game of their best of three junior O.A.S.A. playoff series at Bayshore Park Friday night.

The Legion boys tagged Trenton hurler Bill Mitts for 12 hits but Mitts stayed on the mound for the distance, striking out 11 and walking 10.

For Cobourg, Jack Irvin held Trenton to five hits all of them singles as he went the route firing the third strike past 12 MacDonald hitters and giving up six free trips to first.

Both teams committed eight errors. B. Bevans lead Cobourg at the plate with two triples and a single, while second baseman McIver racked up three singles. Pitcher Bill Mitts and left fielder Wilson each connected for a pair of singles for Trenton.

OUR TOWN

By JACK SCOTT

MEANING PARADISE

Gimli, Man.—Ordinarily, I guess Gimli is a pretty quiet place. It's an inelegant little prairie town on the west shore of Lake Winnipeg, a curious combination of fishing village and farm village and with a perimeter of summer cottages inhabited on weekends by folks from Winnipeg, some 65 miles due south.

Driving through the town you might notice the "foreign" names of some of the merchants, (Beauchemin Electric, Chopek the auctionee, Thorunn's beauty salon etc.) and perhaps even be aware of the startling number of fair-haired, blue-eyed citizens. But you'd have no way of knowing that a Canadian saga was written here.

Today, when we drove into the town, there were flags flying in the rough, broad streets and bunting on many of the frame houses, for this is the 75th anniversary of the founding of Gimli and therein, as the saying goes, hangs a tale.

It was told to us by the town's mayor, Barney Egilson, and its historian, Jon Laxdal, and this is the story:

* * *

Seventy-five years ago this week a party of 85 families, who had drifted down the Red River from Fort Garry in crude house boats, landed here on the lake's shore. They were Icelanders, an ocean and half a continent from home. They called the place Gimli, which in their language, means "paradise".

These people were only a year away from their native land. They had settled originally in the Ontario Muskoka district, where the men worked for as little as 10 cents a day on farms and life, in general, was grim. Two of the colonists were appointed to scout for a new home to the west. The men went first to the Red River Valley and found it swarming with grasshoppers. Then, northward beside the lake, they found their promised land.

AND TRAGEDY

The first two winters in paradise are still the main topic of discussion when the three remaining "originals" are asked to reminisce about the earliest days.

In the first winter the settlers were without proper cabins, vegetables or milk. Gimli had its first graveyard because of scurvy, exposure and starvation.

During the next summer another 1200 settlers arrived in the colony direct from Iceland and the settlement fanned out along the sandy shore of the lake.

Then in the fall of 1876 and the winter of 1887, dark disaster came upon the colony, perhaps the worst to hit any group of new Canadians in our history. An epidemic of smallpox broke out and the entire colony was quarantined for 22 months.

Soldiers stood guard at the limits of the colony and when one Sigurdur Kirsoferson took himself a bride, Caroline Taylor, the first schoolteacher, they were married by a half-breed minister who stood prudently on the far side of Netley Creek to conduct the ceremony.

In this epidemic 102 of these early "d.p.'s" lost their lives. Most of them were children.

From that point on Gimli had its ups and downs, including a bitter controversy between two opposing religious groups which caused many of the pioneers to move to other parts of Canada. But the immigrants kept coming and by 1900 the population was more than 2000.

One of the most interesting aspects of the early days was the establishment of self-government which made "New Iceland" a kind of self-sufficient republic within Canada.

The colonists had their own assembly, sanctioned by the federal government, and a code of laws for the four districts of Vidinesbygd, Arnesbygd, Fljotsbygd and Mikleyjarbygd. There was no criminal code, perhaps because there was no crime.

OLD AND NEW

Today Gimli shows few outward signs of its stirring history. The Icelandic citizens, like Mayor Egilson and Historian Laxdal, are a quiet-spoken, strong-faced people. There has been some inter-marrying with central European immigrants and many of the younger people are strikingly handsome and sometimes dark-complexioned.

Nearly all the old-timers converse in the original tongue, retain strong ties with Iceland and many have been back to the old country for visits (an emissary from Reykjavik was on hand for the anniversary celebrations) but the youngsters seem to be losing that heritage.

The town itself bears a striking resemblance to a small seaside fishing village and on a day like today when there is a heavy surf rolling in on the shore and the fishing boats are coming in loaded with the fine whitefish, the flat farm lands stretching away from the town's back door seem highly incongruous.

Gimli reflects a curious blending of the old and the new. While the old people of the town knelt in prayer in the park, two younger Icelandic Canadians nearby were lobbing a ball with lacrosse sticks. Downtown in the window of H. P. Tergesen's store there was an historic display which featured, among other things a photograph of Gimli's first baseball team.

65 Youngsters Show Hereford Calves at Show

Watford, Aug. 20 (CP) —The largest calf show of its kind in Canada was staged in the arena here Friday, with 65 eager youngsters porudly showing off their calves—all pure white-faced Herefords.

Close to 500 entrants and spectators pressed forward on all sides of the show ring.

The youngsters—all mmebers of the Watford rotary calf club of the Watford Rotary Calf Club—displayed their steers which they have kept like pets since last November.

At that time, the Rotary Club purchased the calves from a ranch in Alberta and brought them here to sell to the youngsters for 22 cents a pound. They pocketed the amount received in Friday night's auction.

Billy Edwards, son of Clifford Edwards, of Watford won the $20 prize in the 975 pound and over class.

Agricultural repersentative W. P. MacDonald said the average weight gain of the calves during the time members have been keeping them was 482 pounds. The best gain, 615 pounds, was shown by the calf kept by Clare Eastabrook, of Watford.

25th Anniversary Training School Is Celebrated

Bowmanville, Aug. 20 (CP) — Bowmanville Training School for Boys which celebrates its 25th anniversary next Thursday, has prvoen that sympathy and understanding are successful in rehabilitating "problem boys."

The Ontario government which operates the school, conciders the institution near this town about 40 miles east of Toronto a "successful experiment."

Some 4,000 boys have passed through the school since it was founded in 1925. The government said Friday in a statement that graduates "can be found in all walks of life, and with some exceptions, are law-abiding citizens who prove to be assets to society."

The school as established after juvenile court judges, social workers, children's aid societies and service clubs suggested an experiment with a modern school in a rural meeting. Its goal is to care for boys who, by removal from their homes for a period of intensive training may be redirected so that wayward tendencies will not lead to criminal "careers."

JOBS INCREASE

New York, Aug. 21 (AP)—Jobs in New York State have increased more than 100,000 since the start of the Korean war, the State Department of Labor says. Some persons have been hired for direct war work, but most have been absorbed by civilian concerns stock-piling goods against the future.

Vatican Worried About Spread Of Birth Control

Vatican City—Aug. 21—(Reuters)—Vatican authorities are disturbed by the increasing propaganda in favor of birth control which, despite strong church opposition, is gaining ground in many countries of Europe.

Birth control as a method of solving population problems has long been viewed in Roman Catholic circles as a "philosophy of despair based on the arithmetic of destruction."

Much of the blame for the spread of birth control is laid by Vatican circles squarely on the shoulders of the Anglo-Saxons, particularly the Americans.

The Jesuits have, in fact, accused the Americans of "exporting" birth control to doctrines to over-populated countries for the furtherance of their own interests.

The powerful review, Civilta Cattolica, said in a recent article that the U.S. is exporting the "pseudo-scientific solution" of birth control to keep the "prolific nations of Europe and Asia from exerting pressure" on under-populated American "Dominions".

The increase in population during the last 50 years is admittedly startling. Since 1900, world population has gone up by nearly 50 per cent — from 1,608,000,000 to 2,403,000,000.

Alarmists maintain the world cannot feed more than 3,000,000,000 people—a figure which at the present rate would be reached within the century. Other statisticians maintain that the earth can support 9,792,000,000 people—which would at least give humanity a little more breathing space.

In any case, Roman Catholic circles believe the artificial suppression of population growth is no answer to the demographic problems either of today or tomorrow. They say population tendencies are eminently unstable and trends cannot be followed through to their logical arithmetical conclusion.

Report Urges Australia to Use Waste Spaces For Growing Rice

Sydney, Australia, —(CP) — Thoughtful Australians always have been concerned about the empty spaces in the northwest. This vulnerable, uninhabited land is a national danger area.

A report was presented recently to the Commonwealth government which gives grounds for even greater anxiety.

The report states that huge potential rice fields lie in this area. It was prepared by W. Poggendorff, chief of the division of plant industry in the Department of Commerce.

Australia's Oriental neighbors, urgently needing more living space for their over-populated territories, have long cast envious eyes on the northern territory. They will now be able to point to an official Australian report, saying that the Commonwealth has the very land they so urgently need to grow their staple food—rice.

These hundreds of thousands of acres of potential rice-growing land are at present lying idle. At best, they are used as occasional pastures for wandering herds. The reaction of Australia's neighbors is not hard to predict.

The chairman of the Rice Equalization Association, A. E. Symons, says that "before the war there was an exportable surplus of rice amounting to 6,500,000 tons, most of which came from Burma, Siam and Indo-China. Today this supply has dwindled to less than 1,500,000 tons, and is still dwindling because of the turmoil in those countries."

These great rice-exporting countries have been disrupted by communist infiltration, on top of the damage done to their paddy fields by the Japanese. Their embankments were broken, their water buffalo killed, and their fields allowed to grow over with weeds.

This results in more mouths to feed and less rice to feed them with.

It is certain that the existence of the tremendous rice-growing areas of the northern territory will be headlined in the newspapers of the east, especially in the south-west Pacific area.

What can be done to protect the so-called "back door of Australia?"

There is only one effective method of protecting it. That is fast development.

Poggendorff's report contains clear-cut proposals for action. A great deal of work has already been done by the Commonwealth scientific and industrial research organization and the Western Australian government. The next step is large-scale experimental planting and further observations on flood levels and rainfall.

As soon as 10,000 acres are under crop, the Australian rice industry is prepared to erect a mill. With the resultant growth of a township around the mill and increased utilization of the land, the Commonwealth hopes to avoid censure and pressure from the crowded countries of southeast Asia.

GORE

Victoria W.A.

The Gore—The W.A. of Victoria United Church held their August meeting at the home of Mrs. S. Brown on Thursday evening. Mrs. C. Calnan was in charge in the absence of the president, Mrs. Dempsey. There was a good attendance and a fine program was enjoyed.

Rev. and Mrs. Wragg, Shirley and Caroline, of Brantford, are holidaying with Mrs. Wragg's mother, Mrs. W. J. Hubbs and other friends here.

Mrs. H. Sager and Mrs. Floyd Kirkby, of Gananoque, visited Mrs. L. R. Brickman on Thursday. Sorry to report Mrs. Brickman still confined to bed.

Nearly everyone attended Belleville fair during the week.

Mrs. B. L. Redner is visiting her brother, Mr. Blake Pearsall in Toronto, and has attended some of the sessions of the World's Sunday School convention here there.

Several from the street motored to Bridge Street Church, Belleville on Wednesday evening and heard Rev. Kagawa, Japanese Christian leader and missionary speak on "Japan for Christ."

Friends are sorry to know that Mrs. M. McIntyre is in the Belleville hospital following an operation.

Mr. Kenneth Green is again busy with his threshing machine. Grain is turning out well.

WEDDINGS

EATON—FINKLE

Candelabra with tall, white candles, pink and white gladioli formed a lovely background on Saturday afternoon in Bridge Street United Church, for the marriage of Elinor Louise, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Henry Finkle, of Belleville, to John Douglas Eaton, son of Mrs. William John Eaton, of St. John's, Newfoundland, and the late Mr. Eaton. The Rev. Donald C. Amos, pastor of the church, officiated.

Mr. S. Alec Gordon, organist of the church, provided the wedding music, which included the National Anthem of Newfoundland, and Mr. John Deacon, soloist, sang before the ceremony, "Thanks Be To God", and during the signing of the register, "Ich Liebe Dich" ("I Love Thee"), by Grieg.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, was radiant in her traditional, white satin bridal gown, designed on simple lines featuring a full skirt draped from a deep yoke into a circular train, gathered bodice with sweetheart neckline, and long sheath-like sleeves. Her full length veil of tulle illusion was caught by a band of matching satin and seed pearls. She carried a shower bouquet of white gardenias, fleur-d'amour, and stephanotis.

Miss Charlotte Finkle, sister of the bride, was maid of honor, while Miss Frances Jean Finkle, also sister of the bride, and Mrs. A. K. Smith, of Roseland, Ontario, sister of the bridegroom, were bridesmaids. All were gowned alike in habiscus pink satin fashioned with gathered skirts with fitted bodices having draped stoles over the shoulders. They wore matching Juliet caps banded by braided satin, and carried shower bouquets of deep rose gladioli, glamellias, and stephanotis garlands.

Mr. Albert K. Smith, of Roseland, Ontario, was groomsman, and the ushers were Mr. Jack Kuntze, Mr. Norman Brown, and Mr. John Locke, all of Belleville.

The wedding reception was held at the home of the bride's parents, which was tastefully decorated with deep-pink asters, baby's breath, mauve larkspur, and nile green tinted carnations, where the bride's mother, becomingly gowned in blue vapour lace with matching accessories and corsage of rosa-banlima gladioli florets and garnet roses, received the many guests. She was assisted by the bridegroom's grandmother, Mrs. Bell, of Toronto, who wore powder blue with navy accessories and corsage of white gardenias.

For travelling, the bride chose a navy suit with green accessories, and wearing as a lapel ornament, a red and white floral pin and earrings, which had been flown from Germany, the gift of a personal friend. After September 1st., Mr. and Mrs. Eaton will be at home, 28 Huntingdon Street, Yarmouth, Nova Scotia.

Among the many congratulatory messages received were those from St. John's, Newfoundland, from the mother, sisters and brothers of the bridegroom, also cables from friends abroad, including one from Miss Jessie Tuite, Miss Madeline Young, and Miss Iva Macauley, Scotland; and one from Miss Leona Riggs, Salzburg, Germany.

Previous to her marriage the bride was entertained by Miss Jessie Tuite, and the ladies of the staff of Albert College; Mrs. G. S. Cronk and Mrs. Wayne Simmons; Mrs. John W. Deacon; Mrs. Frank Langdon and Mrs. A. McLean; Mrs. H. E. Robbins; Mrs. H. W. Ackerman; Mrs. P. C. McGuire, and Mrs. Gilbert Scott; Mrs. L. B. Riggs and Mrs. P. W. Geen, and Dr. and Mrs. Bert Howard.

Women's Activities

CENTENARY W.A.

The August meeting of Centenary W.A. was held at the home of Mrs. R. Hart with a fair attendance. The president, Mrs. E. Hart, opened the meeting. The minutes of the last meeting were read by the secretary, Mrs. R. Edmondson, who also gave the roll call. Mrs. W. Shortt contributed to the birthday box and all sang "Happy Birthday". The treasurer reported that the money that had been sent to 'Care' for Korea had been returned. Then a letter received stated that refugees from South Korea were moved to Japan and that the money would be accepted, so it is to be sent back. After a short discussion period, the meeting was turned over to the W.M.S. Centenary W.M.S.

Mrs. G. Sills, president, conducted the August meeting of the W.M.S., at the home of Mrs. R. Hart. The minutes of the last meeting were read by the secretary, Mrs. J. Lawrenson. A committee was appointed to look after an open meeting in September when it is hoped to have Mrs. B. Lehman as guest speaker.

Mrs. J. Kelley gave a fine temperance talk. Mrs. R. Hart gave a reading "The Call of the Multitudes". In part it said "If all the lost souls in India were in a procession and one passed every minute—it would take nine years for all to pass by." Everyone should asw "Lord, what would Thou have me to do?"

The devotional part of the program was taken from the Missionary Monthly. Those taking part were Mrs. R. Thrasher, Mrs. R. Edmonson Mrs. E. Ray, and Mrs. S. Sills, The theme for this program was the same as the convention theme "Jesus Christ, Teacher and Lord". Rev. A. C. McCallum closed with prayer. The hostess and her helpers served refreshments.

Women's Mission Circle Conducts Evening Service

In the absence of the Rev. H. O. Eastman on vacation, the evening services at Victoria Avenue Baptist church, during the month of August, have been conducted by various organizations of the church. Last evening the service was in charge of the Women's Mission Circle.

Mrs. C. Campbell, president of the Circle, presided with Mrs. Post fulfilling the duties of accompanist.

After the call to worship and the singing of the hymn "In Christ There is No East or West", Mrs. Carr led in prayer. The Scripture lesson, Psalm 91— was read by Miss Lounsberry and a duet was rendered by the Misses Joan and Jean Faulkner. The announcements were made and the offering dedicated by Mrs. Robosn and the hymn "Greenland's Icy Mountains" was sung.

Mrs. Campbell gave a moving and inspiring address in the life and work of Dr. Jessie Allyn. Like the prophet Samuel of old, Jessie had been dedicated by her parents to the service of God before her birth, which took place in 1880. She grew up not knowing of their desire for her, but felt God's call so strongly that, after obtaining her doctor's degree from Trinity University and a year at Moody Bible Institute, Chicago she was appointed as a missionary to India in 1906. Her greatest work was accomplished at Pithapuram, a town halfway between Madras and Calcutta, where she labored for many years, always serving souls as well as bodies. She died in India in August, 1944—the dedication of her life completed.

Following this address, a reading "The Unanswered Call", was given by Mrs. Robson.

The service was brought to a close by the singing of the hymn "There's a Voice in the Wilderness Crying", and prayer by Mrs. Campbell.

CONDEMN PROPOSALS

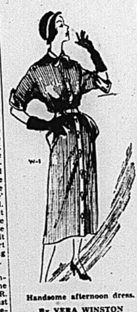
Frankfurt, Germany, Aug. 21 (AP)—A gathering of 10,000 Germans applauded wildly yesterday when speakers at the first International Socialist rally here since 1928 condemned proposals for rearming Germany. Dr. Erich Ollenhauer, deputy chairman of the west German Socialists, declared that conditions in western Germany are too unsettled for such an "adventure" as remilitarization.

FISHERMEN RESCUED

Sandusky, Mich., Aug. 21 (CP)—Two fishermen were rescued Sunday by the freighter W. E. Fitzgerald after they had clung to their overturned rowboat in Lake Huron for 19 hours.

The two, Cole Shoemaker, 33, of Dearborn, and Arnold Schilk, 33, of Detroit, were reported in good condition in hospital here where they were being treated for exposure.

Season Satin



Handsome afternoon dress.

By VERA WINSTON

HERE and there, as the old season wanes, one sees suits and dresses of satin that have an early Fall look to them, and yet are right for the present. Tucked satin with a soft crepe back with an important air. The dress has a plain satin band at the neck that ties into a neat little bow. The band continues down to the hem. The half-sleeves, cut in one with the bodice, have cuffs that end in points at the outer edge, and there are cuff pointed pockets at the hips.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry Carter Foxboro Honored by Friends On 60th Wedding Anniversary

Lifelong residents of the Foxboro-Halloway community, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Carter, Foxboro, were honored Sunday by community residents and friends on the occasion of the 60th anniversary of their marriage.

On a mid-August day back in 1870, 23-year-old Henry Carter and his 20-year-old bride-to-be stepped into a rented buggy and drove from Halloway to Plainfield, where they were married by the Methodist minister, Rev. Mr. Meyers. The bride was the former Mary Effie Jane Bushell, 9th concession Thurlow.

"Not many farmers had buggies those days," laughed Mrs. Carter, "so we had to hire a buggy from a liveryman in Belleville, to make the trip to Plainfield to get married."

With the exception of brief visits elsewhere, Mr. and Mrs. Carter since their marriage have lived in the Halloway-Foxboro community where they farmed for the greater part of their lives.

Mr. Carter says he was born at Downey's Rapids in the Tweed district but moved to Halloway with his parents when a very small boy "so I don't know much about it." He worked on the railroad briefly, then in partnership with a brother operated a threshing machine for a number of years. For the past 23 years they have lived with their son on their farm north of Foxboro.

Enjoy Good Health

Despite their advanced years, hi e oi,hrt Ona,(wc

both Mr. and Mrs. Carter have enjoyed good health. Up until two years ago Mr. Carter carried out customary farm duties and still goes to the barn 'once a day'. He is slightly hard of hearing but his eyesight is keen and he never wore glasses. They are members of the United Church at Foxboro.

Saturday the happy couple received a congratulatory message from the King and Queen, while they also received a message from the provincial secretary congratulating them on their anniversary.

And so on Sunday the Foxboro community paid tribute to the grand old couple. Congregated on the lawn at the side of the home the group saw Mr. and Mrs. Carter presented with two occasional chairs from the community as well as anniversary rings. They were also recipients of a Kenwood blanket from the family.

Member as Chairman

Roscoe Robson, M.P.P., for Hastings East, acted as chairman for the presentation ceremony and called on several persons for impromptu addresses. There was also musical entertainment with the Kelly girls, Dorothy, Helen and Marian, favoring with a vocal trio, while Harry and Lorne Carter rendered [illegible] selections on the violin and guitar.

Mr. and Mrs. Carter have but one son, Harry, with whom they live at their Foxboro farm. There is one grandson, Lorne Carter.

GOOD MANNERS

Letter paper for thank-you notes

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

1. When I write my thank-you notes for my wedding presents, what type of stationery is most proper for me to use?

2. Are Informals with either of the following nameforms on the front correct: Mary and John Jones or Mr. and Mrs. John Jones?

3. Are these thank-you notes from me alone or both of us? For example: do I sign them "Mary and John" or "Mary"?

F. A.

1. For these thank-you notes it is important that you use paper of good quality . . .and I suggest the folded semi-notes paper that fits into the envelope without folding (5 1-2x4 1-4 inch paper provides a pleasantly adequate space for these notes). You'll be right if you choose white paper, or you may correctly use a paper in your favorite shade, if in sure taste. There may be no marking at all on the paper. Or the paper may be die-stamped with the initials or monogram of your maiden name. Or it may be stamped with your address only. If you haven't a die of your initials or monogram and you wish to use your initials on this paper, a thrifty and proper way is to order a die made of three attractive block initials, one for your first name, one for your maiden surname, and the last for your married surname. . . .

. . .have the engraver fill in the last initial with paraffin, and for your thank-you notes stamp the paper with the first two initials. (For your letter-paper after you are married, the paraffin can be removed, and the three initials used.)

2. For these thank-you notes you also may use (though it is not such good form as notepaper) Informals of the large size. . . the small size give a too cramped appearance. For the thank-you notes, which should of course be written before your wedding, your maiden name should be engraved on the front: Miss Mary Allen Jones.

3. You write the thank-you notes and you sign them with your name only. In the body of the note you express your John's enthusiasm for the gift and appreciation.

Reception after the wedding trip

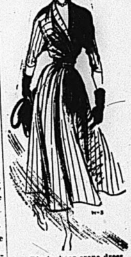
Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

My son is being married the end of the next month, at an informal wedding in the southern part of our state (Florida). We know that only the immediate family will be able to get to the wedding from here, and the prospective bride and groom have only a few friends down there. So we are wondering if it would be proper, instead of putting in invitation to the reception in the wedding announcements, to enclose cards to our friends here announcing a reception to be held here later, after the couple have returned from their honeymoon.

Mother

It is a charming plan, most gracious, for you and your husband, the groom's parents, to give a reception in honor of the couple when they visit you after their return from the wedding trip. But since the invitations to the wedding and the announcements of the marriage are sent by the bride's parents, and are sponsored by them, it would not be proper for you and your husband to enclose invitations to a reception to be given by you. If by "we", you mean the bride's parents, too, are wondering about this invitation-plan, the answer is that no invitation to a reception to be given later should be enclosed in the invitation and certainly not in the announcements. When the date has been set for the return of the bride and groom, and the plans for the reception have been made, then the invitations should be sent out. . . not earlier.

For Summer And Autumn



Black sheer crepe dress

By VERA WINSTON

THE wise shopper, at this time, tries to steer clear of so-called "summer bargains" however pretty they may be. She selects clothes that, while they look right for late summer, will carry on nicely into Fall. Here's one dress ready to do just that. It is of black sheer rayon crepe and is smartly tucked all over. The tucks are horizontal on the bodice with its rolled collar, and are used vertically on the flared skirt which has a few gathers in the centre front. It is an easy-to-wear dress that is excellent for the more mature figure.

MARIO ... in his distinctive feature about Food ... What's Cooking ?

The English Duke of Clarence would have made a poor cook. He was the nobleman who, when condemned to death, asked to be drowned in wine.

Any experienced cook could have told Clarence that it is a bad practice for either human beings or food to be completely inundated with wine.

A kidney stew, for instance, should only contain enough wine to slightly flavor the meat. Nor, on the other hand, should it be used so sparingly that people think it was dropped in accidentally. The meat and gravy flavor should dominate the stew. The wine should be secondary.

Kidneys are always one of the cheaper cuts of beef. Ordinarily a beef kidney weighs about one pound and will provide 4 generous servings.

When buying kidneys look for meat with a bright brown color and hard brittle fat. If you must pay for the fat, be sure to take it home to melt down for frying.

Veal kidneys or lamb kidneys may be substituted for beef kidneys in today's recipe although the cost will be higher.

Kidney Stew with Wine
4 Servings

Wipe with a damp cloth 1 large beef kidney. Cut away any membrane, fat or tubes. Put kidney in cold water for 2 hours. Drain.

Cut kidneys into small cubes about 3-4 inch thick.

In a heavy paper bag put 1-2 cup flour, 1 teaspoon salt and 1-2 teaspoon paprika. Shake bag well to coat all particles of meat.

Melt fat to a depth of 1-2 inch in a heavy frying pan. Brown kidneys slowly, turning to brown on all sides. Remove kidneys, draining from fat.

In a large saucepan melt 2 tablespoons fresh fat. Add 1 medium size onion chopped fine, 1-2 green pepper chopped fine and 1 clove of garlic chopped fine.

Cover saucepan with lid and simmer vegetables slowly for 5 minutes or until onions start to turn brown.

Add kidneys. Add 1-4 cup dry white wine. Sprinkle 2 tablespoons flour over meat, mixing well. Add 2 cups of water and 2 bouillon cubes, or 2 cups of meat stock, 1-2 teaspoon salt and 1 small bay leaf.

Add 1 cup of chopped canned tomatoes or 1 cup of tomato juice.

Simmer slowly until kidneys are tender, 1 1-2 to 2 hours. Skim fat off sauce. Remove bay leaf. Add brown gravy color and salt and pepper to taste. Add more wine to the stew if desired.

MELROSE W. M. S.

The W. M. S. held their regular meeting recently at the home of Mrs. Grant McLaren, with an attendance of 12.

The president, Mrs. R. Macfarlane presided. The theme was 'Jesus Christ, Teacher and Lord,'

The leader read paragraphs on "Once In A Lifetime," and "The World Convention On Christian Education." The scripture lesson was read by the president Mrs. Charles Macfarlane, a guest at this meeting, read the hymn "Hills of the North Rejoice." Mrs. R. Badgley read the hymn "In Christ There is No East or West."

During the business period the auxiliary accepted the kind invitation of Mrs. John Macfarlane of Belleville to hold the September meeting at her home.

Mrs. W. McMeachan group leader took charge of the program, "The World Convention on Christian Education." Mrs. G. McLaren and Miss M. Bailey assisted with these interesting readings on Sunday School work in Korea, "Our Guests from Angola," "The Sunday School in India' and "Religion Education in Trindidad."

The offering of $4.50 was received.

The hostess served delicious refreshments and a social half hour followed.

ADVICE to the LOVELORN

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

A waiting period makes decision easier

Dear Miss Fairfax:

Because the young man with whom I am in love is of a different nationality and faith from mine, it causes trouble between us and my parents. He is 23 and I am 18.

My mother has asked me to give him up and try to find someone of our nationality and faith, but though there is another boy who says he loves me and would do anything for me, he could never take the place of the other.

So this one I love has decided that if we can't get married now, he'll go into service. He says that when he comes back, if we still feel the same about each other, we could then make our own plans.

Do you think this would be a good idea, or is there any other way we could solve our problem?

J. L.

Dear J. L.:

Your problem is one that a great many young people find themselves facing today, and it is a very difficult and complicated one indeed.

There are many urgent questions to be seriously considered and wisely decided well in advance of marriage if any young people in such a situation are to be happy together as man and wife, and raise a family harmoniously.

This being so, I think the suggestion this young man has made that you wait a while is a very sensible one. He wouldn't necessarily have to go into service solely on this account, of course. You could just agree that you would stop too much talking and thinking about your problem for, say, at least a year. It would be difficult, I know, but if you realized it would be for the best in the long run, I'm sure you'd have the strength of character to do it.

The most important thing is that you don't try to look ahead too far and make definite plans too quickly. A waiting period almost always helps when there is a difficult decision to be made.

Only immature young men fall for foolish women

Dear Miss Fairfax:

Would you answer a question for me?

There are several young men in our town who don't care to date anyone but married women who have left their husbands, whether these women are divorced or not. Most of the women have at least two children, but when you see them out, they act and dress like teen-agers themselves. They think they are smart because they can get attention from single men.

What I want to know is, why do men fall for such women?

A. F.

Dear A. F.:

Men who fall for foolish women are usually the foolish type themselves, or else so young they think they are being sophisticated. Also, it flatters their ego to feel that older women find them attractive.

If I were you, I wouldn't waste any time or thought on them. I am sure not all the young men in your town are immature enough to be taken in by such women, and you'd better put your mind on finding acquaintances in the sensible group.

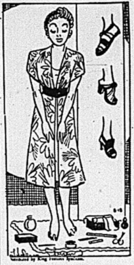
BEAUTY

Directions for the home pedicure

The self-administered manicure is not easy because you have but one hand to work with, and when you put in form the pink shells at the tips of your toes you are not bothered with left-handed awkwardness. The best time for this treatment is immediately after a warm bath when the flesh is soft and pliable.

When shaping the nails it is best to use a flexible steel file instead of the scissors that may leave rough edges that will snag your nylons. An extra filing with an emery board will produce an extra-smooth finish to the eaves. Cut straight across, never down at the sides. Gouging into the flesh at the side means that the cuticle will harden and bank up—with ingrowing nails resulting. These horrors can become painful, the nail so distorted that professional attention may be necessary.



Before applying the polish, place pledgets of cotton between the toes.

See that the skin is thoroughly dry, then apply mineral oil to each nail. The purpose of that is to soften the cuticle so that it can be lifted away from the nail fabric with an orange wood stick. Do little circles. Do not press the flesh back, especially at the base of the nail where the matrix is forming.

If you flush up any little ragtags of skin, snip them away with curved, needle-point scissors, being careful not to cause a wound.

You may prefer to use a cuticle remover instead of an oil. If you do, use the oil afterward with light friction to keep the nails in a healthy condition. If you find any calloused spots, treat them to friction with a toilet pumice stone, then use the oil again. By keeping the flesh soft it will not be so likely to prove troublesome. Such blemishes are caused by ill fitting shoes; the thing to do is to remove the cause. Narrow shoes will produce thickened flesh along the outer edge of the big toe. With proper shoes one should be free of corns, callouses and ingrowing nails.

Cuticle remover and oil must be washed away with warm soap suds if the rosy polish is to endure. You can put oil on polish, but you should not put polish on an oily surface.

Before applying polish, place pledgets of cotton between the toes to keep them apart. Let the polish flow on lightly using two applications which will make a neater job than one heavy film. Pimento is a nice color. You can use it on your finger nails, too; it will be flattering if you are a sun worshipper and have gone tawny.

Seating her guests no place cards

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

I am planning to give a luncheon in honor of a college friend of mine who is passing through our city on her way to South America. I have only one maid, a part-time helper. I don't feel that it is especially appropriate to have place cards, and I prefer not to have them, but to indicate the seating myself. Just how should I do this ? Should I enter the dining-room first or last?

Roma B.

You enter the dining-room first . . .that is, not first alone, but with one or two of the first guests entering. And while you slowly walk toward your place-at-table you tell each guest where to sit. You remain standing until all your guests are seated. An excellent way to do, if your guest of honor is not busy chatting with a guest, is to ask her to "go in" with you, and make a charming feature of the fact that she is your guest of honor: "Helena, will you sit here at my right, please?" . . . "and Florence here" (indicating the place) . . . "and. Therese here" . . . and so forth.

Wedding cake only at reception

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

My sister is to be married in mid-morning; very few are to be invited to the ceremony and only members of the families to the luncheon to be given after the ceremony. But later in the day, beginning about five o'clock, there is to be a large reception. Mother would like to know if we should order two wedding cakes, one small one for the bride to cut at the luncheon for the families, and a large one to serve at the reception? Or, since both the luncheon and the reception are to be at our house, should we have only one large cake and have the bride cut the cake twice, once at the luncheon and later at the reception?

Sister

Since the members of the families will be present on both occasions, I suggest that you have only one cake, a large one to be cut at the reception.

When to retire. . .does guest or hostess make suggestion?

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

When I go visiting I'm always perplexed as to whether I or the hostess should suggest retiring. Next month I'm going to spend a weekend of my vacation with some friends whom I haven't known very long, and who are very well-bred people. Will you please answer this question for me so I'll feel reassured (beginning with the evening of my arrival)?

Margaret

The visitor is the one who has the privilege of making this suggestion as to retiring. Obviously this makes it easier for the hostess, especially if the visitor has the grace to sense "just the right time".

Some hostesses, who sense that their guest is uncertain about this, graciously make it easy for the guest, by saying, for example, "I realize that you have had a long trip today, and you may be tired. Please don't hesitate to tell us if you would like to go to bed early."

If, on the other hand, you think you are being thoughtful in making the early-to-bed suggestion, and this suggestion is vetoed by your hosts, you'll have to have the wisdom of Solomon in trying to determine how seriously to take this veto. Your hosts may really wish to stay up longer, or they may just be trying to be polite! If you linger, you may be wrong in your interpretation of what they wish to do. If you say "Good night" at once or fairly soon, the chances are you'll be right.

It will be a comfort to you to remember that this problem is more difficult on the first meeting of your arrival. After that you'll be more familiar with the habits and preferences of the household and can adjust your suggestion accordingly.

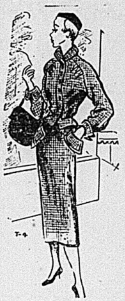
Suit Season



Checked wool outfit

By GRACE THORNCLIFFE

IT would be mighty difficult to resist the siren song of at least one new suit come Fall, what with all the beauties in tweeds for daytime, and the lusicous velvets and silks for after-dark delight. Hounds tooth checked wool in brown tones is used for this good looking daytime suit that should see plenty of wear. Buttoned down below the perky rolled collar, it is fairly low-waisted and moderately bloused. Shape darts emanate from the raglan shoulders to give bodice interest, and the sleeves have shirtwaist cuffs. The slim skirt has two slant-wise flapped pockets.

CARMEL

Carmel — Mr. and Mrs. Fred Carlton, Toronto and Mrs. W. Salmon, Rochester, visited Mr. and Mrs. P. Reynolds, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Haines and Mr. and Mrs. Carl Sheffield last week.

Misses Lynda Dawson and Patsy Dafoe celebrated their birthdays last week with a party for their little friends.

Mr. and Mrs. Percy Runnals, Peterborough, and Mr. and Mrs. O. Dafoe, Foxboro were callers at the home of Mr. and Mrs. C Brintnell, Monday evening.

Mrs. Harry Dafoe spent the weekend at her home and also Mr. and Mrs. Carmen Dafoe.

Mr. and Mrs. Willet Pitman and Frank, Toronto and Mrs. Van Allen, Kingston, spent the weekend with Mr. and Mrs. Blake Pitman and all motored to Kingston on Sunday.

Many friends attended the funeral of the late Matthew Jones. Rev. W. Merrick of Selby, and Rev. W. Cook, Cannifton conducted the service, which was held in the home. Mr. Jones will be sadly missed as he was one of Carmel's most esteemed residents.

Mrs. Frank Guay, who has been ill for the past three weeks, is recovering favorably and all hope to see her around again soon.

Mrs. Levi Latonne entertained a number of ladies one evening to a plastic and nylon demonstration put on by Mrs. Harry Elvidge, Belleville.

Mr. and Mrs. S. Homan, Mrs. Milton Ross and Mrs. Charles Brintnell, spent Sunday in Toronto, attending the International Convention of Sunday School Movement.

Mr. Clarence Chambers returned home from Belleville General Hospital on Saturday, all wish him a speedy recovery.

CHIPS OFF THE SPORTS BLOCK

The Batawa Shoemen, who have been a source of almost unallayed anguish to their supporters this year, more than made up for past mistakes last Saturday night at Exhibition Park, when they turned in their best game in years in downing the Brockville Memos 2-1 in a real thriller. It was a soothing sight to see the Shoemen play the high calibre of ball which everyone feels is the kind of ball that should be played in senior company, and doubly soothing to see it played in Belleville. Home town fans rarely appreciate their local club's best efforts when they are turned in on foreign fields and when the only record of such excellence is hearsay or a pile of cold statistics.

* * *

The win was a prize plum from any angle. For Gord Muffitt it was a personal triumph in that he defeated his former battery mate, the redoubtable "Smoky" Smith. Belleville fans will remember "Smoky" for his inspired hurling with the Shoemen teams of a few years ago, and it is somewhat of a mixed joy to relate that he still has all his old stuff, including that peculiar corkscrew-like rotation of his left hand just before he whips it around. His curve is still something to behold and he seems to have just about all his old speed. Smoky, who is stationed in Brockville with the Provincial Police will make the Memoes a potent force in the forthcoming COBL playdowns.

* * *

The victory, by one run, had an irony of its own in that the Memoes have been so unkind this season as to defeat the Batawans four times by the same margin, giving them their edge over the Shoemen in the standings. The win also strengthened the Shoemen's grip on fourth place in the COBL ladder. The Shoemen, who have been struggling valiantly with the Memoes for the fourth and last playoff berth, have suddenly found themselves in fourth place, a game in front of the Napanee Athletics who, after an early season spurt, have been skidding so fast that the startled Shoemen barely noticed them go by in their rush into the COBL cellar.

* * *

The Shoemen used a slightly shuffled lineup for the game with Mac Carson in from the outer gardens to play third base. Bill Rankin was over at short, while Dick Bridgeman roamed in right field.

The general attitude of the Shoemen seems to have changed for the better. They showed more hustle than they have all season and seemed to be out for bear right from the first pitch, instead of warming up in the late innings to fall by the wayside in the last of the ninth just one run short of a win. The new coach-elect, Cec Solmes, should keep dosing the boys from the same bottle.

The league-leading Kingston Disney Leafs move into the Fair Grounds Wednesday night to do battle with the rejuvenated Shoemen.

Tonight coach "Speedy" St. Louis unleashes his Belleville Cubs at Sixardee where they will attempt to claw the Repairmen in the first game of the Belleville and District League finals. The Cannifton Clippers, (whom we are told incidentally, are not called the Clippers) conceded their series to the Cubs after being whacked 8-1 in the first game, and that is why the Cubs are meeting the airmen so soon.

The two teams play back in Belleville, under the lights, Thursday night.

* * *

No matter what happens in the city series, the Cubs have decided not to go on into the Ontario playdowns because of lack of funds. If the Sixardee boys intend to represent the league they should be declared the league reps before Saturday, August 26, according to a report in from the O. B. A.

The Commercial Softball League A section promises to provide some nifty entertainment at the Alemite Field this week. Tomorrow night the fifth place Stewart Warner team makes its bid for a playoff berth by meeting Point Anne Çementmen. The Alemite squad, which has been coming like a runaway horse, after a poor start early in the season, must win this one or down Ramsay Paints later in the month to have a chance at all.

Thursday evening, the front-running Howe and Hagerman squad meets the second place Brewers. A repetition of their first game, won by the Plumbers 5-2 in eleven innings, is hardly likely, but the game should be spirited and full of good softball.

TRIED HARD WAY

(By The Canadian Press)

Waterloo Tigers tried it the hard way Saturday and won.

They have up five runs to London Majors in the second inning. Then they came back to edge the Majors 7-6 in a 12-inning senior intercounty tussle in Waterloo Saturday.

In other weekend games, Stratford Nationals beat Guelph Majors 5-3 and St. Thomas Legionnaires took both ends of a doubleheader from Galt Terriers, eliminating Galt from play off possibilities.

Bata Shoemen Take Tighter Grip on Fourth Playoff Spot By Beating Brockville Memoes

In one of the best baseball games seen in the local park in the last few years Batawa Shoemen's ace righthander, Gord Muffitt, out-dueled his old battery mate "Smoky" Smith Saturday night as the Shoemen took a tighter grip on fourth place in the COBL race by downing Brockville Memoes 2-1.

The Shoemen, showing more hustle than has been apparent all season, made it clear from the first inning that they were out for blood. A slightly revamped lineup that had Mac Carson in from the outfield to play third base, with third baseman Bill Rankin moved to short, seemed to stiffen the Batawans on the ground. Shortstop Dick Bridgeman was out in right field and handled five chances without an error.

It was the brilliant mound duel between Gord Muffitt and ("Smoky" Smith, however, that highlighted the game. "Smoky" who did his most effective hurling for the Shoemen not so many years ago, had all his old tricks, and kept the Batawa sluggers guessing most of the night with a round-house curve and a snapping fastball. Gord Muffitt however, had one of his best nights in a Shoemen uniform and was unbeatable.

Played Close to Vest

Both teams played it close to the vest from the first pitch, with the strategy being to score one run and hang on. The Memoes came up with their lone run in the third inning. Paul Fodey led off with a blooper behind second. Smith fouled out to Aquino trying to squeeze him along, and then Ashley popped one just over Muffitt's head and beat out the throw to first. Rickey flied out to right field with Bridgeman's relay checking the runners. Jim Proctor then drilled one into left field on a hit-and-run. Solmes' throw to the plate was right on and when Fodey was called safe on a very close play the debate with umpire Ray McClure was on. When order was restored, Hank Dul struck out to retire the side. Muffitt then limited the Memoes to two singles over the rest of the route finishing off the game with a magnificent display in the ninth, retiring the side on strikes.

Scored in Seventh

The Shoemen, who had their hands full trying to cope with "Smoky's" stuff missed what looked their only chance in the fourth, when Bush who had doubled and gone to third on Solmes' roller to first, was tagged out trying to come in from third. The hit-and-run was on and Watson missed a high pitch leaving Bush a sitting duck as he tried vainly to put on the brakes.

The Shoemen scored their runs in the seventh. Bush singled to open the inning. Spencer, pinch hitting for Solmes, struck out finally after eight foul balls. Watson drilled one to short which Williford missed and that was the break. Aquino promptly belted the first pitch served up into right-centre field for his third hit in three tries to score Bush. Art Wright, in there for Ken Peacock, delivered a long fly to left field to score Watson and that was the ball game.

TRAINER BEATEN

Kitchener, Aug 21—(CP)—Fred McAvoy, 68, trainer of the Waterloo Tigers baseball club, was attacked and beaten Saturday in the club dressing room.

Assault charges were laid against Alban Kane.

McAvoy said he entered the dressing room during an Intercounty League game with London Majors. He said Kane came in the room, knocked him unconscious and kicked him. Two men passing the room entered and seized Kane.

Calgary Stamps Beat Alouettes In Exhibition

(By The Canadian Press)

Football made its 1950 Canadian debut during the weekend and it included a sequel to last fall's east-west final.

In Calgary the Stampeders scored a 19-7 victory over Montreal Alouettes, reversing the order of the Grey Cup final in which the Alouettes became Canadian champions last season.

Royal Copeland, with Toronto Argonauts last year, sparked the westerners with two pretty touchdowns, one on a 45-yard run through centre and the other from 11 yards out.

In Toronto the Scullers defeated Argos 29-6 as the team was split into two squads for a benefit game. Ulysses Curtis, a halfback import from Florida A & M scored three majors.

In Hamilton, Tigers-Cats rolled up a crushing 57-0 victory over Sarnia Imperial in a Saturday night exhibition game.

Toronto's junior olympics track team broke three meet records but was edged out of first place in the final scoring, 237 points to 224 1-2, in the junior olympic meet at Cleveland Saturday.

Joan Nimmo's five feet, 1 1-2 inches was meet record for the running high jump in the 6 and 17 year group.

William Selkirk of the 12 and 13-year-old boys cleared 18 feet seven inches for a running broad jump mark, and Mildred Gross shaved one-tenth of a second off the 75-yard dash mark in the 16-17 age group with a time of 8 9/10 seconds.

World records fell in several parts of the world during the weekend.

Jim Fuchs of Yale University cracked his own unofficial world record for the 16-pound shot put when he heaved the iron ball 58 feet 9 9/64 inches at Visby, Sweden Saturday. Listed world mark is 58 feet, 3/8 inches.

Half-miler Mal Witfield ran an exhibition at Cleveland Saturday of 1:49.2 for 880 yards.

In Kure, Japan, Hironoshin Furuhashi shaved nearly a second off the world's record in the 550-metre free style, churning the distance in 5:55.8.

Bobby Locke may be back in Canada in time to play in the Canadian Golf Open at Montreal next week Ken Murray, president of the Canadian Professional Golfers Association, said Saturday that Locke, now in England, is trying to make it back to Canada.

Paul McLaughlin of Toronto's Royal Canadian Yacht Club won the International 14-foot open evevnt in the Canadian Dingby Association regatta at Toronto Saturday.

England's Donald Campbell says he thinks his Bluebird II is too old to recapture the world speed boat record. He is trying to raise money to build a new one to beat U.S. records.

Ladies of the Ottawa Lawn Bowling Club won the Lady Alexander Trophy Sunday, scoring a 50-36 decision over Lachine, Que., in the capital.

J L. Van won the major portion of the $2,000 17 pace stakes, feature event of the closing program at Toronto's Thorncliffe Raceway Saturday. Driven by Keith Waples, J. L. Van won the first heat and finished second in the second. Popular Volo was second in the opening heat and Canada Direct won the second division.

Lloyd Mangrum shot a 69 Sunday to grab the $2,000 Eastern Open golf prize with a 72-hole total of 279 at Baltimore. He beat Clayton Heafner of Charlotte, N.C., by two strokes.

Guy Lombardo gunned his Tempo VI to a victory Sunday in the [illegible] limited hydroplane event of the [illegible] Launch Club's second annual international speedboat regatta. He was a mile-and-a-half ahead of Joe Van Blerck of Freeport, N.Y., on the choppy, 15-mile Niagara River course.

Ottawa Rough Riders of the Big Four have suffered a blow. A club official has announced that Howie (touchdown) Turner, star backfielder, was injured in practice and will be out of the game indefintely.

Overmire, Wight and Pierce, 3 Scorned Southpaws Make It Tough on Tigers and Indians

By JOE RTICHLER
(Associated Press Sports Writer)

A trio of scorned southpaws are dancing on air today to the music made by the moans and groans of of the Detroit Tigers and Cleveland Indians.

With victories over the disillusioned pennant contenders, the trio — pitchers Stubby Overmire, Bill Wight and Billy Pierce — proved once again how fatal it can be to under-estimate a cast-off.

Overmire, cast adrift by Detroit last winter, gained sweet revenge on his former employees yesterday when he spun a 6-2 victory to give St. Louis Browns an even break in their doubleheader with the American League leaders. The Tigers had come from behind to win the opener 5-4.

Wight and Pierce, traded off by New York Yankees and Tigers, respectively, turned in sparkling performances in pitching Chicago White Sox to 2-1 and 6-5 triumphs over the Indians.

Prior to yesterday's games, the Tigers had whipped the seventh-place Browns 10 times in 12 meetings, while the Indians had beaten the sixth-place White Sox 10 games to five.

Taking advantage of the Tiger and Indian lapses, and with the help of Joe DiMaggio's bat, the Yankees won two games from the hapless Philadelphia Athletics, 6-4 and 5-2, to climb into second place past the Indians. The Bronx Bombers, who open a long home stay Tuesday with an important three-game series against the Tigers, thus chewed off a full game off the Tigers' lead and moved another game in front of the tribe. The Tigers' margin over the Yanks in three games.

Boston Red Sox, rained out yesterday, remain in fourth place, six games off the pace.

Rain Cut Activity

Rain cut National League activity. With the four eastern teams yielding to weeping skies, the spotlight was thrust on St. Louis Cardinals. The Red Birds rose to the occasion, coming from behind to nip Cincinnati Reds 3-2. Stan Musial drove in all St. Louis' runs with three singles. Howie Pollet gained the nod over Cincinnati's Ken Raffensberger. The victory moved the Cards into a third-place tie with Boston.

Paul Minner and Frank Hiller, another pair of discards, pitched Chicago Cubs to a 4-2, 5-2 sweep of a doubleheader from Bittsburgh. Minner, the former Brooklyn lefthander, allowed eight hits for his seventh victory in the opener. Hiller, former Yankee, spaced seven hits for his ninth victory against two losses. Ralph Kiner rapped his 37th homer for the Bucs.

Prime Requisite Of Hurler to Win Important Game

(By The Associated Press)

Russ Bauers, the former National League hurler, still retains that prime requisite demanded of all good pitchers—win the important game.

The 35-year-old righthander is responsible for Baltimore's second-place standing in the International League today. He stopped Montreal Royals 2-1 in the second game of a double-header yesterday after the Royals had won the opener 4-3. Another victory by Montreal would have dropped Baltimore into third place.

It was Bauer's 10th triumph and 12th complete game. The former member of Pittsburgh Pirates and Chicago Cubs gave up six hits in besting Clyde King, Montreal's crack righthander. For King, it was his first setback in 11 games against the Orioles.

In the opener, the Royals smacked Tommy Fine for 14 hits, while four Montreal moundsmen held the Orioles to four singles.

Buffalo and Syracuse also split a doubleheader. Buffalo notched the opener 3-1 behind Ken Wood's four-hitter, but Syracuse rebounded to take the second game 3-2, although Harry Byrd pitched four-hit ball for Buffalo.

The Toronto-Jersey City and Rochester - Springfield doubleheaders were postponed due to rain.

Tiger-Cats Roll To 57-0 Victory Over Sarnia

Hamilton, Aug. 21—(CP)—Hamilton Tiger-Cats rolled up a crushing 57-0 victory over Sarnia Imperials in an exhibition game Saturday night.

The Interprovincial Football Union Club rolled for nine touchdowns, seven converts, two safety touches and a single against the Ontario Rugby Football Union entry.

Spark plugs of the Tiger-Cats attack were quarterback Stan Heath, with the professional Green Bay Packers in the United States last year, and Merle Hapes, brilliant running half.

Heath kicked three converts. But time after time he tossed forward passes into the arms of receivers.

Hapes didn't score but ripped off big gains along the ground with flashes of speed.

Bill Gregus plunged through Sarnia for two touchdowns. Carl Galbraith, Dick Brown, Dante Diransisco, Ray Jones, F. Hamilton, Buddy Rogers and Caine got the others.

Sarnia, led by quarterback George Curtis, had Hamilton at bay with a passing attack for a time but couldn't sustain an offensive.

$100,000 FIRE

Papineauville, Que., Aug. 19—(CP)—A $100,000 fire which raged for eight hours and swept barns and other farm buildings of the Montfortian Fathers Seminary here was brought under control early today.

Breaking out in the seminary's furnace room, the blaze razed a large agricultural building, stable and machine shop.

Rev. Albert Hamelin, assistant Superior, estimated loss at $100,000.

Riverdales Pull Biggest Upset In Lacrosse Year

(By The Canadian Press)

The last place Toronto Riverdales pulled off the biggest upset of the Ontario Lacrosse Association senior series Saturday. They defeated the first-place Owen Sound Crescents 11-10 and in Owen Sound too.

Jack Webster rammed in four goals for Riverdale and Bill Timpson added three more and got three assists. Singles were scored by Booth, Campbell, Harris and Howes.

Playing coach Doug Gillespie and Jack Mason each scored twice for Owen Sound with Foote, Smith, Allum Kazarian, Jordan and Campbell getting the others.

In Brampton, the Excelsiors defeated St. Catharines Athletics 13-8 Saturday night.

Excelsiors led 4-1 at the end of the first quarter and 6-2 at half-time. Nick Ferri and Harvey Madgett paced the winners' attack with three goals apiece. Whipper was high scorer for the losers with three goals.

Rough play broke out in the last period with referees awarding four major penalties.

Brendan Macken Wins Men's Tennis Crown

Quebec, Aug. 21—(CP)—Clean-cut strokes and bull's-eye accuracy yesterday gave Brendan Macken, Davis Cup team player, the 1950 men's Canadian tennis crown.

The 27-year-old unranked Montrealer defeated left-handed Henri Rochon, Canada's official No. 1 performer and 1949 champion, in decisive fashion, 6-0, 6-0, 6-3.

Their finals match, expected to be the high spot of the Canadian tennis championships, in which weather forced postponement of finals from Saturday to Sunday, turned out to be a rout that took less than an hour.

Macken, who breezed into the finals losing only one set in five matches, played almost faultless tennis while Montrealer Rochon, unable to get his usual snappy game going, was outclassed on the court as well as the score sheet.

On their way into final play, Macken downed three members of a four-man touring French team including a pair who captured the men's doubles title from Rochon and George Robinson of Montreal.

The French team, winners of the Canadian doubles title, were Robert Abdesselam, France's No. 2 ranking player, and Jean Ducos de la Haillec, France's No. 5 who triumphed over Rochon and Robinson, 6-3, 6-3, 6-3.

The hardest fought match of the finals was one in which plucky little Doris Popple of Spokane, Wash., cut her way through the smooth game of Barbara Knapp of Birmingham, England, for the women's title. Miss Popple won 8-6, 6-8, 7-5.

FATALLY INJURED

Kitchener, Aug. 9 — (CP) — Harvey Black, 67, of Belgrave, died in hospital last night of injuries received when he was struck by a sulky at the New Hamburg track Wednesday. The shaft of the sulky pierced his eye, brain and fractured his skull. The mishap occurred as Black, a spectator, walked across the track during the pre-race workouts.

A SORRY MESS

St. Catharines, Aug. 21—(CP)—Harvey Patterson, 47, had driven his brand-new car only 55 miles yesterday when a truck, driven by Reginald Reeve, 30, of Parry Sound smashed into the rear of his car. No one was hurt but Patterson estimates it will cost $300 to make his car look new again.

Sports Roundup

By GAYLE TALBOT
(For Hugh Fullerton, Jr.)

New York, Aug. 21 (AP) — It is ironic and regrettable that Joe Louis, the man who revived heavyweight boxing and made it the most glamorous sport of them all for more than a decade, now should be forced to bury the remains.

For no matter what happens on the night of Sept. 27—whether Joe whips Ezzard Charles or Ezzard whips Joe—the game is a goner for a long time to come. Good heavyweights appear to be a vanishing race.

The coming fight means nothing to the 36-year-old Louis except an opportunity to raise some quick money and settle his income-tax tab. He has no desire to fight again, and the training grind will be galling to him.

A Fading Species

If he wins, then what? He will have done nothing more than prove that the younger heavies are a sorry lot, indeed, as has been more than suspected.

Had the old champion not been forced to come back, then it might have been possible in time to become accustomed to Charles as the titleholder and to generate some interest in a bout between him and, say, Lee Savold.

But if Joe wallops the Cincinnati Negro, as the bookies now faor him to do by odds of 3 to 1, Ezzard might as well wrap it up. And beyond him there isn't a heavyweight in the country of any stature.

Unenviable Spot

Charles is in an unenviable spot in every respect. He never wanted to fight his old idol, Louis. It was forced upon him. It offered him his first chance to make some real money, even though he had to accept 20 per cent of the net while Joe was demanding and getting 35 per cent.

The fight offers him little else. It is highly doubtful that a victory would boost his popularity or cause him to be regarded all of a sudden as a humdinger of a heavyweight.

THREE EXECUTED

Reidsville, Ga., Aug. 19—(AP)—Three (Negro) men were executed yesterday for the torture slaying of a Chinese grocer in Augusta, Ga. It was the first triple execution in Georgia in many years. The three were convicted of slitting the throat of J. K. Joe with a butcher knife, after first blinding him with cuts across his eyes.

British Trusties May Get More Special Privileges

London, Aug. 19 — (CP) — A change in the style of present-day convict garb and increased comforts for "trusties," are among recommendations made in the annual report of Britain's prison commissioners.

The special privileges, to be allowed at the discretion of prison governors to certain classes of offenders, include the hanging of pictures in the cells, use of bedspreads, table-covers, floor mats, books and fountain pens. Women will be permitted to hang curtains.

Convicts with a high conduct rating also will be allowed to spend their spare time enjoying such approved pastimes as chess, draughts, jig-saw puzzles, painting and drawing. But playing cards, even for a game of solitaire is forbidden.

The shapeless clothing, marked with broad arrows, for years the recognized convict garb, is going out. In future "long-term ordinaries," will be clothed in a blue jacket, with a grey ring, and grey trousers.

The fashion note for corrective institutions, such as Borstall, is given in this directive: "Bluette ties should be worn with grey or blue jackets and brown ties with brown jackets. But grey and blue ties of the old pattern will be used up before bluette ties are issued.

The new order also stipulates that all prisoners should be allowed a waistcoat. For outside work, long-term convicts will get roll-neck sweaters.

Union Members Vote Down Offer Made by City

Hamilton, Aug. 21 (CP)—Members of Hamilton Civic Employees' Union (C.I.O.) Friday voted down an offer by the city to end a strike of more than 1,000 civic workers.

A negotiating committee of the Operating Engineers' Union, however, agreed to the city's offer.

The city offered the engineers and the outside workers a five-day work week in gradual stages to be completed Jan. 1, 1951; a $1 weekly cost of living bonus, increased 50 cents a week for each 1.5 rise in the official cost-of-living index; and a shift differential of seven of nine cents an hour.

A negotiating committee representing the outside workers had turned down a similar offer last week at a meeting in Labor Minister Daley's office in Toronto. About 300 of the more than 1,000 members attended Friday's mass meeting.

The union seeks a two-cent wage increase to $1.02 an hour and immediate reduction of the work week from 44 to 40 hours without loss of take-home pay. The strike began Aug. 10.

WARNS OF PANIC BUYING

Sarnia, Ont., Aug. 19 — (CP)— Findlay Patterson, president of the Canadian Restaurant Association, today warned members against "panic buying."

In a bulletin to member restaurant operators Mr. Patterson asked them to "avoid doing anything which might aggravate our country's problems." Food was in plentiful supply and purchasing beyond normal requirements was not necessary, he said.

Miners Reject Company Offer To Settle Strike

Timmins, Aug. 21—(CP)—Employees of Buffalo Ankerite Gold Mines have rejected a company offer aimed at settling a wage dispute.

Officials of the Porcupine Mine Workers Union (C.C.L.) said it will continue to press for a guaranteed cost-of-living bonus of seven cents an hour, the main point in the dispute.

The union has made the same demand of Coniarum Gold Mines and has been on strike at Preston East Dome Mines since Wednesday. All three mines are in the rich Porcupine field near here.

The union has demanded that Coniaurum and Buffalo Ankerite settle on the same terms as a contract signed recently with McIntyre Mines, which provides four paid annual holidays and a sliding scale of cost-of-living bonuses up to seven cents an hour.

Coniaurum offered a bonus of up to five cents an hour. Buffalo Ankerite offered to pay the bonus as far as possible. Both offers were rejected.

A meeting of nearly 150 Buffalo Ankerite employees rejected the company offer Saturday and authorized the union strike committee to meet the mine management again for negotiations.

HORSE SENSE BRIDGE

By SAM GORDON
The Kibitzer

Akoolap Oxpert says his bridge leads are made by instinct. So I leave the "in" off and thus classify his partnership quality. This prepares me for the load he expects me to carry.

Partnership defence depends on knowing the meaning of each lead. A pair works best together when both know the same meanings. This is the result they get by employing the same rules.

The basic meaning of leads is incorporated in this rule: Follow the order of choice in tops, longies, shorts; don't lead a suit bid by opponents; against suit bids don't lead away from an ace or king.

From tops lead a top. From a long suit lead the fourth best. From a short suit lead the highest. In other words, lead fourth from the highest of a long suit and the highest of anything else.

Notice the clause that goes with the objection to leading away from an ace or a king. It specifically applies to a suit contract. Therefore, the objection does not exist against no-trump.

Grounded with these fundamentals, a player knows when it may be wise to deviate from rule. A partner who is also grounded with these fundamentals will know the purpose of a deviation.

Declarer in south was in a contract of three no-trump after he had opened the bidding with a spade. The opening lead from west was the heart nine when he held the hand you see here:

♠6 4
♥9 5 3
♦A Q 6 3
♣K J 7 4

East knows the nine lead is neither the top of a sequence nor the fourth best of a long suit. Therefore, it must be from a short suit; the last choice in the order of preference of leads.

With 13 cards in his hand west must have at least one long suit of four cards. Why did he fail to lead it? He must be waiting for a lead in the suit or suits in which he holds four cards.

P.D.Q. the rules forsee material for Q.E.D.

Movie Column

By BOB THOMAS

Hollywood, Aug. 19 (AP) — Biggest Hollywood news this week was an announcement that Jerry Wald and Norman Krasna will make $50,000,000 worth of pictures for R.K.O. in the next five years. These sharp operators will turn out 12 films a year on an independent basis.

This is another step in the trend toward demise of the big studio operation. More and more independent set-ups are being incorporated into the studios, which no longer will have to foot the bill on big contract lists and massive overhead. This probably will mean better pictures.

Not Hurting

Never underestimate the value of publicity to a picture's success. "Father of the Bride", a delightful picture anyway, was undoubtedly built into one of the top grossers of the year by Elizabeth Taylor's real-life wedding.

Now insiders expect extra business for "Summer Stock", a likeable musical. The reason: its star is Judy Garland, who recently figured in the headlines. Not that either the Taylor of Garland events were planned publicity; but the news certainly hasn't hurt their drawing power.

Titles

The old, old problem of titles is still plaguing Hollywood. It's reported that "Annie Get Your Gun" which is doing big business, would do bigger with a different title. Some people thought it was a picture about women in the war, instead of a musical.

If there is confusion about such a well-known production, what would happen to the classics of older vintage? Would some people think "Taming of the Shrew" was a wild animal picture? Or "Uncle Tom's Cabin" a housing saga?

Tom Carruthers Trophy Winner At Field Day

Links veteran Tommy Carruthers, of the Bay of Quinte Golf and Country Club topped 73 golfers from Ontario and Quebec to win the Follwell Trophy at the annual men's field day at the local club, staged last Saturday. He posted a 73 gross. Henry Puotinen, also of the host club, posted a 76 for second low gross. Defending champion Murray McIntosh posted an 80.

The local club also took top honors for team play copping the J. J. Morch Trophy. Tom Carruthers, Mike Aquafredda, Murray McIntosh, and Don Joss comprised the winning team.

The field day was run off in three flights. Len Wager of Napanee taking the first low net score in the championship flight with a 71. Second low net was a three way deadlock between H. Reinhart of Rouge Hill, Toronto; B. Moore, Aurora; and Mike Aquafredda, Quinte Club. All carded a 72.

B. Miller, Toronto St. George's with a low gross of 82 led B flight, trailed by D. Joss of Quinte Club with an 83. First low net went to L. Truman of Trenton with a 68. Second low net went to W. Medrick of Cedar Brae, Toronto, and B. Yanover of Quinte Club with low net scores of 71.

In C flight, F. Cope, Toronto St. Andrew's, took the honors with a 93. Second low gross went to G. Bradford with a 96. Low net scores were posted by J. Jerome, Toronto St. Andrews, and B. Faulkner.

J. J. Williams of Miami, Florida, won the prize for the golfer coming from the farthest point; S. Wonnacott, P. Culhane, and B. Wareham won the prizes as the most honest golfers.

Following the day's play a dance was held in the club house in the evening.

Why I Decided To Produce This Startling Motion Picture.. by Ida Lupino

Last winter, while engaged in first-hand observation and research at a police court in Los Angeles, in preparation for a motion picture role that I was studying, a pretty girl in her middle teens was brought in by a policewoman. The youngster had been picked up for loitering in the street. The sharp eye of the police officer had detected that she was pregnant.

As the story of this girl's plight unfolded between sobs, it opened my eyes as never before to a great and burning shame . . . not hers, but ours—yours and mine—that such a thing could be allowed to exist by those of us who believe we are understanding adults.

And when later, in the judge's chambers, the whole national picture was painted for me, of the 100,000 girls—half of them between ten and nineteen—who bring children into the world outside wedlock each year, I determined that this story, shocking though it was, had to be brought to the screen.

"Not Wanted" tells this story powerfully, frankly, in all its pathetic detail . . . tells it through the eyes and tears of one girl—wilful, beautiful, innocent young Sally, who wanted so much of love and life . . . and who knew so little of either.

The story of Sally is a page taken from life. It is a powerful, straightforward drama, so TRUE and so REAL that your heart will tighten as you watch it unfold in all its intensity.

It is with deep pride that I bring "Not Wanted" to the American screen.

Little Benny's Note Book

Pop was trying to keep awake and reed his paper at the same time, and ma said, Really, William, I meen really, I wish I had a camera.

I'll get you one, my dear, pop said, and ma said. You better not, because if you ever saw a picture of yourself at the present moment, it would haunt you forever. I really wish you could see yourself, half dropping your paper and catching it again, and your eyes closing and opening, not to mention your mouth, and your head dropping like a ton wait and then straightening up again as though you'd been stuck with a pin, she said.

That's a thing of the past, pop said. After this I'm staying awake after dinner just like a lark before breakfist, he said, and ma said, Well I devotedly hope so. P. Willis Hinkle had something to say in his collum about men who calmly wander off into dreamland while their wives are talking to them. P. Willis Hinkle claimed that a woman should be entitled to sue a man like that for divorce on the grounds of desertion, because he has certainly deserted her in spirit, no matter where he my be in the unconscious flesh. P. Willis Hinkle says what a man wouldn't do at a bizzness conference he shouldn't do at a domestic conference in the home circle, ma said.

My dear, that's a fact, pop saic.

Saying it kind of sleepy, and his head dropped back instead of frunt and stayed there, and ma said, Now he's really asleep, sutch a man. Oh dear, I haven't the heart to wake him when he looks so happy and comfortable, she said.

And she put a pillow in back of his head instead.

Proving people's wives are naturelly kind hearted.

19 Accidental, Violent Deaths During Weekend

(By The Canadian Press)

Traffic accidents killed 11 persons in Eastern Canada during the weekend. Four more were drowned.

The Canadian Press counted a total of 19 accidental and violent deaths Saturday and Sunday. Nine were in Ontario, nine in Quebec and one in the Maritimes.

Seven persons were killed in Quebec traffic accidents, one was drowned and one died in hospital as a result of an accident at work.

In Ontario, four were killed in traffic accidents, three were drowned, one killed by a train and one found dead in a car.

Three of the Quebec traffic deaths resulted when a carload of United States tourists from Rochester, N.Y., plunged into the Soulanges Canal near Coteau Landing. The dead were: Verino Patrick Ranalli, 24, his 27-year-old wife, Mary, and their 20-months-old son, Jock.

When a car hit the rear of a truck near Rouyn, Que., Raymond Berey, 19, was killed and four persons were injured. All were riding in the car.

The victims of traffic accidents in Ontario were Arthur Luce, 31, knocked down and killed by a truck near Nipigon, Ont.; Eldon Baechler, 22, of Kitchener, driver of a car which collided with a bus near Georgetown Saturday; and Robert Ableson, 25, of Galt, passenger on a motorcycle that skidded off the highway and crashed into a tree, Saturday night near Galt.

Found Beneath Bridge

Near Atherley, at the northern end of Lake Simcoe, the body of a man tentatively identified as Norman Aflagsen, 34, whose address was not known, was found beneath a railway bridge.

At Port Colborne, Howard Sturgeon, 11, tripped and fell into the Welland Canal while running across a bridge. John Sauve, three-year-old son of an Ontario Provincial Police constable, slipped off a dock and drowned in front of his parents' home at Trout Lake.

In Toronto, a Canadian Pacific Railway brakeman, John Ball, stepped into the path of a moving train and was killed. An inquest was ordered into the death of Maurice John Flood, 21, whose body was found in the back seat of a car at his home near Monkton. There was no immediate explanation of his death.

SHOOK UP WATER

Tallahassee, Fla., Aug. 19—(AP)—The severe earthquake which occurred in Asia Tuesday shook up the water in Tallahassee wells. The United States geological survey said a water level gauge in an artesian well here fluctuated .87 of a foot for an hour during the earthquake period.

BATTLE-WORTHY MEANS WATER-TIGHT

Today's tanks are designed to travel rivers and streams almost up to the gun turret in water. This Centurion tank, one of the newest British 50-ton models goes into an immersion tank before it is declared battle-worthy. It mounts a 20-pound gun, is fast and manoeuverable. — Central Press Canadian.

Charred Remains Of Sixth Body Found in Ship

Lauzon, Que., Aug. 21 (CP) — The charred remains of a sixth body was discovered yesterday by searchers aboard the fire-wrecked St. Lawrence River cruise ship, Quebec. It was believed, though no positive identification was immediately possible, that the body was one of two United States women passengers reported missing.

The search resumed early today under Quebec Provincial Police supervision.

Gertrude and Eva Taub of Tarrytown, N. Y., was reported missing by Canada Steamship Lines and Quebec Provincial Police shortly after five bodies were pulled out of the cruise vessel at Tadoussac before it was towed here for a thorough search.

With most of the collapsed superstructure removed by some 40 workers equipped with acetylene torches, the search is expected to proceed more speedily today.

By last night, less than a quarter of the vessel's surface had been examined.

Col. Leon Lambert, provincial director, announced discovery of the sixth body. The remains, part of a skull and flesh and bones of the pelvic section, will be sent to Montreal's medico-legal laboratories.

Caught Fire Tuesday

The C. S. L. cruise ship caught fire Tuesday half an hour out of Tadoussac, small lower St. Lawrence harbor town and a regular stop for the Saguenay cruise vessel.

Most of an estimated 450 passengers made their way safely to shore, but due to loss of the cabin plan and omission on the part of some survivors to report their safety, no accurate check could be made of exactly how many persons were missing.

The first three bodies found were identified as those of Mr. and Mrs. Norman Shapiro and their young son, Leonard. The two others were believed to be those of Dr. and Mrs. Pickens Smith McCollum of Clemson, S.C.

Thorough search of the charred rubble was impossible at Tadoussac due to lack of metal-lifting hoists, personnel and equipment. Provincial police, after a preliminary inquiry, ordered the cruise vessel towed here for further search.

FIFTY STITCHES REQUIRED

Ajax, Aug. 21—(CP) — Fifty stitches were required to close wounds on the face of Philip Gibson, 8, after he was mangled by a big German shepherd dog Saturady. The boy's nose, lip and ear were torn. Police confined the dog in the pound. They said he had a previous record of attacking children.

Three Drowned When Car Slips Into Canal

Coteau Landing, Que., Aug. 21—A United States family of three drowned near here Saturday when their car slipped on the wet pavement overturned twice and plunged into the 20-foot deep Soulanges Canal. A second United States car overturned into the canal but its two occupants escaped.

Dead are: Verino Patrick Ranalli 24, his wife, Mary, 27, and their 20-months-old son, Jock Anthony, all of Rochester, N.Y.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Taylor of Lockport, N.Y., escaped from their car after it plunged into the 13-mile long canal, and swam to the bank where witnesses pulled them out.

Both accidents occurred near this town, about 35 miles southwest from Montreal. Provincial Police reported several other minor accidents on the highway which runs along the canal, but could not give further details. They blamed the wet pavement for the accidents.

Police said the Ranalli family was trapped in the rear seat of the car.

Albra Mercier, a bridge keeper, said that Ranalli apparently lost control of his car while speeding along the wet pavement.

The car slipped off the highway and overturned twice before tipping into the water, he said. The high-crowned highway is about 15 feet from the canal and there is no protective fence.

RAWDON

Rawdon.—Mr. and Mrs. Carl Clancy entertained for a few days their cousins; Mrs. Will Laing, of Gallivan, Sask.; Miss Wilma Laing of Saskatoon, Sask.; and Miss Doris Laing, of Ottawa.

Mrs. Laing's home was formerly in Sarnia and this has been her first visit to Ontario for a period of 33 years.

Mrs. A. Fox is spending some time with her daughter, Mrs. Kenneth Caskey, Madoc. Little Helen Caskey, who is about 18 months old had the misfortune to fall downstairs and fracture her leg.

Mr. and Mrs. Allan McDonnell and Sally, of Kingston, are holidaying with Mr. and Mrs. Fred McDonnell and visiting other relatives.

Mrs. Carl W. Clancy attended the lecture at Bridge Street Church, Wednesday evening, and heard an interesting message given by Dr. Toyohiki Kagawa.

Mrs. C. M. Sine is a patient at the Green Nursing Home, Rawdon.

Mrs. Cynthia Tice, Belleville, and Mrs. Blanche Morris, Brandon, Man., were weekend guests of Miss Emma Rainie, Wellman's.

A large number of Rawdonians attended Belleville Fair this week. The flower display and home cooking were exceptionally good.

When Rev. F. G. Joblin, Port Perry, was holidaying with friends on Rawdon circuit, he spent a day with Mr. and Mrs. Carl Clancy, and enjoyed a trip to the fields to watch the threshing operations.

Mrs. Ross Hoard has received several messages from her sister, Mrs. Harry Ketcheson, who is motoring to the coast with her friend, Miss Edith Worrell, of Port Arthur. The ladies have visited many points in Ontario, as well as Ste. Felicite, Que., and Halifax, N.S.

Mr. Cyril Godtschalk, Peterborough, Mr. and Mrs. Maurice Clancy, Madoc Junction, were supper guests Sunday evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Carl Clancy.

Mr. and Mrs. Roy Bush, Mr. Ernest Rosebush, Miss Flossie Rosebush, and Mrs. Mary McCutcheon attended a miscellaneous shower Tuesday evening at Hoard's Station, at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Hoard, in honor of Mr. and Mrs. Jack Bush.

POLIO TAKES ONE

London, Aug. 21 (Reuters) — Another death was reported today in Britain's polio outbreak—a 17-year-old boy of Salisbury, Wiltshire. Three other deaths —were reported Saturday. Britain's Ministry of Health announced that up to Aug. 12 the outbreak cost 218 lives this year compared with 98 during the same period last year.

FLIES TO BRITAIN

London, Aug. 21 (AP)—Don Juan, pretender to the Spanish throne, flew to Britain from Portugal last night to visit King George. "I shall visit the King in Balmoral," he told reporters on his arrival with his wife, the countess of Barcelona. The King now is at his Scottish home, Balmoral Castle, with the Queen and Princess Margaret.

The Gentle Heart

By Kay Hamilton

She went back to the kitchen. It was a frosty December night. Natalie and Brent had gone to the movies, and Jenny had found it impossible to sit alone in the living room with no company but the evening paper. She had moved about the lower floor restlessly, had played a little at the old square piano, but her mood was not happy enough for music and she soon left that. She missed Ghillie. He would have trotted beside her, his nails clicking on the polished floor, his wise old eyes anxiously fixed upon her in love and sympathy. At last she had decided to make cookies. Cookies kept you busy. And a big batch would take over two hours.

She glanced now at the oven thermometer. While she had been talking to Elsa it had crept up too far, so she opened the oven door, then set about spooning out the oatmeal mix and dropping it on the cookie sheet. By the time these were making, the previous batch would be cool enough to put in the tin box. She picked them up, counting them absently. When she got to twenty, there were no more.

"That's funny," she murmured to herself, "there should be twenty four." A sudden thought struck her, and she glanced quickly at the back door. Dick! Had he come in while she was talking to Elsa, and helped himself? No, the back door was not only locked but bolted on the inside. Her heart, which had leaped at the idea that he might be so close, steadied again to its old rhythm.

Two more batches and she was done. She readied the crock for the last, but strangely, she did not need it. All the cookies went into the tin box. Quite easily, in fact. Now Jenny knew that many more than four cookies were missing. There must be at least a dozen. This was an old recipe, and she knew exactly how much it made.

She sat down at the kitchen table to think. It was Dick, surely, who had taken them. He had missed his dinner and was hungry. Besides, if he was in the neighborhood, he would not want to show himself. But the back door had been bolted before she began to make them. She got up with decision. Dick was somewhere in the house.

She went directly to the attic stairs, and called up them, "Come on down, Dick. The coast is clear. Nobody's home but me, and I'll make you some sandwiches."

Utter silence greeted her, and she sighed. Was he in the cellar? In one of the bedrooms? Her instinct told her he was there in the attic. She went up the attic steps slowly, a flashlight in her hand. "Don't you want something to eat, Dick? I won't tell Elsa you're here, if that's what you're afraid of."

He spoke behind her, and she jumped. "I'm not afraid of either of 'em." His voice rasped with a new truculence.

"Goodness, but you startled me!" Jenny exclaimed. "Come on down where we can talk."

He said, "Are the shades down? I don't want anybody to see me. I'm just —I only stopped here because—"

"They're drawn," she assured him. She went to the kitchen ahead of him, made him a couple of peanut butter sandwiches, and found a piece of ham which she frizzled "so you'll have something hot". She set the bottle of milk on the table where it would be handy.

"Now," she said, when he had wolfed the first sandwich, "now that I know you won't die of starvation on my hands, tell me what this is all about." She did not speak of how worried Elsa was, did not accuse him in any way.

He drank a glass of milk in three gulps and said, with his eyes down, "I'm not going back, so there's no use trying to make me."

Jenny's blue eyes softened. Dick was desperately unhappy, anyone could see that. But why? "What happened this morning?" She ignored his belligerence.

"Nothing. Elsa had some swell waffles. She'll never cook like you do," he said in unconscious praise, "but these were good. Pete says I made a pig of myself, but Elsa said I could have all I wanted. And all the butter and syrup, too."

Jenny bit back the remark that Pete was far from tactful. "He said that this morning?"

"No, he didn't say anything. He's always a grouch in the morning, but he didn't open his mouth."

Jenny started to ask, "Then why?" but decided against it. She shifted her line of inquiry. "How was school today?"

"Okay. I got an A in algebra, and a B plus in history. I'm not so hot in English, though."

"You mean, you failed?"

"No." He looked at her briefly. "I never fail anything."

"Did you have a fight with one of your pals?"

"Nope." His eyes were down again. He was eating slowly now, and she had the feeling he was closing the door against her.

She said, in desperation, "It's a good thing your father wasn't home for dinner tonight, or he'd be worried sick. Elsa—"

He turned toward her with a jerk. "Listen!" he said. "He's not worrying about me these days, he's got other things to think about. I'm fed up with him and his—his—" The word eluded him, but he did not stop. An angry color swept up under his skin. "I saw him sitting there with your sister, having a drink and looking at her like—like—"

"My sister?" Jenny echoed; with a distinct shock. Knowing in advance what he was going to say.

"Yeah, your sister Diane. At Si's Tavern. And he'd told Elsa he was coming home for dinner tonight, and now you say he never showed up!"

It took a little time, but Jenny finally got the story from him of how, under cover of his casual attitude, he had been wororying for several weeks about his father's absences. Of how, to make money for Christmas, he had engaged to remove the crates and cartons from the back of Si's Tavern for the sum of a dollar a week. It never took him long, and he did it on his way home from othe school bus every day. Of how today he had seen his father and Diane there together, and it had made him feel sick. He had waited around and then followed them as they left. He had heard them discuss the possibility of going on—in Pete's car—to dinner at an out-of-town restaurant.

"I guess that's when I got fed up," he said. "I made up my mind I wouldn't go home. I didn't want to worry Elsa. I heard some of what she said when she was here," he confessed, "but I wasn't going back there."

"But where could you go?" Jenny asked, quite seriously, and he answered her the same way.

"I don't know. That's what I was thinking about up in your attic. I had to have some place. My mother wouldn't want me, I know that. And I'd never get away with trying to get a job somewhere. I'm still too young, and I'd be picked up in a minute. I mean, I'm not the kind of kid to get away with looking like eighteen or nineteen. I don't shave yet, or anything."

Jenny nodded, her eyes encouraging him to continue. "So I thought," he took a deep breath, "I thought maybe YOU could put me up. It'd only be for a couple of years and then I could go to work, see? And I could do lots of things around the house. You'd save money, really; you wouldn't have to hire Ruthven."

Jenny said, "It wouldn't do, though, Dick. I'd have to have your parents' consent, and even though Pete and Elsa are my friends—"

"They don't really want me!" he broke in. "Nobody wants me, I guess."

This was the crux of the whole matter. Jenny was really angry with Pete. What right had he to slide out of this whole situation because he was afraid of a little emotional upheaval? What right had he to ignore his son's very real need of him, simply because he did not feel at ease with the boy? But she hid her anger and said instead, "Elsa wants you."

Surprisingly, he did not deny it. "Yeah, she's pretty nice," he conceded. "At any rate, she tries to be. But I'm not dumb. I can see how my being there has upset everything for her."

Jenny ignored this. Her mind was on another track. She said, "Did you hear everything she said when she was here, Dick?"

"Well, pretty near," he said sheepishly. "I was in the upstairs hall in my stockin' feet."

"Then you heard what she said about the change in their life together. She said that little things which didn't used to matter were big nowadays just because you were there. And I think that what she meant, Dick, was that they felt you were critical of them, and so things that formerly meant nothing at all were looming large because they were so self-conscious about them. You see, married people can have little spats that don't mean a thing. But if someone is watching them, and waiting for a quarrel, the spats do turn into quarrels."

"Well, gosh," he said indignantly, "I wasn't being like that."

"Weren't you?" Jenny asked, softly. "Not ever?"

He sat back deflated. "Maybe sometimes," he admitted. "But I didn't meant to be."

"I know you didn't. It was just that everything was strange, and you felt watchful," she assured him, smoothing him down. "But Pete wasn't used to that sort of thing, and rather than face it at home, he thought it would be easier to stay away sometimes."

"He's a weak Willy, then," Dick said contemptuously. "It's Elsa who's got the gumption. She doesn't let things like that get her down!"

Jenny got up with decision. "We'd better trot along to your house right away," she told him. "Your running away was getting her down all right, and it isn't fair to keep her worried like this."

He got up and faced her. "I'm not going back, I tell you," he said. The old stubborn look settled over her face, and the last of his summer freckles stood out on his pale face.

Jenny's eyes flashed. "Oh," she said with instant scorn, "then you're no better than Pete, are you? You run away, too, from an unpleasant situation."

She saw the shot hit home, knew that she had won. But she wished she had not had to deal such a cruel blow to his young pride. She said, before he could back down, "Come along, Dick. Besides, you promised to help her tonight with the living room furniture."

He snatched at the chance to save his pride a little. "Yes, I did," he muttered. "I didn't mean to renege."

Elsa caught him in her arms when they got there. "Dicky, Dicky," she cried, blinking back the tears of relief furiously, "where on earth have you been? Did you have your supper? How could you put me in a dither like this?"

And Dick, with a quick glance of appeal toward Jenny, said, "Oh, I got held up. I was doing a job, and then I stopped in at Jenny's, and—and—"

"And I insisted he stay for something to eat," Jenny put in smoothly, "and before we knew it, it was getting late." She added, with a smile for Elsa, "He's been making Christmas presents in our attic."

Elsa sat down weakly. She knew from Jenny's expression, that there was more to the story than that, but, wisely, she did not ask for particulars. "Well," she said, "I'm afraid you'll have to do most of the furniture moving, Dick. I'm too worn out now to push a feather!"

"Sure," Dick said with new assurance. "You just tell me where you want things, that's all."

AMATEUR SEISMOLOGIST

The intense earthquake recorded on seismographs over the world Aug. 15 was noted by Edward Mantle of Hamilton, an amateur seismologist. Mantle said the seismograph, which he built himself, is so sensitive that a footstep within a few feet sets it quivering. It reacted violently for two hours during the tremors, believed to have occurred in India or Tibet. — (CP Photo.)

KILLED IN CRASH

Fond Du Lac, Wis., Aug. 21—(AP)—A head-on bus-car collision killed Earl Simon of Fond Du Lac and five members of his family last night, police reported. Officers said the Simon automobile sideswiped one of two chartered busses that were travelling together, and then smashed into the second bus.

ENTIRE FAMILY WIPED OUT

Columbus, O., Aug. 21 (AP)—A train-automobile collision wiped out an entire family of four last night. Dead are Melvin Curtis Mangold, 25, of Circleville, O., his wife, a son and one year-old daughter.

Rev. H. Bingham Dies Suddenly In Toronto

Toronto, Aug. 21. (CP)—Rev. H. H. Bingham, general secretary of the Baptists convention of Ontario and Quebec, died suddenly in hospital Sunday.

He was a vice-president of the Baptist World Alliance and for 10 years had been minister of Walmer Road Baptist church here. Previously he had served 12 years as pastor of the First Baptist Church in Calgary and 10 years with the Talbot Street church in London, Ont, He had been a Rotarian for 38 years.

Dr. Bingham was 72. He was born in England and for a while after coming to Canada worked for the Aurora, Ont., Weekly Banner.

He was one of four brothers who were Baptist ministers and for 34 years contributed a Saturday religious editorial to the London, Ont., Free Press.

Dr. Bingham was a graduate of Woodstock College, Woodstock, and McMaster University in Hamilton. He was a former president of the Baptist convention of Ontario and Quebec and past vice president of the Young People's Union of America.

He was also a member of the Canadian Baptist Foreign Mission Board and a former member of the Board of Governors of Brandon College, Brandon, Man.

Four Members Of Baptist Faith Take Jail Term

Val d'Or, Que. Aug. 21—(CP)—Four members of the Baptist faith convicted on a charge of violating a municipal by-law, chose Friday to serve two months in jail rather than pay a fine of $40 and costs, levied by recorder J. L. Baillargeon.

Jailed were Rev. Murray Heron, pastor of the nearby Noranda Baptist Church, Ernie McWilliams, Eileen Veals and Howard Killock all of Noranda.

Police testimony at trial Thursday—all four had pleaded not guilty—was that following arrest, accused had been taken to the police station, shown a by-law prohibiting street gatherings, had it explained to them and then were released. Police said they continued to hold street meetings and then were re-arrested.

In pronouncing sentence, recorder Baillargeon said: "I come to the conclusion with the evidence submitted that the accused are guilty and I also come to the conclusion that the accused have shown a very bad spirit and are giving a bad example by their conduct and bad faith. They are citizens and as such have to obey the laws of the country.

"I have to be very severe and as a lesson I will impose the maximum sentence of $40 plus the costs. Upon default of payment, two months in jail.

"I have no other alternative if we want peace and good order in our town. . ."

This was the third such case in this northwestern Quebec mining district this month.

Last Aug. 7, four other Baptist Evangelists chose two-month jail terms rather than pay $25 fines and costs when convicted on similar charges.

They were Rev. L. T. Heron, pastor of Val d'Or's Evangel Baptist church, and three assitants—his sister, Miss Isobel Heron of Toronto, Church deacon Malcolm Lesar of Windsor, Ont., and Deacon Malcolm Purcell of Val d'Or.

A week previous to the first Val d'Or incident, five Baptist Evangelists were arrested in nearby La Sarre for disturbing the peace. The charges were dropped before the five were scheduled to appear in court and the La Sarre town council agreed to provide protection for further street meetings.

$45,0000 FIRE LOSS

Toronto, Aug. 21 (CP)—Twenty persons fled yestreday before a two-alarm fire that raced through the rear of an automobile supply company and caused damage estimated at $45,000. The threatened persons lived in apartments above and behind the auto supply company on Queen Street west. Wind carried sparks nearly 100 yards and started a small fire on the roof of a brewery, but it was extinguished quickly.

PARLIAMENT BEING SUMMONED ON STRIKE CRISIS

Wages-and-Hours Dispute Collapses After Long Parley

Strike Means Work Stoppage For Members Running Trades

By ALAN RANDAL
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Montreal, Aug. 22 — (CP) — The crippling hand of a country-wide strike by 124,000 non-operating employees gripped Canada's railways early today when efforts to mediate a multi-million dollar wages-and-hours dispute collapsed.

Across the land the strike began at 6 a. m. local time. In Newfoundland, on the Dominion's eastern fringe and the area first affected, it started even earlier when unions decided to heed the strike call on the basis of daylight time.

In most other localities Standard Time, the usual operational time of the railways, governed what the unions have described as a "tactful withdrawal" from service.

In its effect the strike by 15 International unions and two Canadian unions went far behind the unions' membership. It meant work stoppage for the running trades and many other branches of railroad and telegraph work since without non-operating personnel on the job few lines of railway endeavor can go on.

Railway spokesmen estimated that more than 200,000 operating and clerical employees will be laid off by the strike. Most of them stayed home today with the balance expected to be released before the end of the week.

Thousands of Canadians in other industries dependent on the railways for their supplies and markets are expected to be laid off as the strike progresses.

Eleventh - hour mediation efforts which started in Montreal last Saturday ended at 5.25 a. m. EDT.

At that time, after a day and night of hurried, high - tension conferences, union leaders left their longest meeting with the special Federal mediator, Dr. W. A. Mackintosh, and said: "That's all — no settlement."

Statements Will be Given

Union heads indicated, labor statements might be forthcoming later. The railways immediately made public their 11th hour offer to the unions which embraced a four-cent-an-hour wage increase, effective Sept. 1, 1950, and institution of the 40-hour week with 48 hours' pay, effective Oct. 1, 1951. On the latter point the railways asked nine months of grace during which penalty overtime rates would not apply up to 48 hours a week.

The unions had asked for an immediate 40-hour week with the same pay as the current 48-hour week, and pay increases of seven and 10 cents an hour.

"The strike is on," said A. R. Mosher, head of two Canadian unions involved, when mediation efforts broke down.

Oshawa Street Railway Drivers And Men Strike

Oshawa, Ont., Aug. 22. (CP)—Bus drivers and maintenance men of the Oshawa Street Railway Company walked off the job today in what union officials described as "an illegal strike".

Eighty-four drivers and maintenance men, members of the Amalgamated Association of Street Railway and Motor Coach employees, left their jobs at 7 a.m. E.D.T., after providing service for about an hour.

Dorland Windover, president of Union Local 1255, said the strike is illegal. It tied up transportation facilities of this city of about 30,000.

Although the railway company is owned by the Canadian National Railways, the union is not one of the 15 international unions which went on a country-wide strike today against the C.N.R. and the Canadian Pacific Railway.

The union membership at two meetings last night and early today ratified an agreement reached between company officials and the union negotiating committee. Union demands and terms of the agreement were not made public.

A C.N.R. spokesman in Toronto described the walkout as "strictly a sympathy strike."

Safe, Closed 20 Years, Opened, Found Empty

Owen Sound, Ont., Aug. 22 — (CP) — J. W. Locking, 49, today told how he solved a mystery Saturday at Tillsonburg, Ont. — and got a surprise himself.

Locking, a typewriter mechanic who has a knack for opening balky safes, went to the Maybee Hardware store in Tillsonburg to open a safe that had been closed 20 years.

A man had left the safe at the hardware store with instructions that it was to be opened only upon his death.

When Locking and the hardware staff pried open the safe, they found it empty. A hole had been made in the bottom and whatever the safe contained had been removed.

OLD SCHOOL BURNED

Woodbridge, Ont., Aug. 22—(CP) — Fire of unknown origin last night destroyed the 56-year-old public school building in this community about 15 miles northwest of Toronto. The building was used as a storehouse recently after it was condemned as a school. A new school was built a year ago.

RAILWAYS MAKE PUBLIC FINAL OFFER TO UNIONS

Would Give 40-Hour Week on Oct 1, 1951

Montreal, Aug. 22 — (CP) — Coinciding with the walkout today of their 124,000 non-operating personnel, the railways made public an 11th-hour offer, based on a three-year contract, that failed to halt the strike ordered by 15 International and two Canadian unions.

The 40-hour week — with 48 hours' pay — demanded by the workers was granted, but not to become effective until Oct. 1, 1951.

A four-per-cent hourly wage increase was offered effective next Sept. 1 — 10 days beyond the strike deadline — with the stipulation that such increases be graduated "as mutually agreed."

In consideration of a three-year contract, the companies offered a cost-of-living bonus by which each rise of one per cent in the cost of living above the index for Oct. 1, 1951, would be compensated "by a bonus, say, of two-thirds cents per hour."

The companies' statement said that since unions' rejection of an offer Aug. 10, based on "the ultimate" the railways "could justify in their own and the public interest," the railways "have anxiously considered their position with a view to trying to suggest some other basis of settlement that could be supported as still being fair and reasonable to both parties..."

In brief the Aug. 10 "final offer," as stated at that time, was: A 44-hour week, instead of the present 48-hour week, with a 9.1 per-cent increase in hourly rates so as to maintain take-home pay, or an average basic wage of 8½ cents an hour for the present 48-hour week, approximately equivalent in expenses to the 44 hour week.

Recognize Obligation

The railways at that time also recognized "a moral obligation to implement the 40-hour week at the appropriate time."

That was the counter-offer to the workers' demands for a 40-hour week, plus increases of seven and ten cents an hour, and no reduction in take-home pay.

Today's statement said the railways felt they would be justified, "particularly with the serious

Applies Respiration To Drowning Lunge

Peterborough, Ont., Aug. 22 — (CP) —Douglas Darringer told today how he applied artificial respiration to a "drowning" muskellunge.

Darringer said he hooked the under-sized muskie in nearby Little Lake. When he had extricated two hooks and tossed it back the motionless fish turned belly-up in the water. He worked the muskie's gills back and forth for a couple of minutes and the fish swam away.

"It ought to be about the right size next year," Darringer says.

A Few Tips to Soldiers on How To Stay Alive in Korean War

By DON WHITEHTAD

With the 24th Infantry Division in Korea — (AP) — Here are a few tips, soldier, on how to stay alive in this strange war in Korea.

They were learned the hard way by men like you who suddenly were called to war.

They learned a lot, these veterans, in fighting the Gooks, So read this carefully:

1. Get yourself as hard physically as you can.

Work at it, soldier, until you are ready to drop. Get your legs in shape to climb mountains. That is where you will do most of your fighting — up there in the rugged mountains.

2. Don't underestimate the enemy you are going to fight.

The red soldier won't have clothing or equipment or weapons quite as good as yours. He's thin and scrawny looking and he can stand under your outstretched arm. But he knows how to handle his weapons. He's a good fighter. And he can climb mountains all day long. He's been doing it since he was a kid, soldier.

3. When you reach Korea pump all the information you can get out of the veterans. Ask the old-timers what they have learned. Soak up all the things they tell you. It's your life, soldier, and in this war you must know as much as possible before facing the enemy.

4. Don't go out into the fighting area alone.

Stay with small groups travelling on the roads or in the hills. A sniper is less likely to fire on you in a group than a single soldier. And a small group has a

JUST BEFORE RAIL STRIKE DEADLINE

Union leaders A. R. Mosher, left, and Frank Hall, spent long hours in consultation before the railway strike deadline at 6 a.m. Tuesday. Meetings between union men and railway officials were held at the Windsor Hotel, Montreal. The government, after the appointment of Dr. W. A. Mackintosh as mediator, refused to interfere. — Central Press Canadian.

Cabin Ripped Open as Engine Breaks Away, Plane Lands With One Dead, Seven Injured

Denver, Aug. 23 — (AP) —The cabin of an American Airlines plane was ripped open when an engine broke away high over the Colorado rockies early today and the big ship landed here with one dead and seven injured—one a Torontonian.

The four-engine DC-6 was bound from Los Angeles to Chicago, carrying 52 passengers and a crew of five at 21,000 feet near Eagle Colo., when the right inboard engine broke from its wing moorings.

Part of the propeller or a piece of the shattered engine slashed through the top of the passenger compartment, tearing a hole about four by eight ft. over the forward three rows of seats and releasing the air from the pressurized cabin.

Pilot R. K. Baker brought the ship about 100 miles into the Denver airport in 19 minutes, landing without further trouble.

The injured were treated at hospital and released. They included Sugar Messinger, 20, of Toronto, who suffered slight facial cuts and burns.

A preliminary examination of the dead man, Jack Kreboy, 54, of Los Angeles, disclosed no sign of injury and it was believed he died of a heart attack.

Effects of Strike Will Touch Every Phase of Business Life Food, Fuel Shortage Coming

(By The Canadian Press)

The big railway strike today reached into every cranny of Canadian life.

For weeks Canadians had been warned that it was coming. Emergency plans had been laid well in advance. Though hardly daring to believe that it would ever happen, communities from Victoria, B.C. to St. John', Nfld., prepared for the worst.

Yet no amount of planning could adequately compensate for the loss of the vital steel arteries spanning the continent.

As the word was flashed from Montreal that last-minute conferences could find no solution before the 6 a.m. deadline today, the immediate effects were the obvious ones. Across the land, trains were halted and telegraph communications supended.

Upon the length of the walkout would hinge the degree of disruption in the national economy, food shortages, fuel shortages, industrial layoffs and business paralysis.

Emergency Measures

Emergency services swung into action to meet the crisis of the first national rail tie-up in Canada's history. Bus companies and airlines expanded services to handle travellers, commuters and tourists. The Canadian Automotive Transport Association announced in Toronto that every truck across Canada would be pressed into service transporting foods, medical supplies and other freight.

Canada's problem was one of distribution, especially acute in a country whose 14,000,000 people are spread across 3,500 miles.

It was a problem of getting fresh foods from the central Canada farm areas to Vancouver and to Halifax, of moving coal to such industrial cities as Hamilton, of moving the west's wheat to flour mills and to ocean ports, of taking to market the products of paper mills and shoe factories and automotive plants before lack of storage space caused them to close down.

The complexities were as numerous as the railway cars standing idle and without their loads of mail, milk, gasoline, fruit or whatever else a rich country produces.

Cities Make Plans

Many cities had drawn up strike plans well in advance and appointed emergency co-ordinators. In 175 Ontario cities and towns, the Provincial Automotive Transport Association—an affiliation of firms operating 13,000 trucks—appointed "district co-ordinators" who worked with municipal officials to ensure swift movement of medicines, bread, milk and other perishable foods.

Nearly 3,000 vehicles, mostly tractor-trailer trucks, were made available by large Toronto companies for transport work. Officials said their routes will take them to Ontario points and to Montreal and Quebec City.

Remote communities, particularly those in poor farming areas, feared they would feel an early pinch. Hornepayne, a Canadian National Railways divisional point 575 miles north of Toronto, was virtually isolated. With no highways leading out, its 2,000 population worried whether special trains would be allowed to bring in fresh food.

Trans-continental passengers were stranded with the townspeople when westbound trains out of Montreal and Toronto were halted yesterday because they

FISHING VESSEL MISSING AFTER TROPICAL STORM

Storm Causes Damage Of Million Dollars

Halifax, Aug. 22—(CP) — A Lunenburg, N.S., fishing vessel, reported missing following yesterday's tropical hurricane, has turned up safe but a Newfoundland craft was still overdue today.

The hurricane whirled along the Atlantic seaboard with winds of 100 miles an hour and did more than $1,000,000 damage in Nova Scotia.

Three vessels at first were reported missing but two now have been accounted for.

Still missing is the L.A. Dunton, last reported on the Grand Banks and not heard from since the hurricane swept through the area last night. A search was being organized at Louisburg, N.S.

The Lunenburg craft Fairmorse also had been reported missing but radioed to her owners today that she has suffered no damage.

A Rockport, Me., craft reported overdue earlier turned up last night at Yarmouth, N.S., with her four-man crew safe.

Ashore, the heaviest damage from the storm was in Nova Scotia's Annapolis Valley apple belt where preliminary estimates placed the damage at $500,000.

Some growers, preparing for harvesting in two weeks time of the 1,200,000-barrel crop, reported losses ranging up to 50 per cent.

Hitting its peak in Halifax about noon, the Atlantic-brewed hurricane whistled away over Newfoundland early today.

P. E. I. Missed

Prince Edward Island was given a side clip and New Brunswick reported heavy rains. The storm passed over north central Newfoundland today but St. John's hardly noticed its passing.

Patrick Stamp, 34, was drowned in St. John's harbor when his rowboat capsized. This was the only fatality reported early today, but several injuries were recorded.

Threshing of Oats And Barley is Well Under Way

Toronto, Aug. 22 — (CP) — Threshing of oats and barley is well under way in most sections of Southern Ontario this week and propects are good for a better-than-average yield.

The Ontario Agriculture Department's weekly crop report says scattered hail storms hit several areas last week but damage was generally slight.

Welland County, in the heart of the Niagara fruit district, reports that early peaches are being picked and are of good quality. Apples and other tree fruit are making excellent progress. They are not as plentiful as last year but quality is better.

Egyptian and French Swimmers Break English Channel Record

Dover, Kent, Aug. 22—(AP)—An Egyptian and a French swimmer broke the record in quick succession today in a mass race across the English Channel from France.

Despite rain and choppy seas, Hassan Abd-El Rehim, 42-year-old Egyptian army officer, and Roger Le Morvan, 26-year-old French swimming champion, plowed across to break the old record of 11 hours and five minutes set in 1926 by Frenchman Georges Michel. Twenty-four swimmers took part in the race.

The Egyptian hit the Dover Coast first. His time was 10 hours and 52 minutes for the tortuous 19-mile course, 13 minutes better than the 1926 mark. As he came out of the water today he said: "I feel very good. I'm not tired at all. I'm ready to swim back."

Another Egyptian Mareen Hassah Hamao, 33, also an army officer was reported close to shore.

Rehim led the field almost from the moment they jumped in at Cap Gris Nez in the darkness.

The Egyptian landed at almost the same spot where Florence Chadwick, 31-year-old San Diego typist, finished Aug. 8 in a swim that broke the women's record.

Rehim was one of 24 swimmers from 12 countries who dived into the channel on the French side for a mass race through rain and choppy seas. Half way across the tortuous 19-mile route to Dover 12 of the 24 starters had dropped out from cold and exhaustion.

For Rehim, it was the third crossing of the channel. Last year he became the third man to swim the channel in both directions. For his feat today, Rehim won a prize of £1,000 ($3,100). The race was sponsored by the London Daily Mail.

Members Will be Rushed to Capital By Special Planes

P.M. Wishes House to Share Responsibility for Action

By JOHN LEBLANC
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Ottawa, Aug. 22 — (CP) — Parliament is being summoned urgently to Ottawa to act on the rail strike crisis, Prime Minister St. Laurent announced today.

The move apparently represented the full extent to which the government is prepared to go at present on the strike, for the Prime Minister disclosed no further plans and said he wants Parliament to share responsibility for any action.

Declaring that a "serious emergency" would quickly develop out of the tie-up that began this morning, Mr. St. Laurent said Parliament is being called to meet "at once."

This meant the members—originally scheduled to meet in the fall on the Korean situation—probably would assemble in a matter of days.

Airlift Preparations

Immediate preparations were launched for an R.C.A.F.-Trans-Canada Air Lines airlift to speed them to the capital.

The Prime Minister said the date of the opening may be announced later today or tomorrow, as soon as transportation arrangements have been made.

The Prime Minister's announcement of the summoning of parliament. Members of the cabinet hustled off to their offices from the meeting before they could be approached for details.

However, an indication that the government would lay some program before parliament was contained in the announcement.

Acts on National Interests

In dealing with the emergency, it said: "The government will have to act to protect the vital interests of the whole national community."

It added: "Whatever action the government may have to take will be intended solely to protect the vital interests of the whole Canadian people."

But after referring to "government" action, the statement went on to say parliament is being called so that the representatives of all the people may act together in discharging their responsibilities to meet the situation."

C.C.F. leader Coldwell — only leader of the opposition parties available here—immediately endorsed the decision to call parliament.

"I think it is right that it should be called," he said in a telephone interview from his home at nearby Aylmer, Que.

The prime minister in his statement expressed the regret of the government that collective bargaining had failed to settle the rail dispute.

May Act Together

Noting that parliament was to have been called at an early date in view of the international situation, the Prime Minister said it now is being called "to meet at once so that the representatives of all the people may act together in discharging their responsibilities to meet the situation."

"The suspension of railway and telegraphic service particularly with the world situation we face will quickly create a serious emergency and the government will have to act to protect the vital interests of the whole national community," the Prime Minister said.

"Meanwhile, I would hope that whatever disruption and loss the strike may cause, all of us will recognize that the railway employees concerned have not broken any law applicable to their case."

"The record shows that our railway workers are and have always been responsible and public-spirited Canadians, and whatever action the government may have to take will be intended solely to protect the vital interests of the whole Canadian people," Mr. St. Laurent said.

No Major Action Reported on Korean Warfront

Tokyo, Aug. 22 (AP) —American infantrymen slammed back a North Korean advance on the gateways to Pusan port today and wiped out a communist road-block infiltration under artillery fire 10 miles from Taegu.

These were the day's fiercest blazing actions on the 180-mile battlefront.

Allied fighting men and tanks held firm or counter-attacked all along the line against the combined weight of nine enemy divisions—90,000 men— stacked up with armor to drive on Taegu and Pusan.

The fighting on the south coastal approaches to Pusan, No. 1 allied seaport on the southeast tip of the peninsula, roared for the third successive day.

Reds Beaten Back

Three times the attacking reds were beaten back on that blood-stained road.

First, the U.S. 35th Regiment drove a numerically superior North Korean force off a key ridge near Chungam, 35 miles west of Pusan.

Then Negro troops of the 24th Regiment recaptured nearby "Battle Mountain" for the fifth time in four days. American troops from Hawaii fought their way back to commanding heights of the Sobuk Hills near Tundok, just south of Chungam.

THE WEATHER

The pocket of cool air that slipped across most of Ontario Monday extended to just north of the lower lakes early Tuesday morning. Here it stalled and is now becoming modified as warmer air supplants it in advance of a much stronger polar thrust sweeping across the prairies. This fresh outbreak, preceded by showers will drive to Southern Ontario Wednesday night.

STAFF MEMBERS OF CITY HALL HOLD PICNIC

City Hall staff members held their first annual picnic at "Cliff's Inn" near Colborne on Saturday when approximately 35 city hall workers, their wives and children enjoyed an all-day picnic.

Despite threatening weather the party motored to the summer home of Clifford Matthews where a full day's fun of softball, swimming and games was enjoyed. Stan Price, assistant city engineer, was in charge of the program.

Come lunch time a supper of cooked ham, ice cream sandwiches and other eatables was served up cafeteria style following which a sing song around a campfire was enjoyed.

All in all it was a really successful day and staff members stated the picnic would be an annual affair.

CORN REDUCED TO 35 CENTS DOZEN

Corn, tomatoes and apples made up the bulk of the farmers' market this morning. What was quite probably some of the nicest corn shown yet this summer was priced at 35c per dozen. Apples stayed at the same price levels of Saturday, and tomatoes were still 45c and 50c for six quarts.

Peaches were offered at 90c per basket, with yellow transparent apples and Duchess offered at 50c for six quarts.

Vegetable prices showed no change from the weekend.

GAME FINISHED BEFORE MEETING

The meeting of the Canadian Brotherhood of Railway Employees, Local 126, held at the CNR Athletic Association grounds this morning, was held up for a few minutes as two playground softball teams finished a game. It was probably the biggest crowd the kids ever had to see a game, and some of the more enterprising types took advantage of it.

One boy started around the crowd with his baseball hat, making the rail men kick in, and in a matter of minutes the whole crowd was covered as other boys took up the idea. And the crowd was getting as much kick out of seeing the CNR Fritzies lose to the East Hill Cubs as they would get out of a world series game.

Disorderly Conduct Charge Brings $1 Fine and $33 Costs.

Convicted on a charge of disorderly conduct and of using obscene language while on the street Charles Murphy of this city, today in city magistrate's court was fined $1 and ordered to pay court costs of $33.

Murphy appeared in court last Friday when three officers of the local police dept. testifitd that he has used profane language during a disturbance on Front Street near a local hotel. The case was then adjourned and was resumed today for hearing of defence evidence.

Magistrate T. Y. Wills found Murphy guilty of the charge and assessed the fine and costs. A second charge of disorderly conduct under the city by-law was withdrawn by Crown Attorney B. C. Donnan.

Three Young Men Are Remanded On Theft Count

The three young men charged with theft in connection with the theft of money from the Rivers' service station in Madoc, Sunday evening have been remanded to appear in court next Tuesday, it was stated today by police.

The men are John Deserno, 19, Oshawa; Thomas Henry, 21 and Orval King, 18, both of Toronto. The men surrendered to provincial police near Marmora early Monday morning following a six hour police search in a woods north of No 7 highway.

A fourth young man, Wm. C. Bailey, of Kingston, who was with the three above men at the time of their arrest is still being held by police on a vagrancy charge.

Mail Deliveries Will Continue On Partial Scale

Despite the fact that mail delivery by railroads has been cut off with the strike which commenced this morning, mail deliveries in the Belleville area will continue at least on a partial scale, it was stated today by Postmaster J. C. Waddell.

The postmaster said the strike would make little difference insofar as local and rural deliveries were concerned as this was done by bus and by auto. However, mail deliveries to outside points would be affected.

For East-West mail deliveries in and out of the city postal department has made arrangements for transports to leave Toronto and Montreal. The transports will meet in Kingston, and then turn around for the return trip picking up and delivering mail en-route.

Another truck will run between Belleville and Peterborough for delivery of mail ordinarily taken by the train running between the two cities.

Amateur Radio Operators Ready To Go With Personal Messages Should Rail Strike Continue

Belleville's "hams"— amateur radio operators—are ready to go with messages if the railroad strike should continue. At present, there are about 20 amateurs operating sets in the city, but only four or five of them do so consistently.

Operating on the 40-metre band, on an Ontario network known as QON, is Doug Vanderwater, of 10 Ridley St. The network embraces about 12 stations, including men in Ottawa, Timmins, Peterborough, Burlington, Kincardine and Belleville. "Most of the hams on this network check in almost every night, and last night," Vanderwater said, "nobody seemed too excited about the prospects of a heavy traffic load in the event of a rail strike, but everyone will be ready to go."

"Up until 10 o'clock this morning," Vanderwater said, he had had not handled any messages, but is standing by if he is needed. The messages, mostly of a personal nature, are sent free of charge by the amateurs. Most of the work will be done at night, because conditions, both weather and occupational, are better then. The hams have to work in the daytime, and most of their network efforts are done at night.

Handles Many Messages

The network that Vanderwater is a part of meets every night at 7.30 p.m., and in a two month period, Vanderwater has handled 99 messages. One chap in Burlington, he said, has handled as much as 200 messages in one month.

Other consistent hams in Belleville are Harold Carruthers, with call letters VE3AOP, Eugene Hitchon, VE3AJS, Jack Warner, VE3ADJ, and Bill Thompson, VE3RW. Vanderwater's call letters are VE3BLY.

"Recently," Vanderwater said, "the amateurs set up a nation-wide traffic net to interconnect networks from east to west. Purpose of the move was to facilitate movement of messages all across Canada.'"

The Ontario Intelligencer queried Canadian Pacific Telegraphs and Canadian National Telegraphs this morning on the situation. CPT said that no messages are being accepted of any sort, and CNT did not answer the telephone. In Western Ontario, the report was that the telegraph offices would accept some messages, but only at the sender's risk, with no guarantee that any message would be delivered.

No Commercial Messages

The hams will attempt to send emergency messages of a personal nature, but cannot accept commercial sendings. They are not allowed to receive pay for their work, and they extend no guarantee of arrival of the message. Their record of arrival, however, is excellent.

News coming into the Ontario Intelligencer this morning was on a somewhat precarious plane. The main Canadian Press wire between Belleville and Trenton, which has been operating in none too efficient a style for some time past, chose this morning to go out completely. News was being routed over a spare loop, and repairs to the main wire were not expected for some time. Problem is that the wire is on Canadian Pacific property, and since the railway is on strike, they will not repair it. Neither will Canadian Press maintenance men go on Canadian Pacific property to effect repairs.

All Set To Go

At any rate, should the strike continue for a time, Belleville's hams are all set to go if they are needed. Vanderwater and Hitchon said this morning that the amateurs had done a fine job in other disasters, principally at the Rimouski, P.Q. fire and during the Winnipeg floods, and that they could be relied on again to help keep traffic moving if they were needed.

"At one time," Hitchon said, "the only news that was coming out of Winnipeg was being handled by the hams, and while nothing that desperate is expected this time, they can move into production very fast."

Members of Local Railway Unions Meet to Discuss Action to Take During Strike

More than 500 members of Local 126 of the Canadian Brotherhood of Railway Employees and international unions met this morning at the CNR Athletic Association grounds to discuss the rail strike and what action would be taken in Belleville.

Various committees representing the non-operating trades, such as telegraphers, maintenance and way men, car men and others will meet throughout today and a mass meeting of all employees is planned for tonight at the athletic grounds. During the day, picket lines will be organized and committees set up. Tonight's meeting is set for approximately 8 p. m.

John J. Wellman, president of Local 126, calling the crisis "one of the greatest in the Dominion for some years", said, "We are faced with something now that I personally have never faced before".

"We want to get out of the horse-and-buggy days," Mr. Wellman said, quoting A. R. Mosher, head of the railway union. "We want to advance to modern times and get our just desserts as railroaders."

Agreement Reached

An agreement has been made between union men and the companies here that in the event of fire, pickets will cross their own lines and remain on company property until the fire is out. By the same token, a skeleton staff is being maintained at Bancroft because of the fire hazard in that area. Also, livestock in Belleville sheds are being looked after.

Allan Meagher, of the strike committee's publicity committee told employees this morning, "You men have to work just as hard on the strike as you do for the company, because you are setting the pattern for all Canada, with your demands for a 40-hour week." Mr. Meagher told the men that the publicity committee has met Saturday night and that it had realized that the conduct of the men on strike would do much to swing public opinion either way.

Instructions Read

He warned the men that they would have it put up to them that the railroaders were already getting large remuneration for their work, and told them to counter such statements by reminding main streeters that during the strike period, $10,000 less would be coming into Belleville every day.

Instructions from strike headquarters were read to the men by Mr. Wellman, who, in urging the men to get behind the strike movement, said, "we are not communists, and we don't want to be considered communists." He then read the instructions which urged all men to conduct themselves properly during the strike.

Instructions from union headquarters were that committees were to be set up for finance, publicity, food for pickets if it should be needed. Other arrangements will include selecting a local headquarters for the strike, compiling lists of names and addresses, transportation for pickets (who will work two-hour shifts), appointment of picket teams, covering of every gate and entrance to company property, placards, determination that no local orders will be given for any employee to resume work on any account until the issues are resolved, and establishing means of communication with outside points.

The instructions from top union brass said that "nothing must be left to chance. The welfare of every member of the brotherhood is at stake."

Other speakers at this morning's meeting represented machinists, car men, and the Trades and Labor Congress.

False Alarm Causes Two Runs

"It isn't often that a false alarm causes more than one run for the fire department, but Monday evening just one such alarm resulted in two runs for the department.

About nine o'clock last evening a call came in to the fire station with a young lady's voice asking firemen to come quickly as there was a fire on Centre Street. The telephone was then hung up before further directions could be asked.

Firemen jumped into their trucks and raced to Centre St. in the city but after traversing the length of the street were unable to find any fire.

Then realizing there was also a Centre Street in Hillcrest the department sent a truck to the suburb, but here again no fire was in evidence.

O.B.C. Principal Outlines History, Aims of College To Rotary Club Members

The history, aims, and accomplishments of the Ontario Business College were outlined Monday noon to members of the Rotary Club at their weekly luncheon meeting, by the principal I. L. Moore.

Introduced by Newton Thompson as a man "of patience and understanding" and as "a builder of men and women", Mr. Moore sketched briefly the accomplishments of the school and its long and useful history.

"Back in the horse and buggy days," he began, "in the 1860's when Cannifton and Rossmore were beginning to lose out to Belleville, two young men thought of starting a private school. In 1867, George Wallbridge and Samuel Beatty opened the Ontario Business College. In 1871 Mr. Wallbridge retired and Mr. Beatty went into partnership with W. B. Robinson. In 1876 Mr. Beatty retired and his place was taken by Mr. J. W. Johnson, a partnership that lasted for 26 years. When Mr. Robertson left I came up from Nova Scotia on a three-year contract that stretched to fifteen years. When Mr. Johnson retired, I took over the school as well as the book publishing business."

Mr. Moore pointed out that at that time the Ontario Business College was publishing a series of three books that were used in other parts of the world as text books on business. He paid tribute to the four men, who had laid the foundations of the school making special mention of Mr. Johnson.

Have Kept All Registers

"Registers at the school, and I have all the registers since its inception, show that students have come here from 50 different countries and states, and that book orders have been received from 79 different countries. No salesmen were employed and no newspaper advertising was done outside Canada. During the depression, however, I lost my assistant, business declined and I gave up the publication of the books."

"There are three courses given at the Ontario Business College," Mr. Moore stated, pointing out to the members that four years ago, all courses in trade schools had to be registered with the Department of Education at a rather stiff registration fee.

"We pride ourselves on our method of instruction," he said. "There is so much individual instruction that a student can set his own pace. We hold examinations in every department once a week if there are students to take them."

Age has been no barrier to success at the school, Mr. Moore told his audience, stating that a 70-year-old man had completed a course in bookkeeping. "He was a wonderful example to the 17-year-olds," he added.

Must Have Certificate

"Now, however, we are not permitted to admit students who are not 16 years old unless they would be still in school on their 16th birthday. They must have a certificate from the attendance officer as well."

Students who have attended the school come from widely different educational backgrounds, Mr. Moore said. "We have had university principals and professors, authors, successful businessmen, and some young students who have only their high school entrance."

The school does not guarantee its students a job on graduation, Mr. Moore explained, "because," as he said, "no one knows in advance what appearance, disposition, or ability the student may have." There are no correspondence courses either because "correspondence students must have tremendous patience, and most of them do not have it. Besides, correspondence courses are much over-rated. We feel that students do better with a teacher to guide them all the time."

Girls Usually Marry

"What becomes of the graduates?" Girls usually marry after working for a few years. The men have become successful business men," and he illustrated his point by indicating certain men in the Rotary Club, who once were his students. "Some are bankers, and dentists. Some have given up business entirely and gone back to work on farms and in industry. Fifteen graduates have entered the ministry."

"All students do not graduate though," he stated. "Today, the pressure exerted on students to leave school and accept positions has cut the number of fully qualified graduates in half."

Mr. Moore concluded by stating that a business college is a quick and inexpensive method of training young men and women in all aspects of business.

Dr. Guthridge expressed the thanks of the Rotary Club for Mr. Moore's address.

City-Owned Trucks Available To Food Distributors if Required To Protect Health of Citizens

To assist in safeguarding the health of citizens through provision of adequate food supplies, city-owned trucks will be made available to local food distributors if they are required during the curren railway strike, it was announced today by Mayor H. Jack Allin.

The mayor went on to note that Belleville is fortunate that it is in an agricultural area and the problems of distribution such as exist in larger centres would not prevail here. However, he said if city trucks were needed for the transportation of food supplies they would be available.

It was pointed out that this was in no way any attempt to assist in breaking the railway strike, but that the city trucks were being made available if necessary only to safeguard the health of citizens.

If the strike continues and an emergency arises in the city, the mayor stated that steps would be taken to form an emergency committee to deal with the situation.

TORONTO STOCKS

Toronto, Aug. 22 (CP) — Industrial stocks sagged slightly on the Toronto stock exchange today following news of the country-wide rail strike. Key stocks that paced recent advances into new high ground led the losers. The market settled into a narrow path as the session progressed.

The exchange's 1 p.m. index showed industrials down 1.77 at 256.27, golds up .01 at 77.86, base metals down .08 at 131.14, western oils up .29 at 84.81. Activity slowed to a crawl with volume for the first three hours at 475,000 shares, about 388,000 shares less than yesterday's corresponding period.

Losses were generally held to fractions in industrials. Companies depending on rail transportation encountered mild selling.

Papers were solidly lower and foods also slumped.

C.P.R., selling ex-dividend 50 cents, dipped 1-4 in a weaker utility list had steels and refining oils turned downwards.

Massey Harris, Ford A, Imperial Oil and Abitibi Paper, leaders in recent advances to the highest average price levels since 1934 were among the harder hit issues.

A few western oils, led by National Petroleum, chalked up penny advances. Base metals recovered from small morning losses and a handful of junior gold producers continued yesterday's brighter tone.

HOGS

Toronto, Aug. 22 — (CP) — Dressed, grade A hogs, delivered, were $33.50 at Hull, Que., this morning.

Other markets were not reported.

Eight Men Join Special Brigade At Armouries

Eight men from Belleville and district put their John Henry's on the dotted line yesterday for the Special United Nations Forces for Korea. New recruits were given preliminary processing by a special recruiting team from Kingston headed by Captain J. P. MacDowell, of the Queen's Own Rifles, stationed at No. 5 Personnel Depot, Kingston.

This team is also recruiting for Canada's Active Army.

Recruits here are given the army 'M' test, an aptitude test to determine the recruit's ability to get along in the army. Men for the Korean Brigade, married or single, must be between the ages of 19 and 35 and be able to score at least 90 of a possible 213 on the 'M' test. Those with army trades will be accepted up to 45 years of age. Special trades must score at least 110 on the 'M' test.

All men signed for the Korean force will be signing in as privates. There is no guarantee that veterans will receive their old rank. Pay for privates is $68 a month if single, and $137 if married.

Those wishing to sign up in the Active Army must be single, between the ages of 17 and 29, and with a 'M' score of 130. Tradesmen with an 'M' score of 150 will be taken up to 35 years of age. Boys not yet 18 must have their parents' consent.

The special recruiting team will be at the Armouries until noon tomorrow. Those passing the preliminary tests here will be sent to Kingston for further testing.

Fair Bd. Expresses Appreciation For Assistance Given

The president and board of directors of Belleville Agricultural Society wish to extend their sincere thanks and appreciation to the municipalities of the city of Belleville, County of Hastings, and the townships of Ameliasburg, Sidney, Thurlow and Tyendinaga for their financial support; to the Ontario-Intelligencer and CJBQ for their fine advertising; to the Belleville Parks Board for their co-operation on the grounds; to the police and fire departments for their fine work; to the Department of Public Works for their co-operation in supplying water, etc.; to the Public Utilities Commission for their assistance with the power and lighting; to the Belleville Municipal Band for their excellent musical program; to the St. John Ambulance Brigade for maintaining first aid booth at the fair; to the Sea Cadets for the assistance in parking; and also to the merchants and businessmen of the city and district, who donated special prizes.

Lastly, but not least, thanks are expressed to those who patronized the fair, by their attendance, and helped to assure its success. It is impossible to hold a successful fair without the co-operation and assistance of citizens and organizations and the Board wishes each and everyone to know, who helped in any way, that their efforts were sincerely appreciated.

FAN DANCER MARRIES

Toledo, O., Aug. 22 (AP)—Fan dancer Sally Rand, and her manager, Harry Finkelstein, 40, of New York City, were married here yesterday. Miss Rand, who gave her age as 46, is appearing here with the Cavalcade of Amusements, which opened a nine-day outdoor run yesterday.

Labor Chairman Offers Services In Strike Crisis

Alderman W. A. Argue, in his position as chairman of labor for the City Council, sent a telegram last night to six Canadian men, five of them directly concerned with the rail strike, and the other a member of Parliament, in connection with the effect of the strike on the city of Belleville.

The telegram read as follows: "Belleville citizens alarmed at impending strike. Railway employment here in excess of five thousand. As chairman of labor for Belleville municipal council offer services to assist in conciliation in any capacity desired."

Local railway officials, on reading the wire, said this morning that the total number of rail employees in the city would not exceed 1,200. They thought that the 5,000 number used in the telegram must involve employees and dependents. "I would say there are between 1,100 and 1,200 railroad employees in Belleville," Allan Meagher told the Ontario Intelligencer.

The telegram was sent to Donald Gordon, president of the CNR at Montreal, W. A. Mathers, president of the CPR, also at Montreal, A. R. Mosher, president of the Canadian Brotherhood of Railway Employees, Montreal, Frank Hall, president of the railway unions, the Hon. Milton F. Gregg, Minister of Labor, Ottawa, and Frank S. Follwell, MP, South Hastings, at Belleville.

Long Distance Service Plugged With Calls as Rail Strike Opens

As the railway strike disrupted other means of communication this morning, long distance calls threatened to swamp Bell Telephone lines and switchboards. With every switchboard position manned, and every available line in use, Bell operators are doing their best to connect all calls, but in some instances there are delays. At present there is no sign of slackening in the flood of calls, and Bell officials state that emergency measures have been brought into effect to keep switchboard staffs at full strength so long as the need continues.

Virtually all business normally handled by telegraph is passing today over long distance telephone circuits, as well as a large number of other communications resulting from the strike. In addition, there are many calls from stranded travellers, and from suppliers seeking alternate means of shipping goods and supplies.

Among measures taken by the Bell Telephone Co. to ensure the maximum of service during the emergency are the placement of extra operators and the arrangement of special facilities. Former operators have been transferred from other departments to switchboard duties, and other former operators have been re-employed for the duration of the emergency.

By keeping all switchboards staffed at full strength, the company has assured the full use at all times of every available long distance circuit. A company official explained that it is not economically sound to engineer, build and maintain as many lines as would be required to handle today's abnormal flood of calls.

Bell lines and equipment are designed to handle more normal volumes of usage with a comfortable margin of facilities in reserve for peak days, but an emergency such as this produces far more calling than daily or seasonal surges and the volume is increasing, he said.

G. W. Procter, Bell Telephone manager here, said that delays on some inter-city circuits are inevitable and that, in some instances, long distance callers may not be getting immediate answers from their long distance operator. He added that the operators are doing everything they can to complete all calls and to establish wanted connections as quickly as possible. He invited the understanding tolerance of the public during this critical period.

EFFECTS

would not reach their destination before the strike deadline. Even telephone service out of Hornepayne was suspended, along with that in other northeastern Ontario and northwestern Quebec centres where the Ontario Northland railway operates the phones.

Importance to Economy

The importance of the rail services to Canada's economy was driven home in many ways, big and small. In the Prairies, farmers worried that a shortage of binder twine and parts for machinery repairs may hamper harvesting. In Saskatoon, it was estimated the city's power plant has fuel enough only for two weeks' operation, even on a reduced basis.

In Ottawa, oil companies spoke of a "distinct possibility" that motorists will be cut off if the strike lasts more than a week because trucks could bring in quantities sufficient only to meet minimum needs.

Lumber men in New Brunswick and mining men in British Columbia said their industries were dependent upon rail transportation. Fruit farmers in southwestern Ontario feared that their crops would be wasted—they could truck to such nearby cities as Toronto and London but these markets would soon be glutted.

With hotel employees among the strikers, management of the Hotel Vancouver said evacuation of some 700 guests would begin today because a skeleton staff "just couldn't look after the guests."

Toronto Station Deserted

Toronto's Union Station, biggest railway terminal in Canada, is virtually deserted except for pickets. Some 3,000 persons normally work in and around the huge depot. A "mothball crew" has been assigned to essential maintenance such as oiling machinery and keeping up steam pressure.

Postal officials in Toronto are organizing a motor - vehicle service to maintain first - class-mail exchange between Toronto and Ontario points not served by airlines.

An estimated 25,000 persons were isolated in small towns and villages strung out along the Northern Ontario railway lines. Bush pilots said they'd need at least 500 planes to do an adequate air-supply job; about 100 are available.

A meat famine, gasoline rationing and a shutdown of paper mills and other industries were feared over an extensive area of Northern Ontario. The meat shortage is expected to become acute within three days. With no central cold storage plants, supplies normally are carried in from day to day by rail.

D. Ellis, manager of a large service station supply company, said in Timmins that gasoline and oil supplies would last less than 10 days. To counteract hoarding, Fire Chief William Stanley of Timmins announced last night that any person found with more than five gallons of surplus gasoline would be subjected to a $50 fine, as provided by a little-used by-law.

Dairies in Kirkland Lake and Timmins arranged to truck in milk supplies from the New Liskeard area.

Paper Workers Affected

Close to 2,000 paper workers at Kapuskasing and Iroquois Falls will be laid off if the strike continues for any length of time. The Spruce Falls Power and Paper Company, Kapuskasing's only industry, had storage space for only about four days' output. Similarly, the Abitibi Power and Paper Company at Iroquois Falls estimated it could stock-pile for only about a week.

In both Niagara Falls and St. Catharines, city councils last night gave their mayors emergency powers if the strike affects the Niagara, St. Catharines and Toronto Railway, garage mechanics and office staff employees of the N.S. and T., which operates a train and bus service in the Niagara district, are members of the striking unions.

J. C. Empringham, railway superintendent, said buses would operate until Wednesday by arrangement with the unions but freight trains would stop running at the 6 a.m. dealine today. Mayors William Hock of Niagara Falls and Richard M. Robertson of St. Catharines were authorized by their councils to take all steps necessary to maintain street transportation.

The northern telephone company at Timmins clamped tight restrictions on all long-distance calls out of the Porcupine. With operators involved in the strike, company manager R. F. McKenna announced that calls will be placed only if they concern death, sickness, fire, burglary, accidents or flood. Incoming long distance calls will have to pass Ontario Northland Railway censorship at North Bay, he said:

FISHING VESSEL

Communication lines were a snarled mess up until midnight, when they began to clear. For most of the evening there was no telegraph communication to Cape Breton or Newfoundland and Prince Edward Island was out for a time earlier. Telephone circuits were quickly restored but were shaky, and calls were subjected to delays of up to four and five hours.

The army's east coast signal unit here stepped into the breach and handled rush telegrams and Canadian Press news for Cape Breton points.

Before Newfoundland circuits were restored after midnight, Canadian Press copy for St. John's was sent by cable from New York.

RAILWAYS MAKE

consequences of a strike so close at hand, in framing a further offer which would provide a definite date for the five-day, 40-hour week, provide a measure of protection to the employees against the present trend in rising costs and provide some ancillary operations which the conciliation boards had reported could not be properly considered as forming a part of railway operations."

The three-year contract was stipulated "so as to permit the railways to adjust themselves to the new conditions without too excessive cost and soften the impact of the settlement on the general industrial economy of Canada."

The statement quoted a memorandum given the federal government mediator, Dr. W. A. Mackintosh, late Monday night.

Based on Request

The memorandum said the new terms were based on the mediator's request for serious consideration "to the possibility of lengthening the contract period so that within a wider framework we might justifiably include provisions not appropriate for a short-term contract."

The amendments to existing contracts referred to in the memorandum dealt with such subjects as staff-reduction notices, apprenticeships, meal periods, Sunday work, overtime for express messengers and the number of conductors assigned to sleeping-car passenger trains depending upon the number of cars.

The Aug. 10 offer said it excluded hotel and water-transport employees.

On this subject the memorandum said:

"Hotel employees and water-transport employees are not to be included in the general agreement but provision will be made for a one-year agreement whereby a two-cents-per-hour increase, effective Sept. 1, 1950, shall be pooled and distributed to these employees following a review of their positions with workers doing comparable work."

WAGES

Frank Hall, chief of the negotiating committee of the international unions, left the meeting and said: "We don't know about any (more) negotiations at all." He headed for bed.

Machinery in Action

From coast to coast the strike machinery went into action. Railway yards and terminals were deserted as night shifts checked off and day shifts failed to show up. Trains were cancelled or tied up in yards.

Within minutes of the breakdown of mediation attempts the conference room in a downtown hotel and the corridors about it were deserted. The presidents of the railways, Donald Gordon of the Canadian National and W. A. Mather of the Canadian Pacific, headed for bed just as did union leaders.

Dr. Mackintosh, vice-principal of Queen's University who was named to mediate the dispute last Friday, had no comment but said he might issue a statement later.

Nightmare Of Work

His last 24 hours had been a nightmare of work, meeting at one time with union leaders, the next time with railway heads, but never making enough progress to bring the disputant parties together

The union, prior to mediation, were definite in their stand that the strike call would stand until there was what they called a "satisfactory settlement." From this they never deviated and throughout the negotiations tenseness mounted while each side and the mediator, too, maintained silence on progress or lack of it.

Workers directly affected by the strike call embrace railroad and commercial telegraphers, maintenance and shop employees, clerks, freight and express handlers, some hotel employees and sleeping and dining car employees.

Long Distance Telephone Service and the present situation

With other means of communication disrupted much of the business normally handled through other channels is now going over Long Distance telephone lines.

To cope with the emergency, every switchboard is in use and extra operators, in addition to our regular staff, are on duty.

Because of the tremendous number of calls now going through, many will be delayed. While the emergency continues Long Distance service may be adversely affected in other ways.

We are doing everything we can to give you the best possible service under present conditions.

NEW OLD PEOPLE'S HOME

Hastings County is to have a million dollar old people's home. Last Saturday Ontario's Minister of Public Welfare, Hon. W. A. Goodfellow, laid the cornerstone of the main building with appropriate ceremonies.

There are to be seven buildings in the group which will form one of the most impressive "homes" in the Province of Ontario.

Such an undertaking as the construction of a thoroughly modern home for the aged, is an indication of the philanthropic trend of the times in which we live. The interest in those who will need the shelter of such a home will be well served. Care of older people is today one of the problems stressed by medical experts, and this age will not forget those who have borne the labor and the heat of the day and in the course of time have reached a ripe old age.

On so many sides are seen these evidences of this progress. plan for the care of the young and preparation for their lives of usefulness, hospitals for children and for adults where the utmost in science may be available in skill, knowledge and scientific equipment, construction of homes and schools in which the young or old grow up and Sunday schools and churches for training in the religious life and to inspire the young and their elders towards the noblest ideals in life. And now comes the class of the aged. These too have rightly occupied the closest attention of those in authority so that their latter days may be days of peace and comfort.

This age is a humanitarian era as its public works show it to be. Humanitarian offices never before occupied so much of the people's attention. And it is well and just that it should be so.

Hastings County will not be behind but well in the lead with its contribution toward the solution of the problem relating to the people who will make their home in the new buildings.

The new home will carry out in all its details the latest ideas in construction and in provision for care of those soon to make this their home and dwelling place.

THIS WEATHER

This year in which the weather has been rather topsy-turvey in regard to rain and low temperature has been more the comment on every side than many a year since past. As far ago as last Christmas Day the weather seemed to have already adopted that spirit of contrariness reoresented by a rainfall at a time when snow was to be expected. Then when spring came the weather veered and the season became tardy, with the result that summer's lease will soon have run out leaving the summer of 1950 a name as one of the coldest in recent years. Little opportnnity to complain of heat has been offered.

Expression of the view that the world's weather was becoming warmer has run into a condition this summer which has given the quietus to that notion for the time being at least.

HAMPTON COURT

An interesting guide booklet on Hampton Court Palace has been written by C. H. Chettle, F. S. A., and published by the United Kingdom Ministry of Works. The information the book contains will commend itself to the casual seeker for information and connoisseur alike for three royal dynasties, Tudor, Stuart and Hanover, have made the palace their home.

Its history is interesting. It was founded by Cardinal Wolsey, whose coat-of-arms is on the west side of Clock Court. Among many other relics of past years which remain are the Royal Coat-of-Arms of Henry VIII over the gateway and the badges and initials of Anne Boleyn in the Great Hall, built by Henry in 1531-36. Anne was not the only one of Henry's wives to be immortalized within the precincts. Elsewhere are Henry's arms, with the Seymour arms impaled, for five of his six wives were in residence at the palace dumg his lifetime. The badges and initials of Queen Elizabeth with the date 1566 are on the two inner turrets of the Great Gatehouse.

There is a reference to the rebuilding to Wren's plans in 1639 by William and Mary and the Trophy Gates bear the arms of George II, the last reigning sovereign to occupy the palace. In the various period apartments there is much to remind visitors of the royal occupants of the past.

Hampton Court, always a popular rendezvous, was visited by more than half a million sightseers last year. That number is likely to be greatly swelled this year with the heavy influx of tourists from overseas.

SCORE IS EVENED

The story has been told of one Ontario farmer who used a most efficacious method of evening the score with a family group of picnickers who had made an attractive streamside glade a shambles of broken bottles, paper napkins, empty tin cans and so on.

The farmer managed to catch the licence number of the picnickers' car as it departed and looked up the ownership at the licence bureau. The following Sunday, with all his family and pets, the farmer turned up at the town house owned by the picnic party family. There was no one at home, of course — the people were probably out despoiling another bit of countryside—so the farmer's family staged a full-scale picnic on the well-kept lawn.

Needless to say, they made no attempt to clean up afterwards and left the town dweller's lawn and garden in the same disgraceful shape that he and his family had left the farmer's place the week before. That was probably a lesson in reciprocity that the townsman would have no difficulty in comprehending when he got home.—Owen Sound Sun-Times.

JUST FOLKS

By EDGAR A. GUEST

(Copyright, 1950, Edgar A. Guest)

EXAMPLE

Who would the game of golf enjoy
Must be accompanied by a boy;
A boy, whose duty first of all
Is this: to watch the driven ball.
But ever since the game began
The boy has also watched the man.

A golfer in ill-temper may
The worst of manhood's traits display
The boy the ball may fall to see
And lost forever it may be.
But doubt this truth no grown-up can:
That little chap will watch the man.

The golf ball's flight too far may be
For those bright, youthful eyes to see,
But let the man one stroke forget
The boy will know it, you can bet.
Sometimes the ball the boy won't see,
The man unwatched, will never be.

VIRTUE

In these days of universal sophistication, we often hear people sneer at the word "virtue". To be virtuous, these people feel, is to be juvenile, inexperienced, naive goody-goody.

Actually, they have it just backwards. Real virtue—courage, honesty, loyalty, and such qualities which men have always recognized as desirable—comes only from maturity. A child is concerned only with immediate pleasure and pain; the mature person looks beyond the immediate to the ultimate.

A man and a child are attacked by a mad dog. The child, seeing the immediate danger, runs away. The man sees the danger too, and knows that the next few moments would be less unpleasant if he ran also. But being mature, he sees the larger future unpleasantness of abandoning the child. So he fights the dog. Thus he shows courage, and we may truthfully call him virtuous.

All true virtue, like courage, arises from an understanding of the larger general situation and a willingness to sacrifice the smaller personal situation to it. Such understanding comes only with maturity—and not always with mere physical maturity.

To sneer at virtue as childish, then, is to be ignorant of life's greatest mark of real maturity.

THE PACKSACK

By GREGORY CLARK

Cook books, the kind you can buy in stores, are all very well. But there is nothing you can buy to equal the recipe book of your grandmother. Lucky is the family that has preserved Grandma's recipe book.

Sometimes she kept it in a scribbler, sometimes in a tidy note book. Often she stuffed it full of loose sheets of paper on which were written, in the various calligraphy of her friends, their recipes she got in exchange for some of hers. As the years went by, the recipe book grew scruffier and more dilapidated. When Grandma died, and her daughters gathered round, you might have detected them secretly and anxiously exploring kitchen drawers. They each were trying to pinch Grandma's recipe book.

In the more honest families, the daughters and daughters-in-law frankly and openly came to agreement over the recipe book; and they passed it from one to the other to be copied. But many a family feud exists to this day based on the suspicion that Grandma's recipe book, which mysteriously vanished, is secretly in the possession of one of the family.

Ah! Cookies the like of which will never again see the light of day. Pies, potato cakes, jellies, mustard pickles — pickles with a tang and a savour that linger as clear and sweetly in the memory as Grandma's face.

You can search until you are blue in the face through a commercial cook book, amid those terse, almost hieroglyphic prescriptions, and never find the secrets Grandma knew, and set down in her spidery, tall writing.

My Grandma's cook book brought confusion and frustration upon her daughters and daughters-in-law. All through it, were references to a cup of this, a half cup of that, a quarter cup of another. The only daughter who ever made a success of Grandma's recipes was the one who got possession of Grandma's cup. It held pretty close to a pint!

OUR TOWN

By JACK SCOTT

INTO ONTARIO

Rushing River, Ont.—We left the plains of Manitoba behind today and crossed over into the spruce and birch and the boulders of Ontario.

For the next thousand - odd miles we'll be going through very much the same kind of country we traversed today and except for the twin lakehead cities of Fort William and Port Arthur, our next water hole, the rout seems a lonely one, Or so it has appeared at any rate from the windows of airplanes and trains in the past.

But when you cross the country by motor car you discover that this land is not nearly as empty as it appears on the map or from high speed transportation

Rushing River, our current address, is a provincial park about 20 miles east of Kenora. We are here and enjoying it because, on the evidence at hand Ontario knows how to look after its visitors.

West of Kenora, we came upon a roadside tourist bureau, staffed by three attractive and alert young ladies who do almost everything but psychoanalyze you.

When I asked about places to park the beast (as we've come to know the trailer) the girl I'd drawn asked an astonishing question: What sort of place did we like? I replied that we craved something in the woods and away from juke boxes and the gal went into a charming recital of the beauties of Rushing River. Knew everything about it from the location of the water-pump to the kind of fish we might get in the stream, and seemed genuinely anxious that we should have a good time.

It was a nice way to meet up with Ontario.

We're Unloved

When we had made our camp had dinner and put the kids to bed, Brown Eyes and I sat down to a feast of home town papers that reached us this morning at Winnipeg General Delivery.

It was certainly the end of a perfect day to find that so many of you are stimulated by the columns and writing to the editor.

There was Mrs. Olive M. McLean, for instance, who wrote the editor to suggest we "turn right back now."

And a Mr. T. W. Sick who suggests "calling such a man home and sending a booster."

And a Mr. H. McConnell who urged the editor to "wire Jack Scott and order him to halt and remain quiet until I arrive with my wife and two children to take over."

And several other dear hearts and gentle people with similar blunt sentiments.

Well, we are going to make them all mad by going right on, snarling at all the bad roads and having a minimum of four emergencies a day (the refrigerator broke loose from the wall today and we lost the keys to the trailer and had to have a Kenora locksmith get us in). And we are going to keep right on writing about our trip and not the one that these particular customers think we ought to be making.

As Mr. Sick points out, we are obviously woefully inexperienced at this sort of life.

"Why," writes Mr. Sick, "he doesn't even know enough to lay over a day or so for prairie roads to dry." This is so painfully true. On the other hand Saskatchewan had nearly 10 days of rain while we were doing the Australian crawl across its face and a guy can't wait forever, can he Mr. Sick.

Mr. McConnell, himself in volunteering to take over says he could level a trailer, take a bath and kill a mosquito without mentioning a word of it to his readers and I don't doubt him a bit.

But with us, life is a gigantic struggle against mechanical things and little bugs and I am afraid we'll have to keep right on the way we are. I just wish we'd had this McConnell fellow with us the day the dust got in.

It's All Here

There's just been a couple of things in the letters that got under the rhinoceros hide that we columnists learn to develop and the reason for this diversion today.

One was Mr. Sick's statement that, 'According to Scott, there is nothing to build a Trans- Canada Highway for."

Lord love you, Mr. Sick, I never said any such thing.

There's just about everything in the world to make such a road the world's finest scenic route and, indeed, in a column only a few days ago I noted that when the cross-Canada highway is completed it will mean a new sense of pride in our country for anyone who makes the drive.

What I have been recording is the condition of the road now, in the summer of 1950, and that is forcing nine out of every ten Canadians to loop through the States when they are travelling from one distant point in Canada to the other.

I was unhappy, too, with the criticism of Mrs. McClean who objected to my interviewing the cowboy singer, Wilf Carter, in Winnipeg because 'believe me, yodelling cowboys are not typical of Winnipeg." And Mrs. McLean felt I should have devoted my space to the saga of the Lord Selkirk settlers.

Sakes alive, Mrs. McLean, better men than I have told the Winnipeg story and, anyway I wouldn't think of doing a job like that in the amount of time we have for a stopover. As for slighting Winnipeg, why shucks, I wouldn't do that, It's my home town.

Well, I'm glad that's off my chest. We sure aim to please, but we can't be what we ain't. And tomorrow we're just going to go fishing. If that's all right with you.

Mackenzie's Column:

Proposal Would Involve Invasion Of North Korea

By DEWITT MACKENZIE
(Associated Press News Analyst)

A good deal of worried thinking has been inspired by Warren R. Austin, United States representative to the United Nations, through his call for a unified north and south Korea under a republic at the war's end.

This proposal of course immediately poses the problem that it would involve invasion of northern Korea by the United Nations forces under Gen. MacArthur. The general's present instructions are to halt at the 38th parallel, which is the southern boundary of north Korea.

Austin was silent on this point, and one suspects that in making his statement he was on a fishing expedition for the views of other U.N. members. Presumably he filled his creel, for observers have noted these positive reactions:

Among the non-communist countries there is general acceptance of the thesis that a unified democratic republic is the ideal solution.

There is general and strong opposition to pursuing any course which might result in another world war, though with this qualification invasion would be approved.

And what circumstance would create the danger of world war? That would be the intervention of Russia to prevent occupation of north Korea by United Nations troops.

Many of the best-informed American officials believe the Soviet Union will openly grab off north Korea rather than let a victorious U.N. restore peace and unity. That would put up to the U.N. the tough problem of whether to accept this situation or whether to evict the Russians. The latter would mean a world war, and this course is unlikely.

From the standpoint of the interests of the United Nations, it would be a great thing if a unified and democratic Korea emerged as the protege of the peace organization. The U.N. already has justified its existence by courageously applying military sanctions against aggression. It has dared where the League of Nations failed.

A successful conclusion of this historic stand for justice would immeasurably strengthen the U.N., and lessen the chances of further aggression of this sort.

TODAY'S TALK

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

BACK HOME

In Halifax, Nova Scotia, recently five thousand American Navy sailors landed for a four-day stay. The town teemed with those fine chaps. They were seen upon the streets, in the parks, hotels and stores. But what interested me most was to see them in groups in stores buying momentos and souvenirs, and in the Post Office sending out mail for back home.

Back home — that's where the mind of the soldier and sailor centers most. And it is that home, its preservation from tragic destruction that has made a soldier out of every boy in the service. What endeared the late Ernie Pyle to million of homes was his messages of cheer, information, and graphic description of the soldier boy at the front. He kept all advised—back home.

The saddest things about all wars is that they break up homes, destroying the innocent, wiping out the labor and love of millions of workers, leaving desolation behind. The citadel of the home—preserved — is the world's only hope of survival. It is easy to understand the urge of the soldier to keep sending back home letters of cheer and little momentos to help "keep the home fires burning."

The mysterious urge for home and the location of one's kind are videnced in Nature, the source for so much of our knowledge. The Golden Plover, I am told, nests in South America and then the parents will fly thousands of miles to the far north. Later without direction, save by that unexplainable instinct, the young of this bird soon join their parents in the far north—back home, you see!

For three seasons now I have watched the nest of a Least Flycatcher that has built its delicate hammock nest in a birch tree beside the lagoon of my summer island. It may have known this place as its home for longer, but its nest is so lost in the tree by the hangings of Spanish moss that I only discovered my little friend three years ago. But birds have the back home urge the same as we all do. May we never lose it!

YOUNG FOLKS AND OLD FOLKS

My husband and I have just returned from a visit to a couple of our dearest friends—they still live in ——, Ohio, our old home town, writes Mrs. P. A. from La Jolla (watch out for the Spanish influence), California.

L'Hoya, you must know, is on the Pacific coast—a spot to dream about the rest of your life when you have once visited it. And Ohio, I must remind you before Mrs. P. A. finishes her report, lies in the Great Lakes basin, or at least the northern part of Ohio does. Keep these facts of physical geography in mind, please.

...we are all of the same age. Their hair is gray and they marvel at how young we look. We had not seen each other for years. My husband and I have been taking—

Oh, oh. Here we go again. I do wish you folks, young and old, would humor me in this, even though you think you know more than I do about it. I keep telling you that minerals and vitamins are not medicine, but rather food or food accessories. Most of us can get along all right without medicine. No one can get along without vitamins and minerals. So I beg of you, fatheads, don't speak of taking minerals and/or vitamins, as you would of taking medicine. One doesn't "take" protein, fat, minerals, sugar, vitamins or fats. One eats 'em.

Now, then, Mrs. P. A., you were saying you and your husband have been eating—

—your Iodin Ration for over four years and we feel sure that is why we both keep so well all the time and enjoy doing all the work we are called upon to do. (Signed) Mrs. P. A. ——.

The Iodin Ration is fully explained in a pamphlet available to any one who asks for it in writing (a clipping will bring no answer) and incloses a stamped self-addressed envelope. Title of the pamphlet is The Iodin Ration.

Webster spells the word i-o-d-i-n-e but says it may be spelled i-o-d-i-n. I use the latter spelling when I refer to nutritional or food iodin, add the final e when I refer to medicinal iodine.

How long ago Mrs. P. A. and her husband moved from the Great Lakes basin to the Pacific littoral she does not mention, but it seems reasonable to assume it was before their old friends back east turned gray.

One important if subtle change in the lives of the P. A.'s when they moved from the goitre belt to the seashore was in the iodin content of food, drinking water and air. In the goitre belt (Great Lakes basin) the iodin content of all locally grown food, such as milk, eggs, meat, vegetables and fruit, is now, and so is the iodin content of drinking water, compared with the iodin content of food and water in the Pacific littoral.

It is debatable whether people living along the seashore get enough iodin from breathing the sea air to supply the daily requirement, although nutrition authorities estimate that the normal individual requires only a small fraction of a grain of iodin daily to maintain good functional health and it would seem plausible that one might absorb some iodin through the mucous membranes of the breathing passages from the water vapor in the air derived from sea spray or fog blowing ashore.

Readers have been assuring me for many years that the Iodin Ration which I recommended for every one—man, woman or child —regardless of where he or she may live, retards graying of the hair or prevents premature graying. All I can promise, however, is that it can't do any harm in any circumstance and, as thousands of readers have learned, it does tend to dispel that old feeling.

QUESTIONS & ANSWERS

Allergy

I have had more than my share of trouble from allergy. I'd be grateful for any advice you may have. (A. P.)

Answer—Send stamped self-addressed envelope and ask in writing for pamphlet Relief for Allergy.

Recurring Warts

Have warts on both hands. They came back after they were burned off twice. The chemicals used to burn them off left scars. (Miss A. W.)

Answer—Paint wart and skin around it with tincture of iodine twice a week. Apply fresh castor oil to each wart every night. Other methods of treatment, especially for multiple warts and warts on palm or sole, are described in booklet Cosmetic Blemishes—for which send 25c and stamped self-addressed envelope.

Woman's Work

Is it safe for a woman of forty who has had two caesarian operations to push a lawn mower etc. in gardening? (Mrs. M. S.)

Answer—Not onl safe but it is good exercise for any woman of forty or fifty who enjoys it.

ANCIENT CULTURE

Chinese living in the yellow basin had achieved an advanced stage of civilization by 1200 B.C.

Citizens' Duty to Improve Town State Mayor and Senator at Sunday Night Rotary Concert

Trenton, (Special.)—"God has been very generous to Trenton giving us unlimited beauty, but we did not do our part to aid and improve our heritage," said Mayor Kenneth J. Couch at Trenton Rotary Club's first open air concert, Sunday evening.

A barge anchored off the cold storage plant provided an entirely different stage setting for the evening's entertainment and a large crowd of spectators lined the newly paved government dock area, while the green grass carpeted lawn and blooming flower gardens in Senator Fraser Park, provided a scenic background.

"We are pleased to present this concert in this picturesque setting," said Mr. Couch. "I feel that tonight we have every reason to be proud." Comparing the present "flower garden and paved waterfront" to the "rotting timbers, weed bed and broken down dock" of a year or so ago, Mayor Couch paid tribute to the efforts of Senator Fraser and the Parks Board for transforming "this eyesore into a beauty spot".

It is the duty of every citizen to improve their lawns, boulevards and places of business and do everything they can to improve Trenton and make it an ideal place in which to live," he said.

Predicts Swimming Pool

Just prior to Mayor Couch's remarks, Senator Fraser had predicted, that "within 12 months, a municipal swimming pool will be erected adjacent to the softball park."

Senator Fraser said it was his objective as a member of the Parks Board, "to develop the waterfront so that Trenton harbor would be unexcelled by any harbor, yacht or otherwise, anywhere along the bay or Great Lakes. Any community is only built by the combined efforts of all its citizens," declared Senator Fraser in urging "every citizen to devote a certain amount of time to the progress of Trenton."

"While nearly $100,000 has been spent on improving the dock area, not one cent of that money was paid for by the taxpayers of Trenton. Through the auspices of the town clerk-treasurer, Mr. O. W. Larry, we circularized all yacht clubs from Maine to Miami and around the great Lakes to Sault Ste. Marie this year. So far the only complaints we have had is that some Trenton power boat owners insist on passing visiting boats at excessive speeds," Senator Fraser said.

Paying tribute to the RCAF for their "assistance on behalf of the community," Senator Fraser said "I am not only proud of the development of Trenton but it is my ambition and I hope my destiny to continue to be associated with the continuing development and progress of Trenton and the citizens of Trenton.

Local Entertainers Featured

The Dominion Championship RCAF Band of 6 Repair Depot and RCAF Station Trenton provided a variety of musical selections and featured a baritone trumpet, which is described as "a comparative new addition to Canadian bands."

Introduced by Clayton Maxwell who emceed the show, as "Trenton's first soprano" Miss Gertrude Scott sang two vocal numbers. The Slovenian Glee Club of Batawa and the RCAF Station Glee Club Quartet under the direction of F/O L. J. Lomis were also featured twice, during the program which was broadcast through the facilities of the local radio station CJBQ.

Jimmy Durante, George Formby, Jerry Colona, Billy Eckstine and Frankie Lane all had a part in the program through the impersonations of the ever popular Bill Navan, while Bill Arnold's quartet with vocals by Loraine Marsh rounded out the open air concert program.

Cobourg Wins Final Game Of Playoffs

Trenton—(Special)— Cobourg eliminated Trenton in the first round of the Intermediate "B" OASA playoffs two games to one, by defeating the Chevrolets 6 to 5 in Cobourg last night.

With the score tied in the last of the ninth and two men out, Don Ball hit a pinch hit double with the bases loaded to break up the ball game and end Trenton's OAS A playoff hopes for 1950.

Chevrolets led practically all the way. Cobourg tied the score in their half of the eighth frame and then in the last of the ninth, Harry Farr who again went the distance on the Chevrolet mound, walked three men to fill the bases. The next two hitters grounded to third base an the runners were cut off at home plate. It looked as though Chevrolet who have been in the clutches all season might hang on and come through with a win in extra innings, then Ball put an end to the three game series with his game winning double.

After dropping the first game in Trenton, 13 to 10, Cobourg took their next two home games to win the series. Cobourg faced elimination Saturday night but came through with a 9 to 3 victory behind the three-hit pitching of Don Ball.

Don Platt handled the hurling chores on the Cobourg mound last night and went the distance giving up six hits, while firing the third strike past five hitters and allowing only two walks.

For Chevrolets, it was a tough loss for their top pitcher Harry Farr, who was tagged for eight hits. Farr fanned 10 and walked seven.

Line score	R	H	E
Cobourg	6	6	6
Trenton	5	8	2

175 Employees Of Two Railways Affected by Strike

Trenton—(Special)—One hundred and seventy-five Trenton railwaymen are affected by the national railway strike which started this morning. Seventy-five of the men are employed by the CNR, while the other 100 are CPR employees.

When the last trains grind to a halt across Canada today, all freight, express, passenger, mail and telegraph services of the railway companies will be suspended pending settlement of the strike.

A few men will be on the job at the local station for fire protection but no services will be available, as the strike stops all rail shipments and railway freight movements.

A survey of several Trenton industries last night, revealed that unless the strike is "very prolonged" it will have no effect on the operations of local industries. A. B. Hill, president of Central Bridge Co. Ltd., said "if the strike is extended it will certainly have some effect on our operations as most of our raw materials come by rail. But it will have no serious effect if it is only of short duration."

The most immediate effect in Trenton is being felt by coal dealers. One dealer reported this morning that his phone had been "ringing almost continually ever since the strike threat became serious about a week ago." This dealer said he did not have nearly enough to supply the orders, while another smaller firm reported they had no supply on hand and were simply not operating.

Still another company reported they had enough coal to supply orders for the "present if the strike does not last too long." The statement made by one local coal dealer that a week long rail strike would put the "local coal business in a major crisis" was not accepted by other coal dealers who thought this "was going a little too far."

Much of the coal used by industries is brought in by boat and most local industries have a good deal of their winter supply in already so they are not likely to be affected by a coal shortage for some time.

CRUSADE OF DECENCY

Granda, Spain, Aug. 22 (AP)—The Archbishop of Granda yesterday asked the public to join in a "crusade for decency in dress." Archbishop Santos Olivera's pastoral said tourists from abroad who wore shorts in public and thus exhibited their thighs lacked decency in dress. Municipal authorities warned that persons wearing insufficient clothing will not be allowed on the streets.

APPOINTED DIRECTOR

Toronto, Aug. 22 — (CP) — W. J. McPherson, Canadian Broadcasting Corporation commentator, has been appointed director of publicity for the Ontario Agriculture Department, Agriculture Minister Kennedy announced yesterday. A graduate of the University of Saskatchewan, Mr. McPherson has been commentator for Ontario and Quebec on the Farm Broadcast for the last six years.

Trenton Takes Quinte Club In Tennis Match

Trenton just managed to edge Quinte by three events to two last night in an exhibition intermediate tennis match played at the Quinte Tennis Club.

The Quinte players none of whom were over fifteen years of age were not overawed by the size and age of the opposition from Trenton and they really gave a good account of themselves. All three men's doubles matches went to three sets with the Quinte youngsters winning two and finishing on the short end of the other one.

Individual scores were as follows:—

Men's Doubles

Bob Brierley and Larry Black (Quinte) beat Ron Meaken and Paul Trip (Trenton) 6-0, 2-6, 6-3.

Tom Lynch and Dave Dill (Quinte) beat John Black and Bobbie Burns (Trenton) 6-3, 4-6, 6-3.

Jack Orell and Perc Gitelman (Trenton) beat Dave White and Barry Kells (Quinte) 4-6, 6-4, 6-2.

Mixed Doubles

Ila Bayliss and Jack Ethier (Trenton) beat Pauline Hall and Jim Colletti (Quinte) 6-0, 6-1.

Jack Ethier and Ila Bayliss (Trenton) beat Barry Wright and Beverley Cowan (Quinte) 6-1, 6-1.

SOCCER

Trenton Merchants edged Belleville United last night in the semi-final of the Trenton Soccer Challenge Cup. The score was 1 to 0. Trenton Merchants thus won the right to play the winner of the Flyers vs Batawa game which was also played last night at the Air Force grounds. Belleville missed a golden opportunity for tieing up the score when they missed from a penalty kick.

Health Staff Increases in P.E., Other Counties

Ottawa, 22 —(CP)—Money to provide increased staffs for county health units in various sections of Ontario has been set aside under the National Health Grants, the health department announced today.

The staff increase will be in the Halton, Lennox and Addington, Prince Edward, Leeds and Grenville, Porcupine, Oxford, Peel, Kenora-Keewatin, Lambton and Kirkland-Larder Lake units.

To provide better supervision and inspection of supplies of raw milk, meat, poultry and other foods, veterinarians will be added to the health units for Halton, Lennox and Addington, Prince Edward, Leeds and Grenville, Porcupine and Oxford.

Educational Program

They will also aid in the educational program for food handlers and make special studies of diseases of animals which might be related to human health. The veterinarians for Halton, Leeds and Grenville, and Porcupine will serve full-time; the others part-time.

A school medical officer and an additional public health nurse will be provided for the Lambton unit.

The medical officer, who will serve part-time, will carry out immunization programs, conduct clinics, and give physical examinations to pre-school and primary school children.

The additional nurse will work particularly in the secondary schools carrying out vision tests, assisting with physical examinations and providing a health counselling service for young people. During the vacation months, she will assist with the general work of the health unit.

Each project was recommended to Ottawa by the Provincial Department of Health, costs for the current fiscal year, to be met from Ontario's share in the National Health Grants, are estimated at more than $28,000.

Supervisors Want To Fly U.N. Flag

Los Angeles, Aug. 22 (AP) — The County Board of Supervisors wants to fly the United Nations flag in the Plaza Court of Flags here. It found it first must:

1. Obtain a purchase permit for the flag from Trygve Lie, U. N. Secretary-General.
2. Send an official order to a New York manufacturer who holds exclusive sales rights to the flag.
3. Wait for the manufacturer to send a price list showing costs of various sizes.

When the flag finally arrives, a special ceremony will be conducted at the Plaza.

Canadians Told War Maybe Longer Than Expected

Victoria, B.C., Aug. 22 (CP)—As the United Nations gathers its forces to meet and defeat the Communist challenge in Korea, support from Canada will grow in strength External Affairs Minister Pearson said Monday.

He told the Canadian Club the Korean war "might take longer than originally expected."

Mr. Pearson said the communists were trying to represent anything the U.N. was doing in Korea as assistance to American "Imperialists" against an Asian people struggling to be free.

This "big lie" was being drummed into the minds of the Asian millions day and night and "may have some success."

The fact, however, that the basis of Canada's policy in Korea was that assistance was not being given to the United States but rather that Canada was discharging her obligation as a member of U.N. in the defence of peace.

Mr. Pearson said western democracies must show that they are not on the side of reaction and opposed to progress. Economic and technical assistance must be given Asian countries.

Mr. Pearson said there would be a meeting of Atlantic pact deputies soon to determine extent of rearmament and what countries would produce for the program.

He said also it was his understanding a London meeting would be called shortly as a follow-up to conferences at Colombo, Ceylon which heq and Fisheries Minister Mayhew attended, and at Sydney, Australia, where the fisheries minister was Canada's main representative, on economic aid for Asian countries.

It was expected the meeting would determine extent of aid Far East countries would require where the threat of communism gaining strongholds was great.

10 Agriculture Ministers Meet First in 33 Years

Toronto, Aug. 22—(CP)—Canada's 10 agriculture ministers will stage their first formal get-together in 33 years here next week to thresh out some common problems. Marketing and research are expected to be the main topics.

The conference, expected to become an annual affair, will be held Aug. 28-30. It coincides with the Canadian National Exhibition so delegates can inspect agricultural displays.

The first two days will see the delegates divided into three sections, ministers, deputy ministers and senior officials meeting separately. All three will meet together on the final day to pool their findings.

Delegates expected include:

Newfoundland—Resources Minister E. C. Russell, and P. J. Murray, head of the agriculture division.

Prince Edward Island—Agriculture Minister C. C. Baker, Deputy Minister W. R. Shaw and a staff member.

Nova Scotia—Agriculture Minister A. W. Mackenzie, Deputy Minister F. W. Walsh.

New Brunswick— Agriculture Minister A. C. Taylor, Deputy Minister J. K. King.

Quebec— Agriculture Minister Laurent Barre, Deputy Minister R. Trepanier.

Ontario— Agriculture Minister Thomas Kennedy, Deputy Minister C. D. Graham.

Manitoba—Agriculture and Immigration Minister F. C. Bell, Deputy Minister J. R. Bell.

Saskatchewan — Agricultural Minister I. C. Nollet, J. A. Arnot, and B. N. Arnason.

Alberta— Agriculture Minister D. A. Ure, Deputy Minister R. M. Putnam, and two staff members.

British Columbia—Agriculture Minister H. R. Bowland, Assistant Deputy Minister W. H. Robertson.

Flying Ants Force Steeplejack Down

Salisbury, England, Aug. 22 — (AP) — Thousands of flying ants forced steeplejacks down from the 404-foot spire of Salisbury Cathedral yesterday.

The steeplejacks were repairing the tip of the spire when the ants descended on the same spot. Alfred Wallbridge, crew foreman, said:

"We were outnumbered. We were stung plenty and had to retire three hours before quitting time."

AWARDED RIBBON

Venice, Italy, Aug. 22 (AP) — Sir Laurence Olivier today was awarded the Silver Ribbon for 1949-50 by the committee of the 11th Film Festival here as "director of the best foreign film of the season." The award was made for Olivier's "Henry V."

Read and Latta Play 11-11 Tie To Prolong Series

Read and Latta apparently like to play baseball, especially when they play one another. Last evening at Read, Latta came through with a four-run rally in the top of the sixth and final inning to tie the game at 11-11 and prolong their best-of-five series to its seventh game. Latta leads the series two games to one.

It was a donnybrook for three innings with Latta throwing in three pitchers in an attempt to halt the determined march of Read's regular's. Kerr was blasted out in the bottom of the second as Read connected for six runs to keep the lone counter in the first inning company. Glass lasted until the bottom of the third as Read scored three more runs. Marsh went out in the fifth and Hall mopped up.

For Read, Pat Shannon was clubbed out in the top of the sixth and Harvey Shannon came in to relieve. Joe Marsh singled in two runs and Mace Rigby homered to plate Marsh in Latta's tying sally in the sixth.

With two Latta batters out and a man on second in the top of the seventh, Read called the game because of darkness.

Demented Couple Located Near Quebec Border

Montreal, Aug. 22 — (CP) — Police said Monday a demented couple sought in connection with the disappearance of Rene Montreuil, 7, had been located in Chute a Blondeau, near Hawkesbury, Ont., on the Quebec-Ontario border.

The finding of the couple was the first break in the three-week search for the boy missing from his west-end Point St. Charles district home since Aug. 1.

The couple, police said, had been sought because of the possibility they might have taken the youngster with them to use him as a front for begging.

Police said they are awaiting word from Hawkesbury police on whether the boy is there.

Meanwhile police are still searching the St. Lawrence River near a boating club where Montreuil was last seen.

CAMPBELLFORD

Child Did Not Swallow Pin

Campbellford — Young Paul Hazell, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ronald Hazell of Campbellford, was taken to Campbellford Hospital on Sunday morning, for observation through the fluroscope, to track down a hair pin the boy was thought to have swallowed.

The fluroscope however, revealed there was no pin, and he was allowed to go home.

A FEW TIPS

better chance of getting through the enemy than single soldiers.

5. Never forget this is a battle for the highest ridges — and it cannot be fought from jeeps on the road.

The man who sits on the highest ground is looking down the other man's throat. So that's where you want to be — on the high ground. It's tough to get up there — but always remember you are a sitting duck if the enemy is looking down on you.

6. When you drive the enemy out of a position — search for hidden weapons.

7. Keep your guards out at all times even in areas five and ten miles behind the fighting line. They're playing for keeps in this one and you can't drop your guard at any time.

8. Don't let "refugees" come filtering through your lines and get behind you.

9. Don't come over here cockily expecting to kick the enemy in the teeth before Christmas.

This is going to be a hard campaign that may well last into next spring. That means you could be fighting through snow and ice in the mountains in a country that has bitterly cold winter.

SPEED RESEARCH

London, Aug. 22 — (AP)—The government last night announced the creation of a chief executive for guided weapons to speed research, development and production of such arms. The appointment went to Air Chief Marshal Sir W. Alec Coryton. Coryton, controller for air supplies for the supply ministry, taught King George VI to fly in 1919.

Say Canada Ready To Supply Arms To West Powers

London, Aug. 22 — (CP) — L. Dana Wilgress, Canadian High Commissioner in London, arrived here today from Canada with a reported offer of canadian arms for Europe.

Reports in British newspapers suggest Wilgress brought with him blueprints of a plan whereby some Canadian equipment would, if acceptable, be transferred to European countries.

Wilgress represents Canada at meetings of the North Atlantic Treaty Deputies, which were suspended two weeks ago to enable the deputies to report to their respective countries on plans for speeding armament.

These talks resume tomorrow, when Wilgress is expected to submit the Canadian proposal.

Ottawa, Ontario — (CP) — Canada has devised a plan whereby it will offer to supply North Atlantic powers in Europe with "free" armament. Informed quarters disclosed today.

The plan will have to be given parliamentary approval before it can be brought into operation, but it is expected to be discussed tomorrow at a meeting in London of the North Atlantic Council of Deputies.

The plan was taken overseas by L. Dana Wilgress, Canada's high commissioner to the United Kingdom and council representative.

If acceptable, it will mean that Canada will transfer to Western Europe countries some of her guns, aircraft and other military equipment without receiving any payment in return.

However, the plan also envisages that in return for her transfer of armaments, Canada would eventually receive some equipment from other Atlantic Powers—presumably the United States—that she herself would require to fulfill Atlantic Treaty obligations.

It appeared likely that if the plan was accepted eventually Canada might obtain some American tanks without payment.

PROBLEM SOLVED

Simcoe, Aug. 22—(CP)—The accommodation problem for transient tobacco workers here has been solved. The Norfolk Citizens' Committee on transient tobacco workers has converted a building at the county fair grounds into a hostel and placement office for the workers. To date 634 men have been sent to work from the hostel.

DIES AT 108 YEARS

Detroit, Aug. 22 — (AP) — Mrs. Patricia Vitale; Sicilian immigrant who was said to be 108 years old, died yesterday. Her age was vouched for at the Little Sisters of the Poor Charity Home. Survivors include 35 great grandchildren and three great, great grandchildren.

Strikers Reject Renewed White House Appeal

Washington, Aug. 22 (AP) — More railway workers went on strike in the United States today, ignoring a White House plea to stay on the job.

The new strikes are in Pittsburgh and Chicago.

Like those called yesterday in Louisville, Cleveland and Minneapolis-St. Paul, these are five-day token strikes. The idea is to call attention to a wage-hour dispute that has dragged on for 17 months.

All the strikes are comparatively small, but they are in such key spots union leaders have estimated they will put 50,000 men out of work.

An attempt to settle the dispute last night dragged on until after midnight—but got nowhere.

Nevertheless, President Truman's top labor negotiator, John R. Steelman, said he would call the unions and railroads together again today for further talks.

There still was no indication that Truman planned to seize the roads.

Steelman said he had specifically requested the unions to call off their strikes, but that they refused.

The two striking unions ordered employees to walk out at 6 a.m. local time on two importnat short-line railways feeding big industrial plants in Chicago and Pittsburgh. They said it would make 50,000 workers idle.

That was the same hour some 124,000 non-operating employees of Canadian railroads started leaving their jobs in support of their wage-hour demands.

Called Walkout

The brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen and Order of Railway Conductors called the walkout against U.S. Steel Corporation's Railroad, the Elgin, Joliet and Eastern at Chicago, and the Pittsburgh and Lake Erie Rairoad, Pittsburgh.

Like the ones called at three terminals earlier, these were described by the unions as five-day "token" strikes to back up wage and hour demands.

The dispute, already 17 months old, centres on the two big rail union's demands for a pay increase for train service employees and a reduced work week, from 48 to 40 hours, without a pay reduction, for yard service workers.

The "token" strikes called by the Trainmen's Brotherhood and the conductors' union hit first yesterday at key rail terminals in Louisville and St. Paul and Republic Steel Corporation's switching terminal at Cleveland.

STEER FINALLY SHOT

Toronto, Aug. 22—(CP)—Golfers at suburban Lambton Golf Club were forced to interrupt their games Monday—an escaped steer charging across the greens sent golfers and caddies stampeding for the nearest shelter. Police finally trapped the animal in a swamp and shot it.

Half Surface Of Rubble-Laden Ship Examined

Lauzon, Que., Aug. 22—(CP)—The gutted hull of the St. Lawrence River cruise vessel, Quebec, will be pulled out of its dock here today and turned around by tugs so that metal-lifting hoists may remove remaining parts of its twisted superstructure to allow searchers to continue their work.

Capt. J. Alphonse Matte of the Quebec provincial police, who is in charge of the search, said half the surface of the rubble-laden ship has been examined so far

Six bodies have been removed from the charred debris on the ship which caught fire half an hour out of Tadoussac Aug 14.

The sixth body, found by searchers here Sunday, was believed to be that of one of two United States women passengers, Gertrude and Eva Taub of Tarrytown, N.Y., both of them reported missing by Canada Steamship Lines, owners of the burned ship.

Provincial police are searching for remains of a seventh probable victim. Capt. J. Alphonse Matte said there were no indications t present that the death toll would rise higher than seven.

Yesterday fragments of human bones were found during the police-supervised search. They were discovered near a section of the ship where Dr. and Mrs. Pickens Smith McCollum of Clemson, S.C., were thought to have been accommodated. Remains believed to be those of the doctor and his wife were found two days after the fire.

Three bodies found shortly after the ship burned at Tadoussac wharf, small lower St. Lawrence harbor town where the vessel made regular stops, were identified as those of Mr. and Mrs. Norman Shapiro and their boy Leonard, of the town of Mount Royal near Montreal.

The fire-wrecked cruise vessel was then ordered towed to the Davie Shipbuilding and Repairing Campany yard here for a thorough search.

FAILS TO READ 'BACKWARDS'

Hartford, Conn., Aug. 22 (AP) — A navy applicant failed the eye test yesterday but it wasn't because of faulty vision.

After being instructed to read the line of letters first from left to right, and then from right to left, he accomplished the first part of the assignment creditably.

"Now do it backwards," instructed a recruiter.

The applicant spun about so that his back was toward the eye chart. "Gee," he said, "I can't see it at all now."

HARVEST

Out in the summer morning
To the far-flung harvest fields
Toilers are daily turning
Where earth her bounty yields;
O'er the uncounted acres
Their harvest songs arise
All grateful to the Giver
Who rules the earth and skies

O'er sunny slopes and valleys
The gold of harvest gleams,
Wealth for the world of nations
Suffering from war's dread dreams,
Ours is a noble heritage
Gold of the gleaming sod
Where he who toils is honored
A worker with his God.

Whom Do You Dress to Please

This filmy gown, worn by Movie Star Deborah Kerr, would please the most discriminating male. It is made of sheer silk organdy, has velvet sash.

By HELEN FOLLETT

DO women dress and beautify themselves to please the men? The answer is 'no'. They make themselves attractive to please themselves and to meet the approval of the One Man.

Men have different ideals of pulchritude. One may adore the frail, wispy, pale ducky because she makes him feel big, strong and manly, capable of looking after her. Another may prefer the out-door type who joins him in summer sports, doesn't care much how she looks as long as she can be active and have fun. A few freckles mean nothing in her young life.

Some men insist that a companion for the party must be interesting, give him a stimulating mental companionship; other guys just as soon drag along dumbbells if they're cute.

It is a safe guess that what a woman wants is the approval of that ever-present companion, the woman in the looking glass. If she appears radiant that is all that matters. So she pets her precious complexion, brushes her ambrosial locks, endeavors to retain her youthful lines.

If she is smart she does not try to be a copy cat. She can admire a movie star whose beauty is renowned, but she won't try to look like her. It is her business to know herself, her good points, those that are not so good, and what to do about them.

If she has beautiful eyes she gives accent to them by clever use of lid shadows, by touching the lashes with mascara. If her hair does not precisely qualify she hies herself to a coiffure stylist to see if something cannot be done about it.

Wellington on the Lake

SUMMER

Summer Finds them coming back
To the home of long ago.
Following the well-worn track
To the friends they used to know,

Trying vainly to recall
Youthful joys they held so dear
And when evening shadows fall
Memory comes their heart to cheer.

During the summer holidays many former residents are returning to Wellington to renew friendships and to visit scenes of their youth. Mr. and Mrs. Walter Hubbs (nee Miss Nona Vandervoort) of Chatham are among those holidaying here.

Women's Institute Picnic

Wellington Park was the scene of a happy gathering on Thursday, when the W.I. held its annual picnic. There were five societies represented, namely: — Wellington, Hillier, Consecon, Bloomfield and Rednersville.

Mrs. Ida McFaul and Miss Jennie Monaghan have returned home after an enjoyable holiday in Madoc and vicinity.

Mrs. Frank Harris spent Monday evening the guest of Mrs. W. D. Bedell, the Willows, Picton.

Miss Gillespie, Picton, called on Miss Gena Benson, Monday evening.

Mrs. Stella Chisholm, Stirling, has been spending several weeks the guest of her brother, Mr. German Vandervoort and of Mrs. Libbie Burlingham, Mrs. Chisholm and Mrs. Walter Hubbs spent Friday afternoon with Mrs. W. H. Anderson and Marjorie Blakely.

Miss Mary Lumb and Miss Gladys Lumb motored to Bowmanville and spent the weekend with friends.

The members of Wellington Women's Institute held a pot luck supper in the town hall on Tuesday evening, each member bringing a guest. Following a delicious repast, the regular meeting was held with the president, Mrs. W. Jackson in the chair, and Mrs. G. C. Blakely conducting the program. Among those attending from a distance were Miss Nellie Arthur, and Miss Clara Anderson of Belleville.

Mrs. Effie Phillips has been entertaining two sisters from Pennsylvania.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Brimley and family are enjoying a holiday, motoring in the States.

Mr. and Mrs. Mack MacArthur and family of Oakville, who have been visiting Wellington friends, spent a few days in Gananoque, guests of Mr. and Mrs. Woodley.

A picnic party from Cannifton and Corbyville had a pleasant time in Wellington Park on Thursday.

Mrs. C. H. French of Whitby (nee Miss Gladys Osborne), Melville, who has been the guest of her sister, Mrs. C. B. Clapp, Hillier, was among those who enjoyed the W. I. picnic on Thursday.

Mrs. Libbie Burlingham and Miss S. E. Blakely were tea-hour guests of Miss Gena Benson on Thursday.

Miss Avda Wright is spending some time with friends in New Brunswick.

Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Mace motored to the Martimes for their annual holiday.

Mr. and Mrs. Albert Carley and Mrs. T. Thompson, Melville, spent a recent afternoon with Mrs. Harry Carley.

Enchanting Englishwoman

Ballet Instructress Explains Some Mysteries of the Art To Bewilderment of Reporter

By JACK BROWN

England, whether she knows it or not, has a wonderful ambassadress-at-large working in the United States and Canada for her. Miss Rita Emmerson, who is visiting cousins in the city and ballet studios in Detroit and Toronto, is without a doubt one of the most vivacious, lively and enchanting English women to ever leave Dear Old Blightey.

Miss Emmerson, an instructress in the art of the ballet, is "completely thrilled" by Canada, and is going to "miss a lot of things" when she returns to England Sept. 14. She has just come back to Belleville after spending a week in Detroit giving a special course of instruction to the Michigan Cecchetti Branch of the Dance Masters of America.

Ballet, this reporter confessed to Miss Emmerson, was not one of his strong points, but it didn't make any difference. The ignorance of the interviewer was overcome by a wonderful display of English humor and a marvelous flow of conversation on Miss Emmerson's part.

Member of Dancing Society

Miss Emmerson, L.I.S.T.D., (C.S.B.)—which means Licentiate and Examiner of the Imperial Society Teachers of Dancing (Cecchetti Society Branch) —arrived in Canada July 6 on the Franconia, and will go back across the ocean on the Queen Mary from New York.

Perhaps this Cecchetti angle should be cleared up first. The Cecchetti Method, it says in the little pamphlet Miss Emmerson gave the reporter, is "a rigorous system drawn up with careful regard for the laws of anatomy . . .designed to endow the human body with all those qualities essential to the dancer—balance, poise, strength, elevation, elasticity, and so forth." Understand that?

Graded System of Ballet

Purpose of the method and the society embracing it, Miss Emmerson said, is to provide a graded system of ballet whereby students of all ages are given a course of instruction in the art and are required to pass examinations from time to time. In this way, Miss Emmerson compared the method to the instruction of music, and said that part of the idea is to discourage unqualified teachers of the art.

It is getting to be an old story now that English people are invariably thrilled when they see the mounds of fruit, meat and foods of all kinds in Canadian stores. Or number of new cars—"In Detroit there are just acres of them!" Miss Emmerson, however, has persuaded the manager of a local chain store to provide her with a photograph of the shelves so that people back home will believe her when she tells them about the food in Canada.

The winsome Englishwoman, whose home and studio are in Petts Wood, Kent said it takes a long time to realize that the supplies of meats are there to be purchased without surrendering ration coupons.

Attractive to Men

Miss Emmerson, with a twinkle in her eye, said that ballet in England and the United States is slowly winning more and more men, husbands or fiances of ballet students. "Real he-men they are, too," she said.

It's rather discouraging, the ballet artist said, to see so much of the English produce market "For Export Only." All the very good cloths, and china, are shipped out of the country to build up dollar reserves, and the average Englishman never sees them.

Cecchetti? Oh yes. The only exponent in Canada of the Cecchetti method is in Toronto, and she's English, too. Miss Emmerson is going to her studio next week to spend "about a fortnight" instructing there. The basic tenet of Cecchetti, Miss Emmerson said, is that no damage is ever done to the human body in exercises.

The ballet lady would like to see a "keep fit" program set up in Canada for women. Being also an instructress in physical culture, she feels that Canadian women are sadly in need of something to keep them fitter. That, she said, has been borne out by the reception her idea has received in this country. Women she has talked to are all for it, and have urged her to start such a course.

Bad Posture Common

A veteran of 15 years in the teaching of dancing, and of many more years on the boards, Miss Emmerson says that bad posture is only one of the faults of Canadian women. All of them, she says, can be corrected by only one hour a week.

Asked where else she had been in Canada, Miss Emmerson said "Ottawa— isn't it a beautiful city? And Niagara Falls — I would have liked to have stayed there forever. And Peterborough —those Lift Locks are wonderful!"

This Cecchetti may have something, though. Miss Emmerson gave a short demonstration, and boy! Graceful? Just like a swan.

MARIO ... in his distinctive feature about Food ... What's Cooking ?

Peach combers can still find plenty of luscious yellow fleshed Elbertas on market stalls throughout the country. The extensive variety of peaches grown, over 2,000 kinds, reminds one that this fruit flourishes in all climates and soils. In Europe peaches are grown in pots on window sills and on the sides of houses, like ivy.

Fortunately a peach does not go through too much transformation after it is cooked. A raw apple hardly resembles the filling in an apple pie, but a raw yellow peach comes very close to the peach in the jar, the freezer or the pie.

Besides the peaches and cream you are now enjoying, try a molded gelatin salad made of peaches and ham. This is a pleasant main course for any light meal.

Gelatin salads are sometimes difficult to turn out from the mold onto the plate. One of the easiest ways of accomplishing this is to spread the mold with a thin film of glycerin which is tasteless, and which permits the molded salad to slide right out without the slightest fuss.

Jellied Peach and Ham Salad
4 Servings

Spread glycerin very lightly on a ring mold.

Soak 1 tablespoon unflavored gelatin in 1-4 cup cold water or cold chicken broth.

Heat 2 cups of stock or chicken broth. Use canned broth if desired. When liquid comes to a boil, remove from flame and add gelatin. Stir to dissolve. Add 2 tablespoons lemon juice or vinegar and 1-4 cup sugar. Add salt to taste.

Pour a small quantity of the liquid in the mold, just enough to cover the bottom about 1-4 inch. Place mold in refrigerator. Place balance of gelatin mixture in the refrigerator. Let it remain until it get syrupy looking and begins to show signs of jelling around the edge.

Then cut enough 1-2 inch cubes of ripe fresh peaches to make 1 cup. Cut enough cooked smoked ham or tongue into 1-2 inch cubes to make 2 cups. Chop fine 1-4 cup of green pepper.

Add peaches and meat to gelatin mixture. Stir well. Turn mixture into the gelatin mold. Place the gelatin in the refrigerator until it becomes completely jelled.

When ready to serve, hold serving plate or platter securely over mold. Turn mold and invert over serving plate.

In the centre of the ring mold place a mound of creamy cole slaw. Around the salad place wedges of fresh tomatoes on small leaves of lettuce.

3RD HILLIER

Thirty Members Hillier Institute Visit Peterborough

3rd Hillier.—The members of Hillier Institute, thirty women, went by bus to Peterborough on Thursday. Dinner was served at the Lift Locks.

The Quaker Oats plant and the Canada Packers were visited. The latter provided the Institute, as well as another visiting Institute, with an afternoon tea at five o'clock. All members of both Institutes were given samples of soap.

At 6 o'clock, the boats arrived at George St., dock. The women went through the lift locks up the river several miles, coming home by Norwood, Havelock, Campbellford, Brighton.

Mr. M. Ginnes was the driver last year, when the Institute went to Ivy Lea.

Mrs. W. D. Bedell, of Picton, and Mrs. Grover Smith, of Bloomfield, members of the Institute, were in the group.

Clinton Woodbeck Honored by Friends And Relatives

Last Friday evening a number of relatives and friends gathered at the home of Mrs. Roy Woodbeck, Belleville, R.R. 4, to honor her son Clinton, on the occasion of his birthday, and to wish him 'the best' as he would be leaving the following morning for Kingston to join the Special Brigade en route for Korea.

The evening was spent in music, singing, dancing and games, after which refreshments were served, including a birthday cake, which Clinton cut.

He was presented with a pen and pencil set as a token of remembrance and of the high esteem in which he was held. Clinton gratefully extended his appreciation for the fine gift as well as for their kind wishes on his behalf.

GOOD MANNERS

By MRS. BEECKMAN

Memo to Guests

Be graciously co-operative with everybody, every plan. Be interested in everything, be interested in every one in the family, every friend of the family you meet. Contribute your share in conversation, in general participation in social plans that are made for yop. Always be appropriately dressed, meticulously groomed, so that your hostess will be proud to introduce you to her friends. In your manner and in your words, show your appreciation of everything that is suggested to give you pleasure. Don't expect to have every minute or every hour of every day planned for you. Be alert to sense when it would be convenient for your hostess or for the household if you absented yourself, to read or to wander in the garden or to sit on the porch or terrace, or to go to your room to read or to write letters. Be a "neat and tidy" guest. Even if you are customarily a most untidy person, don't drive your hostess to despair the way you do your own family. Keep your room in perfect order, And when you leave please don't leaving anything behind which your hostess must forward to you.

Helter-skelter seating at wedding breakfast

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

At a wedding I attended recently the wedding breakfast was served at a hotel, and everything was well-planned . . . except the seating of the honor guests. No seats were reserved for the mother and stepfather of the groom. His paternal grandmother sat at his right. (When his father died, this grandmother asked him to come to live with her, and he has lived in her home ever since.) Two of the ushers, relatives of the bride, hastily offered their places to the groom's mother and her husband, and these places were graciously accepted. The maternal grandparents were allowed to find seats for themselves. Since there is no apparent ill-will between the two families, why should the groom's mother be treated like this before so many people? Could it be ignorance or jealousy? We all felt so sorry for the groom's mother . . .but she never betrayed her embarrassment, just smiled most graciously, and was most cordial to everyone. Will you please tell me just how the seating at that head-table should have been?

One of the guests

What a sorry lack of planning . . .the hosts of the wedding should have been thoroughly ashamed of such helter-skelter 'arrangements'. Apparently they left everything to chance . . gave no honor to the occasion, gave no honor to the guests of honor.

At this table, whether it was the parents' table or a combination of bride's table and parents' table, it was most important that the groom's mother who was the woman guest of honor, should have been given the seat at the right of the bride's father, the host. At the right of the bride's mother, the hostess, should have been the groom's stepfather. At the left of the bride's mother might have been either the groom's paternal grandfather (if present) or the maternal grandfather. At the left of the bride's father should have been the groom's paternal grandmother. The other close and important relatives should have been given places as important and congenial as possible. But there should have been place cards, and every seat should have been definitely assigned according to the traditional placing.

ADVICE to the LOVELORN

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

Six months a wife, she wants to leave her husband

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I have been married only six months, and am expecting a baby. My husband has a very bad temper and is abusive. He has struck me more than once. He works very hard and is nervous, and so takes everything out on me.

I still love him, but I cannot go on living with him as I am not well myself. We live in a furnished room and he works nights. I am a stranger in the city where we live, and I have no money of my own.

Please tell me where I could go to get a separation, or some other adjustment of our difficulties. I am 20 years old.

D.

Dear D.:

I think it would be very sad if you had to leave your husband after only six months of marriage and with a baby on the way. Naturally, I would never urge any girl to stay with a man who abused her physically, particularly when she was pregnant, but at the same time, perhaps there might be a chance of things working out if carefully handled.

At any rate, if I were you, I would not be in too much of a hurry to take legal steps.

I suggest that you talk this over with the doctor who is taking care of you, and ask him if he couldn't talk with your husband and help him look at his marital responsibilities in a better way. Since you say your husband works hard and consequently is very nervous, perhaps the doctor could help him so that he would feel better and not be so nervous. This in itself would no doubt make him easier to live with.

If you do this, but find that things don't improve, my next suggestion would be that you consult someone experienced in dealing with family problems. I will be glad to give you the name and address of a place where you could go to do this anytime you are to write me again and send me a stamped, addressed envelope.

Don't encourage unwanted attention

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I am puzzled over what to do about a boy I have been going out with for the past three months. I am 16, and he is about the same age. He seems to think we are going steady, but as far as I am concerned, it is just a friendship.

Lately he has been calling me up every night to make dates, but sometimes I make up an excuse so I won't have to go out with him, because I have grown tired of him. My mother says this is no way to treat him, and I know it, but I haven't got the heart to tell him right out I don't want to see him anymore. Maybe I feel that way because I am sorry for him, as he comes from a rather poor family, although they are fine people.

E. I. A.

Dear E. I. A.:

Of course no one wants to hurt other people. At the same time, there are situations in which it is kinder to hurt them a little in the beginning than to give them a false impression about your real feelings, and then later on have them find out you were acting a part. That would hurt much worse than getting a little hurt early in the game.

There isn't much else you can do, if you don't want to go out with this boy any more, than just what you are doing. Be as courteous as possible when you decline a date, but do it definitely, to avoid having him think you really mean you're sorry and would like to go out with him some other time, which, of course, keeps him calling up.

BEAUTY

Keeping the hair clean

If you fancy that you can wash your hair in five minutes you are barking up the wrong beauty tree. Casual shampooing is a menace to the glorious crown. A thorough cleaning cannot be done quickly. There are millions of silky shafts, each one reaching out for atmospheric dust. Every shaft is filmed with oil exuded by the sebaceous glands. What would be the condition of your hands if they were not washed for a fortnight? On summer days when a girl never wears a hat her unprotected head gathers plenty of dust.

If it were not for the glands in the scalp, hair would be dry and brittle, would break at the touch of the comb. If the scalp were not provided with nature's oiling system, it would be covered with dry scales that would invite infections and irritations. Without lubrication, the entire human hide would be in a state of desqumation.

Casual shampooing is a menace to the glorious crown.

Remember, when about to dunk your hirsute foliage, that you are dealing with a combination of dirt, oil and scalp debris which will resist your efforts unless they are vigorous and prolonged.

You have your choice of soap mediums or creams. Never rub a bar of soap over your head; small particles will adhere to the shafts; no amount of rinsing will remove them.

With the short cut raging, like a house afire, more home shampooing is going on. Because of this sudden passion for self-scrubbing of the feminine head, cosmetic chemists have offered more shampoo liquids than ever before. Not only that, but they have special preparations for oily locks, special formulas for dry tresses. When purchasing, take a look at the labels.

Nearly all of these lotions should be diluted one half with warm water. If a cream medium is used, not more than a tablespoonful is necessary.

A rousing shampoo is an effetcive scalp treatment. Begin with a three minute brushing, using a narrow brush with bristles set in groups. Treat a strand at a time, holding it away from the head. Slap the bristles on the scalp, send them through the hair with a rolling movement. Finish with an upward brushing at the back.

Hold your head over the bath tub, turn on the warm spray. Unless you haven't a spray and a strong current of water you had better seek professional attentions. The first spraying will remove surface dust.

Pour the soapy liquid on the crown of your head, along the nape lines and at the side. Friction vigorously so as to have a complete distribution. Rinse again, apply more soap, have a final rinsing. The soap should foam up like beaten egg white.

SHOWERED WITH ACID

Palmerston, Aug. 22—(CP)—A baby was showered with battery acid Monday when a car struck a Canadian National Railways passenger train two miles south of this Wellington county town. The baby, child of Mr. and Mrs. John Brodnagen, was burned when the car slid into a ditch and the auto battery was smashed. Three other children and the parents escaped injury.

ONE OF TWO THINGS

Niagara Falls, Ont., Aug. 22—(CP)—Ald. J A. McKinley, manager of the Canadian National Telegraphs office here, told his colleagues at a council meeting Monday he would be on picket duty in the event of a railway strike.

"Otherwise," he said, "I shall be on my annual vacation next week."

MORNING AT THE LAKE

The lake is calm on this fair August morning
The towering trees cast shadows cool and clear,
Bird voices hushed are waking with the dawning,
Wild life is stirring in the meadow near.

Across the lake an early voice is silent
A voice that used to call the cattle home.
A stranger's voice breaks through the morning quiet
And swallows skim above the rising foam.

Careless they fly as in those radiant summer
Heedless that winter comes with wind and whirling snow
Only the human heart dwells on life's fleeting changes
And sighs for summer of the long ago.

Aluminum is friendly to food!

Aluminum adds a plus to pancakes!

An "Inside Story" about Maple Syrup

1. Aluminum means a lot to your breakfast! Your griddle-cakes taste better with good maple syrup. And the best syrup is made from sap that is collected in aluminum pails.

2. Maple sap must be well-protected to preserve its delicate flavour. Farmers using aluminum pails find this "food-friendly" metal preserves colour, taste and flavour perfectly.*

3. Aluminum is used for tapping-pegs, containers and evaporators, too. The increasing use of aluminum in the industry means higher-quality syrup for you.

HINTS TO THE HOUSEWIFE
Natural minerals in food and water occasionally discolour aluminum utensils. Natural acids in foods remove the deposits. For example, the iron in spinach leaves a deposit on aluminum; the acid from tomatoes or rhubarb dissolves the deposit.

* Quebec farmers receive Federal and Provincial aid in replacing old-fashioned sap pails with aluminum pails. Modern aluminum containers fully conform to all pure-food laws.

Leading Detroit Tigers And Pursuing Yanks Open Important Series at Stadium

By JOE REICHLER
(Associated Press Sports Writer)

Detroit's pennant - hungry Tigers and New York's defending champions face one of the big moments of the season today as they clash in the opener of an all-important three-game series at Yankee Stadium.

With the pennant possibly riding on each pitch, both managers — Red Rolfe of the Tigers and Casey Stengel of the Yankees—are shooting with the best available.

Stengel nominated Allie Reynolds (10-11), his clutch pitcher, in an effort to get off in front Rolfe countered with Hal White (4-4), who shut out the Bombers the last time he faced them.

As Stengel pointed out to his players last night, this is it for the second-place Yankees. Trailing Detroit by 3½ games, the Bombers must capture two or three games to stay in the running. Already five behind in the all-important losing side, the Yankees cannot afford to lose many more. They've only 39 games left to play.

As if the Yankee meeting isn't enough, the Tigers' next stop-off station in the 11-game eastern swing is Boston, where they engage the Red Sox in another "crucial" three-game set.

"Our present goal is to get at least a split in the six games with New York and Boston," Rolfe said.

That would be all right provided the third-place Cleveland Indians don't go on a rampage in Washington and Philadelphia while the Tigers are battling the Yanks and Red Sox. The Indians trail by 4½ games. The Red Sox are 6½ games off the pace.

Picked up Half Game

Detroit picked up half a game on the rest of the field yesterday when they slugged St. Louis Browns 7-1 in the only activity in the junior circuit. Dizzy Trout, the "comeback kid," posted his seventh straight triumph with a four-hitter. Al Widmar was the loser. Vic Wertz and Hoot Evers provided more than enough for Trout to rack up his 11th victory against two defeats. Each slammed a three-run homer.

Philadelphia's furious Phillies protected their 5½ - game lead in the National League, vanquishing New York Giants 4-0. Curt Simmons, brilliant 21-year-old lefthander, pitched the shutout. He allowed only four singles, none solid. It was victory No. 16 for the $65,000 bonus baby who is destined to develop into one of the game's greatest pitchers — with Uncle Sam's permission. Simmons, already in the army, expects to get the call around Sept. 1.

Don Newcombe's slick hurling and a perfectly-executed double steal gave the Dodgers a 3-2 victory over the Pirates in Pittsburgh.

Deadlocked at 2-2, the Brooks pulled the winning play in the fifth with runners on first and third, two out and Jackie Robinson at bat. Willie Werle was on the mound when Duke Snider broke for second. Catcher Clyde McCullough whipped to second-baseman Danny Murtaugh. Jim Russell broke from third and slid in under Murtaugh's return throw.

St. Louis Cardinals wrested 3rd place from Boston, defeating the Braves 9-2 in a night game. Tommy Glaviano hit two homers to lead the Cards' attack on three pitchers.

Cincinnati and the Chicago Cubs were not scheduled.

Canadians Win At Minneapolis

Minneapolis, Aug. 22 (AP) — Several favorites already are sidelined and more are expected to follow today as the National Amateur Golf tournament wheels through the second round, leaving 64 survivors by nightfall.

Today's dawn-to-dusk activity presents 64 matches, topped by Frank Stranahan vs. Jim McHale.

Stranahan, who again is trying to grab the elusive National title after winning the British amateur this season, has never exchanged shots in competition with the veteran McHale.

McHale, Walker Cup player from Philadelphia, has never won the national.

The two Canadians competing in the meet both moved into the second round. William Mawhinney of Vancouver, Canadian amateur champion bested John Anderson of Dayton, O., 4 and 3. Jerry Kesselring of Kitchener, Ont., defeated Robert N. Babbish of Royal Oak, Mich., 4 and 3.

Sports Roundup

By HUGH FULLERTON, Jr.

New York, Aug. 22 (AP) —If it isn't too late, this corner would like to offer the suggestion that a good hunk of that amazing $975,000 take from the World Series television and radio rights be set aside to revive ailing minor-league baseball. . .the idea isn't entirely original. A long-suffering minor-league president recently offered it in slightly different form—that each major club which broadcasts establish a protection fund for minor clubs in the territory it blankets. . .as he explained, the ballyhoo on the air is strictly for the big leagues; it doesn't make fans for the Podunk Corners Gold Sox, even though the Podunk Corners players may be the big-leaguers of next season. . .Why take the dough out of this World Series windfall? . . .well, the majors can't exist without the minors, but even some of the big "farm" operators are worried about steady losses. . .and that lettering on the office door in Cincinnati doesn't say "World Series" or "Major Leagues." It says "baseball."

One-Minute Sports Page

Now that the Yankees no longare are worried about Joe DiMaggio's hitting, they're beginning to worry about his legs. . . Sammy Snead has worked out a deal with an automobile manufacturer to have a new car, filled with gas, placed at his disposal in each town where he plays a tournament. . . Sam just drives it around until the tank is empty, then moves on to the next tournament. . .

Cleaning the Cuff

An old Army-Navy rivalry is due to renewal when the Philly Eagles and Los Angeles Rams meet this fall—Glenn Davis vs. Clyde (Smackoyer) Scott — if both boys stay in the professional ranks until October. . .Pittsburgh baseball fans say if the Pirates don't stop losing they'll have to enlarge Forbes Field. . .

Stan Leonard Of Vancouver Wins Tourney

Montreal, Aug. 22 (CP)—Stan Leonard, the Vancouver golfer whose game is both admired and studied by eastern galleries and players, lived up to expectations yesterday in winning his third Canadian Professional Golfers' Association championship.

In winning the 54-hole competition with a medal score of 212 at the Montreal Summerlea course, Leonard provided his supporters with both thrills and jitters.

He fired two sub-par rounds of 69 yesterday, against Summerlea's par 70, but for a long, nightmarish stretch on the final nine his game came apart at the seams.

Bill Kerr of Montreal Beaconfield and Jules Huot of Laval-Sur-Le-Lac, struggling with renewed hope when Leonard began to crack, couldn't make the grade and had to settle for a second-place tie with 214.

Bob Gray, the big pro from Toronto Scarboro, also wavered on the final nine and finished with 215.

It was fortunate for Leonard that for more than half the distance of the final 18-hole round he amassed what appeared to be an insurmountable lead. Then disaster fell on him like a ton of bricks.

His morning 69 had three birdies and two one-over-par holes in the collection, for the first nine in the afternoon he was never over par.

Then without warning Leonard's game collapsed and he floundered through the last six holes with only one par.

Gordon Brydson of Toronto Mississauga took a 76 for his morning round, leaving him too big a gap to close. His 71 of Sunday and a fine par 70 yesterday afternoon, along with his morning 76, gave him a 215 total.

Dick Borthwick, who won the C.P.G.A. title at Seigniory Club, Que., last year, showed the effects of a recent illness but turned in a consistent 73-72-73 for the next spot with 218.

Pat Fletcher of the Saskatoon Golf and Country Club was the closest westerner behind Leonard, but still was 10 strokes away with 222.

Only Miracle Can Keep Wings From Winning

(By The Associated Press)

Only a miracle can keep Rochester from its first International League pennant in 10 years.

If the Red Wings, now 7 1-2 games in front, split their last 22 games, then runner-up Baltimore would have to take 21 of its remaining 25 contests to take the flag—a remote possibility.

Rochester edged a game closer last night as Tom Poholsky, celebrating his 21st birthday, stopped Toronto Maple Leafs 9-2.

Baltimore fell before Springfield's Cubs 7-2 Montreal, in third place, lost to last-place Buffalo 3-2 and fell 8 1-2 games off the pace. Jersey City and Syracuse split a doubleheader, the Little Giants taking the nightcap 7-6 after the Chiefs had won the opener.

YESTERDAY'S STARS

(By The Associated Press)

Batting—Vic Wertz, Tigers — Slammed his 25th home run with two on, singled and scored another run to lead the Tigers to a 7-1 triumph over St. Louis Browns.

Pitching—Curt Simmons, Phillies—Permitted only four singles as he pitched the Phillies to a 4-0 shutout over New York Giants.

TOURNAMENT OPENS

London, Aug. 22 (CP) — The Canadian Congress sandlot baseball tournament gets under way tonight with a doubleheader featuring Galt Terriers and Strathroy in one bracket and London Majors and Toronto Mayfairs in the other.

Three other clubs are entered in the tournament, a double-elimination affair. They are Windsor Nationals, Oshawa Merchants and Toronto West Yorks. The winner gets the right to play off next spring with the U.S. Congress champions.

Four Softball Specialists Win From Regular Nine

Toronto, Aug. 22 —(CP) — There were nine red faces today on the Robertson Motors Club, one of the outstanding teams of Toronto's Senior Beaches Softball League.

The Motors team went down to a 4-0 defeat Monday night before four men—"King" Eddie Feigner and his court—a touring band of softball specialists. Feigner, pitching the entire seven innings, struck out 16 of the 26 batters to face him, allowing two hits.

To top it off, Feigner struck out the side in the sixth inning while blindfolded. He also struck out a batter while pitching from second base.

Mercuries Win From Energetic Club by 9 to 7

The surprising Energetic Club, who almost upset Bakelite last week before surrendering 8-5 almost did it again last evening as they outslugged the league leading Belleville Motor Car Company 13-8 before bowing by a score of 9-7.

The Energetics would have won the game with any luck at all but they threw it away at several crucial points rendering their usual heavy hitting valueless.

MacMillan opened the scoring in the second inning by blasting a bases-empty home run to right field. The Motormen replied with two runs in their half of the second on two doubles, a stolen base and a fielder's choice. They took a three run lead in the third pushing over two more tallies on a single and two errors.

Energetics looked like they had a rally going in the sixth but they threw away their chances by being picked off with only one run over. Pitcher Middleton put them back into the ball game with a three-run homer to left field that was nullified to two runs and a single, when he failed to touch second base. A single run in the eighth, when they should have had two with decent base running, and two more in the ninth when they should have had three at least cost them the game.

Margin in Sixth

Motor Car erected their winning margin in the sixth with a single run on an error, and in the seventh with a four run outburst on four singles and two errors.

Lefty Lou Middleton worked the route for Energetics walking one, striking out seven, and giving up eight hits in his best game of the year. Bill Dell did the firing for the winners, walking five, striking out three, and being nicked for 13 hits and seven runs.

MacMillan, with a home run, double, and a single in four tries led all batters at the plate.

Eskimos Defeat Alouettes In Last Quarter

(By The Canadian Press)

Coach Annis Stukus led his Edmonton Eskimos to an 11-6 victory over the Dominion champions Montreal Alouettes in an exhibition football game at Edmonton last night.

With less than three minutes left in the game, and Alouettes threatening to overtake the weakening Eskimos, coach Stukus stepped in to kick an important three-point field goal.

The loss was the second for Lew Hayman's 1949 Grey Cup champions on their western tour. Saturday Calgary Stampeders beat them 19-7.

A touchdown by 19-year-old Don Simon converted by Stukus, a single by Moore and the last-quarter placement accounted for Edmonton's scoring. Halfback Joey Pal got the Montreal major in the final quarter and Ches McCance converted it.

A record number of golfers is slated to tee off in the Canadian open golf championship at Montreal Thursday. Sam Snead and a host of other U.S. entries have sent the number over 200, compared with last year's record of 189.

A visiting team of French tennis players scored a 2-to-1 victory over three members of Canada's Davis Cup team at Three Rivers, Que., Monday. Jean Ducos De La Haille and Robert Abdesselam won two singles matches over Brendan Macken and Henri Rochon but lost to a doubles team of Macken and Lorne Main.

The Russian are keeping close tab on 21 athletes sent to Brussels for the European athletic championship starting tomorrow.

The men and women carried passports marked "valid for Belgium only for 15 days effective the date of departure.

Virgil Trucks and Teddy Gray, ailing pitchers for Detroit Tigers, are being sent to St. Louis for examination today by Dr. Robert F. Hyland, noted bone specialist. Gray has won 10 and lost 5 Trucks 3 and 1. Both have been bothered recently by sore arms.

Major league baseball and its player pension fund will be enriched by almost $1,000,000 by the telecast and radio broadcast of the 1950 world series. Baseball commissioner A. B. (Happy) Chandler announced in Cincinnati Monday that Gillette Safety Razor Company and the Mutual Broadcasting Company have granted exclusive radio and television rights for the 1950 world series. TV will cost $800,000 and radio $175,000.

The U.S. Davis Cup teams chances of making its fourth consecutive defence against the challenging Australians appeared endangered after Jack Bromwich and Frank Sedgman defeated Gardnar Mulloy and Bill Talbert 7-5, 8-6, 3-6, 6-1 for the U.S. doubles tennis titles at Brookline, Mass., Monday.

The women's titles were won easily by Louis Brough and Mrs. Margaret Osborne 6-2, 6-2, from two other Americans, Doris Hart and Shirley Fry.

Fred (Cyclone) Taylor, hockey great and currently retired immigration department official, said in Vancouver Monday he has declined an offer to manage Ottawa Senators of the Quebec Senior Hockey League.

Taylor said his reason for declining the offer were two-fold: His love for the Pacific Coast and his interest in the Kerrisdale Arena in Vancouver.

Canadian bantamweight boxing champion Fernando Gagnon, 117 of Quebec knocked out Lew Yonker, 115, of Roanoke, Va., after 2:43 of the sixth round of a scheduled 10-rounder at Quebec last night.

The program was marked by a four round exhibition by Laurent Dauthuille of Paris, France, against Frankie Belanger of Quebec and Marcel Sauve of Montreal. He fought two rounds against each.

Vancouver Clover Leafs want to represent Canada in the world basketball championships at Buenos Aires, but not if they must both "pay and play," their manager said Monday.

The Canadian Basketball Association has given its okay for Clover Leafs to make the trip to Latin America—if they do it at their expense.

"We certainly couldn't carry the entire expenses," said manager Ralph Henderson.

Frankford In Second Round Of Playdowns

Frankford — (Special) — Don Boyle pitched and batted the Frankford Merchants into the second round of the OASA Intermediate 'B' playdowns here Friday night as the Merchants took Picton Army 7-1 in the second game of a two-in-three series.

Boyle handcuffed the visitors at the plate with a two-hitter, brining his strikeout total for the two games to 27.

Picton scored their lone run in the fourth on a single by Keddy, and two of Frankford's three errors.

The Frankford bats came to life for an eleven-hit attack. They lashed out for three runs in the third on a single by Boyle, a walk and a home run by Darke. They added single runs in the fourth and fifth, and wound it up in the eighth with Boyle clouting a home run with one on.

HORSE SENSE BRIDGE

By SAM GORDON
The Kibitzer

Though you harbor the itch to use judgment with which you believe you are amply invested, let me stoutly declare that my bridge rules are where needed judgment has been predigested.

Where there is a doubt in selecting a lead, rule usually picks out the best. On top of this, rule gives more information to your partner. This is something additional in its favor.

In many hands the correct lead is too obvious for words. Your common sense tells you the best lead from these. But the same lead would be the selection by rule. Arbitrarily so.

South is in three no-trump and it is your lead from this west hand:

♠ A Q
♥ K 6 4
♦ K 5
♣ 9 6 5 4 3 2

Suppose you did not know the lead rule. Common sense would tell you what to lead. A look at each of the suits you hold would decide. Your lead would be a club from the six card suit.

You would not lead a spade for fear of losing a trick in that suit. You would prefer to have a red card left toward either of your kings. So you would lead a club and await leads from elsewhere.

Basic rule tells you to do this, too. Just as if it had eyes. All cut and dried for you is the order of preference of leads: tops, first; longies, second choice; shorts, last choice.

You have no sequence from which to lead a top. Thus, you fall back on second choice; a long suit. From a suit of four cards or more, lead fourth best. Lead here the club four.

The fact that your club suit looks worthles is no deterrent in this case. With the help of partner you are likely to set up this suit in time for tricks. At least there is a chance.

At any rate you would not care to lead from any of your other suits. Hold them as stoppers to keep shooting clubs at declarer. Rule does this for you without mental strain.

Movie Column

By BOB THOMAS

Hollywood, Aug. 22—(AP)—It's always a pleasure to have a Humphrey Bogart picture in the works so I can hear what the old boy is sounding off about these days.

Bogart has an opinion about everything, including his employers, national affairs and the weather. This time he was proclaiming the demise of the movie gangster. And this from a guy who made a mint by starting as a hard-as-nails mobster.

"You can't do a gangster in the movies any more," the actor claimed. "People would laugh you off the screen if you tried to play one of those tough guys in pictures of 10 and 15 years ago."

N. Old Tricks

Bogart himself hasn't played a gangster since "High Sierra" in 1941. "I don't think I could go back to the old tricks—the narrowed eyes, the drawn cheeks, the tight lips," he said.

"It was that way with Eddie Robinson when he played in "Key Largo." he said he had played so many good guys that he had forgotten how to be a mug again. And when he did some of the tough things that the script called for, he broke himself up with laughter."

Bogart, who now is on the side of the law in "The Enforcer," agreed that the tough movie gangster belongs to another era.

No More

"You don't find gangsters like those guys anymore," he said. "Today they are big businessmen engaged in seemingly respectable business and paying income tax. Not many of them even get shot at."

I asked Bogie why he was never seen in the Hollywood night spots.

"Night clubs!" he snorted. "I hate 'em. . .

"Actually, it's not the night clubs I object to; it's the people."

TRIP IN 48 HOURS

Victoria B.C., Aug. 22—(CP)—A round-trip every 48 hours is planned for the R.C.A.F. Korean airlift operating from Tacoma, Wash., External Affairs Minister Pearson said Monday.

"Our boys have got a backbreaking schedule now," he said, "and this sounds almost impossible—this 48-hour plan."

It was understood the Canadian North Star aircraft carrying supplies for the Korean fight now are making the round trip in 58 hours.

AT THE DRIVE-IN THEATRE

Ida Lupino and Anson Bond, co-producers of Film Classics' "Not Wanted," received the title of the tourists' best friends while making the picture, although that was not the original purpose in mind. Many of the scenes for the semi-documentary feature dealing with the story of the unwed mother were photographed on traffic filled streets of Los Angeles, in some of the city's seamier residential sections, against the beautiful natural scenery of Hollywood's famous Griffith park and along smart 'Miracle Mile," Wilshire Boulevard's celebrated shopping district.

Producers Lupino and Bond sought the actual city settings instead of resorting to studio representations to intensify the documentary flavor of their picture.

As a result a motion picture troupe "on location" all over the city brought tourists out in droves who otherwise are denied the privilege of watching film production because of studios' taboo on visitors.

Miss Lupino and Bond found the spectators orderly and not the least bit of trouble.

"We asked them to co-operate with us by staying out of camera sight-lines and keep quiet for sound recording," Miss Lupino said. "The fans were wonderfully obliging. In turn, we hope we gave them a good show—exciting enough so that they'll come to see the finished picture. Judging by the enthusiasm expressed between scenes, we 'got' our public. Our company was dubbed 'The Tourist's Friends' and we're happy to have obliged."

Whether rain or shine, the troupe worked to secure the necessary exteriors.

"I said to keep the cameras rolling even if it poured," Miss Lupino said. "After all, in real life rain falls at unexpected moments. But we were lucky enough to get weather breaks. Only once were we thrown for a loss by unaccommodating clouds

But we kept to our shooting schedule by adroitly re-writing thescene to fit an interior. That was our answer to the inclement weather.

The dramatic chase sequence in "Not Wanted," wherein Sally Forrest, suicide on her mind, is pursued by Keefe Brasselle who loves her, is a spectacular highlight of the production, Miss Lupino explained.

"We certainly covered plenty of ground —along streets up a steep flight of stone steps above the city and along a railroad bridge—miles in fact," the actress-producer continued. "It was a workout for us all. I'm sure we all went home and got a good sound night's sleep at the end of those active days devoted to those active days devoted to these scenes. But the effects are strikingly dramatic. Here is flight presented at its most tellingly dramatic.

"And may I add about our friends, the tourists—they sprinted right along with us. Everyone had a grand time getting tired together."

Tenders Called For Part of City's Works Program

Hamilton, Aug. 22 — (CP) — Mayor Lloyd Jackson said Monday tenders will be called for part of the city's public works program despite the strike of 1,000 civic employees.

All road repairs and construction ceased 12 days ago when local 5 of the Hamilton Civic Employees Union (A. F. L.) struck for higher pay and shorter working hours. City road and sidewalk - building crews are among the strikers.

The mayor said that letting tenders to private contractors would mean fewer jobs for striking workers when they returned. He said city council wants the jobs done before frost sets in.

He said the policy of letting jobs to private contractors was not strike breaking as it had been established practice long before the strike.

The union struck 12 days ago asking a reduction from the present 44-hour week to a 40-hour week with no reduction in take-home pay. They asked a two-cent hourly increase.

The city has offered a 42-hour week beginning next January with a 40-hour week in January, 1952, and no loss in take - home pay from the reduction. Also offered were a $1 weekly increase immediately and a cost-of-living clause.

GAINS ENTRANCE

Toronto, Aug. 22—(CP)—Gertrude Eckhardt, 14, could speak only German two years ago, but through some hard boning up on her English, she has gained her high school entrance. Gertrude went to visit her grandmother in Munich, Germany in 1938, and got caught there by the war. She took all her early schooling there.

AT THE BELLE — Another great comedy characterization can be chalked up for David Wayne and funny-man Frank Fontaine in the delightful comedy "Stella," now playing for the last times at the Belle Theatre today. Victor Mature and Ann Sheridan provide the romantic side in this gay picture.

Still Long Road To Travel Says Justice Minister

Ottawa, Aug. 22 — (CP) — Canada Monday night moved a step closer to the goal of bringing to her boundaries complete constitution - amending powers, but Justice Minister Garson indicated she still has a long road to travel.

He told newspaper men that "excellent progress" was achieved during the first day's meeting of a special working committee of Federal and Provincial Attorneys - General, searching to find common ground on which the power can be transferred from the United Kingdom Parliament to Canada.

"What we are trying to achieve is a method whereby full control, over her constitution can be brought back to Canada," Mr. Garson said as he emerged from the closed conference held in the Commons railway committee room.

"We have been working unceasingly all afternoon and have made excellent progress. A very good spirit of co-operation prevails."

Though the provinces and the Dominion appeared to be in general agreement on a number of points, Mr. Garson cautioned against concluding that no major deadlock might occur.

"We are going over the British North America Act — the Canadian Constitution — section by section. So far we have found general agreement, but there are still many sections to be studied."

THREE DAYS BEHIND

Toronto, Aug. 22—(CP3)—Although last week's severe storms have left the Canadian National Exhibition's grandstand show three days behind time, first nighters may have cause to thank the storm—they may see an extra-long performance. Director Leon Leonidoff said Monday he may wait until after the first show before cutting it.

Parking Meters Net $24,000 in a Year

Halifax—(CP)—Parking meters have netted the Halifax city treasury about $24,000 since being installed almost a year ago. City hall figures they bring in about $3,000 a month.

There are 540 parking meters installed along city streets, mostly in down-town districts. The average daily take of each meter is estimated at 21 cents. The meters are in operation 10 hours daily, from 8 a.m. to 6 p.m., during six days each week, excepting holidays.

They have it figured how busy the meters are. Each meter, says the city hall statician, can take in a maximum of 50 cents daily. The first lot of 240 meters were installed along city streets last August.

More Tourists In July Than In Any Month

Toronto, Aug. 22—(CP)—More United States tourists visited Ontario in July than in any previous month on record, the Ontario Department of Travel and Publicity reported Monday night. The total was 296,761, compared with the previous high of 285,494 in July, 1949.

In the first seven months of this year 640,905 U.S. tourists have entered Ontario by motorcar 12,635 more than the same period last year which had been the previous record.

Saying that August is expected to surpass last year's record of 265,583 cars Tom C. McCall, deputy travel minister, added that the department is making a special effort to develop late summer and autumn business as a means of extending the season.

Wheel barrow race, men's — Maurice Lefort and Harry Abbott;

Wheel barrow race, ladies — Wendy Hood and Getha Joslyn;

Three legged race — Maurice Lefort and Harry Abbott; Tom Hood and Dick Bashall.

The ball game captained by Maurice Lefort's "Winders" edged Bill Scrymgeour's "Loom Fixers" by a score 11 to 9.

The women's tug-of-war was won by the single girls, while the married men gave the single men the "heave-ho".

Everyone sat down to basket lunches which climaxed a very enjoyable outing.

Little Benny's Note Book

The big barber was cutting my hair and talking to the little barber at the same time, saying, What we dont want in this country, Joe, is regimentation like they got in the dictater countries, telling the people what to read and what to think and what to buy, and even what to wear on the way to the concentration camp.

Well then we better stop hoarding before the government has to slap food rationing on us, the little barber said, and the big barber said, You said it, Joe. That's what I told my wife when she came home with a dubble armfull of sugar and coffee, anh coffee, and she admitted it was agenst her principals, but she couldn't bare the thawt of limiting herself to her daily needs while the other women are creating shortages by carting stuff off in wheel barrows, he said.

Then hwy dont the markets limit the sales of all that stuff? the little barber said, and the big one said, I talked to the manager of my market about that, and he told me it makes him sad to see his customers cleening off the shelves faster than he can pile them up, but what can he do when he knows the other markets are licking teir lips watching their sales swell?

Yeh, and meantime the packers and wholesalers are making hay out of the artificial shortages, and raising prices, the little barber said. So they're the werst of all, he said, and the big barber said, Not at all, they're a fine class of citizens.

Then why dont we all get together, Fred, buyers and sellers and everybody? the little barber said, and my barber said, We probably will, Joe.

When? the little barber said, and my barber said, Just as soon as the government fixes prices and starts rationing.

Which jut then my hair

German Girl Wants to Forget Hitler Episode

London, Aug. 21—(CP)—A 21-year-old Munich-born girl, who as a child sat on Hitler's knee and played with him in her nursery, would like to forget that episode in her life.

The girl, Rautgundis Gaffran, who 15 years ago was described by Hitler as a "perfect Aryan child," is in London to take a course in gymnastics.

Now tall, slim and blonde, Miss Gaffran says she first met Hitler when she was six. "I only remember feeling frightened the first time I saw him," she said. "His moustache looked like a big black beetle.

Hitler, she told reporters, took an interest in her family primarily because her uncle was one of his most militant supporters. He was killed during the early days of the Nazi movement. Her father, an architect, supervised the construction of Dachau and Ravensbruck concentration camps.

Miss Gaffran believes that current accounts of what occurred in these camps during and after the war have been "grossly exaggerated." But she admits that Germans knew that Hitler had lampshades made from the skin of prisoners who had died or been executed.

"Hitler," she said, offered one to my mother as a present. She refused it. There was nothing we could do about that. How could we have stopped it?

A one-time leader in the Hitler youth movement, Miss Gaffran said she wants to forget all that, and will never again belong to a political party.

Passaic River Like Bubble Bath

Garfield, N. Y., Aug. 21 (AP) — The Passaic River resembled a bubble bath last night.

Spectators who jammed nearby streets with their automobiles said the river was covered with suds for 40 yards below the Dundee Dam.

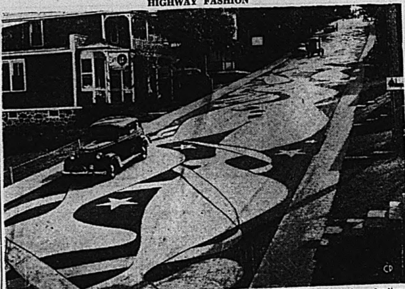
The foam rose to a height of 3 feet, with pieces breaking off and floating into the air.

Police speculated that a factory along the river had discarded a chemical that foamed as it went over the dam.

SCHACHT ON FIFTH TRIAL

Lunenburg, Germany, Aug. 22. (Reuters)—Hitler's financial wizard, Dr. Hjalmar Schacht, today told a court in his fifth denazification trial: "I believed I could direct Hitler's policy into a reasonable course but this was a political error." He said he has "only one desire—to resume my profession as a banking expert in order to care for my wife and my two daughters".

HIGHWAY FASHION



This pavement painting, one-fifth of a mile long and 30 feet wide, on the main highway leading to the town of Ste. Adele, Que., was part of colorful celebrations marking an annual French-Canadian carnival. Some 500 pounds of paint was used and the painting is expected to last several months. It was designed by Robert LaPalme, Canadian artist and newspaper cartoonist. — (CP Photo.)

Two Baptist Evangelists Held After Meeting

Val d'Or, Que., Aug. 21. (CP) —Two Baptists evangelists, Gordon Carr and Alphonse Cloutier, both of nearby La Sarre, were arrested Saturday night for holding a street revival meeting. They were arrested under a municipal by-law forbidding street meetings.

They were taken to jail and released on $50 bail Sunday pending trial.

The two were holding their meeting at the same spot where four other Baptists were arrested last week.

The four—Rev. Murray Heron, pastor of nearby Noranda Baptist church, Ernie McWilliams, Helen Hall, of Hamilton, Ont., and Howard Killock, of Noranda—pleaded innocent in court Friday but were convicted and sentenced to $40 fines and costs or two months in jail. They chose the jail sentences.

(The Canadian Press erroneously reported Friday that a Miss Eileen Veal was one of the four persons arrested.)

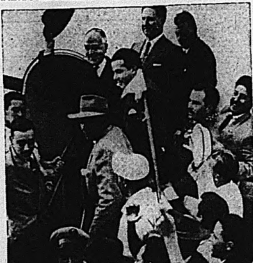
Saturday's arrests marked the fourth time this month that street-corner preachers were arrested in this northwestern Quebec mining district.

Last Aug. 7, four other Baptist evangelists chose two-month jail terms rather than pay $25 fines and costs when convicted on similar charges.

They were Rev. L. T. Heron, pastor of Val d'Or's Evangel Baptist church, and three assistants—his sister, Miss Isobel Heron, of Toronto, church deacon Malcolm Lesar, of Windsor, Ont., and deacon Malcolm Purcell, of Val d'Or.

A week earlier, five Baptist evangelists were arrested in La Carre for disturbing the peace. The charges were dropped and the town council promised them protection for further street gatherings.

BRAZIL'S EX-PRESIDENT IS BACK ON POLITICAL SCENE



Getulio Vargas (hat raised), former president of Brazil, is shown on his arrival in San Paulo where he will campaign as Labor party presidential candidate for the October 3rd elections. Vargas was ousted from his office by army revolt in 1945 after a 15-year term of office. Seen with Vargas is Sao Paulo's governor, Ademar de Barris, shown directly behind Vagas.—Central Press Canadian.

RECLUSE LEAVES $18,000

London, Ont., Aug.22—(CP))—William Robinson, semi-recluse who for months had resisted efforts of township officials to have him enter a hospital for the aged, left an estate worth more than $18,000. A neighbor found the 83-year-old Robinson dead last Friday in the tiny home he had built himself after coming to Canada from England 26 years ago.

STRIKE PROVES COSTLY

Hamilton, Aug. 22 — (CP) — Hamilton's strike of garbage workers proved costly to 39-year-old Edward Hindmarsh Monday. He was fined 50 or 21 days for dumping garbage in Dunburn Park, and another $10 or 10 days for scattering glass about the park. Hindmarsh is a picket captain with the striking garbagemen, members of Local 5 of the Civic Employees Union (A.F.L.)

FIVE NEW CASES OF POLIO

Windsor, Ont., Aug. 22—(CP) —Five new cases of poliomyelitis, admitted to isolation hospital here during the weekend have boosted Essex County's total for the summer to 27 cases. Two of the new cases are the more serious Bulbar Polio.

Two of the five cases are six-year-old girls from the Kingsville area, which has been the most seriously affected area in the county. Twelve Kingsville residents have been hit by the disease.

Dr. John Howie, Windsor Medical Officer of Health, said he beleived the disease has passed its peak in the county for the summer and that the last weekend was the worst.

Offers to Drop A- or H-Bomb Upon Kremlin

Chicago, Aug. 22 — (AP) — Lar Daly, 38-year-old Chicago business man and leader of the Christian Action Party, volunteered today to fly over Moscow and drop an Atomic or Hydrogen bomb on the Kremlin.

Daly, operator of a stool and chair factory, says he is founder of the party whose slogan is "war now with red Russia."

He failed to get on the April 11 Illinois Primary Ballot as a nominee for U.S. Senator, but is trying to get the party on the Nov. 7 election ballot.

He made his offer in a letter addressed to President Truman and made public today.

The letter said the party proposes to "save Christianity and world freedom," and it advocates use of the A-bomb and the H-bomb against "the forces of Anti-Christ." Daly added:

"As founder and leader of the Christian Action Party, I hereby volunteer to accompany the crew of the first American airplane to fly over Moscow and drop the bomb squarely in the centre of the Kremlin."

Daly said he asks only that he be allowed to release the bomb personally, so he can bear the "moral as well as the physical responsibility."

ITALIAN FREIGHTER SEIZED

Montreal, Aug. 21 (CP)—The $1,500,000 Italian freighter Providencia was seized in Montreal harbor this weekend as the result of an action taken by James Richardson and Company, Ltd., grain brokers, to recover damages of $20,000 to a shipment of oats delivered last June.

The 14,000-ton vessel will be forced to remain in the harbor here until the action is settled in civil court. Under Panamanian registry, the vessel's agents in London have been notified of the seizure.

R.R. Watchman Guarding Crossing Hit by Car

Lindsay, Aug. 22. (CP)—A few hours after his daughter was married, A. (Tony) Bovie, 57-year-old Canadian National Railways watchman, was critically injured when struck by a car at a railway crossing early Sunday.

Bovie, carrying a red lantern, was guarding a crossing while a freight train passed, a car driven by Samuel Frank Bryant, 32, of Lindsay, struck Bovie from the rear, knocking him up against the train. He suffered a fractured skull and one arm and one leg was broken.

Mrs. Thelma Adams and Mrs. Doreen Cox, both of Lindsay, passengers in the badly damaged car, were removed to the hospital along with Bovie. Mrs. Adams suffered a fractured ankle and Mrs. Cox was badly cut and bruised about the head. Bryant, who escaped with lacerations, has been charged with dangerous driving.

FREIGHTER DETAINED

Montreal, Aug. 22 —(CP) — $1,500,000 Italian freighter Providencia was seized in Montreal harbor this weekend as the result of an action taken by James Richardson and Company, Ltd., grain brokers, to recover damages of $20,000 to a shipment of oats delivered last June. The 14,000-ton vessel will be forced to remain in the harbor here until the action is settled in civil court.

PART OF LEG AMPUTATED

Cornwall, Aug. 21 — (CP) — Frank Foster, 25-year-old Canadian National Railways brakeman, had part of his left leg amputated in hospital here Sunday as a result of an accident at Alexandria Saturday. Foster slipped on the wet station platform as his train was entering Alexandria and the wheels ran over his leg. He is reported to be resting comfortably.

We are ready to give a valuable profit-making franchise to an individual or organization experienced in direct selling.
We are a well rated nationally known manufacturer of aluminum combination windows, doors, screens and porches. Our products are nationally advertised and accepted, and carry "THE GOOD HOUSEKEEPING INSTITUTE SEAL OF APPROVAL". They are bought by owners of every type of structure, including residential, commercial and institutional.
The organization we want, need not necessarily be in the building product business, but as this is a valuable connection with the leader in its field, moderate working capital is needed and the ability to establish an aggressive direct selling organization.
Our product will be on display at The Canadian National Exhibition in Toronto, Booths 8 and 9 in the Lower West Annex of the Coliseum, August 25th. through September 9th., and at London, Ontario Fair, Booth 234 in the Manufacturers' Building, September 11th., through September 16th. You may contact Mr. I. M. Zitomer personally at either of the two Exhibitions or send your inquiries to him, at 362-80 Chilver Road, Windsor, Ontario, Phone 3-2441.

The Gentle Heart

By Kay Hamilton

"What are you looking for, Jen?" Natalie stood in the doorway and watched her sister's exasperated search.

"My old brown wool sweater. I can't find it anywhere."

"Won't another one do? That thing was ready for the rag bag anyhow. Maybe you gave it away."

"No I didn't. And it wasn't so bad. Ideal for rough work, when you didn't want to think about clothes. Where could I have put it?"

"Why do you need it " Natalie yawned. The dinner had been good and the sense of warmth and repletion, coming on top of a days hard work, had made her sleepy.

"It has begun to snow and Ruthven won't be around tomorrow morning because it's his day to do inside cleaning for Mrs. Benson. I, thought I'd do some shoveling before it got too heavy.'

"Oh, leave it," her sister said. "Brent will do it when he comes. No, he won't either. He's going to town tomorrow on business."

Jenny was glad her face was turned the other way so that Natalie could not see the little spasm of pain which shot across it. Brent had said nothing to her. Brent said so little to her these days. It was Natalie who was his confidante; Natalie with whom he talked and made little jokes. Gary came to the house less and less now, and Nat and Brent went everywhere together. The thing she had dreaded was drawing close: all the time, and she was powerless to stop it. or even to avoid it when it came.

She put on a heavy dark blue sweater, really too warm for snow shoveling, and went out into the half-light of the windless evening. The world was a monotone of greys around her, with subtle variations to indicate the forms beneath the shrouding snow and a few deep shadows to give it a quality of depth. The exercise was just what she needed. When she did things like this she did not need to think. Her housework was too familiar, gave her mind too much opportunity for unhappy speculation.

A capped and mittened form came out of Faith's house and began to clear the porch steps. "Hello!" Max called. "That you Brent?"

She straightened. "It's me. Jenny!' she called back. They worked in silence after that until they met at the juncture of the two lots. "Isn't this swell?" Max demanded. "The cold, and the purity of the fresh snow, and the tingling of your blood from the work. And then, afterward, going back to a warm, lighted house, and a soft chair, and a long drink." He did not add, "And a loving wife,' but he did not need to. Jenny knew how blessed they were in their marriage.

"Those fellows who used to be snowbound on their farms in winter," Max added. 'You know, they had something. Knowing they had shelves and shelves of their own canned vegetables, and sides of bacon, and dried beans and a shed full of wood. Think how snug they must have felt. How cozy!"

Jenny smiled. 'But there was always the stock to feed, and the pump to thaw out," she reminded him.

He laughed outright. "Jenny, Jenny, you're too practical! Where's your romantic streak?"

They separated then, and Jenny went to work on the strip between their front walk and the other end of the lot. But she was tired now. The shovel seemed twice as heavy as before, and the snow clung ti it stubbornly. She was depressed, too. Was that her trouble? Was that why Brent had turned to Natalie? Was she too practical? Or, at least, was that the way she impressed people? She knew in her heart that she was prehaps the greatest romantic of them all, but because she was neither beautiful nor artistic because her truest expression was in household service for those she loved, was she to be branded as "practical'?

Her mind leaped to storybook solutions. She would buy some new clothes, and try out a new lip-stick; she would suddenly become the darling of all the unattached males in the neighborhood, and Brent would see her for the Cinderella she was — a princess in disguise. Or she would suddenly learn to scintillate, be the witty centre of any party, play her simple songs at some famous night club, and become the pet of society. Then Brent would realize what he had missed all these years, and come to her humbly asking the favor of an occasional word.

The foolish speculation amused her, lifted her dark mood somewhat. "No", Jenny said to herself 'I'm too 'practical' even to believe in such things for a moment. I know what I am and I know that I could not change."

But she knew that she would have to change in some way, and soon. Her observant eyes told her that Brent and Natalie were on the verge of love. Nat had an air lately, half subdued, half vibrant, as if she trembled before a step wihch would change her whole life. And Brent was moody so often; then suddenly boisterously gay. Not the stable, serious Brent she had known for so long. Surely it was lovt which had brought this change in him.

But beyond this point her mind stubbornly refused to go. What would happen Natalie and Brent should become engaged was something she simply could not visualize. A shutter of unreasoning fear always came down on her mind at that point.

She made herself a little pot of chocolate when she went in, and carried her cup with some toasted saltines to the dying fire in the living room. Natalie had long since succumbed to the lure of her bed. Jenny sipped the hot drink and let the comforting warmth spread through her being. When there was a tap on the window, she was startled but not afraid.

It was Jack Tyson. "May I come in?" he asked her. "I was driving by and saw your light still on, and I was tempted—No, why shouldn't I tell the truth to you?" he interrupted himself angrily. "I've been wanting to see you all day, but I only got my courage up a few minutes ago." '

Jenny said, "Would like some hot chocolate?" I've just made it." He laughed, a little wildly, she thought.

'Thanks,' he gasped, when the paroxysm had died down. "Thanks, I would. Hot chocolate she heard him murming to himself as she left the room.

He sipped it appreciatively. "Funny how many things we lose as we grow older and more sophisticated," he said, when he put down his cup. "I haven't thought of anything mild for a cold night in I don't know how many years. But hot chocolate does the trick."

He straightened a little, and the firelight flickered on his face. Jenny saw that he looked more worn than usual, more disillusioned, and wondered what had happened to him.

He stretched his long legs toward the fire. "I want to tell you the story of my life,' he said abruptly. 'I hope it won't shock you. I hope it won't bore you. But I feel you ought to know my background before I go on to what I came here for."

Jenny nodded, and Jack Tyson began to tell of his life. "I've always had more money than was good for me," he said. "'More of everything, I guess. Except love. I certainly missed out on that from the very beginning. My parents were divorced, and in those days— I'm not so young, you know—divorce wasn't the casually accepted thing it is now. It happened when I was too young to know what was going on. My father got it, but my mother had half custody of me—she was pretty and had a way with her, and the judge fell for her just as all the other men did. So I spent my childhood shuttling between the two. Neither one wanted me, but neither one would relinquish me to the other. So I was fought over without being wanted, if you can understand what I mean.

"Well, I got out from under just as soon as I could. My mother was embarking on her fourth marriage when I left college and Dad had got to the point of a new lady friend every six months. I went to town on my own, and between my youth and my upbringing, I guess you can realize I had about as moral an attitude toward life as a tomcat. I spent money like water and had what I told myself was a good time. And then I fell in love."

He was silent for so long that Jenny finally prodded him. "Did you get married?"

"What? Oh—oh. sure. And divorced, too inside of two years Because I'd fallen in love with someone else."

Jenny sat up straight. "That wasn't love," she said quietly, and he laughed. A short little bark that was incredibly bitter.

"I know that now. I didn't then," he told her. He leaned toward her earnestly. "Where had I ever seen love—real love?" he demanded. "How was I to know what it was?"

There was another long pause, then he said, "When I finally did fall in love, really in love, it was much later and with a married woman. Thats why I'm here."

Jenny said her heart sinking, "You mean Diane?"

"Yes. Oh I thought she was a beauty when I first met her, and I thought it would be fun to start her on her modeling career. But before I knew what had happened. I was head over heels. But this time it was different. This time I didn't tell her so. This time, I really thought of her instead of myself. It must be the real thing."

Jenny waited her eyes fastened upon him. The deep lines between nose and mouth were black in the shadow, and his eye sockets looked cavernous.

He said, "I saw almost right away that I would be bad for her, that her husband was the right man. And yet I couldn't stop seeing her, even though I hadn't any intention of breaking up their marriage. It was kind of self-torture, but I couldn't give it up and it helped just seeing her. Until I saw that going with me and my crowd was widening the breach between her and Fred. Ant then she began taking on some of the less lovable traits of my gang, and I really got worried. Now lately, she's been palling around with Pete Torres just for the kick of it. That's when I decided to do something."

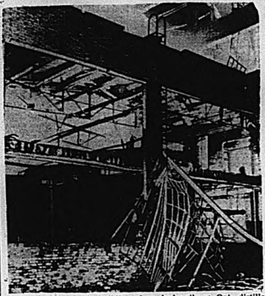
DISTILLERY MAKES HUGE BONFIRE



Part of the main building of an Amherstburg, Ont., distillery which was damaged to the extent of $1,000,000 by a devastating explosion that jarred houses four miles away is shown after firemen battled a terrific blaze for more than two hours. The explosions were blamed on spontaneous combustion. The building was used to house six huge grain vats, valued at $125,000 apiece. Firemen said all machinery in the building was a total loss. — Central Press Canadian.

HOUSE MEETS TUESDAY TO DEAL WITH STRIKE

Industrial Layoffs Follow in Wake Of Railway Strike

Small Communities in North Ontario, Vancouver Isolated

(By The Canadian Press)

Scattered industrial layoffs—with indications of more to come—have followed immediately in the wake of the railway strike.

Three thousand Nova Scotia coal miners were among the first to go. Thousands more workers were told they will be jobless temporarily if the strike continues too long.

But the man in the street—unless he wanted to take a trip or send a telegram—probably didn't notice the strike during the first day.

Supplies of most commodities were normal, or nearly so. But that obviously couldn't last if the strike did.

Some areas—small communities in Northern Ontario and Vancouver Island especially—were isolated. Some travellers ignored warnings of the impending strike and were stranded. Bus and truck companies, telephone systems and air lines were all but swamped in the rush of new business. Ottawa made emergency plans for an air lift to bring in members for a special session of parliament. On the stock exchange, some industrial issues dipped.

Skeleton Staffs

First to be laid off by the strike of the 125,000 railwaymen were nearly 75,000 other railway workers in trades not represented by the striking unions. Only skeleton staffs were kept on in some building maintainance, protective and clerical jobs.

The coal miners in Nova Scotia followed. With no cars to handle the loads from the mines, 3,000 mainland workers were laid off Tuesday. Four hundred more were expected to follow today. Most Cape Breton Island mines still operated, but in Alberta mining officials said 8,000 coal miners will be jobless in a few days.

In Lethbridge, Alta., a flour mill with 100 employees closed down Tuesday night. The Maple Leaf Milling Company mill in Port Colborne, Ont., with 300 employees, shut down Wednesday. The Robin Hood mill in Port Colborne said it could keep going for from three to four days.

Cut in Employment

With no livestock coming in by rail, stockyards in Winnipeg and Toronto were idle. The Canadian Packers, Ltd., plant in Toronto was expected to lay off about 100 men. A cut in employment in all Swift Canadian Company, Ltd., plants was predicted by company officials.

These factors raised fears of a fresh meat shortage, especially in areas such as Northern Ontario which are too far from packing houses to get their meat by truck.

General Motors Corporation in Oshawa, Ont., with 7,000 workers, faces a shutdown in a few days, spokesmen said. The Studebaker plant in Hamilton, Ont., is due to close at the end of the week. But in Windsor, Ont., no immediate layoffs were scheduled for the Chrysler and Ford automobile plants there.

At Sudbury, Ont., the International Nickel Company refinery was to lay off 2,250 men Wednesday, with more, perhaps to follow.

Mills Make Plans

Pulp and paper mills also made plans for layoffs. In heavy industries, with products not suitable for truck transportation, other shutdowns are expected.

Government officials said the strike won't mean a coal shortage this winter. But Alberta oil wells and refineries were hit hard.

Production in the Edmonton fields could drop from 68,000 barrels a day to 15,000 if the strike lasts three days, it was estimated. Western farmers wondered if they would be able to get enough fuel for harvest operations and in Timmins and Cochrane in Northern Ontario, dealers said they had only four days supply of gasoline.

Rail Briefs

Ottawa, Aug. 23 — (CP) —The trucking industry has been granted permission to bring shipments across the international border in bond during the rail strike, a revenue department official said today.

Kingston, Aug. 23—(CP)—The Kingston plant of the Aluminum Company of Canada, employing 2,000 men, will be forced to shut down if the rail strike continues more than a week, manager M. N. Hay said today. Lay-offs would be gradual as materials ran out.

Toronto, Aug. 23 — (CP) — A fleet of trucks will be sent to the Niagara peninsula to move the peach crop to cities in Ontario and Quebec as soon as word comes that the fruit is ready to be shipped the Automotive Transport Association of Ontario announced today.

The association, which set up vice the shrdlshrdlushrdshrrddill an emergency motor transport service when the Canada-wide rail strike went into effect,' said in a statement that persons offering their services in the movement of essential supplies include some striking railway employees and railway carters In addition, many persons on vacation and on night shifts have come forward to assist.

Truck have been offered by carters, business houses, newspapers a brewery and by individuals who own one or two vehicles.

Protests Tootling 'Volga Boatman'

Long Beach, Calif., Aug. 23 — (AP)— The Long Beach city council today disclosed a letter protesting the tootling by the city band—in all innocence— of "The Volga Boatman."

Wrote Mrs. Lilly S. Galloway, a music-lover of neighboring Santa Monica:

"Why, why in name of Americanism will your city band be allowed to play 'The Volga Boatman'? Let people go to Russia if they wish to hear the slave dirges."

CANADIAN SEAMEN LAND ON ISLANDS OFF SOUTH KOREA

Athabaskan's Men Occupy Village

Ottawa, Aug. 23 (CP) —Without any reported casualties, Canadian seamen from the destroyer Athabaskan have made two landings on islands off the communist-held coast of South Korea, the navy announced today.

In the first operation, a landing party from the Athabaskan supported South Korean naval personnel in the capture of an island. The landing force went ashore unopposed and occupied a village. The Athabaskan seamen later were withdrawn.

Installation Demolished

In the second operation Athabaskan seamen landed and demolished an enemy installation.

Commanded by Cmdr. R. P. Welland, of McCreary, Man., and Victoria, the Athabaskan has taken part in two other actions recently, the navy said. On both occasions the powerful Tribal Class destroyer bombarded targets on the enemy-occupied west coast of South Korea.

The Sioux, under command of Cmdr. Paul D. Taylor of Victoria also has carried out a bombardment assignment recently. The destroyer's guns blasted enemy installations on an island off the South Korean coast.

The Cayuga, commanded by Captain J. V. Brock, of Winnipeg and Victoria, senior ship of the three Canadian navy destroyers in the Korean theatre, was the first Canadian ship to see action. With a Royal Navy frigate the Cayuga penetrated an enemy-held port on the South Korean coast and destroyed or heavily damaged ships, rail terminals, and harbor installations.

Brief Statement

The defence department release told of the landings in two brief, skimpy paragraphs. A spokesman said later the facts released are all that can be made public for security reasons.

It would be in the interests of the enemy, he said, to know such facts as the size of the forces, their weapons, how long they stayed ashore and when the landings were made.

It is known however, that warships like the Athabaskan carry small arms and have men trained for such landings. Korea is the sort of an area where they would be both valuable and logical.

British troops began loading equipment and supplies aboard the aircraft carrier H.M.S. Unicorn today, but officials would not say whether the vessel was to carry the soldiers slated for Korea.

Nile Claims Annual Sacrifice Of 'Bride' in 7000-Year-Old Tradition

By ISIS RAGHEB

Cairo, Aug. 23 (AP) —Today is the wedding day of the Nile—a ceremony performed each year as the mighty 3,850-mile river approaches its summer flood stage.

An ancient Pagan sacrifice, the wedding ceremony goes back 7,000 years.

But today a modern age pays homage to the sacred river of the ancients in its own way.

Tradition has it that the priests of 5,000 B.C. offered a beautiful maiden to the river to win its blessings of abundance and fertility. The bride was chosen from the ranks of nobility. Garbed in white and amidst great ceremony she was thrown into the arms of her lover—the river.

Things are different today.

There's still a wedding-of-the-Nile ceremony. The Nile is still the life blood of an almost-rainless country. Today, however, the mud-charged, purplish stream is placated with an official paper document—a certified report that on this day the nile reached initial flood level.

The ceremony, annually attended by large crowds, is held at suburban Roda, upstream from Cairo. It is preceded by a reading of the Koran in a spacious tent spread with lavish Oriental rugs.

The wedding date changes yearly, but it follows by about two months what is known as "Leilet El Nuktah" (the night of the drop).

Tradition has it that on that night a miraculous drop from the heavens falls into the river, causing it to begin its rise.

When the Moslem Arabs conquered the Nile Kingdom in the seventh century, a fearful populace, it is said, begged the new ruler to sacrifice a virgin in the tradition of the past.

Their request followed a three-month period when the Nile failed to rise as usual and they feared the wrath of the river god.

The ruler, Amr Ibn El Aas, consulted the Khaleefeh, or Supreme religious leader.

He was advised not to follow the pagan custom, but to throw the following note in the Nile:

"From Abd Allah Omar (the Khaleefeh), Prince of the Faithful to the Nile of Egypt: If though flow of thine own accord flow not; but if it be God, the one, the mighty, who causeth thee to flow, we implore God, the Almighty, to make thee flow."

Amr did as he was told. The Nile, so the story goes, rose the following night.

'All in Leaky Ship Together' Says Governor Dewey of N.Y. Opening Ottawa Exhibition

Ottaua, Aug. 23 — (CP) Governor Thomas E. Dewey of New York today urged the free world to take a united stand now against a communist invasion of Formosa.

Mr. Dewey said recognition of China's red regime by Britain and India "may imply recognition of communist claims to Formosa," which the United States is pledged to defend against the reds.

"We should not wait until Formosa is attacked and then find out whether we are united or divided," he said.

In a bluntly - worded speech prepared for International Day ceremonies at the Central Canadian Exhibition, the New York Governor charged that Russian communism already was waging an "undeclared world war III" against free countries.

The Soviet program was "bent solely on enslavement and murder." Swift, united action by those with a "common urge to save the cause of human freedom," was needed

Canada and the United States have not recognized the Chinese communist government. President Truman has ordered the United States Seventh Fleet to protect Formosa, last stronghold of Chiang Kai-Shek's Chinese Nationalist government, from communist invasion.

Several western powers, including Britain, supporting American and U. N. action against communists in South Korea, have recognized the Chinese communist government. Their reaction to American defence of Formosa against the Chinese reds currently poses a delicate international question.

Mr. Dewey said that only fear of atomic reprisal holds the Russians back, and added:

"How long our atomic superiority will last . . . no one can know."

He predicted future outbreaks of communist aggression, and mentioned Iran, Iraq and Israel.

"We are all in this leaky ship together. We are in the most acute danger the children of freedom have ever encountered. It seems to me too obvious for discussion and that we should draw closer and closer together and do so at greatly accelerated rate.

"This ideal must be practical, down to earth and, I am sorry to say, it will be very expensive. But there is no price-tag on freedom and there must never be. ..."

Mr. Dewey was unusually bitter in his denunciation of Soviet communism.

He termed it a "coiled reptile which has been feeding off the 200,000,000 people of Russia for 30 years, developing its own strength to spring on all the world."

Force Three Months' Delay In European Army Planning

Strasbourg, France, Aug. 23—(AP)—British Labor Party and Scandinavian opposition today forced the European consultative assembly to delay for three months its planning for a unified European army.

The opposition looked like the beginning of a full-scale revolt against the assembly's committee of foreign ministers, the European council's upper house.

Duncan Sandys, a British Conservative and secretary of the assembly sub-committee on security, said his group now would present only an interim progress report on Winston Churchill's proposal of an army under a single European defence minister. Sandys, Churchill's son-in-law and author of the motion to create such an army and ministry, said the sub-committee hoped to have a definite report ready for the second half of the assembly session, tentatively set for November.

British Labor M.P.S boycotted sub-committee sessions in protest against discussion of the unified-army measure. Scandinavian delegates opposed it.

Youthful Mother Says Driver Attacked Her

Toronto, Aug. 23—(CP)—A 16-year-old mother of one child told police yesterday that she beat off a truck driver who attacked her after giving her a lift in his truck.

Four hours later, Clarence Brooks, 27, was arrested and charged with indecent assault.

The girl, whose name was not made public, told police she was hitch-hiking to Chatham when the driver picked her up. He offered to drive her to the transport depot where another truck would take her to Chatham but, instead, drove to an east end beach and assaulted her.

Menzies Back After World Tour

Sydney, Australia, Aug. 23 — (Reuters)—Prime Minister Menzies arrived home in Australia today after a world tour during which he visited Canada.

Arriving by air from New Zealand on the last leg of his trip, he said the International Bank will send someone "out to look at us on the spot" in connection with a $100,000,000 loan which it will grant to Australia.

Menzies said that when he put Australia's case to the United States he received the utmost co-operation.

"I stressed that my project was based on the urgent need of this country for capital goods and not for dollars to play with."

Adenauer Urges Armed Police In W. Germany

Bonn, Germany, Aug. 23. (AP) —Chancellor Konrad Adenauer today repeated his demands that West Germany immediately be allowed an armed police force and that the western Allies send more troops to Germany.

Adenauer amplified his demands at a press conference after Socialist Leader Kurt Schumacher rejected the proposal for a 65,000-man American-armed force during a lengthy conference yesterday.

The West-German chancellor said he wanted a police force—"Don't call it a defence force", he urged reporters — strong enough to guarantee the internal security of the Bonn Republic.

Adenauer described the force's tasks as:

1. The protection of West Germany's frontier with the Soviet occupation zone.
2. Keeping order internally.
3. Supporting the Bonn government against communist subversives.

"This is Europe's gravest hour and West Germany is in peril of being undermined by communists," Adenauer said.

He did not give any specific figure for his proposed force. Diplomatic sources in London yesterday said he sought 65,000 men, and asked that United States forces in Western Germany be increased to a total of 10 armored divisions.

Adenauer answered questions by saying the force should be big enough to match the heavily-armed "people's police" in East Germany, lately reported to number more than 80,000 men armed with artillery and tanks. Other estimates of the east zone force range to 200,000, if patrolmen and administrators are counted.

The chancellor said he is against a new German Wehrmacht.

UNIONS PLEDGE DISCONTINUANCE TOKEN WALKOUTS

Move 'Out of Respect' For President Truman

Washington, Aug. 23 (AP) — Two striking United States rail unions today promised "for the time being" to keep their token walkouts from spreading into a tie-up of country-wide proportions.

Leaders of 300,000 trainmen and conductors agreed to withdraw their threat to strike one or more major railroads when this week's five-day shutdown at three terminals and two steel-carrying railroads have run their course.

The White House kept up its determined prodding for a solution to the long wage-hour dispute between the two unions and the principal railroads in the United States.

Presidential assistant John R Steelman asked negotiations committees of the carriers and unions to be ready to resume talks at any moment.

Three Terminals Idle

The union chiefs said through a spokesman that they would forego any new walkout orders out of consideration for President Truman's peace efforts. They said the move had not been requested by Truman but was out of "respect for him." There was no indication how long the voluntary moratorium on strikes would last.

Three terminals were made idle Monday in Cleveland, Louisville and St. Paul, and two short but strategic railroads were shut down yesterday. The rail lines were the Elgin, Joliet and Eastern and the Pittsburgh and Lake Erie.

The strikes were called for only five days—a manoeuvre by the unions to avoid any strike-ending injunction but to hasten government seizure of the roads. Three times the unions have formally called upon Truman to seize the properties, saying they'll work for the government at the present wage-and-hour contract.

No Progress Made

Both sides acknowledged there had been no progress at yesterday's White House meetings.

Still in the picture was an offer made by the railroads last Saturday to grant wage increases in exchange for a three-year, no-strike agreement. The wage increase to members of the two unions in car service would amount to 23 cents an hour, to help offset the loss of pay in cutting back from 48 hours to 40 a week.

The unions want the shorter week at the same pay for work in the yards. They are asking for wage hikes for those in train service outside the yards.

Special Session Will Also Deal With Korean War

No Program of Action Drawn Up Says Prime Minister

Ottawa, Aug. 23 (CP)—Parliament has been called to meet Tuesday to act in the general rail strike, Prime Minister St. Laurent announced today.

At the same time the prime minister told reporters that the special session will deal with the Korean situation as well as the strike.

The prime minister made the announcement as he emerged at 1 p.m. EDT from another in the series of cabinet meetings which have been considering action on the general strike.

He was asked by newspaper men if the government already has drawn up the program of action on the strike to be placed before parliament.

Members Can Get in

The prime minister said the cabinet has satisfied itself that it will be practicable for the members of parliament to get to Ottawa in time for the Tuesday opening with the help of the special air lift planned by the defence and transport departments.

On the question of meeting the transportation crisis generally he said the government would co-operate to the fullest extent with local authorities calling for help in moving emergency supplies.

"As you know we have no jurisdiction over local transportation and national transportation is tied up.

"No doubt the local authorities will be doing their best to deal with the situation.

"But if any local authorities feel that we can be of any help whatever, we will co-operate to the fullest possible extent."

Mr. St. Laurent said the next cabinet meeting will be held at 10:30 a.m. EDT tomorrow.

Cupid and Strike Prolong Honeymoon

Halifax, Aug. 23. (CP)—Cupid and the railway strike have combined forces to prolong the honeymoon of Donald Dory and his bride.

Donald and bride came from Brantford two weeks ago for a Nova Scotian honeymoon. Then the railway strike cut off their retreat.

"It was a wonderful honeymoon but what a way to get stuck," grumbled Mrs. Dory today. Donald is supposed to be at work in Brantford Monday."

Report Says Princess Margaret Engaged to Earl of Dalkeith

London, Aug. 23—(AP)— The Evening Star says today Princess Margaret is engaged to the Earl of Dalkeith and that the official announcement of the betrothal "will be the next important event in the royal family."

The Star quotes "friends of the Princess" as its authority for this newest engagement report.

The 27-year-old Earl, a friend of Princess Margaret since childhood, is among the several young eligibles who have escorted her at night clubs, theatres and house parties. Lord Dalkeith, a lieutenant in the Royal Navy during the war, some day will inherit one of the largest fortunes in Britain.

Margaret and her parents, the King and Queen, are on vacation at Balmoral Castle in Scotland.

Further indications that the engagement may be in the offing, says the Star, were seen in the report that Prime Minister Attlee—a member of the privy council—is preparing to leave for a holiday motor tour of Scotland.

King's Consent Required

The newspaper points out that Margaret's engagement, according to royal tradition, must have the formal consent of the King after he has discussed it with his privy council.

Rumors already have circulated that the gay 20-year-old Princess will marry Dalkeith. But the Earl previously has spiked such reports as "foolish."

The newspaper says today that Dalkeith's mother, the Duchess of Buccleuch, was quoted by a spokesman as saying:

"I cannot say anything one way or the other."

Margaret spent last week with the Earl and his parents at Drumlanrig Castle, the family estate at Dumfreishire, Scotland.

The Sunday pictorial says the engagement would have been announced before now had it not been for the birth of a daughter to Margaret's sister, Princess Elizabeth, last week.

If the bethrothal was arranged then, an old legend comes true. The legend holds that any girl born in Glamis Castle—Margaret's birthplace and the Scottish family seat of Queen Elizabeth—will be engaged or married before she is 20. Margaret celebrated her 20th birthday last Monday.

Malik's Speech Hunted for Hint Of New Threat

Lake Success, N.Y., Aug. 23—(AP)—United Nations Security Council delegates today studied Russian Jakob A. Malik's latest speech closely for hints of a new war threat.

They weighed Malik's statement to the council yesterday that "continuation of military operations in Korea would lead not to a localization of the conflict, as the representative of the United States so diligently tries to conince us, but would inevitably lead to a broadening of the conflict with serious consequences."

"The responsibility for this would lie fully upon the government of the United States of America and their delegation in the security council," Malik declared.

The United States has demanded that U.N. members work to localize the Korean war and that the north Koreans withdraw to the 38th parallel. Russia has called for withdrawal of all foreign troops from Korea.

In a 48-minute attack, the Russian accused the United States aided by Britain, of waging an "open armed aggression against the Korean people and other Asiatic people who struggle for their independence and national sovereignty." The United States, he asserted, attempts "to cover up this aggression with the label of the flag of the United Nations."

No Action Session

It was the ninth "no action" session of the council since Malik ended the seven-month Soviet boycott and took over the group's presidency Aug. 1. His term ends Aug. 31.

Both American representatives Warren Austin and Britain's Sir Gladwyn Jebb in reply charged Malik with using Hitlerian propaganda techniques.

Austin called the Russian charge "a lie, a big lie." Jebb termed Malik's statement a "gigantic falsehood," adding that in propaganda, "the bigger the falsehood, the better the chance it has of being believed."

Austin said Malik was employing Hitler's trick of "concealing guilt by accusation." Jebb recalled that Stalin in 1939 had charged France and Britain with attacking Germany. He queried:

"If Stalin himself subscribed to this remarkable analysis of aggression in 1939, who is going to believe Soviet theories of agression in 1950?"

INJURED PASSENGER ONCE A STUDENT AT ALBERT COLLEGE

A front page story in the Ontario Intelligencer yesterday, told how the cabin of an American Airlines plane was ripped open when an engine broke away over the Colorado Rockies, Monday. One man was killed and seven were injured.

The injured included Sugar Messinger, 20, of Toronto, who suffered slight facial cuts and burns. Miss Messinger was a student at Albert College in 1945-46.

Fall in Barn Proves Fatal To Guy R. Stickle

Suffering fatal injuries when he fell from the mow to the barn floor while he was helping to thresh at his own farm, Guy E. Stickle, R. R. 3 Frankford, died in Belleville General Hospital early Wednesday.

Mr. Stickle was in the mow at his barn when in some manner he slipped and fell some distance to the barn floor striking on his face. The accident occurred late Tuesday morning and he was immediately taken to hospital where he was attended by Dr. G. H. Stobie. The injured man died about 12 hours after being admitted to hospital.

Last summer Mr. Stickle's eldest daughter was critically injured in an auto accident which occurred near the Ontario School for the Deaf at Belleville.

Members of N.E. Softball Team Given Praise

Civic Holiday was a gay day in Sydenham, Ont., north of Kingston, until disaster struck in the shape of a fire that left two families homeless and destitute. And strangely enough, it all had a tie-in with the Northern Electric softball team from Belleville.

The N. E. team was entered in the ball tournament, part of a Field Day and Water Carnival sponsored by the Sydenham Board of Trade. The team came second, but that isn't the whole story. When the houses took fire, the Belleville boys helped fight the fire, and then donated their total prize money from the tournament to start a fund for the suffering families. This started a chain reaction of donations.

Mr. G. H. Muir McDonald, in thanking the Northern Electric team for their generosity, in a letter to the Belleville plant, noted that the team, in the first place had gone to Sydenham by paying their own way. "Your ball team will always be welcome in Sydenham", Mr. McDonald said in the letter.

Make Progress With Plans For Storm Sewer

The city engineering department is progressing favorably with plans and specification for the projected Catherine Street storm sewer, it was noted today by Mayor Jack Allin.

Residents of the above area have been pressing for the construction of the sewer for some months as a means of relieving flooding conditions in the area during the spring break-up.

When plans for the sewer are completed Mayor Allin will call a meeting of interested residents at which time plans will be shown. The meeting is expected to be called at one of the schools on the West Hill.

Before any actual work of construction on the storm sewer is commenced, the mayor warned that residents in the storm sewer area will be required to disconnect their roof drains from the sanitary sewer ready for diverting into the storm sewer when it is constructed.

First Insurance Claims Made

First of the unemployment insurance claims by non-striking railway employees have already been filed with the local employment office, it was stated here today by H. H. Reed, local office manager.

To date, however, the number of non-striking railroaders applying for insurance benefits has not been large, but if the strike continues more are expected.

Thus far no local industries are known to have curtailed production because of the railway strike and Mr. Reed stated there have been no lay-offs as far as he was concerned.

Swift Canadian Company have been inconvenienced to the extent that iced-poultry shipments which normally went by express have been held up. This, however, will go by transport when sufficient load has been readied. Egg shipments which normally went by railway will also be made by transport, it was stated.

Production of iced-poultry at Swift's has been reduced and there was a temporary lay-off in this department, but it was stated this was not entirely due to the railway strike.

V.L.A. Settlement Officers Given On-the-Job Training On Sidney Township Farm

Using 113-acre Sidney township farm of R.C.A.M.C. veteran Russell Hennessy, to provide facts and figures, Veterans' Land Act settlement officers of the Kingston region were given on-the-job training in planning farm operations today. Directing the day's program was H R. Hare, Ottawa, widely-known farm economist now VLA superintendent of farm development for Canada.

The VLA Kingston region includes the counties of Leeds, Frontenac, Lennox and Addington, Prince Edward, Hastings, Northumberland, Peterborough Victoria and Haliburton. Approximately 700 veterans are settled on farms in that area.

Attending the practical training demonstration as students were regional supervisior A. R. Macnab, Peter Fairburn, regional counsellor, and the ten settlement officers serving the veterans settled in the region. Assisting Mr. Hare were W. B. George, soil specialist, Kemptville Agricultural School, A. O. Dalrymple, Stirling agricultural representative and his assistant, Frank Stone.

Practical Lesson

Mr. Hare described the day's program as a practical lesson in balanced farming, which he defined as "the most efficient use of all the resources available on the farm, welded into a completely planned farm program which will provide security and a worthwhile living for the farmer and his family."

Balanced farming is the name given the farm part of the broad VLA development program called "Operation Good Earth," which was launched last winter and includes, as well as the farmer-veterans, the small holders and commercial fishermen.

The day began with the party assembling at the Hennessy farm where they spent the morning reviewing its resources—soil, livestock, buildings and equipment. This review included a complete tour of the farm under the direc-conditions, existing crops and conditions, existing crops and general farm layout.

In the afternoon the observations of the morning were recapitulated and the party divided into two groups, each group to decide upon the most satisfactory long-term objective for the farm and to prepare a plan of operations for 1951.

Suggested Plans

These suggested plans were presented in the evening by the group chairmen, Wm. Latour, Belleville, and W. H. Stevens, Inverary, and were followed by some lively discussion. The remainder of the evening was then turned over to Mr. Hare, who prepared, on the blackboard in the Church Street Armouries, a farm budget, or balance sheet, showing the estimated expenditures and receipts for next year—and the margin between, which represents the farm family income.

"By working out such a plan of operations a year in advance, it is possible to see if the proposed program is likely to provide a satisfactory income," Mr. Hare said. "Then, if it isn't satisfactory, alternative plans can be made to increase the revenue. After the year is over it's too late to do anything but tighten the belt."

This practical training in balanced farming started in Newmarket, Ont., last June. Mr. Hare then went to the Maritimes, working back through Quebec and then to Western Ontario. Eventually, he plans to hold similar training-on-the-job courses in all of the 40 VLA regions in Canada. This was the twelfth such day.

50,000 Veterans Settled

Asked why the VLA Administration was introducing an agricultural development program, Mr. Hare pointed out that about 50,000 veterans, with their families, are now settled on the land involving a public investment of around one third of a billion dollars, most of which must be returned to the treasury during the next 25 years.

"We believe that time spent in helping these veterans achieve success will safeguard that public investment, and return the funds loaned more easily, than the same time spent enforcing a hard-hearted, pay-up-or-else policy."

When they have been trained the settlement officers are expected to spread the gospel of balanced farming to their farmer-veterans, helping them to develop completely planned programs and assisting them to solve the problems that arise in putting those plans into effect.

Mr. Hare paid tribute to the visiting officials of the Provincial Department of Agriculture and their contemporaries who, he said, have given so much help in the past, and on whom the administration expects to lean heavily in the future.

Distinguished Visitors

"Our settlement officers might be described as the link between the agricultural specialists, who have very little time for individual service, and the dirt-farmers," he said.

Distinguished visitors at the demonstration included Elmer Sandercock, Belleville, M.L.A. for West Hastings, Ben Bleecker, reeve of Sidney township, Mr. and Mrs. S. W. Spafford, Mr. Fred Moon and Mr. Wm. Bailey, neighbors of Mr. and Mrs. Hennessy who took an active interest in the day's program.

Both Mr. Sandercock and Mr. Bleecker spoke briefly to the group.

The former superintendent of Hastings County home farm said he was pleased to see the interest on the part of the VLA officials in the success of the veterans who are being settled on the land. Mr. Bleecker expressed the hope that the program, now being launched for farmer-veterans, would become available, in time, to all farmers.

Settlement officers present included besides Mr. Latour and Mr. Stevens, R. H. Wilson, Campbellford, G. E. R. Milne, Smith Falls, J. A. Wickett, Lindsay, C. A. Hoard, Hoard's Station, H. M. Reid, Picton, L. Crossman, Napanee, A. R. Wilson, Peterborough, V. R. Johnston, Kingston, and H. U. Western and R. Gomme, VLA district office, Toronto.

Confer High Honor On Members of Local Preceptory

F. Davey Diamond, Past Supreme Grand Master of the Sovereign Great Priory of Canada, Knights Templar, which this year held their 67 annual assembly in the city of Sudbury has just returned home attending this assembly of that body.

He left Sudbury on the last train out of Sudbury just before the dead line was set for the beginning of the railway strike.

Honors were conferred on several members of King Baldwin Preceptory which meets in this city.

Kt. Em. Kt. H. J. Andrews was the unanimous choice of the Kingston-Ottawa district for the Provincial Grand Priors office of this district, which takes in the preceptories at Kingston, Belleville Brockville, Ottawa, Cornwall and Picton.

Rt. Em. Kt. O. G. Alyea, who has been a member of the Grand Council for a number of years, was re-elected to that body, as well as being appointed on several committees.

Most Em. Kt. F. Davey Diamond, Past Grand Master received a nomination from the College of Honors recommending him to the Supreme Master to receive from the hands of the Supreme Grand Master the rank of a Grand Commander of the Cross of the Temple, be conferred upon Past Grand Master Davey Diamond for services rendered to the order by Most Eminent Knight Diamond.

The Grand Master in conferring this honor on Most Em. Kt. Davey Diamond told the members present that it was a most pleasant duty to confer the rank of a Grand Commander of the Cross of the Temple upon Most Em. Kt. Davey Diamond, who has rendered such valuable services in advancing the interests of the Temple.

According to the regulations only six members can hold this honor at the same time, and now with M. E. Kt. Diamond having received the honor the "Quota" is filled, and so no other member can be given this honor until some member who had been given the honor either resigns or passes away, thus causing a vacancy.

The members of King Baldwin Preceptory are very proud to know that the Grand Master was pleased to honor King Baldwin Preceptory by conferring this rank on a member of the Preceptory as it is the first time one of its members ever received such an honor.

Obituary

GUY ELLWOOD STICKLE
(8th Concession Sidney)

Guy Ellwood Stickle, of the 8th concession of Sidney, died suddenly in the Belleville General Hospital Wednesday morning, August 23, as a result of injuries sustained in a fall from a hay mow on his farm Tuesday afternoon. He was in his 53rd year.

Born in Murray township, the late Mr. Stickle moved to Frankford 17 years ago from Johnstown. He is survived by his wife the former Maude Donald; two daughters, Lois and Marion at Belleville, and three sons, William of British Columbia, and Ray and Alec at home.

Also surviving him are a niece, Jean Abrahams, and three brothers; Harry, Gordon and Floyd all of Colborne.

The deceased was a member of Frankford United Church.

The funeral notice is printed elsewhere in this issue.

HAROLD KIDD

In failing health for the past 18 months, Harold Kidd, 45 Henry Street, died at his home on Tuesday. He was 56.

Born in England, son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Henry Kidd, had lived in Belleville only for the past two months. He previously lived in Sudbury where he was associated with the Fowler Hardware Company of that city. He was a member of Holloway St. United Church.

He is survived by his wife, the former Susannah Walton, six daughters and one son. There are three sisters and four brothers in England.

The funeral announcement appears elsewhere in this edition.

Strike May Divert Ocean Liners From Halifax

Halifax, Aug. 23—(CP)—Possibility that ocean liners will be diverted from Halifax because of the railway strike was seen today.

Shipping agents said no such plans have yet been made but the possibility of diversion "might very well develop."

The first liner scheduled to arrive is the Nova Scotia, due from Liverpool Sept. 4.

The Canadian Cruiser, plying between Montreal and Halifax and the West Indies, is due here tomorrow. It was not anticipated that passengers from the Cruiser and other smaller passenger vessels would encounter serious difficulty.

There appeared to be uncertainty as to the fate of displaced persons, who under normal conditions disembark here and are taken by rail to their new homes in Canada.

One official said it was likely the flow of immigrants would be interrupted until the walkout is settled. The next ship had been scheduled to leave Europe early next month.

FOUR CALLED OFF DUTY

Halifax, Aug. 23 (CP)—Four railway me on maintenance duty were called off the job today after their striking union charged that the Canadian National Railways violated an agreement regarding the unloading of non-perishable goods.

The order affected men who had been on duty protecting perishable goods in the yards. Another worker—an elevator operator at the Canadian National Telegraphs building on midtown Barrington Street—was expected to leave his job later today.

NEW HELMET HAS "A DRAPE SHAPE"

—Central Press Canadian

The U. S. army will soon test a new plastic helmet which features a "drape shape" and an aluminum cover. Here is the plastic liner, with the paratrooper-type chin strap. The outer aluminum shell will cover this. The new model is said to be both stronger and lighter than the present steel model. So far, 2,500 helmets have been ordered by the department of defence in Washington for testing purposes.

Picketing of Railway Property By Striking Employees Will Be on Round-Clock Basis

Picketing of company properties by local railway employees started at six o'clock this morning. The men have been organized by strike officials and will operate in teams for two-hour shifts around the clock.

At a mass meeting last night, Tommy Rees was elected strike chairman for the area. He will be assisted by Tom York, assistant chairman, Ken Thompson, secretary, and Joe Jordan, assistant secretary. Point of contact for the area will be a tent erected on the CNR Athletic Association grounds this morning.

A telephone has been installed in the canteen on the grounds, and an extension will be put into the tent. The number is 1026.

Advantage of the tent, officials say, will be that all different trades and locals will be centralized, and registration of employees will be facilitated. The tent was due to arrive from Peterborough this morning and was to be erected by railroad employees.

Committee Named

The membership of the CB of RE and the international unions also elected an Entertainment Committee last night to provide amusement for members not employed in the tent or on the picket lines. Elected were J. M. Joynt, chairman, Bill Embury and Harold Foote. Also provided for was a building committee, headed by Ed. Flindall. This committee will be responsible for the maintenance and protection of the tent.

All official information regarding the strike will be released from the tent, local strike authorities said.

While the Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen and Enginemen is not directly involved in the strike, the non-operating trades received assurance last night that the running trades would support the strike locally. Arthur Cole, representing the firemen and engineers told C. B. and R. E. members: "We passed a resolution at our last meeting that we would support our brothers on the picket line and financially, and any other way you suggest we do."

Job Security Issue

"The big issue," Mr. Cole said, "is job security. This is for something more than a 40-hour week and the take-home pay." Mr. Cole told the mass meeting that he would feel honored, if he were asked, to join the picket line organized by the non-running trades.

Purpose of the mass meeting last night was to co-ordinate all factions in the strike into one large, workable body. Allan Meagher, publicity chairman for the strikers, told the men last night: "From Wednesday on we should be pretty well organized. We are receiving every co-operation from the Belleville residents we have approached."

Huge Quantity of Freight Stands Idle in C.N.R. Yards

Belleville's rail yards resemble a morgue this morning. All along the miles of track, the only sound that can be heard is the croaking of crickets and the wind rustling through the grass. Box cars and tank cars stand mute, symbols of a nation-wide rail crippling.

On Station Street, the pickets are slowly walking their beats, carrying placards telling the locals engaged in the strike. As you go by, they wave to you and smile. The sun was hot on Station St., this morning, and the pickets stopped at the end of their turns for a rest and a smoke. They are transported to their place of picket by trucks and cars provided by the area committee.

A note of incongruity is shoved into the picture by a blue, shoulder-high sign fastened to one rail. It says simply "Men at Work", and gives the lie to the actual situation.

A Dead Quiet

Throughout the yards, a few pieces of machinery stand on top of flat cars, stranded in Belleville until the rail strike comes to an end. Cars of coal sit, too, shining in the hot sun. But above all, there is the dead quiet, a disconcerting factor in a scene that is usually filled with the puffs and grunts of switch engines, the calls of switch men, the rumble of moving cars.

At the C.N.R. Athletic Association grounds, official headquarters for the Belleville strike area, knots of men are gathered. They do not seem discouraged and there is a smile on every face. They sit and watch the playground softball games, shouting encouragement to their own and neighbor's kids. This morning, a group of them were helping professionals from Peterborough erect the huge tent, which will serve as headquarters. Organization was still going on, with plans to wet down the grounds to control dust in the offing, a movement to regulate parking in the area being organized.

But again, it is the yards that tell the true story. The unaccustomed silence is deafening, and to the layman's eye, it seems that a blight has descended on the land.

The men, however, are quiet, wondering how long the strike will cripple a nation and how long they will be on the picket line. They talk amongst themselves, guessing the length of time things will remain so silent. Their eyes seem to say that there is a job to be done, and they will do it.

TORONTO STOCKS

Toronto, Aug. 23 — (CP) — Prices slipped slightly as the session progressed on the Toronto Stock Exchange today. Leading industrial stocks continued yesterday's mild downturn following news of the rail strike. However, signs of firmness appeared in individual issues and some good gains were chalked up.

Volume for the first three hours was 498,000 shares.

Companies that are considered most vulnerable during the rail strike were again pushed downwards on the industrial board Paper stocks slumped with Abitibi leading on a loss of $1 at $34. A few agricultures and scattered steels also weakened while firmness appeared in utilities, liquors and foods. C. P. A. added 1-4 at 19 1-2 in utilities.

Base metals were irregular with International Nickel holding the spotlight. Nickel jumped 7-8 to a new high of 37 5-8 in mid-session in a sudden flurry of buying. Otherwise the group tended easier with Consolidated Smelters losing 3-8 at 110 1-4. Cobalt Lode was sold heavily for a loss of 26 cents at 78 cents.

Western oils opened higher but slipped into minus territory as the session progressed.

Golds also started firmer but lost ground in later dealings.

TORONTO LIVESTOCK

Toronto, Aug. 23 (CP)—Trade was active on the few cattle offered at the Ontario stockyards today and prices were strong. Receipts: Cattle, 150; calves, 50; hogs, 140; sheep and lambs 100. Left from yesterday were 900 cattle, mostly stockers and plain killers.

Two loads of choice weighty steers sold for $32; good steers $28-$29.50; good heifers up to $29.50; good cows $21.50-23; good heavy bulls 23-$25; choice fed yearlings 30-$32.50.

Calves were steady at $30-$32 for good choice vealers; common to medium $19-$29.

Grade A hogs were $33; sows $23 dressed.

Lambs sold for $29.50 for good ewes and wethers; few at $29. Bucks $1 discount; good light sheep $13-$15.

HOGS

Toronto, Aug. 23 (CP)—Prices for truck hogs jumped 75 cents to $32.75 at Stratford this morning. Other markets were unreported.

Reservations In City Hotels Not Affected by Strike

Belleville hotels, despite the railroad strike, are not suffering to any degree with cancellations. Room clerks in the city's leading establishments told the Ontario Intelligencer this morning that the rail strike has not affected their reservations to any extent.

Most of the regular clientele of the hotels, room clerks said, travels by car, and their reservations have not been cancelled because of that. At the Hotel Quinte the word was that although there have been a few cancellations, the effect of the railway standstill has been almost negligible.

At the New Queen's which has a "98% commercial clientele," the desk clerk said that the strike had had hardly any affect on their situation at all. Much of their business comes from travellers, and the majority of these travel by car, thus eliminating any rail troubles.

The Belvedere said that they had a few cancellations because some travellers had been called back to Toronto. Reason for this, they thought, was that while the men could still accept orders for goods, they could not guarantee delivery to customers. Rather than leave customers hanging in the balance, some companies have evidently instructed their men to come in off the road.

On the whole, however, and in contrast to other and larger centres where hotels have all but shut down because of the strike, Belleville's accommodation situation seems relatively stable.

Allies Pound Back Wedge Pushed Into Centre of Line

Tokyo, Aug. 23 (AP) —Allied forces pounded back a wedge pushed into their central Korean battle line today by the vanguard of 50,000 North Koreans massed for attack on Taegu from the north.

Troops fought over a 100-yard-wide no man's land. Planes and artillery poured deadly fire into the narrow line.

Enemy dead piled up before the counter-attacking American and South Korean troops.

A crack in the allied line would release five North Korean divisions on the Taegu supply centre 12 miles to the south.

An American regimental commander said this appeared to be the opening phase of an all-out North Korean drive on Taegu.

The reds attacked allied artillery positions with hundreds of men on the American right flank.

On all other Korean ground fronts the allies held firm.

Two Russian made Yak planes attacked the Royal Navy destroyer Comus Tuesday in the first show of North Korean planes in weeks.

The United States Fifth Air Force said the ship was not damaged. The destroyer was operating on the west side of Korea in the Yellow Sea.

A pair of Yaks—possibly the same ones—bombed and strafed South Korean naval units in the Yellow Sea Wednesday. Results were not disclosed.

The ground battle before Taegu opened at dawn. Allied infantrymen rammed their attack into advanced North Korean positions. The reds had seeped in under the cover of darkness.

TOP SWIMMING STAR

She retained three senior events — the 100-yard free style, the 200-yard breast stroke and the 150-yard backstroke. Child was adjudged the mile champion on the basis of the best times in four preliminary heats.—(CP Photo).

Rear Admiral Mainguy Visits Portsmouth, Eng.

Portsmouth, England, Aug. 23—(CP)—Rear Admiral E. R. Mainguy, who will be flag officer commanding the Canadian special service squadron during its autumn cruise in Europe, today inspected schools and establishments at this royal navy base.

During his stay he is to visit gunnery and torpedo schools at the submarine depot. He will leave for Londonderry, Northern Ireland, Sept. 13 and a week later will hoist his flag in the aircraft carrier Magnificent on taking command of the Canadian squadron.

The Magnificent, with the destroyers Micmac and Huron, will also make courtesy calls at many ports, including Gibraltar, Oslo, Copenhagen, Lisbon, Amsterdam and Antwerp.

Mainguy, flag officer commanding the Atlantic coast, arrived here Monday.

SPECIAL SESSION

Start Hasty Move

The members from all parts of Canada started a hasty move toward the capital for the emergency session to deal with the country's first major railway strike.

By air and highway, Prime Minister St. Laurent was calling in his parliamentary colleagues to share with the government the burden of coping with the emergency of a complete railway and telegraph tie-up.

The Prime Minister did not fix a date, but probably will do so today when he has an idea how quickly the most distant members can reach Ottawa. He scheduled a cabinet session for this morning.

General belief is that the emergency session will begin Monday but that is little more than a guess. What the Prime Minister will ask parliament to do is also a matter of guesswork.

In his statement yesterday on the calling of parliament, he said it was done "so that the representatives of all the people may meet together in discharging their responsibilities to meet the situation."

He said also that "whatever action the government may have to take will be intended solely to protect the vital interests of the whole Canadian people."

Meanwhile steel rusted on the transcontinental lines and their subsidiaries, and trains gathered dust where the strike, called yesterday morning at six o'clock, found them.

The only official information from the government yesterday was in the form of a tightly-worded announcement by the Prime Minister that Parliament would be called "at once."

Air Cadets Buy Gift For Member Who is Ailing

London, Aug. 23 — (CP) — Visiting Canadian Air Cadets counted up shillings and pence today to buy a gift for an ailing member of the party, Flt. Sgt. Lorne Bethune of Provost, Alta.

Bethune was up and around again, nearly recovered from an appendix operation early this month at an RAF hospital near Cambridge.

His fellow cadets decided a small gift would be in order as a consolation for having missed most of the three-week exchange visits, which included a trip to the Royal Castle at Balmoral and a three-day tour through Wales.

The cadets go home tomorrow on the same aircraft which yesterday flew here with British cadets who had made a similar swing through Canada.

An informal opinion poll among the 24 members of the Canadian party showed the majority considered the Prime Minister of Northern Ireland, Sir Basil Brooke, as the outstanding personality they met.

The visitors stayed in private homes almost everywhere. A senior officer who accompanied them said their reaction to the trip could be summed up in the words of WO. Roy Nevin of Toronto: "It was real swell."

Drop Supplies To Flood Refugees

Shillong, Assam, India, Aug. 23 (CP) —Aircraft were to drop food and medical supplies today to thousands of villagers cut off from the world by flood waters following last week's catastrophic earthquakes in Assam.

New tremors which shook the upper Assam town of Doom Domma yesterday killed 10 tea-garden workers.

In last week's massive convulsions 80 persons were known to have lost their lives. However, unofficial estimates put the figure at more than 200.

"Incalculable" damage was reported. Nearly 100,000 houses collapsed and many towns and villages in the northeast frontier area were left desolate heaps of mud and debris.

Possible sharp increases in tea prices were seen today as one result of the quake. Heavy damage is reported to Assam's vast tea plantations, which last year contributed more than two thirds of India's leaf production. In addition to crop losses, soil upheavels may make cultivation of some tea plantations impossible for years.

KILLED IN COLLAPSE OF TRENCH

Fergus, Aug. 23—(CP)— Bert Martin, 27, was killed today when a trench he was digging collapsed Another worker, Joseph Cushing, was buried to the waist in the 10-foot-deep trench and suffered internal injuries. Fergus is 10 miles north of Guelph.

New Dominion Store Nearing Completion

Under the supervision of Mr. S. R. McCrory, the new food market being built on Victoria Avenue by Dominion Stores is now in the final stages of completion. Mr. McCrory recently built Belleville's new fire station, which is also a credit to the forward march in this city's progress.

Dominion Stores new Master Market displays an unusually attractive front of cream-colored macotta with the name "Dominion" carried out in a rich maroon. Trim around the doors and windows is of stainless steel. The building measures 60' x 113' with parking area in addition.

The interior colour scheme is carried out in the same pleasing colours, the walls and ceiling being finished in pastel cream as are the shelves and fixtures. Trim again is stainless steel with accents of green. This will maintain the same restful, tidy atmosphere which has made Dominion Master Markets favorite shopping places in other cities throughout the province.

Many useful and beneficial innovations in store layout have been incorporated into this market for the convenience of the shopper and to ensure rigid control of quality. From the customer point of view, perhaps the most pleasing feature is the battery of check-out desks each equipped with the latest type electric cash register. This will tend to keep customer lines to a minimum and ensure fast, efficient service.

Electricity will play an important part in the operation of this new Dominion Master Market. Electrically controlled automatic heating and ventilation systems assure shoppers and staff of clean, comfortable atmosphere at all times. Electrically operated refrigeration units make it possible to keep rigid control of temperatures in all storage rooms as well as in the various counters and fixtures where perishables are kept.

In this new Master Market, Dominion Stores are installing specially designed shelving which brings all merchandise within easy reach of the customer. This shelving was developed by Dominion Stores' construction shops in Toronto after considerable research to find the most convenient arrangement of goods while at the same time presenting to the shopper an attractive display of quality foods.

At the meat counter, Dominion will have a staff of expert salesmen ready to give assistance in helping the shopper choose the right cut for her need. It is also pointed out that the same 100% guarantee applies to meat purchases as covers all other merchandise throughout the store.

From the standpoint of attractiveness, few sections of this Dominion Master Market will surpass the fruit and vegetable counter. Here the customer will find choice qualities, carefully selected for freshness, displayed in such a way as to provide inspiration for well balanced meals.

When the store opens, a specially trained staff of Dominion people will be on hand to give shoppers courteous attention to their needs. As many of these people as possible will be local residents.

Farmers Can Truck 90 P.C. Of Their Produce

Toronto, Aug. 23—(CP)—Agriculture Minister Kennedy of Ontario said Tuesday that farmers in the province probably can truck 90 per cent of their produce to market.

"As far as the essentials of life are concerned, we will be all right," Mr. Kennedy told reporters.

He said relaxation of vehicle permits would permit greater use of truck facilities in shipping foodstuffs during the railway strike. Practically all dairy products now are shipped by truck and about 70 per cent of the hogs and half the cattle are transported by trucks.

The only possible glut was in the peach crop and he said he was optimistic about the possibility of getting all the peaches to market.

Mr. Kennedy said, however, he believes the strike will be over in a week—"they are going to settle it some time, so it might as well be soon."

Slug Watchman, Steal Dynamite

Nobel, Ont. Aug. 22 — (CP) — Police today sought two or three men who slugged night watchman at Canadian Industries Limited plant and escaped with 20 or more sticks of dynamite.

Michael Dudas, watchman at the explosives plant was taken to hospital with concussion and undetermined head injuries suffered when slugged with an unopened box of dynamite.

The plant is about six miles north of Parry Sound on the eastern shore of Georgian Bay.

W. Germany, Japan Readmitted To Athletic Federation

Brussels, Aug. 23 (Reuters) — Western Germany and Japan today were readmitted to the International Amateur Athletics Federation.

Thirty-nine members voted for Western Germany when the organization's congress opened. Russia, Hungary, Romania, Czechoslovakia and Israel were among the 10 who voted against.

Japan's readmission was unopposed, but with some abstentions The Fiji Islands also were admitted. Trieste and the Saar were granted provisional affiliation.

PET FAWN DIES

Toronto, Aug. 23 (CP)—Bambi pet fawn of the crippled children at a hospital at nearby Thistletown, died last night. It took pneumonia while running through the woods after breaking out of its pen last week and grew steadily worse when recaptured.

The fawn was sent here from Mitchell, Ont., with an injured leg. The children took keen interest in its progress while it recovered from the injury.

Attorneys-Gen. Work on Formula For Reform

Ottawa, Aug. 23 (CP) — Attorneys-General of 10 provinces, working on a draft formula for constitutional reform, will get down to the most contentious items today.

They hope that by tonight they will have completed their report which will be the working basis for a Dominion-Provincial conference on the transfer to Canada of complete powers to amend her own constitution.

The provincial law officers have been working in private and saying little other than that they have made progress in an atmosphere of co-operation and friendliness.

When they complete this task, most of them, joined by other provincial authorities and by Defence Minister Claxton, will go into conference on civilian defence-planning.

This conference is expected to bring Premiers Walter Jones of Prince Edward Island and W. J. McNair of New Brunswick to the conference table.

RESIGNS POST

London, Aug. 23—(Reuters)—Herbert Gunn, editor of Lord Beaverbrook's Evening Standard has relinquished his appointment and resigned from the Beaverbrook group of papers.

Gunn, editor of the Evening Standard for the last six years, said in a statement last night:

"There were differences with Lord Beaverbrook over questions of policy in relation to the Evening Standard."

Fastest Train In Britain Needs Wee Engine's Aid

Edinburgh, Aug. 23 (Reuters) —Britain's fastest train literally couldn't make the grade last night.

The Capitals Limited, crack London to Edinburgh Express, was making a triumphant entry into the northern capital with 400 passengers and royalty on board. It had taken just seven hours and 40 minutes for the 400 mile run from London.

In a special car were the Queen Mother of Belgium; her daughter Princess Josephine Charlotte; and Princess Maria Pia of Italy, on their way to the Edinburgh Festival.

On the platform were the Lord Provost of Edinburgh, the Belgian consul in Edinburgh and other dignitaries.

Then it happened.

As the train started into the station, the locomotive's wheels started slipping on the greasy rails, wet from heavy rain.

The wheels kept turning, but the train stopped. The driver made a rude remark—but still no motion.

Finally, he called for help with a despairing whistle. A little shunting engine puffed up, gave a push and the Capitals Limited royalty and all, completed its journey.

INJURED AN EYELID

Toronto, Aug. 23—(CP)—Pte. John Savage 19, of Toronto, whose left eyelid was injured yesterday when a hand grenade exploded accidentally during training exercises at Meaford army camp, was reported in satisfactory condition at Sunnybrook Military Hospital today.

All Destroyers May be Taken Out of Mothballs

Ottawa, Aug 23—(CP)— Canada's navy chief, disclosing details of the fleet's expansion plans said Tuesday night it is taking all of its destroyers out of mothballs and equipping them with the "very latest anti-submarine gear."

Over a period of time that will put more than dozen of them at sea.

Rear-admiral H. T. W. Grant said the navy's preparedness program is being speeded through the acceleration of production of anti-submarine escort vesels, of minesweepers, of radar and in other ways. But the greatest need of all was for men, including young pilots for the fleet air arm.

He went on the air with Defence Minister Claxton.

New Lamp Detects Sloppy Dishwashing

Pasadena, Calif., Aug. 23 (AP) —Greasy-spoon restaurants and henpecked husbands may soon be at the mercy of a new-type lamp. The lamp—using "black light" mercury—can detect sloppy dish washing.

It was explained in an illuminating talk to lighting engineers yesterday by Alston Rodgers who helped design the lamp for use by Cleveland Health Department inspectors.

"A dish may look perfectly clean," said Rogers, "but unless dish-washers have been careful, the lamp's ultra-violet rays will show it to be dotted with particles that shine in the dark."

U. N. CAPITAL OF WORLD

The United Nations headquarters will be from now on at First Avenue and Forty-second Street, New York City. It is a happy augury for the future that there is a world capital.

The moving of the headquarters of the United World from Lake Success was no small matter. A great many men and women with their desks, other settings and equipment with the mass of records from Lake Success had to be moved. The labor involved can be understood even by anyone who has moved a small household.

This is the new capital of the world and here world issues will be dealt with and solved even though a certain group has made things not as pleasant as they might have been had there been the unity that might have been expected as a result of the formation of the United Nations Organization.

To this new capital will look the myriad of capitals of the Old and New World of individual nations and peoples. That its labors will mean the maintenance of peace and harmony of the world which has had the fondest hopes of what might have been achieved at Lake Success had there been the unity of view and harmony which were felt at the time the United Nations came into being as the world was emerging from the war which had been fought to crush aggression, is the hope of the U. N.

Now these times are times of great interest when the United States and the other nations of the organization are facing the fact of aggression in Korea and have taken up the challenge against the aggressive element. Other members of the U. N. have sent and are sending forces to line up with the Americans under the flag of great hope, the banner of the United Nations.

This body has a world capital built for the majestic purpose of the United Nations, that aim to guard liberty and bring the aggressor in Korea to defeat and to justice.

As the New York Times comments: "These are not days when one can look ahead with peace of mind. The ideals that free men hold must still be fought for and suffered for. There in prosaic offices where many routine duties have to be carried out, reside also the hopes of humanity. Those of us who can look across the city and see that skyline may take heart. The free world can see in it a symbol and a banner. The flag that flies above the East River lifts its folds elsewhere, too, and will be defended."

In it lies the world's great hope for a day when there will be an end of aggression and nations will meet in harmony and peace. The United Nations are on their way, they are on the march to that day of glory for which the heart of the world aches and yearns.

SIX SWIM ENGLISH CHANNEL

Monday was a field day for swimming the English Channel. Two of the six who swam across broke the record for the 19-mile Channel crossing. A woman made the crossing in 16 hours and 31 minutes. She was Miss Eileen Fenton, an English school teacher who won 1,000 pounds from the London Daily Mail which sponsored the event. This was her first channel attempt.

The mass race across from the coast of France was won by an Egyptian, Hassan Abd-el Rehim, who made the English coast in 10 hours and 53 minutes and he was in fine condition at the close of the contest. The other who broke the old record was Roger Le Morvan, of France, who swam across in 11 hours and three minutes.

The crossing of the Channel has been looked upon more as a test of endurance rather than an accomplishment against time. Monday's event attracted more than ordinary attention by reason of the fact that the record was broken and the number who succeeded in crossing was unprecedented.

The Channel has been looked upon as one of the most treacherous of small stretches of water to cross, because of the tides, swift currents and the icy chill.

Captain Matthew Webb on August 24-25, 1875, swam from Dover to Cape Griz Nez, France, about 19 miles in 21 hours and 45 seconds. The claim that Webb was the first to cross this body of water has been disputed, the claim having been made that an American was the first to cross.

Ten of the 24 successful channel swims have been made by women, the first by Gertrude Ederle of the United States in 1926 in 14 hours and 34 minutes which is still the record for her sex. Mrs. Corson made the passage three weeks later.

NOTHING FOR FREE

As a sort of birthday party for himself, a Chicago taxi driver offered free rides to anybody. Not a single customer accepted his offer. It simply is a commentary on our times when we regard with suspicion anything that we don't have to pay plenty for.—Windsor Star.

COUNSEL FOR A YOUNG MAN

My boy, when for a breath you pause
'Tis very sweet to hear applause.
But after all is done and said
Don't let approval turn your head
For, though 'tis dismal truth I tell,
Next time you may not do so well.
Remember this your lifetime through
Tomorrow there'll be more to do.

When words of praise you have received
Be grateful, but don't be deceived.
For there is none so good but he Must know that he could better be.
Be glad when men your work approve,
But pride can dig a rigid groove
And failure waits for all who stay with some success made yesterday.

The cheering stops. The crowd has gone,
But there's tomorrow coming on.
So keep in mind that not a word
Of all the flattery you have heard
Will easier make the task for you
Which you must rise from sleep to do.
Tomorrow you must try once more
And even harder than before.

Strength for the Day

DR. EARL L. DOUGLASS

THE STRENGTH OF DECISION

War is always a terrible thing, even when it is only a little war and far from home. Many Americans have already lost their lives in the Korean struggle, despite its small proportions. No one can foretell into what it may develop or how great our losses may become.

Yet one result of our intervention in Korea is not entirely unhappy. What a closing of gaps took place among our national leaders when the decision was made known! Political differences and personal quarrels were put aside. The usual critics of the Administration were the first to praise and support the announced policy. Newspaper editorials in every city reflected the public approval of the steps taken.

There are real lessons to be learned here. One is a reminder of a fine quality in human nature which our friends and enemies share alike, and which we too easily forget—the willingness to rise to an emergency and place the public good above our own interests.

Another lesson in the strength and determination imparted by constructive action. Continual worry and indecision destroy the strongest morale. When the decision is made and the action taken, we all feel better to be doing something definite.

THE PACKSACK

By GREGORY CLARK

In that level of our society in which the young men wear their hair long, damp and combed straight back, there is a nasty habit which the girls might take in hand.

And that is combing the said hair in public, especially in restaurants. When these young gallants come through the door of a lunch counter or restaurants, the first thing they do as they glance over the assemblage, is to reach back into the hip pocket and produce a small comb. And very tidily indeed, they proceed to set their locks in order.

Very often, as they comb, they will proceed down the aisle towards the table they have spotted. And apart from strewing damp hairs, dandruff, dust and such oddments as collect in a young man's hair while flying through space in a windy motor car, they give all the old-fashioned folk in the place a mild dose of the shudders.

Only a few years ago, the mark of the masculine young man was short, stubby hair. The only long haired men were scholars, musicians and those in delicate health In fact all musicians did not wear their hair long. Violin and saxophone players did. But horn blowers and drummers were short-haired. Bass fiddle players were almost always bald.

Long hair and pallor went together. A chap you might suspect of T.B. usually had long, dampish locks.

But the most assertive and brash of our male youth today, whether they are masculine or not being hard to say, affect these sticky hair-dos that require a comb to be flourished in public as a sort of rite.

It is probably too much to expect the girls to take any steps towards correcting this fashion amongst the boys. The girls have been doing it for years. We have got accustomed to the girls doing it. No doubt we will adapt ourselves to the shedder type amongst the boys too. But I trust you do not mind me hoping that they all go bald while still young.

SUGAR REFINING

The refining of sugar is one of Canada's oldest industries, the census of 1870 showing four establishments in this industry with 380 employees and output worth $4,000,000.

PITCHING HORSESHOES

By Billy Rose

IT'S ALL IN THE MIND

Last night at the "21" Club, I sat spielbound as the owner of an advertising agency sounded off on world conditions in general and the proposed hike in income taxes in particular. To hear him tell it, as he wept into his imported beer, the Internal Revenue Department was going to pauperize everybody and his brother, and heck, there would be no incentive for a smart fellow to work.

As this prophet of penury continued to argue it was all over but the starving, I couldn't help but think of Sidney Zollicoffer Mitchell, the fellow who had $18,000,000 and considered himself a poor man.

Back in 1929, this gent with the curious middle monicker was probably the richest man in the world—and if he wasn't, he could afford to match pennies with whoever was. Thanks to thirty enterprising years, during which he had organized Electric Bond and Share, American Power and Light, American Gas and Electric and National Power and Light, he had trunkfuls of blue-chip securities which The Wall Street Journal estimated were worth over a billion and a half.

He lived king-size—a mansion in New York, a plantation in the South, and an estate on Long Island which featured one of the most elaborate sunken gardens in the world.

Then came 1929 and Black Friday on Wall Street when sixteen million shares were tossed overboard between 10 and 3. And a couple of years later a solemn auditor walked into Mitchell's office and informed him that his billion and a half had shrunk to a measly eighteen million.

Well, to you and me eighteen million simoleons means the promised land with an ice-cream parlor on every corner, but to Sidney Z., it was like being halfway up the hill to the poorhouse. "The country is going to the bow-wows," he announced to everyone who would listen, and shortly thereafter he nailed shut the mansion on his estate and moved into the gardener's cottage. The following spring, figuring even that was too rich for his blood and bankroll, he put the estate up for sale.

In the years which followed, he lived quietly and thriftily, and though he never got down to selling apples on street corners it's a cinch he didn't buy many.

One February night six years ago, the multi-millionaire died, still convinced that every wolf in the Western Hemisphere was snarling at his door. He left the measly eighteen million intact.

All of which, I contend— the ad agency executive notwithstanding—only goes to prove that money is relative, and that man's relatives are apt to wind up with his money if he gets the notion that he's poorer than his bankbook says he is.

Or, to put it another way, as George S. Kaufman once did, "One man's Mede is another man's Persian."

FAVORS LOTTERIES

Editor,
Ontario Intelligencer.

A very interesting lottery was conducted at the closing hours of the 100-year-old Belleville fair last Friday, by which a fine automobile was won by a Montreal citizen. It is said that tickets were sold in various parts of Canada.

Many lotteries are held from time to time in various parts of the country, the government deriving no benefit from these numerous lotteries. This suggests the advisability of a government lottery for Canada and would result in bringing millions of dollars into the public treasury, not only from this country but also from the United States, Central America, South America and other countries.

The governments collect large sums of money from whiskey and beer, which sometimes make people drunk. A lottery ticket never made any person drunk. Strange to say our law does not expressly prohibit gambling as such, but it does prohibit lotteries. A lottery ticket does not desecrate the Sabbath, but sports and games might.

If I was a member of parliament, I would ask leave to submit a resolution asking the government to establish a lottery. No one has been able to prove that the purchase of a lottery ticket did one any harm. The government derives a considerable amount of money from cigarettes which have been the cause of the destructions of millions of dollars worth of property and the loss of lives. A lottery ticket never destroyed any property or caused any loss of life.

The sale of lottery tickets abroad would help restore Canada's adverse financial balance and pay the war cost.

Everyone who engages in any calling enjoys the excitement of taking chances.

OFFERS SUGGESTIONS FOR NAMING STREETS

Editor,
Ontario Intelligencer

As I travel about Belleville in the course of my business I notice names being given to new streets that have no relationship to anything or anyone in the present or past population of the city. What I often wonder is, who is responsible for the names and where do they find such unsuitable ones as Cherry Gardens and Pine Gardens.

Not only do those responsible use names peculiar to their location but also resort to duplication. We have Ridley Ave, and Ridley St., a Herchimer Ave. and a Herchimer St. Not to mention Hillcrest St. and Hillside St. which are confusing to strangers. The latest I have noticed is a John St. and a John St. The new John St. being in the Tracy subdivision which may be out of the jurisdiction of the Belleville planners but even so is confusing to people visiting Belleville and its suburbs.

My contention about street naming is that the men and women who labored energetically in the interests of the City of Belleville in past years should have their names left for posterity as a Belleville street name. Our streets on the east hill e.g. George, William, Ann, Charles, etc., commemorate a family as do Bleecker Ave, Dunbar St., Yoeman St. and Ponton St.

My suggestions for a few are— Hanna St. after the late Charles Hanna, Deacon St. after the late Wm. and F. S. Deacon, Graham St. after the late R. J. Graham. These people contributed something to Belleville that shouldn't be forgotten.

I will admit that Golfdale, Bertram Blvd, Montgomery Blvd., Bayview Height, Churchill Heights are satisfactory designations. Patriotic names to commemorate great men of our time like Churchill and Montgomery are good as they will tell future Bellevillians about the time that part of the city was developed.

In closing I would suggest that those responsible rename the streets bearing duplicate names and when designating new streets remember that hanging up a former city father's picture in the city hall is not nearly as enduring as placing his name on one of Belleville's new streets.

Mackenzie's Column:

Quick Western Rearmament Is Needed Badly

By DEWITT MACKENZIE
(Associated Press News Analyst)

The council of deputies for the 12-country Atlantic pact, meeting in London, is up against the urgency for quick Western European rearmament.

Moreover this rearmament demands the full participation of all members, some of whom have been pursuing a course of watchful waiting. There has been considerable disposition to depend on the United States for the wherewithal, both economic and military.

Now American chairman Charles M. Spafford is understood to have made fresh and pungent representations to the council in urging all-out co-operation in preparing for mutual defence against possible communist action. Everybody must pull his full weight.

One naturally has a sympathetic understanding of the feeling of the European countries which were on the firing line in the Second World War and now are struggling to restore the amenities of peacetime. They are reluctant to reassume the disabilities of wartime.

However, they must realize that there is a flaw in their reasoning. We haven't got peace. The world war has been succeeded by a cold war, hot in spots, which might precipitate a conflagration that would make the last "world war" look puny.

It will take every ounce of effort that peace seeking countries can give to prevent another global hot war.

The western democracies must match, and surpass, Soviet preparedness. That can only be achieved if every country, small and big, throws everything it can into the sacrifice.

This is particularly necessary because it will safeguard American military striking power which could be dangerously weakened by constant calls for more U.S. troops in various parts of the world. I refer particularly to the recent urgings that the United States increase its permanent military force in Europe.

That shouldn't be necessary if all the Western European countries contribute everything they can to the military defence. The U.S. should be enabled to keep her military machine in running order, to take care of such emergencies as the invasion of Korea.

TREATMENT OF INTERNAL PILES

Old timers who still lure victims to the operating room for the atrocity known as hemorrhoidectomy — cutting out piles —are annoyed more and more nowadays by timid queries about this ambulant, office, injection treatment. Once in a while some prospective customer tactlessly mentions a certain newspaper quack, and that tears it. Up goes the eager operator's blood pressure, away goes judgment and common sense, and the angry doctor utters some choice prevarications which do not always impress the prospective customer as much as the doctor would wish.

One of these prevarications is the statement that the ambulant or injection treatment has been tried and found ineffective, and therefore it has been discarded by reputable physicians and is employed only by charlatans. This is absurd in the face of the routine employment of the method by thousands of good doctors every day—and the testimony of their grateful patients as to the painlessness and efficacy of the treatment.

I believe in surgery. I'd cheerfully get on the operating table tomorrow for a major operation if my doctor advised it. I haven't had a great deal of experience on the receiving end but I have had one major operation and the experience was pleasant enough.

I say I believe in surgery — painless surgery, that is. For instance any minor or major operation where the patient is properly prepared with anoci-association so that he or she will be without fear or anxiety, indifferent, as the time approaches. Or extraction of one or more teeth or other dental operation done with similar advance anoci-association (medicines the physician or dentist may prescribe or rather administer to "quiet nervousness") and skillfully applied local anesthesia. Such operations are absolutely painless. I know. I have been on the receiving end there, too.

But I do not believe in unnecessary surgery. The most shameful surgery of this sort, I think, is another atrocity known as tonsillectomy. Anything is possible, but it would take a large flock of the most eminent specialists to convince me that four or five children in one family really require this major and, sometimes, alas, fatal operation at special low rates for the lot. For that matter, it is my firm conviction that this nineteenth century operation is unnecessary and unwarranted in nine out of ten cases even today.

From time to time an unfavorable report comes in—some reader has sought ambulant treatment and found it not only extremely painful but of no benefit. Usually such a report does not name the physician who gave the treatment. In several instances I have learned that the doctor was chosen on his own self-recommendation, not on mine nor on the recommendation of any reputable physician or layman. If a doctor is reasonably skilled in the ambulant method the treatment will be painless. If the treatment proves painful, at the time or afterward, you may be sure the doctor doesn't know his business.

Unfortunately there are in the profession some doctors who do not hesitate to attempt to give ambulant treatment without first receiving instruction in the technique from a colleague who has mastered the technique. These tyros are responsible for most of the bungling that causes pain and dissatisfaction to their unsophisticated clients. In more than one instance I have discovered that such a wretched tyro has even attempted to inject external hemorrhoids in the name of ambulant treatment. Even a sophomore medical student should know better.

QUESTIONS & ANSWERS

Quaint Theory

The calcium and vitamin D recommended in your Rheumatiz pamphlet has helped me a great deal, but when I told my friend (worse off that I was) about it he said his doctor warned him that calcium would cause kidney stones. (M. L. S.)

Answer—That's an old medical theory—even drinking very hard water was frowned on a century ago. The notion has not been substantiated by clinical or experimental tests. For that matter, there is more calcium in a quart of milk than in the calcium and D daily ration I recommend for chronic "rheumatiz." For pamphlet "Calcium and Rheumatiz" send stamped self-addressed envelope. No clipping, please.

A Head a Day

Always thought lettuce had many vitamins and was digestible but someone maintains otherwise. (D. F.)

Answer—It has and is—every one should eat about a head a day.

TODAY'S TALK

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

SOLITUDE—TEACHER-PHYSICIAN

It is highly essential that we should retire periodically into ourselves for careful examination and appraisal. We get too full of events, confusions, and false values. Solitude is a wonderful remedy for all of these. In addition, it is a teacher and physician all in one.

We learn about others by looking deeply into ourselves. Also, we learn the best methods to put us on the right track when we feel that we are headed nowhere. The voice of Solitude is a silent one, and yet its language is heard! In the same way that a smile talks.

All great characters turn to Solitude when they arrive at too much confusion. I look often to that saying of John Burroughs that hangs over my fire-place. It says: "I come here often to find myself. It is so easy to get lost in the world." This saying was probably inspired by the breath of Solitude that was all about him in his small hut in the forest, near the Hudson River, in which he wrote so much and always observed.

Solitude teaches us to be calm and unworried, to look to the stars, and to observe the continuity of Nature which is forever renewing itself. A solitary daisy of the field has more genuine gold in its heart than the richest mine of golden mineral! And this flower we often unthinkingly trample under foot, forgetting its origin—as well as all the endless varieties of its friends that people the soil.

I like to see the open doors of churches in our great cities, welcoming at all hours anyone desiring solitude in prayer and self-examination. All churches in every town or village, should have their doors ever opened. It makes better towns and better people.

In Nature you are never alone, though you may be in complete solitude. The white pond lily its face bursting with beauty, from its muddy origin, speaks solitude to the soul as few flowers do. I now look out upon a multitude of them and they quiet me in mind and heart. It is as though I were listening to a chorus of white faces, yet in entire solitude. How quieting, how healing to the spirit!

ONE MINUTE NEWS ABOUT JOHNS-MANVILLE

RESEARCH HELPS IMPROVE PACKING

Here's news of another J-M Product made better through research. It's an oil seal — a ring-shaped packing that seals in the oil around vital bearings on industrial machines.

Unlike most oil seals, which are made in several parts and then assembled — this new Johns-Manville Clipper Seal is precision molded IN A SINGLE PIECE. This ensures a perfect fit, with less chance of oil getting out and dirt getting in to injure the bearing.

Clipper Seal is but one of the many hundreds of J-M Packings designed and developed through years of research. Today there's a Johns-Manville Packing for almost every industrial application. If you have a packing problem, contact Johns-Manville, 199 Bay St., Toronto—or see your J-M Packing distributor.

Domestic, Commercial Hydro Rates Will be Increased in September, P.U.C. Announces

Trenton. (Special.)— An increase in domestic and commercial hydro rates effective in September has been announced by the Trenton Public Utilities Commission.

The new rate will 1.8 cents per kilowatt hour for the first 60 kilowatt hours per month and 0.8 cents per kilowatt hour for all additional electrical energy used during the month. This is an increase from the present rate of 1.8 cents per kilowatt hour for the first 90 kilowatt hours per month and 0.6 cents for each additional kilowatt consumed during the month.

Ten per cent discount is still given for prompt payment, and the minimum monthly bill of .83 cents also remains the same.

Rates for commencial consumption will remain the same for the first 100 kilowatt hours used, at 1.6 cents per kilowatt. Additional kilowatts will be charged at the rate of 0.6 cents as compared with the present rate of 0.3 cents.

For commercial consumers, minimum monthly bill, prompt payment discount and service charge are not affected by the change in rates.

The Trenton Public Utilities Commission applied for an industrial power rate increase last spring and it was expected at that time, that an increase across the board would be recommended.

The action of the Commission in raising the hydro rates follows that of most municipalities in Ontario. The increased rates have been brought about by the increased cost of hydro power which is purchased by municipalities from the H.E.P.C.

Steven Vansycklin, Smithfield Sustains Possible Fractured Skull as Car Smashes into Truck

Trenton. (Special).—A 72-year-old Smithfield man received a possible fractured skull and a severe cut over his left eye, when the car he was driving collided with a west-bound Colonial Coach Lines bus last night. The accident occurred directly in front of Smithfield general store on No. 2 Highway, seven miles west of here about 5:30 p.m.

None of the bus passengers was injured.

Steven Vansycklin, R.R. 3, Brighton, stopped his 1930 Model A Ford on the highway, apparently to wait for a line of west-bound traffic to pass, before making a left hand turn. Three east-bound cars were also stopped behind Van[illegible]klin, prior to the accident, D. [illegible] Dailey, driver of the bus, said he saw the car stop, then it suddenly started across the road into the path of the oncoming bus.

The bus driver was unable to avoid the crash but did bring the passenger-loaded coach to a stop within the length of itself after the accident. When the coach skidded to a stop, it was teetering on the edge of a deep ditch.

There was no panic on the bus, even though several women passengers in the front seats saw what was about to happen, seconds before the crash.

Praise Skill of Driver

Drivers of two cars who were stopped behind Vansycklin's car before the accident and passengers on the bus, all praised the skill of the driver who stopped the coach without slamming into the other cars or turning the bus over in the ditch.

"I don't know how he kept the bus from turning over," said H. C. Lang, of Buffalo, New York, who was stopped directly behind the car which pulled in front of the bus. "This driver did a magnificent job, how he kept the bus upright I don't know, said R. A. Wright, Trenton, who had stoped behind the Lang car and also saw the accident.

There were no other passengers in the car and Mr. Vansycklin was rushed to Belleville General Hospital by ambulance.

The front end of the old model car was so badly smashed by the impact, that it looked as though it had been chewed up by a giant meat grinder. The front end of the bus was only slightly damaged but was not able to continue and had to be towed back to Kingston.

OUR TOWN

By JACK SCOTT

BASS ON ICE

Rushing River, Ont.—Lay in bed last night watching a couple of fire-flies on the window screen, testing their running lights and listened to the cool northern breeze whispering through the birches and the sound of the fishermen around the camp fire describing their day.

Our own day had been rewarding. Three small-mouthed bass lay in the refrigerator, cleaned and ready to fulfil their destiny at breakfast.

This is the kind of place we dreamed about in crossing the hot and dusty prairies. The trailer is pulled up in a clearing by the river and there are half a dozen other families, most of them from Illinois, living in tents and existing largely on freshly-caught lake fish and the fat, succulent blueberries that grow thick around the camp.

The Rushing River does, indeed, rush below our tree-shaded bivouac, tumbling whitely down a series of steps, but above this small turmoil it is a gentle green stream. One may paddle a Peterborough easily against its current, as we did, until you are absolutely alone in a woodsy and very Canadian world.

Upstream you enter into a long, narrow lake in which the water is of such a perfect temperature that getting in is mildly painful and getting out is unthinkable.

Here, at the join of the river and the lake, we found a small rock island which we claimed as ours, flying a shirt from a small pine. And here Judy discovered that by swimming upstream you could get a fine return trip floating on your back, looking up at the blue sky and letting the current drift you along.

Lazy Fishers

Our next door neighbor a genial gent from Chicago, overheard us discussing our plans for a fishing trip in the morning and came over to offer his advice. Like most of the other males here he is a genuine fishing nut with a drawer full of gadgets, several expensive rods and a costume that brands him as the Compleat Angler.

We had a learned discussion on the use of flies and plugs and such like, my part in the conversation being to murmur "that's true," or "very interesting" or merely "hmmmmm." But when we drove to a nearby resort to purchase some equipment I let Judy do the buying.

When we set out we had a length of line each with a gaily-colored spinner (if that's what you call them) and a small jar full of pickled, sad-eyed minnows. The man at the resort had recommended using tadpoles, but his advice to "hook them through the lips" had turned Judy against this kind of lure. Which was okay with me.

We got the three bass all in a row in deep water where sheer rock drops into the lake. They measured about 12 inches from nose to tail, or the kind that our Chicago friend might use for bait, but I expect they will look bigger than that in the snapshot I took of Jill holding them.

At this point the sun had moved overhead and we retreated to our island to lie on the rock and slip off, from time to time, into the soft cold water.

I found myself wondering if maybe this kind of thing isn't the cure for the world's ills. If we could get the men who have frightening influence on our lives, the Stalins and Trumans and the rest, and put them together under the cloudless Ontario sky on this serene lake on a small rock island the world might be a saner place.

Certainly it's an invitation here in this place of timeless peace, to feel again that kind of contentment that we like to think our grandfathers knew.

Men at Play

One of the most pleasing sights in our camp is the way this kind of vacation sheds the years from these fish-crazy Americans. Here, in full flower, are "the great American boymen," as Hemingway once nastily described the breed.

All of these men are reasonably well-off and one, an enormous man of some 350 pounds, is in, I gather, the medium tycoon bracket. Its' not hard to imagine how they must look back home in business suits in their offices. But here, in khaki pants and red shirts, there's no false dignity and while the friendship may seem excessive and the horseplay a little too robust it's pleasant to see men enjoying themselves without inhibitions.

As for the wives, that's a little harder to assess. Looking across at the tycoon's wife cleaning her husband's pickerel and making a pie from the blueberries she'd collected, we've been wondering if the Canadian woods are as soul-satisfying for her as they are for her husband.

As for us, we could stand a lot more of this and the thought of packing up again tomorrow and hitting the trail east is far from pleasant.

I suppose that explains why we wandered down to the river last night after the kids were asleep. The black sky full of stars never seemed more beautiful and when we knelt and felt the river, warm as milk, it just seemed the natural thing to do to get in for a final swim.

All this, and fireflies, too.

War May be Over By Next February

Washington, Aug. 23—(AP)—Defence Secretary Louis Johnson figures that, if everthing clicks, it may be possible to shove the North Koreans back to North Korea by February.

Should there be a hitch in the timetable or in campaign operations, the secretary says the $10,500,000,000 President Truman has asked for rearming might not be enough.

So far, Truman hasn't indicated whether he thinks United Nations forces will have to carry the war beyond the 38th parallel, the line that divides north and south Korea. He told a press conference last month that decision will be made when it becomes necessary.

Johnson's appraisal of the situation was given July 25 to a House of Representatives appropriations subcommittee considering the request for that sum. The testimony was made public Tuesday.

Prairie Crops Ripening Slowly

Ottawa, Aug. 23—(CP)—Ripening of prairie grain crops has been retarded by below-normal temperatures, the bureau of statistics reported Tuesday in a telegraphic survey of grain conditions across Canada.

Nevertheless, harvesting is expected to be well under way in many areas next week and should be general by the end of the month, the bureau said.

"Given warmer weather and barring serious losses from frost and lodging, the outlook is still excellent for a large crop of all grains," it said.

Ontario's wheat harvest now was mosty reaped, with above-average yields reported from most areas. About 75 per cent of the spring grains had been cut in most parts of southern, central and western Ontario. Oats and barley crops were excellent.

Regular Service Will be Cut Off

Toronto, Aug. 23 (CP) —Regular service of the Niagara, St. Catharines and Toronto Railway will be discontinued today, A. J. Lomas, central region vice-president of the Canadian National Railways announced Tuesday night.

Mr. Lomas said in a statement: "Owing to failure of the maintenance staff of the Niagara, St. Catharines and Toronto Railway members of the Canadian Brotherhood of Railway Engineers, to report for duty at 6 a.m. Aug. 22, it will necessitate the withdrawal from service of bus operators.

"Therefore, effective tomorrow Aug. 23, it will be impossible for the Niagara, St. Catharines and Toronto Railway to maintain its regular service in the Niagara Peninsula."

Employees Vote To End Strike On Newspaper

New York, Aug. 23—(AP) — Striking employees of the New York World-Telegram and Sun last night voted 270 to 90 to end their 10-week walkout.

Some 400 editorial and commercial employees of the big evening paper were involved in the strike, longest against any major New York City daily paper.

Agreement on terms was reached by management and Guild negotiators early Saturday after an all-night session.

The newspaper has said several days would be required to resume operations.

Jay Nelson Tuck, New York Guild president, said the two-year agreement provided pay increases up to $10 a week, and a year's freeze on any economy firings, with advance notice and arbitration of such firings during the second year.

Job security was a main issue in the strike against the Scripps-Howard newspaper, which bought the old New York Sun and absorbed a number of its employees last January.

The agreement also provides for maintenance of membership—which requires that members stay in the union for the life of the contract.

The Guild had sought a nine-out-of-ten union shop.

Other provisions included a general increase of from $3.50 to $6 at the end of one year, and from $2 to $3.50 at the end of two years.

The agreement also includes a 35-hour week instead of the previous 37 1-2, four weeks vacation after 15 years, eight paid holidays instead of six, and four weeks' pay and other guarantees for persons entering military service.

The strike stopped publication of the paper immediately and eventually led to closing down of the plant because mechanical union members would not cross the Guild's mass picket lines.

Mercy Train May Run Into Atikokan

Montreal, Aug. 23 — (CP) — Frank H. Hall, chairman of the negotiating committee of 15 international Railway Brotherhoods whose 94,000 members are on strike, said Tuesday night, Atikokan, Ont., may get its mercy train.

Atikoka is a northwestern Ontario iron-mining town, 100 miles west of the lakehead, which became isolated following the general walkout. It has no roads nor airport and the railways provided its only outside communication. The last train that shuttled foodstuffs into Atikokan arrived Saturday.

The Fort William chamber of commerce has urged the dispatch of a mercy train with food and other necessities to the remote town. It announced that it is sending telegrams to Prime Minister St. Laurent, Donald Gordon, president of the Canadian National Railways, and Mr. Hall.

Mr. Hall said he had not yet received any official notice of the request. He said nothing would be done pending arrival of the telegram.

However, he added, the train most likely would be let through.

"The matter, he added will have to be handled through the regular union and company channels and will be expedited because it is an emergency."

"ROYAL" MOUNTED

The prefix "royal" was bestowed on the northwest mounted police by King Edward VII in 1904.

Tank For Tank Americans Have Best Weapons

Washington, Aug. 23 (AP) — Tank for tank, the heavier American models now fighting in Korea were reported today to be more than a match for the best the communists have thrown against them.

Army officials who made this claim also said a new light tank gun which will be available shortly should be able to "handle any Russian medium tank."

Much of the Korean Reds' early success was attributed to superior tanks. United States forces had few tanks and front-line dispatches reported that the General Chaffee, the first American model used there, was no match for the Russian T-34.

Army officers said, however, that the Patton and Pershing models rushed to Korea have proved far superior to the T-34, a 30-ton tank. Under some conditions the Patton's 90-millimetre guns would give "considerable trouble" to the Josef Stalin III, the Red Army's largest known tank. It weighs an estimated 50 to 70 tons and mounts a 122-millimetre gun.

The 47 1-2-ton Patton is the heaviest United States tank in actual production, army spokesmen said. They described it as the transition vehicle between types of the Second World War and a new family of three models being developed as a result of military policy revision.

The new policy gives priority in tank design to firepower. Mobility rates second and protection third. In the Second World War, tanks stressed mobility first and firepower second.

Ancient History Brought to Life

London — (CP)—Curators are making museums more attractive to youngsters and a new vogue in handling exhibits is being encouraged in Britain.

Children taken to Bruce Castle Museum in Tottenham recently for a lesson in Egyptology were given a special treat. Girls in the party were allowed to try on necklaces, rings and charms which had been worn by fashionable women in Egypt 3,000 years ago. Boys were permitted to spin a top that had once belonged to an Egyptian child and to try on face masks taken from mummies.

The great science museum in South Kensington, with its ingenious working models of trains and exhibits of early flying machines and railway engines, is the delight of venturesome schoolboys. Some youngsters visit the museum every week and now some of the smaller, more delicate exhibits may be handled under the watchful eyes of officials.

For years, in all parts of Britain, parties of students, under supervision of official guides, have been permited access to the interior of museum show-cases. Never until now, however, has such direct contact with valuable exhibits — especially by young children—been allowed.

MARIO ... in his distinctive feature about Food ... What's Cooking ?

Until recently lamb was called the golden fleece. One of the fastest ways to strip your pockets of gold was to buy a few lamb chops.

The fatted calf seems to be taking the place of the golden fleece as the price of beef steaks mounts higher and higher. The abnormal purchasing of high priced beef items seems to be breaking all records and all prices.

As far as tenderness and palatability are concerned, lamb is not much of a risk. Almost any part of the carcass is tender. Lamb on a skewer can be cut from the shoulder or the leg and in either case will be tender—unless the lamb is old and is turning to mutton.

If a leg of lamb is too large to prepare for one meal, it can be divided by the butcher for several uses. The centre can be tied for roasting or cut into steaks. The ends of the leg can be cut into large cubes, skewered, and broiled or fried.

Fried skewered lamb should be browned in hot fat and then baked slowly 20-30 minutes. Veal may be substituted for the lamb if desired.

Fried Lamb on Skewer.—Serves 4

Order 2 pounds of shoulder of young lamb boned and cut into 1 inch cubes. Or use the end of a leg of lamb.

If you do not have metal skewers, ask the butcher for 4 wooden skewers.

Fasten pieces of lamb on skewers. Do not fit meat together too closely. Allow about 1-4 inch space between pieces of meat if possible. Sprinkle meat with salt and pepper.

Put 1 beaten egg in a shallow pan or dish wide enough so that the skewers can rest on the bottom. Add 2 tablespoons water. Mix well.

Put 1 cup bread crumbs in a similar wide container.

Dip skewers with meat in the beaten egg. Toss skewers to coat completely with egg.

Dip skewers in bread crumbs. Coat completely but do not permit breading to gather in large lumps.

Heat a kettle of deep clean fat to 370 degrees or hot enough to brown a 1 inch cube of day old bread in 60 seconds. Lower skewers in hot fat, and fry until brown. Lamb may be pan fried in about 1 inch of fat instead of using a deep kettle of fat.

Transfer skewers to a shallow pan. Bake in a moderate oven 350 degrees 20 to 25 minutes or until meat is very tender. Serve with hot tomato sauce. Use canned tomato sauce or canned tomato soup, partially diluted with water.

Do you want a particular recipe, or have you a cooking problem? Write Mario, care this paper, enclosing a self-addressed, stamped, envelope for his reply.—Ed.

Abroad With Me

By Dorothy E. Futcher

(This is the first of a series of articles being written by Mrs. J. R. Futcher, of St. Thomas, president of the Federation of Women's Institutes of Ontario, about a trip to Copenhagen to attend the triennial convention of the Associated Country Women of the World, being held from Sept. 10 to 16.)

MRS. J. ROBINSON FUTCHER

On Board Empress of France,
Friday, August 18.

Yesterday was a great day. It started, when I stepped off the Montreal train at eight in the morning and said "Hello!" to old friends, and "Glad to know you!" to new ones, all of us, 30 strong, bound for Copenhagen in a rather round-about way.

I want you to meet some of them. Let's start at the West, British Columbia. Her Institute president and representative is Mrs. East—I've always called her Mrs. East from the West, a charming, friendly personality, a typical Westerner, breezy and energetic. Our hearts go out to her. She gave all she had in the last World War and proudly wears two silver crosses for two young sons.

Mrs. Morton from Vegreville, Alberta, is president of our National Organization, F.W.I.C., and the leader of our delegation. I call her "The Duchess", dignified, almost regal in bearing, complete master of the situation.

Now, meet Mrs. Adams, president of the Homemakers of Saskatchewan, petite, vivacious, young in thought and action, with a twinkle in her eye. Mrs. Adams could lead us into mischief.

Mrs. Ruth Houck, of Brampton, Ont., is my room mate, known to many of you, capable, generous in giving of her time and talents to women's organizations. Mrs. Houck serves on the Royal Commission on Education under Justice Hope.

Mrs. Spicer, of Southern Rhodesia, South Africa, is in our party. Active in Institute work in her own country, she is anxious to learn more about us. English in appearance and speech we welcome her as one of us.

Mrs. Thompson, president of Quebec Institutes, made the boat at the last minute, and practically fled from the hospital to do it. She has been ill from pneumonia, and though weak in the knees, is here. Dark-haired and dark-eyed, of French parentage, she speaks French fluently. We have high hopes that through her, greater understanding will be reached with the French-speaking groups of rural Quebec.

The Robin Hood Flour Mills of Montreal was our host at luncheon. Their director of Home Service, Miss Shantz, welcomed us in the Silver Room at Eaton's. What a treat it was to relax after weeks of hectic preparation in such a quiet, beautiful room, enjoy good food, delightful to the eye, and delicious to the taste, in such goodly company.

The Canada Cotton Spool Co., of Montreal, represented by Miss Alice Grant, took us on a sightseeing tour of Montreal. I marvelled at the narrow streets in the French sector of the city, with their beautiful wrought-iron outside staircases, spotless as scrubbing can make them, and the delightful little balconies, where you can almost reach out and shake hands with the householder. The view from Mt. Royal was clear and breath-taking, passing by beautiful homes, with gardens a riot of color.

Afternoon tea in the Vice-Regal suite at the Ritz-Carlton terminated this wonderful afternoon. Later we had dinner in a French cafe. The menu was printed in English on one side, French on the other with prices listed in the centre. We dined a la Canadien, but compromised with French pastry for dessert. We appreciate the thoughtfulness of the Federal Minister of Agriculture, Mr. Gardiner, and the Deputy Minister, Dr. Taggart, in sending Miss Laura Pepper to bring greetings to our delegation.

The women of Montreal are noticeably smart in appearance—something just a little different about them that sets them apart. This is true for young and old. The explanation possibly is the well-known French "chic" and the fact that Montreal is the fashion centre of the Dominion.

We came on board early, and soon after 11, cables were loosened, and the gang plank lifted, paper streamers thrown to friends on the dock as a last farewell, and after loud blasts of departure from the boat we are off. I feel almost like a character out of the fairy tales, sailing into an enchanted realm. A lump in the throat makes me ask, "Do I really want to take this trip?"

Bye, Family!

ADVICE to the LOVELORN

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

How one wife handled a stingy husband

A few weeks ago in this column, I commented on a letter from a wife with a wealthy but stingy husband. That is, he was stingy with her, although lavish in his gifts to his sons' wives. This woman was never able to get enough from her husband to dress properly. He felt she should be content with the most inexpensive little numbers, even though he could well afford the best of everything for her.

In answer to her plea as to what she could do about the situation, I suggested that she go out and get herself a job, so that she could have money of her own, and be completely independent of his miserly character.

Now I have a letter from another women who says she had much the same experience with her husband, but worked out quite an unusual way of solving the problem. She disagreed with my advice to the woman about the job, on the ground that any man so mean wouldn't care if his wife worked herself to death. She herself had no idea of going out and earning money. She thought the money should come from her husband, and devised her own way of getting it out of him.

Here is what she did, told in her own words:

"At the end of 25 years of marriage to this heel, I started a charge account in a department store. He promptly stopped it. I told him quietly but firmly that I now intended starting two accounts in stores, but he was at liberty to close them out whenever he saw fit, but that I would then start three accounts in far more expensive stores. I said I would place a nice large order immediately, so that if he closed out my accounts, I would at least have those articles of apparel before the axe fell. I told him that was how I would operate unless he gave me a Spring allowance every May 1st and a Fall allowance on August 31st. I also told him that if he attempted to send my purchases back, I would alter the clothes so that they could not be returned. I said it was up to him.

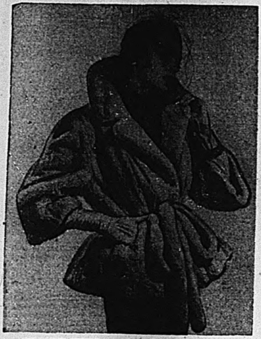
"I finally got him to give me $100 twice a year, and with that beginning, I managed one good dress, one good coat and one good hat. I was extremely careful of these things, so that the following year I could concentrate on shoes, bags and accessories. I bought smart, but not extreme styles, so that the clothes would look well the following year. At the end of two years I upped my allowance by $50, and I have done that twice, so that now, at the end of two years of tactical warfare, I have a very nice wardrobe. What's more, the heel is beginning to look at me as though he were seeing me for the first time.

"What I would like to say to down-trodden wives is, don't take such treatment, and don't whine! Use your heads and get up courage to act."

Good for this wife, say I! And I agree with her that if more wives would show some spunk, they would probably find things improving.

Not all husbands, of course, would let their wives put it over on them in this way, and I don't necessarily advise exactly the same tactics. The method must be carefully chosen and suited to the individual husband. But if one smart wife can solve such a problem, others can, by using their heads as she suggests.

Clipped Fox Topper



BY ALICE ALDEN

THE best fox talks of fashion with a clipped accent this season. A brilliant woman furrier is responsible for the new trend of fox clipped to a velvety surface, and dyed in beautiful colors. Then it is fashioned into smartly simple coats. Here is Esther Dorothy's version of her typical "small overcoat" fashioned of buff clipped fox.

Long Lashes Needed In 'Perfect Woman'

London—(CP)—Blue eyes shadowed by dark, half-inch-long lashes are 20-year-old Sheena Saunders' contribution to the "perfect woman."

Nicholas Egon, 28-year-old Hampstead artist, intends building a composite portrait of a number of women to make the "perfect woman," a picture commissioned by an international cosmetic firm. He decided that he has little chance of finding one woman beautiful enough to satisfy requirements.

Sheena, his provisional choice for the eyes—"Because they are the most beautiful I have seen so far"—does not yet know who will keep them company.

So far, Egon has only found a pair of shoulders he considers good enough.

GOOD MANNERS

By MRS. BEECKMAN

Thank hostess for her hospitality . . . not only for her food

"That was certainly a wonderful dinner you gave us tonight, Anne. Thank you" . . . or "Good night, Mrs. Allen. I enjoyed your delicious dinner. It was wonderful."

How often we hear guests departing from a party thanking their hostess only for the food. Now there doesn't live the hostess whose heart doesn't swell with pride when a guest commends her food. She's spent time and effort and money in planning just the menu she hopes will appeal to her guests, and she's done the cooking or supervised it so that the foods will be as delicious as possible. Naturally, humanly, she appreciates appreciation of her successful achievement.

But the hostess who is worth the salt she puts in her foods doesn't consider that the foods are "the be-all and the end-all" of her dinner-party. Your hostess, any hostess, has not asked for "the pleasure of your company" just to have you eat her foods. She has an ideal of being "given to hospitality", of being considered a gracious hostess, of keeping the conversational ball rolling merrily and easily back and forth, of combining the guests with easy grace. In short, doing everything she can to make her guests happy and comfortable, delighted to share her hospitality. . .as well as her foods.

And what do some guests thank her for? Only the food she serves. Apparently they consider they have been invited merely for the crown of roast, not for the crown of hospitality!

If you want to compliment your hostess on her meal or on a particular dish . . . don't hold back your enthusiasm. Either during the meal or afterward, she'll be thrilled to have you say, "I've never tasted such delicious fried chicken, Frances," or "What a yummy dessert, this chocolate souffle," or That was a perfect dinner, Jean."

But when you're leaving and are expected to do your real job of expressing your thanks, it isn't the food, but the hospitality you thank for. Then you say what your hostess is really wanting to have you say, "I had a wonderful time at your party, Jean. Every minute most happy! Thank you so much for asking me," or "Thank you for your grand party. You're a perfect hostess, and Tom is a perfect host," or "We'll always remember this happy evening. You and Tom always give such delightful parties . . . and we love to be with you."

Guests bring gifts to the children

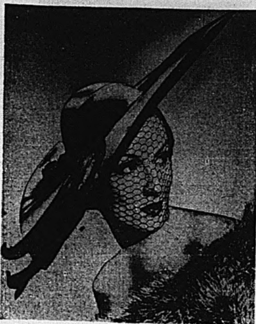
Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Should we take presents to the children of the family when we go to visit for the weekend or longer? If so, what?

Lucy H.

Yes, ma'am . . . you remember how it was when you were a child! Generally best not to bring the children candy. If you have children, you'll know why; if you haven't, you can figure out the reason. Each child will love a new book, an engaging toy, a game. A little girl (or a big one, too) will be enchanted to have one or two small gay handkerchiefs with her first name embroidered on them. Either a boy or a girl will welcome a pen; or a box of pencils with his or her full name stamped on them; or a scrap-book; or a festive box of note-paper or cards appropriate to the age of the child. In the stores you will find a wealth of original and entertaining gifts for children, from a dime up. In the vast world of games you will find it easy to choose a game that will captivate children and also lure grown-ups. The game-thinker-uppers are full of these tricks now . . . they offer intriguing entertainment for parties for all ages.

Black Satin Picture Hat



By PRUNELLA WOOD

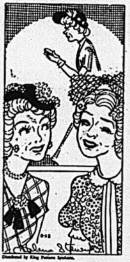
A REALLY dramatic bicorne of large proportions is one of the new season's handsomest hats. . . Braagaard's offering for very formal after-dark occasions.

The model is black satin, and its sole trimming is a swirl of natural colored coq feathers laid on front brim, to the right. Veil is worn beneath the hat, over hair.

BEAUTY

Becoming colors for white-haired sisters

White hair is terrible only to those who think so. Under favorable conditions it forms a pleasing frame for the countenance, gives delicacy of appearance to the complexion, imparts distinction of appearance. It can be an asset or a liability according to the kind of care it receives, how it is arranged, the kind of colors one wears. If a woman has stepped over the half-century mark it seems a bit silly for her to throw herself into a panic because the glorious halo has become silvered. Maybe Mama Nature knows best. Even prematurely grey hair may not suggest advanced years.



Distributed by King Features Syndicate

White hair is terrible only to those who think so.

A woman with white tresses, blue or grey eyes, usually appears attractive and charming in pale colors, all the pastel tones, in fact. Cyclamen pink, French blue, pale greens usually give this type of woman a full measure of loveliness.

If the eyes are brown a touch of vivid colors is flattering; she can use tulip red, jade green, clear blue tones to give accent to the items of her wardrobe. A cerise hat will bring out the glory of her silvery hairdo.

Steel grey is her color enemy, dove grey is her good friend; the first will make her skin look ashen, the other will give it softness.

Ordinarily, black should be worn only by the young and beautiful among us. Of course, there are exceptions to this rule. If the elderly one prefers it, the fabrics should be of soft, velvety surface, never the kind that carries a glitter that will make the face look brittle. Creamy tones are more flattering than white. Even younger women should realize that; they will if they have the seeing eye.

If the hair is snow white, not pepper-and-salt, as it is during the period of transition, pale hydrangea shades are wonderfully effective, especially in the evening when the bright lights are on. The brown-eyed woman, as well as the blue-eyed, will find pleasure in wearing these pinkish-blue colors.

If the skin has a yellow cast blues should be avoided. This rule holds true if the hair has had a bluing rinse. Greens, purples and oranges are of uncertain quality.

The arrangement of the hair is important. It must have softness and style, becomingness and dignity. A few, wide undulations are almost necessary—as straight hair adds to the appearance of age. A few little whisps will put the coiffure completely out of form.

Shampooing must be done with thoroughness, only the blandest of shampoo mediums being used.

Half-Pint Girls Called Average, Get Fashion Nod

New York—(CP)—She used to be the forgotten woman in the clothing trade—the "half-pint" of five-feet-five or less—but nowadays she's getting more of a break. The reason: discovery that she is really the average American woman.

Almost two-thirds of American women belong in this group, says the U.S. department of agriculture, setting the average height a little over five-feet-three. A mere one per cent are the willowly five-feet-nine type for which Paris creations are designed, and the in-between group numbers 33 per cent.

Choose Clothes Carefully

Further, the statistics show that a goodly proportion of these "half-pints" are well-rounded, the type that must choose clothes carefully to avoid a dumpy appearance.

A small but growing segment of the clothing industry holds that these average women should have dresses and suits styled and scaled to their measurements, instead of altered hand-me-downs designed for their taller sisters.

One of the leaders in the movement, Murray Sices of New York, says he got the idea when he was detailed to outfit the women's army corps; he found that alterations entailed tremendous work and expense because uniforms had been designed for the taller-than-average girl.

Now his firm handles nothing but suits for the not-so-tall group —four-feet-nine to five-feet-five —and designs them to make the wearers look taller and slimmer.

Strangely enough, one of the snags encountered in giving the "half-pints" a break, according to Sices, is due to women's vanity. They just don't want to be seen buying their clothes in departments labelled for small or plumpish women. They would rather buy regular sizes and have them altered.

New Approach

So Sices, who argues that the girls will wear the "half-pint" sizes quite happily so long as the classification is not forced to their attention, is campaigning for a new approach by department stores. He wants all sizes sold in the same department, and the clerks trained to know at a glance what type the customer needs and supply it without comment.

Another New York firm, specializing in coats for the shorter group, stresses that they are designed "for the womanly woman—not for fairybook ladies, but for actual averages scored in inches and fractions from widespread surveys of women as they are."

In the trade papers, the company's advertising slogan is: "The dame who took Samson was no toothpick!"

The taste's the test for tea! Canadians buy more Salada than any other brand.

RAWDON

Work Progessing on Road Between Hoard's, Stirling

Rawdon—The McFarland Construction Company have about completed the smaller culverts along the roadway from Hoard's to Stirling. For the past two weeks a large number of men have been busy building a new bridge near Ralph Jeffs farm. The former bridge was very narrow and most dangerous for motor travel. The new wide bridge will be a big improvement when completed.

On Wednesday August 16th the large bulldozer began operations along the north side of the hill on Mr. James Menzies property. By afternoon they proceeded to uproot the large trees, three lovely maples, one elm and a staunch old oak (which could be one hundred and fifty years old). These fine large trees were directly in front of the H. C. Bird property. By mid-afternoon the two maples were dragged out by their roots and laid to rest in a nearby field, and later the other maple and the elm met the same fate.

Wires Taken Down

The telephone wires were taken down and from then until ten o'clock on Thursday morning there was no telephone service at the Williams and MacMullen homes. Of course all these interferences go along with the way of progress.

Large Oak

By five the bulldozer had cut and scraped the large roots around the big oak tree and dug deeply into the earth but it baffled all attempts to bring it to earth.

So the men quit for supper around 6.30 p.m. and then returned with a smaller bulldozer and several feet of cable. With one pulling and the other pushing they managed to budge the old oak a trifle but it still defied man's attempts to uproot it so finally it was given up for that day.

Early Thursday morning August 17th operations began again. The bulldozer dug more deeply around the base of the tree in a wider scope bringing large roots to the surface, and finally after about an hour of digging the men in charge decided to try to cable again and this time the two bulldozers won out and the large oak which has stood as a giant bulwark for many years, fell to the ground in a crumbling mass of broken branches. With a great deal of pushing, turning and rearranging, with both bulldozer and the cable the giant tree was taken to the nearby field beside the other four large trees.

Probably Largest Tree

This oak is probably the largest oak tree which has been removed from the new strip of road. The large bottom surface measures over twelve feet by fifteen feet with all outlying roots removed. It lies beside the elm which is approximately 10' x 12' and the largest maple is 9' x 7' across. Surely a lot of trees in one group.

These fine lovely trees have been the nesting places of many birds which included a colony of robins. On Thursday morning they were at a loss with some of their homes smashed and the trees lying flat. The group of birds spent a few hours singing their mournful songs and then decided to trek elsewhere and find new homes.

The landscape is bare of beauty now and looks as if a tornado had visited the section and of course the dust is much worse with all the loose earth on the roadway. The new road will be made later in a direct path where these beautiful trees have stood for so many years.

The balance of Thursday morning was spent uprooting two large elms along the roadway by Mr. Claude Tucker's farm and both of them were fairly large.

Large Elm Tree

Then the afternoon was spent uprooting an old landmark which has stood for well over one hundred years on the roadway by the Carlisle farm. This old tree also put up a wonderful fight for life. After hours of bulldozing around its roots cutting everything clear, it still required two bulldozers and a cable to fell it. After that the tree defied all efforts to move it off the roadway until men with axes hewed off quantities of limbs and leaves. Finally in late afternoon the naked tree was shoved off the highway to await its fate. This large elm has stood at the curve in the road and it has been a menace to the motoring public.

This particular elm tree (is according to our informant) the largest one ever removed by the McFarland Construction Co. The base of the tree minus protruding roots measures eighteen feet by thirteen feet. The large long trunk with bare limbs gives the onlooker a glimpse of the sturdy tree while across the road is a large portion of the upper sections of this elm with its branches and leaves.

Marvel at Strides

Motorists drive slower and marvel at the great strides in this age when power machinery can over throw such strength.

The older pioneers who have watched these stately trees grow into loveliness will miss their beauty and shade. Lovers of trees the world over always are reminded of that great poem "Only God Can Make a Tree."

McMullen Hill

For the past two weeks men and machinery have been at work at the McMullen Hill at Anson. They have cut the hill down twenty feet and have surely made a big difference at that location.

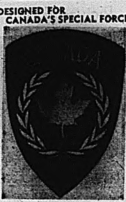
At present the detour is in what was formerly the Hutchinson lawn. The road is being built up from the hill to the Ross Hoard farm and dozens of truck loads of fill have been used.

A new road has been cut on the George Weaver property directly behind Central Cheese Factory and another new stretch of road has been made on the Gordon Linn property south of the Allan School.

Hubble Hill is being built up with fill from the Blake Sharp property.

West of Mount Pleasant United Church numerous small knolls have been used for fill especially those on Norman McConnell, Earl Dunkley and the Sharp properties. The whole roadway has a different appearance with a new cement bridge at Leonard Sharp's a deep cut through McAdam and Potts farms and at Bill Jeffs hill. New transformations are taking place almost daily and of course the dust nuisance is worse than awful.

DESIGNED FOR CANADA'S SPECIAL FORCE



The above photo shows the design of the shoulder patch which has been authorized for wear by members of the Canadian Army special force, which will serve in Korea. The patch, which will be worn on the sleeves of the uniform below the shoulder is composed of a red shield with the word Canada and a maple leaf in gold and the laurel wreath, symbolical of the United Nations, in white, inscribed on it.

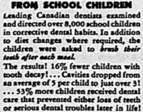
BRUSHING TEETH RIGHT AFTER EATING WITH COLGATE DENTAL CREAM HELPS PREVENT TOOTH DECAY!



Research shows that decay is caused by mouth acids which are at their worst after meals. When you brush your teeth with Colgate's right after eating, you help remove mouth acids before they can harm enamel.

2 Years' research by LEADING UNIVERSITIES proves that test groups brushing teeth right after eating with Colgate Dental Cream showed amazing reduction in tooth decay!

Under the direction of eminent dental authorities, one group of college men and women always brushed their teeth with Colgate Dental Cream right after eating—while another group followed their usual dental care. The average of the group using Colgate's as directed, and using Colgate's exclusively, was a startling reduction in the number of new cavities—far less tooth decay. The other group developed new cavities at a much higher rate.

FURTHER PROOF FROM SCHOOL CHILDREN

Leading Canadian dentists examined and directed over 8,000 school children in corrective dental habits. In addition to diet changes where required, the children were asked to brush their teeth after each meal.

The results! 16% fewer children with tooth decay! ... Cavities dropped from an average of 5 per child to just over 3! ... 53% more children received dental care that prevented either loss of teeth or serious dental troubles later in life! ... The number of children with no defects—increased by 200%!

HELP YOUR CHILDREN AVOID TOOTH DECAY!

Insist that your children always brush their teeth right after eating with Colgate Dental Cream. They'll love Colgate's delicious double-minty flavor, so it's easy to get them to use Colgate's correctly.

CLEANS YOUR BREATH AS IT CLEANS YOUR TEETH!

Scientific tests prove that in 7 out of 10 cases, Colgate's instantly stops bad breath that originates in the mouth! Colgate's active penetrating foam gets into hidden crevices between teeth—helps clean out decaying food particles—stops stagnant saliva odors—removes the cause of much bad breath!

CHIPS OFF THE SPORTS BLOCK

The Batawa Shoemen, hereafter to be known as the Harmony Boys, struck a new note in the COBL choral society this past week. The centre of discord and the originators of the injured scream, C above high McClure, is now all sweetness and light to such an extent that some rash personalities are already predicting that the Shoemen will be the team to beat for the COBL laurels. "After all," they chorus, "there they are in fourth place after spending half of their energies fighting among themselves. Now that they are all back together as one happy family — slaving on the same treadmill, so to speak — there is no telling what they are likely to accomplish".

* * *

They are so right. And the cause of all this jubilation is nothing more nor less than two recent victories which, on the surface, hardly seems the subject for raptures. The manner of these victories is something else again. Last Saturday evening the Shoemen, growling in their manly chests, went prowling for the Brockville Memoes and lifted their scalps with a thrilling 2-1 win. Monday evening the pack was in full cry as they ambushed the startled Smiths Falls Royals 3-1 down in Smiths Falls. Art Wright threw a five hitter at the Royals to beat their ace lefthander Dean Rothrock, as the Batawa bludgeons batted out ten safeties. Until Monday's game the Batawans had been fed a steady diet of left-handers on the justifiable assumption that they couldn't hit left-handed pitching. 'The old order changeth etc.' and apparently in the revamped Batawa billets even left-handed pitching has been given the heave ho.

* * *

All this is to warn you that tonight at the Fair Grounds, commencing at 7:00 p. m. the Batawa butcher boys will be facing their sternest test when they tangle with the league-leading Kingston Disney Leafs in a twilight-night doubleheader. A double win assures the Shoemen of a playoff berth while a double defeat will imperil their chances of making the playoffs. The Batawans, using their new pitching rotation of Muffitt and Wright, followed by Muffitt and Wright, with Semark, Willis and Peacock standing by in their asbestos suits, will likely start Muffitt. Whether Wright will go after one day's rest is not known and in such case Willis is likely to do the flinging.

Coach "Speedy" St. Louis and his Belleville Cubs seem to have found the range against the Sixardee Repairmen after trying unsuccessfully all season to pile them up on a baseball shoal. Monday evening they had the Repairmen 2-2 in the bottom of the ninth when prosperity went to their heads and they booted the ball twice to hand the aircrew the equalizer. Darkness promptly descended, halting the Cubs' drive to liquidate the Repairmen in the tenth. Tomorrow night, however, under the lights at the Fair Grounds, darkness will provide no escape, as the Cubs prepare a hot reception for Sixardee in the second game of their best-in-five series for the Belleville and District League title.

* * *

Down in Read tonight, the Read Raiders and the Latta Lumbermen have a go at settling their best-in-five semi-final series in the South Hastings Baseball League playoffs. This will be the seventh game in this series. Latta leads the parade two to one and they have tied three times. Darkness has been conveniently handy these past few nights and we would like to suggest that they decide on some afternoon and have it out before the stars come out. Meanwhile Cannifton sits on the sidelines waiting for the winners.

Shirley May France, the most publicized girl not to swim the English Channel set a new high in truthfulness last week as she was hauled from the water just as it was being announced that Florence Chadwick had set a new women's record for the swim. Quoth Shirley: "Everyone will think I'm a flop." Wow!

Anyway, as soon as the water was dredged of newspaper men, advertising agents, and the like, the real nonsense of swimming the channel got under way. Yesterday a small company of swimmers took the plunge and lo and behold, the finishers were coming ashore in droves. Two of the men set a new record in swimming the channel and the fastest of them, Hassan Abd-El Rehims, of Egypt, kept another record intact by uttering those deathless words: "I feel very good. I'm not tired at all. I'm ready to swim back." You can excuse his English because he is from Egypt.

Tigers Send Art Houtteman To Mound Against Yankees In Game They Must be on Top

By JOE REICHLER
(Associated Press Sports Writer)

Today could be described as D-Day in the life and times of the turbulent Detroit Tigers.

Another loss today on top of yesterday's 13-6 beating by New York Yankees might mark the beginnings of the end of the great Detroit pennant dream. The outlook for the third and last of the three-game set at Yankee stadium is far from bright. Then come Boston Red Sox.

Up to now Red Rolfe's pennant-hungry league leaders have been able to win all the "big" ones. Well, today's second clash with the Yankees is the biggest one of all. The Tigers say so.

Rolfe is banking all on his ace, Art Houtteman. The young right-hander and veteran Dizzy Trout are all that's left of the once-mighty Tiger pitching crew. Hal Newhouser and Fred Hutchinson have been in and out all year. Virgil Trucks and Ted Gray are laid up with sore arms. Hal White was pounded black and blue yesterday and Trout worked the day before.

Houtteman (16-9), has beaten the Yanks four times in six outings. Veteran Vic Raschi (15-8), his opponent, owns a 1-2 season record against the Tigers.

Each a Big Gamble

After Houtteman—who? Newhouser, Hutchinson or Hank Borowy—each is a big gamble. So everything is up to Houtteman. Either he wins or the Tigers are faced with the probability of having their 3½-game lead of yesterday cut to a mere half length when they depart tomorrow night for Boston.

The Yankees were simply merciless on three Tiger pitchers yesterday. Led by catcher Yogi Berra, they clubbed out 14 hits, including two doubles, a triple and three home runs. Berra batted in six runs. Even Allie Reynolds, who won his first game of the season from Detroit, got a double. Reynolds' pitching was only fair, giving up 11 hits and five walks, but he didn't have to be better.

It was a disastrous day all around for the Tigers as Cleveland Indians and the Red Sox also won. The second-place Tribe whipped Washington 5-1 and the Red Sox walloped St. Louis Browns 9-5 to climb to within 5½ games of the top.

Philadelphia's furious Phillies retained their 5½-game margin in the National League, edging the Reds 4-3 in Cincinnati. Brooklyn Dodgers outslugged the Pirates in Pittsburgh, 10-8 and Boston Braves took third place from the Cardinals with a 5-1 triumph in St. Louis.

New York Giants made it 16 victories in 19 games with the Cubs, winning in Chicago 6-5 in the National's only afternoon contest. Philadelphia and Chicago in the American League were rained out.

Two Canadians Still in Hunt For Golf Title

(By The Canadian Press)

Frank Stranahan and Willie Turnesa squirmed past rugged opponents Tuesday to join defending champion Charles Coe in the third round of the Golden Anniversary United States Amateur Golf tournament at Minneapolis.

Young Gerald Kesselring of Kitchener, joined the veterans in the third round by easily disposing of Russell Brothers of Nashville, Tenn., 9 and 8. The Canadian junior amateur champion was two below par for the 10 holes he needed to crush Brothers.

Stranahan, twice British and once Canadian amateur champion but never a major titleholder in his own country, defeated James McHale of Bethlehem, Pa., 1 up after reaching the turn all even.

Turnesa, whose game supposedly is made to order for the 6,655-yard Minneapolis Golf Club course, burst the bubble that was Richard Allman of Philmont, Pa., 3 and 2. Allman, who Monday eliminated Dynamite Goodloe of Valdosta, Ga., was six down at the turn.

Coe, despite some poor putting and the strong winds that swept over the par 35-36—71 course in the morning, mastered Al Clasen of St. Paul 3 and 1.

The 14th annual Ontario Seniors golf championship will be staged over the Westmount Golf Course at Kitchener Friday.

The tournament, for golfers over 50, will comprise 18 holes medal play. Entries are divided into three age groups, 50-59, 60-69, and 70 and over.

The championship was won last year by A. R. Wilson of Montreal Summerlea who fired a 73. Len Biddell of Toronto Islington trailed with 76.

Seven members of the British Curtis Cup Golf team arrived in New York Tuesday aboard the liner Caronia.

"We are not making any predictions, but we are hopeful," said Mrs. Diana Fishwick-Critchley, the team captain.

The British team meets the American Curtis Cuppers at Buffalo, N.Y., Sept. 4-5. The visitors will play a Canadian team at Toronto Sept. 20.

One thing the exhibition tour of the Dominion football champion Montreal Alouettes has done is strengthen Grey Cup aspirations of football fans in two Western Canada cities.

Calgary Stampeders and Edmonton Eskimos of the Western Canada cities.

Calgary Stampeders and Edmonton Eskimos of the Western Conference gained prestige and the mighty Als of yesteryear lost a bit—or now do not seem so formidable. Fans here and in Calgary look with new respect on their teams because both tossed the 1949 champs for a loss.

Saturday the Stamps, 1948 Dominion champions who lost the Grey Cup to the Als last fall, took the steam out of Lew Hayman's men, 19-7. Then last night the Esk, pretty feeble also-rans last season, defeated the Alouettes 11-6.

In two games against their Western hosts, the defending titlists marked up only 13 points.

The victory for the Esks of Coach Annis Stukus was doubly sweet as the former Toronto Argo's masterminding career is said to hinge on the performance of his charges this year. Big Stuke personally kicked four decisive points.

Point Anne Wins Third Consecutive Tennis Title

The Point Anne Tennis Club annexed their third consecutive Bay of Quinte Tennis League title last evening as they downed Batawa Tennis Club 3-2 in a series of hard-fought matches on their home courts.

Results of the tournament last evening are:

Men's Doubles: Perry Everett and Doug Bennett, Point Anne, were defeated by Jim Paton and Ivan Lockhart, Batawa, 11-9, 6-4.

Jack MacDonald and Maurice Vollick, Point Anne, dropped Tony Cervinka and Tony Dalcar, Batawa, 11-9, 6-4.

Ladies' Doubles: Donalda Everett and Hilda Finlan, Point Anne, defeated Millie Cervinka and Busha Kalinda, Batawa, 6-0, 6-1.

Mixed Doubles: Freda MacDonald and Tony Machala, Batawa, dropped Ilene Luffman and Jack Hart, Point Anne, 6-3, 6-2.

Gwyneth Bennett and Ken Haines, Point Anne, downed Marion Moore and Alec Haverlandt, Batawa, 6-4, 6-2.

Standings in the league are — Point Anne 42; Trenton 34; Quinte 2, 29; Batawa 24; Quinte 1 21.

The Bay of Quinte League teams now meet in the playoff series for the Corby trophy.

Athletes of 23 countries are all set to go for the European Games which start today in the Brussels Heysel Stadium.

Chief interest for an expected crowd of 70,000 will be the performance of the Soviet team of 19 men and 16 women in rare appearance outside the Iron Curtain.

The track and field meet in which Europe's best will compete finishes Sunday.

Scheduled for the opening day is the 26 1-4 mile marathon, the hop, step and jump, javelin, shot pott and heats in the 110-metre hurdles, 110-metre dash, 400 metres, 800 metres, 400 metre relay and the 10,000 metre race.

For the field events in which the Russian athletes are expected to excel especially manufactured javelins and hammers have been brought into Brussels by the organizers of the games—the Royal Belgian Athletic League.

Chuck Barriage Ekes Out 3-3 Tie With Sixardee

Veteran Chuck Barriage threw masterful game for the Belleville Cubs last evening as they drew 3-3 with the Sixardee team in the first game of the best three-in-five series for the Belleville and District League championship.

The Cubs came from behind to take a one-run lead in the eighth inning only to see it wither away in the ninth as the Repairmen pushed over the equalizer on two errors.

Bob Bunton, patrolling left field for the Cubs was the batting star for the visitors with two triples and a single in four tries. He drove in one run and scored another himself. Elder Neilson scored the Cubs third run. Gibson and Cummings provided the Repairmen's punch at the plate. The game was called at the end of the ninth because of darkness.

London Majors Score Victory Over Mayfair 15-4

(By The Canadian Press)

The London Majors bats were really booming Tuesday as the Intercounty squad scored an easy first-round victory in the Canadian Sandlot Baseball Congress tournament in London.

Majors combed two Toronto Mayfair pitchers for 19 hits in breezing to an easy 15-4 victory. What had started as a scoreless mound duel broke up in the fourth when Majors scored their first run, and when they played four more in the fifth, the game was on ice.

Cagey Ted Alexander went all the way for the Majors, spacing eight hits and whiffing seven. Lefty Gardener Johnston was top Major batsman with four hits in five trips, but Timber Dahlberg, Joe Bechard, George Evon and Tim Burgess each had three for five.

Mayfair had a sad night of it, committing six bobbles afield to make their cause even more hopeless. Lima and Thompson each hit triples in a losing cause.

Galt Terriers failed to put in an appearance in the other Congress game, but the subbing London Lou Ball Juniors squeaked by to a 6-5 12 inning victory over the Strathroy Royals. The game was an exhibition contest, and won't stand in the Congress elimination series.

The young London squad put on a terrific show for the home town fans, rallying from behind a 4-0 deficit in the ninth to tie it all up. They got two more in the top of the 12th, and then snuffed out a Strathroy rally with one run in the bottom half.

The winning runs came when Ben McColl tripled, Irv Hodgson drove him in with a single, and later crossed the plate on a perfectly-executed squeeze play by Shomburg.

Resumes in London

The series resumes in London Wednesday night with Toronto West Yorks facing Windsor Nationals.

Meanwhile the Galt Terriers were mathematically eliminated from a playoff spot in the Intercounty senior loop when Kitchener Legionnaires downed them [illegible], and the sixth place St. Thomas Legion defeated Guelph Maple Leafs 4-3.

For a while it looked like Galt might take the Legionnaires, with Alex Martin pitching unbeatable ball, but Kitchener touched him for single runs in the sixth and seventh to pull from behind that 2-1 edge. A brilliant relief performance by Wally Beggs saved the win for Kitchener.

Buddy Heximer of Kitchener got in some long-distance clouting with two triples. Andy Garbas and Don Gallinger of Terriers nabbed a pair of safeties each.

Doc Doherty's airtight relief pitching featured St. Thomas' win over Guelph. The winning run came in the fifth for Legion, when Soddy Groat slammed a bases-empty homer over the left field wall.

Nicked for Eight

Doherty, who gave up one run and three hits over the last four innings, won the game, his ninth. George Patte went all the way for Guelph and was nicked for eight hits.

Niagara Falls Fords closed out the Niagara District Senior schedule with a 6-3 win over Cheektowaga Alcoves. The Fords backed up Gord Johnson's seven-hitter with an 11 hit barrage off two Alcove tossers.

Oshawa Merchants pulled five full games ahead of the Viaduct major league race with a 7-4 win over the second place Peterborough Petes. Jeff Creasy had a perfect night at bat for Oshawa, collecting four hits in four trips.

In other Viaduct League action Toronto Aces downed Toronto Staffords 6-2 and New Toronto Simpson Fords walloped Toronto Dovers 11-5.

JUNIOR TEAM SUSPENDED

Toronto, Aug. 23 (CP) — The Ontario Lacrosse Association Tuesday announced suspension of the Owen Sound junior club for the balance of this season for failure to show up on time Monday night for a playoff game with Toronto Maitlands.

Secretary Chuck Rowan said the Owen Sound team was more than an hour late and did not send word to Maitlands about the delay. Each team had won one game in their best-of-three playoff series. The Owen Sound suspension sends Maitlands into the O.L.A. junior B finals against Peterborough, a best-of-five series opening at Peterborough Thursday night.

Argos Could be Surprise Team Of Big Four

By WILFRED GRUSON
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Toronto, Aug. 23 (CP). — Toronto Argonauts, completely revamped after two dismal seasons could turn out to be the surprise of the Big Four Football Union —or a big flop once more.

The Argos have torn apart the team that won three straight Dominion football championships and then collapsed. With the face-lifting job, they hope they're on the road towards producing another powerful gridiron machine.

The task has been given to an American coach, Frank Clair. He succeeds Teddy Morris who failed to get the Scullers into the Big Four playoffs the last two seasons after winning the Grey Cup in 1945-46-47 with all-Canadian teams.

Clair, former professional player with Washington Redskins and coach of the University of Buffalo the last couple of years, has merged several new players with some old Argo stars.

A lot will depend on what the Argos' seven American imports show. It could be another disastrous season such as last year when most of the Scullers imports turned out to be duds. Last season was the first year the Argos used Americans.

By the time Argos play their frist league game—at Montreal Sept. 2—Clair expects to have cut his squad to 32 players. Ten imports are working out; six appear to have won first string berths.

The six are headed by assistant coach John Kerns, 265-pound middle and former star with the professional Buffalo Bills. Buckets Hirsch, a teammate of Kerns with Buffalo.

Three Imports

Three imports are slated for the halfline with Al Dekdebrun at quarter and Speedy Ulysses Curtis and Billy Bass, both Negroes, as halves. Dekdebrun played last year with Hamilton Wildcats and before that with Buffalo and Cornell University. Curtis performed previously with Florida A & M and Bass played for Montreal Alouettes in 1948 after coming from Chicago Hornets.

One of the outside wing berths has been clinched by lanky Bob Heck, who also once played for the Hornets.

Clair has several outstanding halfbacks from among his Canadians, including veteran Joe Krol Byron Karrys, Don Smylie and Ted Toogood and Ed Huycke. Among those also available for the halfline is Frank Gnup, Hamilton Wildcats' coach last year, who because he has been a Canadian resident for four years no longer is classed an import.

The familiar figure of Royal Copeland, a star for several years will be missing. Copeland, who along with Krol was the Argos' one-two punch line in their sweep of three straight Canadian titles, switched this season to Calgary Stampeders for a salary reported close to $10,000.

Besides Copeland the Argos lost several other players, notably linemen Don Durno, Frankie Morris and Bill Briggs and halfback Doug Pryzer. They were all lured away to line up with Edmonton Eskimos.

Teams Battling For Second Place In Int. League

(By The Canadian Press)

Rochester Red Wings are riding high in the international league, leading the pack by eight games, but a battle for second place is shaping up.

The Wings added another victory Tuesday night, downing Toronto Maple Leafs 7-5, thanks to third baseman Don Richmond's four-run homer. Meanwhile Montreals Royals crept to within half a game of the second-place Baltimore Orioles, whose game with Springfield Cubs was rained out.

The Royals smacked four Buffalo pitchers for 19 hits, including three homers, to blast out a 13-4 victory. Johnny Welaj and Jack Lindsey, who crashed two homers in a string of four safeties, rammed over 11 of the Montreal tallies. The former drove in six on a home run and three singles.

Jersey City and Syracuse divided a doubleheader, the Chiefs taking the opener 6-4 but the little giants rebounding in the nightcap 7-1. Both games went eight innings, the latter being halted by rain.

Stewart Warner In Fourth Place Down Pt. Anne 3-2

Stewart Warner's surging drive for a playoff berth carried them into a fourth place deadlock with Ramsay Paints last evening as they edged Point Anne Cementmen 3-2 in a thriller at the Alemite Field.

It was the win needed by the Alemite crew to put it up to Ramsay Paints as to just which team will go into the playoffs. The two squads meet in their final game next Tuesday with the winners advancing to the playoffs and the losers dropping out of softball for another season.

Alemite scored the first run in the top of the second frame. With one out, Alf Rowbotham doubled t. centre field. Jack Moon drilled one into right field but Rowbotham was thrown out at the plate as he tried to score from second. Moon went to second on the play at the plate. Ray Lunberg connected for a single to centre field to score Moon. Leforte walked and Halloran struck out to retire the side.

Point Anne tied it up in the third with leadoff man Jack Hunter clubbing a home run to centro field.

Alemite came up in the top of the fourth with their second run. Rowbotham got a life on an error to lead off and was sacrificed to second by Moon. Lunberg flied out to centde field. The third baseman failed to hold the relay and Rowbotham went to third. He scored on a passed ball. Leforte popped out to the pitcher on the next pitch.

Stewart Warner took a two run lead in the sixth with singles by Vern Carr and Claude Carr, and an error producing the run. Point Anne finished their scoring in the bottom of the sixth when pitcher Maracle smashed a home run to right field with two out and no one on.

Marty Halloran went all the way for the winners walking none, striking out four, and being tagged for seven hits and two runs. Pat Maracle did a good job on the hill for the losers, dropping his third one run game of the season. He walked two, struck out seven, and gave up eight hits for three runs.

PRIVATE PILOT CHARGED

Columbus, O., Aug. 23 — (AP) — Robert F. Simmons of nearby Westerville threw a roll of tissue from his Piper Cub plane and then put the craft into a series of dips and dives to cut the paper, police said Tuesday.

Police charged the 27-year-old pilot with reckless flying. He is scheduled to appear in Municipal Court Wednesday.

Briefs From Training Camps

(By The Canadian Press)

Who looked better against Montreal Alouettes — Calgary Stampeders or Edmonton Eskimos?

It's all in the way you look at it. Said Calgary coach Les Lear after each team had taken its turn trouncing the Grey Cup champions:

"Fine ball club, Eskimos, mighty fine ball club. But Alouettes looked a little dead after that going-over we gave them in Calgary. After all, they've only got 28 men on the trip."

Not to be outdone, Edmonton mentor Annis Stukus commented:

"Actually the Als played a better game here than they did in Calgary. And all their first-stringers were in there most of the game —Filchock, Cunningham, Wagner, Anderson, and they dressed McCance just so he could beat us with his toe."

But no matter how you look at it, those weekend exhibitions gave a pretty strong indication that this may be the west's year.

Another western team, Winnipeg Blue Bombers, suffered a blow from the rail strike. The Bombers' new sweaters are believed stranded on a train somewhere between Toronto and Winnipeg.

It may mean the Bombers will be without their sweaters for the season opener in Winnipeg Saturday, when the Winnipegers square off against Edmonton. They have one consolation—their pants and helmets have already arrived.

Coach Annis Stukus of the Edmonton Eskimos has received a wire from Whipper Watson saying the wrestler will be unable to play for the Esks this season due to wrestling commitments. The Whipper had signed a contract a while back and was actually supposed to make a few appearances in the Eskimo line. Of course the whole thing was a good publicity gag and nobody really expected to see Watson don the pads.

There was a strain on Saskatchewan Roughriders - Winnipeg Bombers relations last weekend but it worked out all right.

Half the Regina executive was in bomber territory trying to get Bull Cockran out of Winnipeg's clutches, and president Jack Rowland of the Riders even telephoned Ralph Misener, his bomber counterpart.

"Where have you got him?" he asked. "Let's be fair about this. We contacted Cochran first."

But it was easier than that. The former Washington Redskin arrived in Winnipeg by air last weekend, on the way to Regina. When he stepped off the plane he was wearing a light summer suit.

The weather in Winnipeg wasn't anything to attract tourists.

Cochran decided he didn't like the west and left for his Alabama home.

"What's going to happen to Bombers Saturday night," is the big question around Winnipeg. Edmonton Eskimos are due in town to open the western interprovincial season.

Nobody knows the answer, though the fans have been talking up a big improvement in their team since last year. The Bombers seem to care less than anyone.

Regina Roughriders will be without their import fullback, Andy Pavich, for the season. Pavich, a star in early Rider workouts, wrenched his knee and is out for the year.

In the east, Ottawa Rough Riders of the Big Four found themselves in much the same position when ace triple-threat Howie (Touchdown) Turner suffered a shoulder separation. Turner will be out for at least two games, probably four.

Attempts to sign former Buffalo Bill fullback Lou Tomasetti bogged down when Tomasetti balked at an Ottawa offer to sign him on a game-to-game basis until Turner returns to action. Other Ottawa players on the limb include fullback Tom Clavin and half Johnny Dengel, but Clavin is expected to play against Alouettes Sunday in the Big Four opener.

Hamilton Tigers-Cats fresh from lopping four U.S. imports off their top-heavy import list, also dropped quarterbacks George Festeryga Tuesday night. Festeryga and coach Carl Voyles had a run-in at practice Monday and the pair parted company on none too good terms.

Tiger-Cats play Mansville Eagles, a U.S. semi-pro team, Friday in an exhibition contest, and Voyles has been cracking the whip in practices. He claims he wasn't satisfied with Hamilton's victory over Sarnia Imperials Saturday.

Fights Last Night

(By The Associated Press)

Syracuse, N.Y.— Nick Barone, 172, Syracuse, outpointed Joe Taylor, 162, Binghamton, N.Y.

New Bedford, Mass. — Henry (Kid) Lee, 160 1-2, Springfield, Mass., outpointed Joe Rindone, 162 1-2, Boston.

Los Angeles—Baby Ike, 147, Los Angeles, outpointed Jackie Harmon, 151 1-2, Quincy, Mass. Al Cruz, 125, Los Angeles, outpointed Roy Higa, 122, Stockton, Calif.

TIGERS NEVER THREATENED

Weston, Ont., Aug. 23 (CP) — Veteran George Masters broke loose for four goals Tuesday night to lead Hamilton Tigers to a 21-9 victory over Weston Lions in an Ontario Lacrosse Association senior game.

Tigers took an early lead, and were never threatened. They led 12-2 at the half and 20-6 at the end of the third period. Every man on the Tiger lineup except goalie Doug Favell picked up scoring points, with Jack Dorney scoring three and Les Digby, Tony Capula, Barney Welsh and Bill Love firing two apiece.

All-American Final Likely In Golf Tourney

By AL VICKERY
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

St. Charles Golf Course, Winnipeg, Aug. 23 (CP)—The gallery is murmuring about an All-American final in the Canadian Women's Open golf championship. But the 12 Canadians left in the running have different ideas.

After two hot performances yesterday in the first round of match play leading to the title, Grace De Moss of Seattle, defending champion, and Dot Kielty of Los Angeles—in different halves of the draw—are being picked by the experts as the "girls to beat."

Miss De Moss advanced to the 16s with an easy 7-and-5 triumph over Mrs. Ray Gibson of Winnipeg. Miss Kielty, Tam O'Shanter amateur champion, hung a 7-and-6 defeat on Mrs. A. Hay of Winnipeg. Both Americans displayed a world of shots as they blazed over the 6,516-yard, par-76 St. Charles layout.

Two other Americans also found little difficulty in knocking off less-experienced Canadians. Mrs. Eddie Bush of Hammond, Ind., won 5 and 4 over Catherine Helleur of Toronto, and Edean Anderson of Portland, Ore., defeated Mrs. E. B. Osler of Winnipeg, 6 and 5.

But the "wise guys" express belief that the sharpshooters from the U.S. still in the tournament are improving each day on the strange course and are about at their peak.

Western Canada still has five golfers in contention—Mrs. Campbell, Mrs. W. S. Edey and Mrs. E. C. Ryan, Jr., all of Winnipeg; Mrs. E. M. Hodson of Shilo, Man., and Babs Davies of Vancouver. The seven easterners left are Ada MacKenzie, Mary Forkin, Mrs. J. H. McCarter and Mrs. N. J. Carlson, all of Toronto; 16-year-old Marlene Stewart of Welland, Ont.; and Daintry Chisholm and Mrs. Graeme Pyke, both of Montreal.

Mrs. Pyke was medalist in the interprovincial championships, won by Ontario, and winner of the 1950 Canadian close title.

The top half of today's draw was De Moss-Forkin; Campbell-Edey; MacKenzie-Stewart and Hodson-Bush. The lower portion had Kielty-McCarter; Ryan-Anderson; Pyke-Carlson and Chisholm-Davies.

YESTERDAY'S STARS

(By The Associated Press)

Batting: Yogi Berra, Yankees—hit two singles, triple and home run, driving in six runs, to lead New Yorkers to a 13-6 romp over Detroit.

Pitching: Vern Bickford, Braves—hurled Braves into third place with a six-hit, 5-1 victory over Cardinals.

Ray Robinson Wants to Fight Jake LaMotta

Scranton, Pa., Aug. 23—(AP)—Sugar Ray Robinson, tuning up for a defence of his Pennsylvania-version middleweight title, let it be known today that he wants to beat Jake Lamotta for the world championship with his fists and not by default.

The Harlem dandy said he understands Lamotta's national boxing association middleweight championhip might be taken away from him.

"I hope not," Robinson said. The hard-hitting slugger figures he can dethrone Lamotta easily in the ring, although as of now no concrete steps have been taken to line up a Robinson-Lamotta fight.

Robinson indicated he'd surrender his world welterweight championship when and if he gets a chance at Lamotta. "I can make the welterweight once a year to defend the title," Robinson said, "but I'm a natural middleweight."

The Sugar has what may be a tough scrap on his hands Friday night against Jose Basora of Puerto Rico. The two fought once before and the bout ended up in a 10-round draw. Robinson still rates that as perhaps his toughest fight.

Robinson arrived at Scranton yesterday and went through two fast rounds against Rego Dell of Scranton. He looked sharp. Basora is scheduled to work out today.

The Friday bout will be Robinson's 116th professional fight. He has lost only once, to Lamotta, and has fought two draws, with Basora and Henry Brimm of Buffalo.

And the fight will mark Robinson's second title defence within 16 days. He scored a one-sided 15-round decision over Charley Fusari Aug. 9 in defence of his welterweight title.

HORSE SENSE BRIDGE

By SAM GORDON
The Kibitzer

Solve your lead problem in bridge with the overall basic rule. Not all these rule leads will turn out best. But they will turn out better than guess and snap judgment. Overwhelmingly so.

Some hands seem to cry out for deviation from rule. With such, recall all the lead and play rules you know. Combine these to see if they will determine a defintc variation from basic rule.

If not, make no wild guess. Hold to basic rule. Even if it is not better it will be no worse than a guess. And it has the added virtue of keeping partner from doubting what you hold.

In defence against no-trump, quickly try to establish tricks for your side. Either in your suit or some suit your partner may hold. Important is it to get the jump in timing for your side.

If your hand is a dud, abandon any hope of developing tricks in what you hold. Concentrate on some suit that partner may be able to develop. Even if you must ignore basic rule to do so.

South is in three no-trump and you hold this west hand:

♠9 8 2
♥7 3
♦9 8 6 4 3
♣8 4 2

The order of choice of leads is tops, longies, shorts. So, rule tells you the lead of a long suit comes before the lead of a short suit. Therefore, rule would tell you to lead a diamond here.

Your hand, however, is absolutely worthless. So is your long suit. By the time you developed the small cards therein it would do you no good. You have no chance to re-enter your hand.

If there is any hope for your side it will be in something your partner may hold. Lead something that may help his timing. The nine of spades is probably your best lead of all your bad holdings.

Partner can read this as the top of a worthless suit. The least it will do is tell him your long suit must be worthless, too. The best you can do is the best you know how.

Movie Column

By BOB THOMAS

Hollywood, Aug. 23 (AP) —If this be treason, California, make the most of it: Frances Langford and Jon Hall are making Florida their official home.

The news, however devastating to the local ego, is true. When I found actor Hall on a movie set, he confirmed it. And he told me why:

"Our main interests now lie in Florida. We have bought a large ranch with 8,000 citrus trees, a beautiful home and a resort at Jensen Beach, not far from Palm Beach. It was silly to go down their just for visits. So we sold our house in Hollywood and will make our headquarters in Florida."

"Mind you, we're not giving up California. We'll come here to make pictures and do radio. It's only 12 hours by air, and we have our own plane. When we're not working, we'll spend the time looking after our Florida property."

Hall will have to return to Smogland-on-the-Pacific two or three times a year to fulfill his Columbia contract. He is currently enacting a colonial Indian friend of young George Washington in something called "When the Redskins Rode." He is probably the first film Indian with curly hair, knee britches and lace.

Short Shorts

Gregory Peck takes two vacations after he kills off a few more Indians in the frontier drama, "Only the Valient." He plans to fish on the Rogue River in Oregon, and visit Mexico. Then he'll return to star with Susan Hayward in "David and Bathsheba," which may be 20th-Fox's answer to "Samson and Delilah." It's a Biblical tale and will be filmed in Beverley Hills, not Palestine as originally planned. . . William Holden will be in two Academy contenders this year, both "Sunset Boulevard," and "Born Yesterday." Long overdue for Oscar consideration, Bill should get a mention this time.

Paper Certain Subs Reported Are Russian

Lonodon, Aug. 23—(Reuters)—The London Daily Herald today says Atlantic Pact naval chiefs 'are now certain' that unidentified submarines being reported in waters throughout the world are Russian.

The pro-labor newspaper, in a front-page news story, says Soviet subs have been instructed "to carry the cold war on to the outer oceans.

Recalling that unidentified submarines have been sighted off the coasts of Canada, the United States, Australia, New Zealand, Japan and Korea, the paper says their appearances are part of a four-point Kremlin campaign.

The four objects, says the Herald, are to provoke an ocean war of nerves, to advertize the growth of the Soviet fleet, to train Soviet seamen in long-range operations, and to show Russians that their strength is no longer land-locked.

The Herald predicts that Russian propaganada, which has ignored the sighting reports so far will shortly review the sub fleet's "summer cruise exercises."

Sports Roundup

By HUGH FULLERTON

Summit, N.J., Aug. 23—(AP)—It's a sort of boxing tradition that when a group of writers visits a training camp, some old-time fighter must go along to provide color, comment and comparisons. Yesterday it was whisper-voiced, cauliflower-eared Johnny Dundee who watched Sandy Saddler get ready for his third featherweight title fight with Willie Pep Sept. 8. And Johnny occasionally departed from the script as he surveyed the scene in the barren, dingy quarters once operated by Madame Bey. "I only had a training camp once," Johnny confessed. . . "That was before my fight with Eugene Criqui. I weighed 155 when I started to get down to 126—I used to eat a lot and drink a lot. . . So I set up a ring in the back yard of my place at West Orange and worked out there." . . . After Saddler finished a brisk four-round workout before a set of television cameras, Dundee asked: "That was mostly for the pictures, wasn't it?" and when informed that was Saddler's regular drill, he exclaimed: "Is that so? Well, I guess he's always in shape, he fights a lot". . .

On the credit side, Dundee was visibly impressed by Saddler's long, lean frame and his left-hand punch, which looked really sharp. "That height is a tremendous help; you can stand off and jab them," Johnny commented. . . "I'm only about five feet five inches and when I was a featherweight, I fought some of the real big fellows. . . take Ray Robinson. If I was him I'd want to fight Ezzard Charles. He has the height and he can punch."

REDS BOMB DESTROYER

With Allied Forces in Korea, Aug. 23 (AP)—Two red Yak fighter planes last night strafed and bombed the Royal Navy destroyer Comus.

The United States Fifth Air Force joint operation centre said no damage was reported in the attack by the Russian-made planes. British ships have been operating along the Korean west coast in the Yellow Sea.

Two Yaks bombed South Korean naval vessels today in the Yellow Sea southwest of Seoul. The operation centre did not report on damage.

Little Benny's Note Book

Us fellows were sitting on my frunt steps talking about different subjects sutch as everybody suffering from the high cost of living and none of the fellows having gone away this summer on account of everybody's family saving money, and Puds Simkins said, Oh well, what the heck, who wants to go away?

Sure, G, imagine having to do all that packing before you go, and then unpacking it all again as soon as you get wherever you're going, and then having to pack it the 2nd time for coming home, I said, and Skinny Martin said, Oh boy, your whole family would be so wore out packing and unpacking, they'd all make a New Year resolution to stay home the rest of their lifes.

Sure, and your father would be in a bad temper all the time on account of missing your mother's homemade cooking, so he wouldn't let you do hardly anything you wanted to, Glasses Magee said, and Sid Hunt said, And you'd have to drink a lot of warm milk out of a cow instead of cold out of a refrigerator. Good nite, warm milk, take it away, he said.

And you'd sit around wondering what the rest of the guys were doing back home, and the result would be you probably never would find out, because by the time you got back they'd all of forgotten half the exciting things that happened to them while you were away feeling ignorant, I said.

Which just then Lucky Leroy Shooster came up, saying, Hay, fellows, what do you know, we're going away to the country till school starts. And my mother says maybe some of you guys can come and visit me there, maybe, he said, and us fellows said, Oh boy, are you lucky, will we be lucky!

And we yelled from good news and excitement, proving we had only been talking and not feeling.

ONCE DYING FARM AREA IS NOW "GOLD MINE" FOR TOBACCO GROWERS

The discovery in 1919 that tobacco would grow in Ontario's Norfolk county, transformed a dying mixed-farming district into a thriving "gold mine." That "gold mine" is still producing and is more prosperous than ever. Growing 5 per cent. of the total Canadian crop of flue-cured tobacco (the type you smoke in your favorite Canadian cigarette), Norfolk farmers earn over $25,000,000 each year from their 60,000,000 pounds of "golden weed." Tobacco, piled in a "boat", is seen on its way to a sorting desk, where it is tied on to laths. Over 200 laths are placed in a kiln for curing, which takes five to six weeks. Harvesting the Norfolk county flue-cured crop requires a labor force of 30,000 workers. Central Press Canadian.

PART OF NEW AMERICAN COUNTER - OFFENSIVE

U. S. troops are shown digging in behind trucks and slit trenches prior to the new American counter-offensive in Korea. American forces struck the enemy west of Yongsan behind a screen of tanks, artillery barrages and air cover in one of the hardest blows by American forces in 54 days of fighting over Korea.—Central Press Canadian.

CHINJU FEELS WEIGHT OF U. S. AIR FORCE

Huge columns of smoke rising from a densely built-up section of Chinju, South Korea, give proof of the results achieved by U.S. fighter-bomber strikes in support of advancing marines. After a steady advance, the marines were suddenly switched to another sector of the front.—Central Press Canadian.

RED BIRD SHOT IN KOREAN SKIES

The wreckage of a fighter plane belonging to the Communist North Korean forces is examined by a native as it lies on a field near the fighting front. The craft was shot down by a United States jet pilot. —Central Press Canadian

COLLECTING SPOILS OF WAR

At Indong, in the northwest sector of the Korean battle front, two South Korean soldiers are seen as they collected shells from gun of a North Korean tank knocked out (background) in the fighting in this area to erase the Communist bulge. Both are with the Republic of Korea's first division which were reported to have fought off heavy enemy tank and infantry attacks north and northeast of Waegwan.—Central Press Canadian.

FROM THE ENEMY'S POINT OF VIEW

Enemy-eye view of a charging U. S. tank is given in this photo of an advance over Korean roads. Use of tanks instead of manpower has kept U. S. casualty lists far below that of the North Koreans. —Central Press Canadian.

FALLS HEIR TO BIG JOB

Heir to the job of mayor of New York, Vincent Impellitteri poses for cameramen with his wife. Currently president of the city council, and frequently serving as acting mayor, Impellitteri succeeds William O'Dwyer who is resigning Sept. 1 to become ambassador to Mexico. Since such temporary term ends on Jan. 1, 1951, Impellitteri announced that he will be a candidate in the November election to fill O'Dwyer's unexpired three-year tenure.—Central Press Canadian.

PIPELINE SPREADS ACROSS PRAIRIE

Oil pipeline from Gretna, Man., to Winnipeg is growing at the rate of a mile a day. Heavy machinery such as tractors, derricks, trench diggers and buffers put the sections, welded, insulated and painted into a shallow trench at record-making speed. Though the pipeline itself will be finished in six weeks, it will be six months before Winnipeg motorists will be using oil from the pipeline in their cars, as pumping stations and refineries have still to be established.—Central Press Canadian.

Fireman Fatally Injured, Hurled Against Pillar

Hamilton, Aug. 22—(CP)—Edgar Aitchinson, 40, was fatally injured last night when he was hurled head-first out of a Burlington volunteer fire department truck against a cement pillar. The truck was responding to an alarm from a burning cottage.

Aitchinson's father and grandfather were former Hamilton fire chiefs. His grandfather was killed here in almost identical circumstances in 1905 when his horse-drawn fire wagon crashed into a monument of Sir. John A. MacDonald.

Village in Iraq Oldest in World

Chicago, — (AP) — Probably you've never heard of Jarmo. It's a block square village site in northeastern Iraq that is little more than a mound of dirt.

University of Chicago scientists, who tested samples from the village on their atomic calendar, said:

"Jarmo is about 7,000 years old — the eldest known village site in the world."

An expedition from the University's Oriental Institute will go there this winter to search for evidence of "the first great economic revolution in human history."

Robert J. Braidwood, Associate Professor of Old World Prehistory and Anthropology said diggers expect to find evidence of town planning — the first row houses and party walls known to history.

A representative of the Iraq government stumbled onto the site by accident in 1946. A village sheik who resided nearby used flint and steel to light a proferred cigarette. The flint, a finely worked product of the late stone age. came from the mound.

University of Chicago archaeologists made a preliminary examination of the site three years ago, finding wheat and barley grains, utensils for grinding them, flint tools and snail shells.

Chemical analysis of the amount of radioactive carbon 14 in the snail shells fixed the age of the site. All living things absorb radioactive carbon from the atmosphere in the growing and living process. This halts when the plant or creature dies and the carbon 14 then starts losing its radioactivity at a known rate.

YOU MAY QUALIFY

We are ready to give a valuable profit-making franchise to an individual or organization experienced in direct selling.
We are a well rated nationally known manufacturer of aluminum combination windows, doors, screens and porches. Our products are nationally advertised and accepted, and carry "THE GOOD HOUSEKEEPING INSTITUTE SEAL OF APPROVAL". They are bought by owners of every type of structure, including residential, commercial and institutional.
The organization we want, need not necessarily be in the building product business, but as this is a valuable connection with the leader in its field, moderate working capital is needed and the ability to establish an aggressive direct selling organization.
Our product will be on display at The Canadian National Exhibition in Toronto, Booths 8 and 9 in the Lower West Annex of the Coliseum, August 25th. through September 9th., and at London, Ontario Fair, Booth 254 in the Manufacturers' Building, September 11th., through September 16th. You may contact Mr. I. M. Zitomer personally at either of the two Exhibitions or send your inquiries to him, at 362-80 Chilver Road, Windsor, Ontario, Phone 3-2441.

Unions Announce Moratorium On Future Strikes

Washington, Aug. 23—(AP)—Union officials Tuesday night announced a moratorium "for the time being" on further United States rail strikes after a new sries of White House talks had failed to reach a settlement.

A union spokesman told reporters he was speaking for both the trainmen's and conductors' unions in declaring:

"Out of consideration for the President, and respect for him, extension of the strikes to other yards and terminals or beyond that have for the time being been held in abeyance."

But the spokesman would not predict how long the pledge against the spread of strikes would hold.

Some union officials earlier had hinted a major expansion of the present five-day "token" walkouts if a quick settlement of the 17-month-old dispute was not reached

However, the union spokesman indicated that any such action had been thrown overboard following a new round of White House conferences.

Late Tuesday afternoon, the White House had again summoned union and management officials for the second time during the day, but once more the announcement was "no progress."

Union officials said President Truman had not specifically requested the moratorium, although he had previously asked the unions to call off the walkouts.

PAROLE SYSTEM

The parole system for convicts began in England in 1660 when prisoners transported to the colonies were set free under certain restrictions after a period of service.

The Gentle Heart

By Kay Hamilton

Jenny nodded. "I know, she said. He seemed relieved that his information was no news to her.

"My first impulse was to kill her career. I could do it. I know what wires to pull, and I'd not spare the bankroll pulling them. She could find it awfully hard to get a modeling job in a couple of weeks. I thought that might turn her back to Fred. But the more I thought of it, the more I wondered if it was the right thing to do. That's why I'm here tonight—to ask your advice." He sat back and Jenny stared into the fire, completely motionless.

She said slowly, "Don't do it. Diane really needs her work, I think. And certainly without it her mariage to Fred might collapse. It wouldn't be fair, either to take from her something which she can do so well. Some day she will mature enough to realize that there is a career in marriage, too, but until that time she needs something besides homemaking to keep her occupied." I'll speak to her about Pete."

He got up at once. 'I knew you'd straighten me out," he said, an unaccustomed note of gratitude in his voice. "My next move—and, brother, this is going to hurt—is to ease myself and my crowd out of her life."

Jenny said, with a wondering air, 'You do love her, then."

"Yes, I love her," he said soberly. "In the old careless days I had no idea love could do this to you, and I certainly rebelled against it. But now I don't know. Perhaps it's worth it, pain and all."

Jenny sat by the fire long after he had left. Yes, love was worth it, pain and all. She could look back on the years when she had lived without this ache in her heart and could find them empty. Life was meant to be full and rich with experience even though some of the experience was bound to bring suffering.

The next morning was cold and clear with sunlight sparkling on the crusty surface of the snow in diamond-like brilliance. The sky was a deep violet blue of illimitable depth, and the bare branches of the trees were etched against it in still patterns

Natalie announced suddenly at breakfast that she was going to New York.

"Have you finished you new designs?" Jenny asked in surprise, but Natalie said evasively, she wasn't going in for that. She did not enlarge on her purpose and Jenny did not ask. Two months ago she would not have hesitated to press the question, but now the first thing which rose to her mind was the knowledge that Brent, too, was going in to New York today.

She saw that Natalie dressed with exceptional care. A new copper wool dress which she had ordered from Elsa, had never been worn before and looked charming under her dark brown coat. She had on a new pair of suede pumps under her galoshes, Too. It seemed rather foolish, Jenny thought to run the risk of spoiling her new shoes, tramping about the city in hot galoshes. Her brown felt hat sported two saucy copper-colored wings. She looked very lovely.

She came back to the house again after she had left and kissed Jenny a second time. "Don't" over-do it now," she admonished her sister. "Leave some of that snow for Ruthven tomorrow. Take it easy won't you.

Jenny was too astonished to speak and Natalie did not wait for an answer. She ran down the steps and hurried toward the station almost as if she were afraid her sister would start to ask her questions.

Jenny put in her order for groceries by telephone then set about cleaning the second floor. She would have liked to take the studio too since it was to be unused today but she didn't see how she could work it all in. The parade of models had stopped about two weeks ago and Brent had sent in the last of his finished paintings for the bus company account—a simple white church against the delicate sky and faint new green of spring. The groups of people talking about the entrance, the children and dogs playing nearby all bespoke in their attitudes the first season of the year.

Jenny had thought when she saw it, of something her father had said one time. "A good illustrator," he had told her "observes so constantly and so completely that he can evoke at any time any season or any mood. And because he is not dependent upon actuality before him he reproduces only the essence of the season or mood, so that the beholder receives a greater emotional impact."

She made her bed thoughtfully, going over this in her mind. If this was true and she believed it herself, then Brent was going to be a great illustrator some day. His ability to recapture mood and emotion was rare and even the smallest things in his compositions had a relationship not only to design, but to this essential quality

He had worked hard over these paintings for the bus company, and the final check had come only two days ago. He had waved it in front of the girls crying triumphantly, "I'm rich do you know it? Rich! I could go on a cruise tomorrow if i felt like it or loaf for a year and paint whatever I wanted to. Or I could get married Say, that's an idea!"

Jenny had turned away but Natalie had taken him up gaily. "It's a good one, too! A wild young artist like you needs an anchor to windward. Some sweet little girl who will keep your nose to the drawing board!"

Jenny had not waited to hear what he said to that; she had hurried from the room. Now she went back over the scene with painful remembrance. It was true that Brent had more money this minute than he had ever possessed before She hoped he woudn't spend it foolishly. And then smiled at her own worry. She couldn't even imagine his being foolish in that sense.

Jenny straightened her back, her fingers trailing softly over the chenille bedspread in one final smoothing. What had got into her lately that she should worry and fret about everything and everyone? She had never been like that before She moved into Natalie's bedroom with determination staring at the confusion with an amused smile Despite Natalie's groomed appearance when she left, she must have dressed like a minor whirlwind to make the room look like this.

There were three stockings on the bed The fourth striped with a long run she found crumpled in a ball in the wastebasket. Two slips of varying length were draped across the chair. Natalie's bedroom scuffs were at opposite ends of the room. Apparently she had kicked one of them off with such force that it had traveled fifteen feet! There was powder all over the dressing table and even some on the floor. Her glove box had spilled its contents and her perfume bottle was unstoppered.

Jennny set about straightening things mechanically. She hung up the slips, folded the good stockings retrieved the scuff sorted the gloves. Underneath the pile, she found a crumpled piece of paper and started to toss it away, when she saw that it contained an address It might be something Nat would want, so she smothed it out and laid it on the desk. And then the writing on it struck her like a blow between the eyes.

"City Hall at 2:30," it said, in Brent's writing.

City Hall! Her numb brain struggled with what one did at a City Hall besides getting married of course. You paid taxes there. Or did New Yorkers pay their taxes at the City Hall? Of course not! You presented petitions to the Mayor. Dear Mr. Mayor, Please permit me to keep me three afghan hounds in my two-room apartment. The neighbors object and say they are noisy, but if you only knew Willy, Nilly and Silly, you would love them.. Vital statistcs. Born, to the Stefan Mechaniks, one son seven pounds and two ounces. Vital statistics could mean marriage too, couldn't they

She felt dizzy, clutched at the desk to steady herself This license is a permit for a marriage between Natalie Mayhew, aged twenty-seven, and Brent Evans aged thirty-one. That probably wasn't the way they worded it, but it didn't matter, Natalie and Brent...

But wasn't this what she had been expecting for a long time now? Wasn't this what had hung over her for weeks so that she had never seen them together but the thought had sprung fiercely form her subconscious?

She finished her work in Natalie's room with no realization of what she was doing. She went downstairs and wandered through the cheerful sunny rooms in a fog of bewilderment. What she had dreaded was upon her now. What would she do when they came back? How could she stay here? She couldn't! She couldn't!

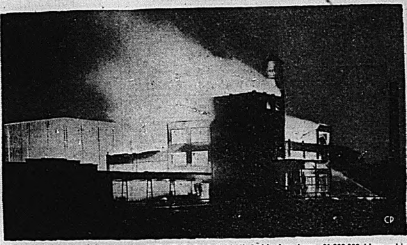
FED BY ALCOHOL



Explosions in four giant vats of distilled alcohol kindled this four-hour, $1,000,000 blaze which destroyed the processing plant and grain storage warehouse of Calvert Distilleries, Limited, at Amherstburg, Ont. The first blast, felt for five miles, blew out the top-floor walls and roof and shattered windows in the town. No one was injured. —(CP Photo.)

Earmark Third Of Steel Output In 1951 - - Iron Age

New York, Aug. 23—(AP)—A third of all American flat-rolled steel production will be earmarked next year for hot and cold war and essential civilian use, the Iron Age says today.

The metalworking weekly says the weight of the defence program will be on plates and sheets, and on some tubing for rockets and other weapons. The Iron Age sees it this way:

On a tonnage basis, defence and essential civilian needs will take only 15 per cent of next year's American output. But demand will be concentrated on certain products, so that some steel users will be more affected than others.

To meet this emphasis of demand upon some steel products rather than others, the Iron Age says, "To some extent steel producers can alter their product-mix to make more of some items and less of others, but this is limited by the flexibility of the company's finishing facilities."

Believe Engineers Making Survey For Radar Chain

Toronto, Aug. 23—(CP)—The Globe and Mail says today in a newspage story that 10 United States army engineers have arrived in Northern Ontario for what is believed to be a survey for the location of a chain of radar stations across the north.

They have set up quarters at Ramore, 57 miles southeast of Timmins, the paper adds. The engineers were accompanied by three R.C.A.F. signals officers from Ottawa.

"The R.C.A.F. officers said that announcement concerning the activities of the Americans would be made sometime soon from Ottawa," the story says.

During the second world war the U.S. army maintained radar stations in Northern Ontario at Cochrane, Kapuskasing, Hearst and Nakina as an advance screen to protect the ship canals at Sault Ste. Marie.

Canada Struggles With Industrial Layoffs, Shortages

Reduced Layoffs Felt In Every Section of Country

(By The Canadian Press)

Canada struggled today with spreading industrial layoffs and new possibilities of shortages, the result of a national railway and telegraph strike.

After two days of the strike, practically every Canadian had been touched in one way or another.

Thousands were temporarily out of work. Reduced payrolls would inevitably be felt by every section of the country.

Others, in isolated communities, were running short of some foods. Millions more found themselves with a reduced mail service and no telegraph communications.

Buses, air lines, truck companies and telephone systems struggled to try to keep up with the rush of new business.

Saskatchewan, dependent on coal for electric power, faced a power shortage as railway coal cars lay idle. Outdoor electric signs were turned off in Saskatoon last night and street cars ran on a reduced schedule.

Western wheat farmers and Ontario peach producers all expected serious problems in marketing their crops without railway cars. In addition, a prolonged strike could stop the usual movement of eastern workers to the prairie harvest.

By the end of the week, nearly 14,000 coal miners in Nova Scotia, Alberta and British Columbia might be laid off. So might nearly 8,000 auto workers in Oshawa and Hamilton, Ont.

Refinery workers in Trail, B.C., and Sudbury, Ont., packing-house workers in scattered cities across the country, base-metal miners at Copper Mountain, B.C., and hundreds of flour-mill workers were laid off.

Appreciable Loss

Other heavy industries said they would have to close down when present stocks of raw materials ran out or when warehouses overflowed.

Girl Explains Murder Motive To Grand Jury

Los Angeles, Aug. 24 (AP) — "We wanted money to get married on," 16-year-old Peggy Byrns testified yesterday in explaining the motive for a holdup that ended in murder.

Blowing kisses occasionally to her sweetheart, Tommy Cook, 18, on trial for murder in the slaying of a liquor store owner, she shouldered blame for the affair.

"Of course we considered ourselves married. . .we even had a (mock) marriage certificate drawn up. We both signed it and felt we were man and wife. But we wanted money for a real wedding," she said.

"It was my idea to stage the holdup. It was my idea to get a gun. It was my idea to 'case' the store first. . . I even helped load to the gun for Tommy. But it wasn't his idea, or anybody's to shoot that man. That was just an accident.".

Authorities say Peggy, Cook and other teen agers were members of a "crime club" that planned robberies in school using ideas obtained from comic books and radio mysteries.

The slain man was Dominic Calarco, a former resident of Kitchener.

Other witnesses have testified that Cook fatally shot Calarco during the May 12 holdup.

"I met Tomy at a Hallowe'en party. I loved him. I love him now," Peggy sobbed.

Court officials half-carried her, weeping from the stand.

Drew to Return By Special Plane

Florence, Italy, Aug. 24 (Reuters) —George Drew, Canadian parliamentary opposition leader, said today an RCAF plane is being flown to Italy from Britain to get him back to Ottawa in time for the emergency reopening of parliament Tuesday to discuss the Dominion-wide rail strike.

"I do not know what the full issues are yet, so I cannot comment," Drew said. "But when I heard last night that a special session had been called for Tuesday I made immediate preparations to get back to the capital as soon as possible.

"A special plane is due this afternoon from London to pick me up. It may land at Venice, Milan or Pisa airports. The moment I get confirmation I will take off by car to meet it."

Drew's sudden return will lop off about three weeks from his European holiday, including a visit to London.

His family will continue holidaying at the Florence villa where they are staying, returning later to Canada.

Drew was earlier reported by the Canadian embassy at Rome to have left for Venice, but a last minute change in the possible landing place for the aircraft made him change his plans and await confirmation from the high commissioner's office in London before leaving Florence.

THE WEATHER

Sunny, warm weather is forecast for most of Ontario today. However, a disturbance over South Dakoka moving eastward will bring cloudiness and rain to the northern half of the province during tonight and some cloudiness to southern regions Friday afternoon. Another weak disturbance over Arkansas threatens to bring rain to south western Ontario Friday evening.

LUMBERMAN EXECUTED

Witney, Ont., Aug. 24 (CP)—Graham Lagenski, 23, of Witney was electrocuted yesterday on a Hydro Electric Power Commission transmission line 14 miles south of here.

Police said that Lagenski, a lumberman, was moving a log-jammer beneath the power line when the current apparently jumped from the line to the grounded jammer. Lagenski was thrown 25 feet by force of the shock and killed.

10,000 GUARD FREE TERRITORY, COMBAT READY

Tito's Troops Believed To be Powerful Army

By JAMES M. LONG

Trieste, Aug. 24—(AP)— Ten thousand British and American troops are ready here if communism's next armed blow falls on neighboring Yugoslavia.

Garrisoning this allied-guarded free territory on the Yugoslav-Italian border, they are "combat ready" in training and equipment. But they sit on a spot too tight to hold—and backed by an Italian army probably still too weak to help.

Their chief bulwark is the opinion, held by American military observers here and in Rome, that the Yugoslav army would be a tough nut for other communist states to crack.

Kremlin Only Knows

Probably no one outside the Kremlin knows if such an invasion blow is scheduled for Yugoslav Premier Tito's tough little anti-Stalin communist state.

But if such a communist move should come, most observers think the Anglo-American forces here would be reinforced quickly and ordered into the fight. Action in Korea is an example.

Well qualified opinion here holds that Tito's troops are equal to or better than anything that any one or two of the surrounding Russian satellites could muster for an attack.

But hit by them all. Hungary, Romania, Bulgaria, Albania—and by strong Soviet support, Yugoslavia would need help.

This thin strip of free territory is five miles deep and 20 miles long, centred on the port and naval basin of Trieste. It is the bace from which that help would have to come.

No one knows what Italy would do. She has no love for Yugoslavia. She probably would help in a fight to keep her own frontiers from being the next to be breached. But her fighting force is limited by her second world war peace treaty to less than Yugoslavia's Italy is the weakest link in the western wall.

Trieste itself would be useful as a base only if a Soviet attack could be checked far short of it. The British-American zones are stretched along the coastal flatland, virtually untenable against attack from the 1,000-foot-high inland plain which looks down from within close artillery range.

DRAG RIVER FOR BODY

Windsor, Aug. 24 — (CP) — Police of suburban Riverside continued dragging today for the body of six-year-old Anthony Szejbut, missing from his home since early yesterday.

The search was halted late last night after unsuccessful attempts to find the child, who had been playing on a riverfront rock near his home. It is feared he fell into the water and was drowned.

He had been playing with his brother Stefan, seven, and his sister Kathryn, three.

Dime Idea Grows Into $200,000,000 Little Folks' Banking Business

Levis, Que., Aug. 24 (CP) — Penny-wise people from Europe, the United States and all the Canadian provinces come here today to sing the praise of Alphonse Desjardins and his 10-cent idea that grew into a $200,000,000 little folks' banking business.

The visitors are international, national, provincial and parish experts in the operation of credit unions—people's banks— which in Quebec Province in 50 years have jumped their membership from 84 to 561,184 and their assets from $8.40 to $210,000,000.

The little-known town of Levis, overshadowed by Quebec City across the St. Lawrence River, is playing host to the credit union leaders of the world because it is here that Desjardins started North America's First People's Bank.

It was in 1900 after the modest reporter of parliamentary debates, worried by speeches about loan sharks, set out to teach people how to be their own bankers.

Operated on System

Desjardins operated the first bank on a system of 10-cent weekly contributions by 84 members in Levis. This principle is the one that still applied today in more than 1,000 Quebec Province Credit Unions that make loans to their members for doctors' bills, house repairs and building, and for all kinds of other problems solved quickly by ready cash.

The Quebec Credit Unions also have fire, theft, life and various other forms of insurance at low rates.

To commemorate the half-century anniversary of the First Caisse Populaige Desjardins, operators of the present Credit Unions at Levis invited people active in the popular savings movement to come here for a four-day convention starting today.

Convention organizers say that —railway strike or no railway strike—more than 5,000 people from the United States, the 10 Canadian provinces, Denmark, Sweden, Belgium, France, Great Britain and Italy will be here for meetings lasting until Sunday night. Travel problems will be solved, the organizers say, by co-operation.

Training Camps for Russia's E. German Army Increased From 11 to 50 in Few Months

By BRACK CURRY

Frankfurt, Germany, Aug. 24 (AP)—Allied officials reported today that training camps for Russia's elite east-German army have been increased from 11 to 50 in less than six months.

This vast expansion indicates that the Rusians intend to build a huge new "Red Wehrmacht" around this communist armed force, the officials said.

This east-German force of 50,000 men has been trained as a carde for a large German army taking orders from Russia, they said. The officials gave this assessment, of developments:

May Be Easily Expanded

The dark-uniformed, jack-booted force could easily be expanded to 150,000 men, perhaps in a matter of weeks, with the increase in training facilities.

Officers and non-coms will be used to train troops just as Hitler built his Wehrmacht around the professional Reichswehr.

Already the 50,000-man east-German army gives Russia a combined Russian-German combat force of 320,000 men facing the west in eastern Germany.

New equipment, including late model tanks and jet planes, are flowing to the red army in east Germany. Some of it may be intended for the east-German army.

However, no additional Soviet troops have been sent to Germany this year.

Reliable reports from inside communist east Germany show that the east German army and all police number about 250,000.

Division of Forces

These forces are divided into:

1. The 50,000 man Bereitschaften (alert units). This is the so-called east German army, branded by the Western Powers as an illegal communist army created in violation of four power agreements to keep the Germans disarmed.
2. 150,000 Volkspolizei (People's Police). This highly organple's police). This highly centralized force carries on traditional police functions, including secret police duties.
3. 50,000 other police assigned to guard borders, factories, waterways and railways.

The allied officials added:

In a war, only the Bereitschaften would move with the red army. The 'people's police' would be left behind in East Germany to watch the population and protect the Russians' rear.

The Bereitschaften are receiving training in the use of mortars, tanks, anti-tank guns and artillery, but they have not been supplied in quantity with these weapons.

Material Piles Up

The red army has enough material in East Germany to supply an offensive against the West without further stockpiling from Russia. The Russians now have more men, planes and tanks in Germany than all the Western Powers have in Europe.

A recent allied assessment of Russian military power in Europe underscores the belief of military experts that the Russians could sweep to the Atlantic coast if they decided to launch an attack. But there are no indications of an imminent assault from the east.

This is what late official reports from inside red Germany show:

The Russians have 270,000 troops there. Backing up this force are some 500,000 hardened Russian troops in Austria, Poland and the Balkans.

20 Divisions in E. Germany

Russian strength in East Germany is divided into 20 divisions. Half of these are armored and half are infantry. The western powers in all of Europe have less than 12 divisions, including occupation troops in Germany.

The Soviet armored divisions are equipped with around 4,000 tanks. New models, including the 33-ton T-34, are being shipped in from Russia. This model is considered one of the best now available to any army.

In the air, the red air force in Germany could throw perhaps 1,500 first - line planes at the west if the Kremlin decided to attack. Several hundred Soviet jets — perhaps as many as 500—are based on new east - German fields. The Soviet jets are first-class planes.

The Russians have no four-engined bombers in Germany but their air force is lavishly supplied with dive bombers.

They have about 30 air fields in East Germany, not all usable for jet planes.

N. Koreans Shift Pressure From Central to Southern Front in Strong Drive

Tokyo, Aug. 25 (Friday) — (AP) — A heavily-armed red Korean division rolled eastward Thursday night toward American positions on the Korean south coast, posing a new threat to the Allied port of Pusan, some 50 miles away.

The threat appeared in the south after pressure had eased on the central front north of Taegu where feelers for five red divisions were thrown back for five consecutive days.

(Reuters news agency reported that American and South Korean troops had advanced in limited attacks at both ends of the front. The communists were shoved back west of Masan, near the south coast, and northwest of Taegu, the agency said.)

U. S. planes bombed and strafed the approaching reds in the south. The communists were moving in small groups to minimize their chances of being hit from the air.

The sudden, unexplained shift of North Korean troops north of Taegu left their mountain positions to allied troops, 13 miles north of the fortress city. Before settling in them Thursday night U.S. and South Korean infantrymen beat off flanking attacks.

AP correspondent Tom Lambert reported that the communist movement away from allied front lines, now 13 miles north of Taegu, reduced the immediate threat to the rail-head city.

The reds appeared to be probing for a softer spot to hit with their five divisions on the central front.

Pressure by these 50,000 reds diminished on the fifth day of bitter battling along the rocky corridor to Taegu.

United States and South Korean troops smashed four red lunges in the five day period.

The reds [illegible] were scheduled to capture Taegu August 15—the anniversary of Korean liberation from Japan.

Under the same time table the reds were scheduled to end the war in victory by Aug. 31 on orders from Premier Kim Il Sung of North Korea.

Correspondent Lambert said South Korean troops, advancing eastward under allied plane attacks, captured "The Citadel," a craggy high ridge north of Taegu from which comunist observers had looked down on United Nations positions.

Other localized flank attacks, including two of company strength —about 200 men each—were repulsed.

By Thursday afternoon Gen MacArthur's war summary reported "decreasing enemy pressure" in the bloody mountain battlefield where in one 72-hour period 3,500 casualties were inflicted on the reds.

Marine airmen said they killed 300 North Koreans Thursday in a rocket and strafing attack on heavy troop concentrations.

Belleville Girl Wins Scholarship

Toronto, Aug. 24. (CP)—Winners of 24 Legion scholarships, tenable at any Ontario University and the Royal Military College, Kingston, were announced today by Mayor P. Biggs, secretary of the Ontario Command of the Canadian Legion.

The scholarships, each valued at $275, are awarded to veterans eligible for Legion membership. The awards will be made annually.

The winners include, Patricia M. Smith, Belleville.

COUNTRY-WIDE U.S. RAIL STRIKE SET FOR MONDAY

Unions Put Issue Squarely Up to Truman

Washington, Aug. 24 (AP) — Union orders for a country-wide railroad strike in the United States next Monday put the rail-labor wage-hour problem squarely up to President Truman today.

The railroad strike in Canada now is in its fourth day. Thus if the threatened walkout develops in the United States, virtually all rail transportation in North America will be at a standstill.

Truman's choice seems to be either some new move aimed at quickly settling the long-smouldering dispute or ordering government seizure of the rail industry.

Some indication of how the President intends to handle this sudden threat to the U.S. transport system—coming in the midst of the Korean fighting and a swelling rearmament program—is expected at Truman's press conference today.

Two big rail unions — the Brotherhood Railroad Trainmen and Order of Railway conductors —gave their all-out strike orders to their 300,000 members last night after a new deadlock developed in White House discussions.

The strike call against 131 rail lines was expected. The union leaders only Tuesday night had given everyone to understand they would not expand five-day "token" walkouts presently in progress at five key rail centres.

However, the dispute over wages and working hours has dragged out over a period of 1½ years—and constantly been growing more ominous.

Gov. Dewey Hopes Seaway Project Soon Undertaken

Ottawa, Aug. 24. (CP)—Governor Thomas Dewey of New York yesterday expressed hope that the United States government would consent to Ontario and New York State going ahead with construction of the power end of the St. Lawrence Seaway project.

Mr. Dewey gave the hope to newspaper men just after emerging from a 50-minute talk with Prime Minister St. Laurent in the Prime Minister's office.

The governor would not say whether he had discussed the waterway project with Mr. St. Laurent but he said he had conferred on it with Premier Leslie Frost of Ontario. The province wants to join New York in developing the river power independently of the seaway.

Both the Canadian and United States administrations are in favor of the seaway, but as a joint power-navigation project rather than as separate undertakings.

A treaty was signed several years ago and ratified by the Canadian parliament. However, the seaway has been stalled by consistent lack of ratification from the U.S. Senate.

Timmins' Merchants Suspend Deliveries to Save Gas Supply

Timmins, Ont., Aug. 24—(CP)—Merchants today suspended delivery of groceries to conserve gasoline supplies made scarce by the rail strike.

But officials in this gold-mining town in Northern Ontario said that, contrary to some reports, food is not running short. One small bakery used up all its flour and closed down temporarily but large bakeries are running.

The operator of a packing plant says he has enough meat on hand "to supply the whole town." A brewery still is operating and no shortage of beer has developed.

Today trucks from southern Ontario began to pick up loads from paper mills in this area for their return trips. This means that truckloads of Niagra Peninsula peaches, various other foodstuffs and medical supplies will move into this district in a greatly increased flow.

These supplies from the south will go not only to Timmins but also to Kirkland Lake, Haileybury, Cobalt, New Liskeard, Kapuskasing and Hearst.

Reporters from the Timmins Daily Press who visited Kapuskasing and Hearst yesterday said that, in those commnuities northwest of here, merchants have started rationing some items of food. Supplies of meat, canned milk, sugar, rice and flour are dwindling.

A shortage of gasoline at Hearst has led to a daytime power blackout. To conserve fuel, the operator of a diesel-powered electricity plant is running his generators only at night. Lack of daytime power has forced a shutdown of X-ray and steam table equipment at the Hearst hospital.

Hidden Gunman Fires on North Bay Rail Picketers

Police Finding No Clues Are Mystified by Act

North Bay, Ont., Aug. 24. — (CP)—A hidden gunman fired on six railway picketers here early today and escaped without being seen.

Picket Captain Mike Ricci, a striking employee of the Ontario Northland Railway, said the shots came from the direction of a nearby lumber yard.

Pickets on the Canadian Pacific railway crossing about 100 feet away also heard the shots and saw the light break.

Some of the men raced four blocks to union headquarters to report the shooting and telephone police. A thorough police search of the lumber yard yielded no clues. A lumber yard watchman said he saw no one enter or leave the yard.

Not Scared

A union spokesman said the shooting "was probably the work of a mischief maker trying to discredit the union. We certainly aren't being scared off. Our pickets will continue their 24-hour patrol."

Police, unable to explain the shots, suggested it might have been a "prank".

"I can't see any reason for the shooting," said Inspector I. A. Thurlow. "I don't think it was aimed at the strikers . . .we don't even know the calibre of the gun used and no one was found in the neighborhood when our officers arrived."

British Troops For Korea Told To Stand Ground

Hong Kong, Aug. 24 — (AP)— On the eve of their departure for the Korean war front, British troops today were told to "shoot quick, shoot straight and shoot to kill."

This advice came from Gen. Sir John Harding, British Commander in the Far East, during a last-minute troop inspection. They are scheduled to sail tomorrow.

The troops have loaded equipment and supplies aboard the aircraft carrier Unicorn. Authorities have neither confirmed nor denied reports that the Unicorn is to take the contingent to Korea.

The general read a message of welcome from Gen. Douglas MacArthur to the Korea - bound troops, from the 1st Battalion of the Middlesex Regiment and the Argyll and Sutherland Highlanders.

MacArthur's message read: — "Please express my great thanks and appreciation at the news of British troop reinforcements. They will add new lustre to British arms.

"They will have a warm welcome when they arrive here and will receive my personal attention."

Harding called on the troops to "maintain that great British military tradition of standing on your ground when ordered to do so. Don't worry about your flanks."

Balanced Budget Presented by N.Z. Premier

Wellington, N.Z., Aug. 24 (CP) —A balanced budget with limited tax reductions, despite a big increase in defence spending, was presented to parliament today by Prime Minister Sidney Holland.

Though the individual tax levy stand at the record level of £68 a head, this is due to buoyant post-war incomes and rates were reduced in several instances.

Chief cuts are the abolition of the 33 1/3-per-cent supertax on unearned income and the removal of the sales tax on a wide range of household goods and farmers' supplies.

Social services, for which expenditure was budgetted at £77,000,000, remain by far the biggest item in the budget. Administration was calculated to cost £29,000,000 and defence £16,500,000. The figure for defence is an increase of £7,000,000.

The prime minister revealed that New Zealand's dollar position is greatly improved. He said that although New Zealand's dollar position was out of balance by about $50,000,000 a year ago it will not be far short of balance this year. This, he said, is largely due to high wool prices and increased American purchasing together with lower dollar buying by New Zealand.

A vigorous program of capital works would be carried out without the creation of any fresh reserve bank credit, he said.

"A further instalment of freedom" also was promised.

The nine-month-old government, which took office after 14 years of labor rule, wished, Holland said, "to restore and preserve an economy founded on private ownership with private managemenit, fair competition and rewards and incentives for greater effort."

We want the maximum possible freedom from interference or dictation by the state.

"We want a state in which hard work, industry, enterprise, thrift and independence will receive encouragement with just rewards and compensations."

Captured Officers Tell of Red Part In Korean War

Tokyo, Aug. 24. (AP)—Two North Korean officers, now prisoners of war, are talking freely with Allied Intelligence officers on the Russian and Chinese communist background of the Korean war.

One, a 27-year-old lieutenant-colonel who commanded a North Korean artillery regiment, walked into South Korean lines Wednesday under a white flag and surrendered near Taegu. He is the highest rank red Korean in Allied hands. His name was withheld for security reasons.

He willingly spotted red Korean military targets, on maps he carried, for Allied air and artillery attack.

The other, Capt. Pak Tong Hyup, was captured August 11, near Chinju on the southwestern front.

The lieutenant-colonel said most men of his regiment would like to surrender but were watched too closely by secret political commissars in the army.

GIRL'S PARENTS MAKE RESTITUTION

In this age of acute monetary problems the commercial angle is being learned early by young children. Proof of this is the incident which occurred in the city yesterday.

A woman reported to police that the peppers from her garden were continually disappearing. The plain clothes officer investigated and found that a small girl had been canvassing the neighborhood selling peppers.

Where did the peppers come from? Only one guess was necessary. The little girl's parents have agreed to look after the matter of restitution.

Outstanding Cheeseman Of Province Dies

One of the most outstanding authorities on cheese making in the Province of Ontario and one of the judges at the British Empire Cheese show at Belleville for the past 11 years, Garnet Bain of London, died in that city on Wednesday, it was learned here yesterday.

Born in Oxford county 56 years years ago, Mr. Bain had spent his life in the cheese industry and prior to 1938, when he joined the marketing service, Dairy Products Division of the Department of Agriculture, was a consistent winner at cheese shows in Canada and in Great Britain.

He was appointed grader in charge of the London, Ont., office in 1940 and since that time has judged cheese at the Belleville show and at other large exhibitions in Canada.

He was well known in the Central Ontario district and is a brother of Jack M. Bain, Chief Instructor for Central and Western Ontario.

Wellington Safe Rifled and $250 In Cash Taken

Wellington — Smashing open the office safe at the Master Feeds in Wellington, safe robbers Wednesday night escaped with $250 in cash after strewing cheques and bills about the floor.

The robbery was discovered by an employee of the firm named Tripp. Manager of the business is Ted Hunter.

Entry to the firm office was made by smashing the lock of the front door, the thieves then tipping the office safe over onto a bag of feed before attacking it with sledges and hammers stolen from a nearby Canadian National Railways toolhouse.

The safe was literally smashed to pieces before the door was opened and the contents rifled. Twenty dollars in silver was missed by the robbers.

The break-in is being investigated by Chief Earl Marvin of Wellington, assisted by Provincial Constable James Driscoll of Belleville.

AUSSIE POLICE USE CAMERAS ON ROAD HOGS

The "camera cop" is the newest "anti-road hog" weapon to come off the secret list in Melbourne. It is a steel swivel in front seat of a car, which enables the driver to photograph cars of offending motorists through the front or rear windows. First Constable Tom Sunningham, of the Victoria police force, is shown demonstrating the new device. He is shown adjusting his 35 millimetre camera, with telephoto lens on the swivel just over the wheel.

C.C.F. Executive Addressed by J.W. Noseworthy

Visiting the city Wednesday evening to address an executive meeting of the local C.C.F. party, J. W. Noseworthy, C.C.F. member for North York, expressed the opinion that the government should have acted before the current railway strike became an actuality.

"It looks to me as if the government now is calling parliament to rubber stamp a policy which the government has already adopted before we meet," he said.

"Apparently the government wants parliament to accept the responsibility for a policy which they have not the courage to enforce under emergency powers, which the government already has."

Mr. Noseworthy added that if any legislation is proposed which takes away from any workers their right to strike when all other measures to effect an agreement have failed, then he would oppose it.

The method of allotment for the veterans' rental housing in Belleville was brought up at the meeting with the speaker promising that he would discuss the matter with the Minister at the earliest opportunity. Discussion at the meeting indicated there was considerable dissatisfaction as to the manner in which the Central Mortgage and Housing rental units were being allotted to veterans.

The meeting passed a resolution laying the blame for recurrent labor strikes on the government through its removal of price controls. The resolution urged reinstatement of price controls at the 1940 level

Several Dutch Families Settled In Quinte District

Several Dutch families and additional D. P.'s from Europe have been brought into the Belleville district within the past few weeks to assist in alleviating the farm help problem in the Quinte area.

Placement of the new workers was arranged by W. G. Ritchie, representative of the federal immigration department, but the local employment office and its manager Mr. H. H. Reed, co-operated in the placing of workers with district farmers.

"Farmers in the Quinte area have been pretty well taken care of insofar as their harvest help is concerned," Mr. Reed stated.

The bumper crop in the Canadian West will require workers from Ontario to assist in harvesting and an order for 25 workers from the Belleville district has been partially filled by the local employment office. Sixteen of the required 25 workers were expected to arrive at their destinations in Manitoba and Saskatchewan before the railway strike deadline and others will be going as soon as railway traffic is resumed.

Strike Notices Pasted on Board In Large Tent

Local strike headquarters at the CNR Athletic Association grounds were humming quietly all day yesterday as members of various factions in the dispute had their committee meetings. Inside the big tent, procured especially for the occasion, a large blackboard has been set up with important notices and the outline of the local organization written on it.

Accommodation for seating all the members of the C. B. of R. E. and the international unions in a mass meeting has been arranged for inside the tent. Planks set on cheese boxes provide seats for the men. The tent, 40 feet by 80 feet, will accommodate close to 700 men should inclement weather require a mass meeting inside.

The secretarial staff, under Ken Thompson and Joe Jordan, has compiled a list containing every railroader's name in the area, complete with his address and phone number. Thus, a tab is kept on each man, and daily roll calls are simplified. There was a quiet hum of industry inside the tent as names were typed out on sheets of paper yesterday.

John (Doc) Wellman, president of local 126 of the C. B. of R. E. said last night that the entertainment committee was working towards the provision of amusement for the strikers. An attempt will be made to procure a piano and a search is being made for talent. In addition, ball games will be going on most of the time on the athletic grounds diamond.

Four Youths Plead Guilty to Total Of 22 Charges

Pleading guilty to a total of 22 charges, including attempted armed robbery, four youths were remanded for one week for sentence when they appeared before Magistrate T. Y. Wills in county magistrate's court today.

The four youths are Orville King, 18, of Toronto, Thomas Henry, 22, Toronto; John Deseno, 18, of Oshawa, and Wm. C. Bailey 18, of Kingston.

The youths were arrested early Sunday morning by provincial police near Marmora, six hours after they had rifled the till at the Rivers service station at Madoc.

The four young men were each charged with the attempted hold-up last Friday night of Elmer Ousterhout, Rossmore service station proprietor, while armed with revolvers. They were also charged with theft at Belleville, Picton, and Kingston.

Maximum sentence for the attempted armed robbery is life imprisonment with lashes.

In addition, King and Henry were charged with breaking and entering the Bata Shoe Company plant at Picton and stealing cash and a cheque for $25.

Cpl. Jack Hatch of the Madoc provincial police detachment office, gave summary evidence stating the four youths last Friday had taken $15 in a pouch from the Regent service station on Bridge Street West.

Then they had gone to Picton where they entered the Morden service station and took money. Later they had entered a dairy at Kingston and took a box containing money and milk tickets. Sunday evening the till at the Rivers service station at Madoc was rifled.

A police search was then started, the four abandoning their stolen car and disappearing into the woods when they saw a police cruiser approaching near Marmora. They were arrested six hours later when they emerged from the woods. The corporal said the boys had thrown their revolvers away, but a .25 calibre rifle had been recovered in a field north of Marmora.

Tomatoes, Corn Easier in Price On City Market

Tomatoes dominated the farmers' market this morning, and as a result, the price per six quart basket dropped to 35c. By one o'clock this afternoon, there was still a large quantity of them being offered.

Corn, in good quantity, too, sold for 35c per dozen. Peaches dropped 15c to 75c per basket, and cantaloupes ranged from 15c to 30c, according to size.

Blueberries remained at the same $2.25 level they have maintained for some weeks. Size of the market was considerably larger than that of Tuesday, and on the overall was a fine showing for mid-week.

Drunk Driving Charge is Laid After Accident

Property damage amounting to approximately $500 resulted to two vehicles Wednesday evening as result of a rear-end collision which took place near the Avondale intersection just west of the city on No. 2 highway.

Ernest G. Denyes, R.R. 3 Belleville, entered the highway from the Avondale Road, turning east toward Belleville. Lac. Earl H. Christianson, RCAF, Trenton, was east-bound and after skidding 192 feet crashed into the rear of the Denyes auto.

Provincial Constable Pellisero who investigated said that Christianson had been charged with drunk driving. Appearing this morning in magistrate's court Christianson had his case enlarged for one week.

Fear Epidemic Likely in Tiny Labrador Village

Halifax, Aug. 24— (CP) — A diphtheria epidemic is feared in the tiny Labrador village of Davis Inlet, the R.C.A.F. reported today.

The report came from Goose Bay, from which a mercy mission was flown to the northern village of Hopedale yesterday to bring to hospital a native woman who is seriously ill.

The Moravian missionary at Hopedale reported an outbreak of diphtheria is feared at Davis Inlet, about 75 miles to the northwest, where several cases of sore throat were reported.

Hopedale itself suffered a diphtheria outbreak last month and one person died before the R.C.A.F. could bring assistance. Medical supplies flown in by the air force from Goose Bay were instrumental in stopping that epidemic.

The Hopedale missionary left by boat today for Davis Inlet with remaining medical supplies to check conditions at the Inlet.

Hopedale is about 125 miles northwest of the big Canada-United States air base of Goose Bay.

Can Start Building Scientific Piggery

Somerville, N.J., Aug. 24 (AP) —Doris Duke Rubirosa can begin building her scientific piggery after all, the Hillsboro township Board of Health.

The board voted to approve an application by Rudolph Sommers, the tobacco heiress' farm manager to raise "more than 100 swine" on the 3,700 acre estate.

Actually, plans call for the ultra modern hog farm to raise from 2,500 to 3,000 pigs

The Duke farm ran into some trouble when it broached its plan but the board of health now is convinced it won't be a nuisance.

SAMUEL ASHWORTH (Batawa-Trenton)

Trenton—(Special)— Stricken with a heart attack while refereeing a soccer game at RCAF Station Trenton, Samuel Ashworth, 56, of Batawa died suddenly Monday night.

Born in Lees Nr. Oldham, England, Mr. Ashworth was the son of the late Mr. and Mrs. William Ashworth. The late Mr. Ashworth was educated in England and moved to Trenton 27 years ago.

A former member of the Trenton Branch Canadian Legion 110, Mr. Ashworth served with the North Lancashire Regiment during World War I and was a member of St. George's Anglican Church, Trenton.

Mr. Ashworth was employed as a guard at the Bata Shoe Co. Ltd., Batawa.

Mr. Ashworth is survived by his wife, the former Violet Smith and three daughters; Miss Jean Ashworth, Batawa; Mrs. R. J. Berry, (Mary), Glen Miller; and Mrs. D. C. Smith, (Joan) also of Glen Miller. The deceased is also survived by two sisters and five brothers, Mrs. Joshua Tym, Trenton; Mrs. Sidney Gill, Springhead, Lancs., England; Mr. Arthur Ashworth, England; Mr. James Ashworth, Montreal, Quebec; Mr. Jack Ashworth, Lees Nr. Oldham, England; Mr. Arthur Cadmun, England and Mr. Wilfred Carter, England.

The body rested at the Weaver Funeral Home, 170 Dundas St. W. Trenton until 1.30 this afternoon. The service was conducted by Rev. A. S. McConnell, rector of St. George's Anglican Church, Trenton.

Messrs. Arthur Bates, Harold Campbell, Frank McGary, Louis Robinson, Horace Ormshaw and Frank Sherbert were the pallbearers. Interment in St. George's cemetery.

LATE HORACE A. E. WRIGHT

The funeral of the late Horace A. E. Wright was held in Christ Church on Wednesday afternoon. The church was filled to capacity with relatives, intimate friends and business associates. A wealth of floral tributes testified to the esteem of the deceased in the community.

The service was conducted by Archdeacon Arthur Smith assisted by Rev. E. N. Caldwell of Shannonville, who also conducted the last rites in Belleville cemetery.

Bearers were Fred Perry, William Kempston, Morris Button, Ernie Palmer, Chris Leggatt and A. R. Symons.

LATE MRS. W. W. THOMPSON (Springbrook)

Rawdon—The funeral service of Mrs. Walter William Thompson (formerly Agnes Bates of England) who died Saturday at her home in Springbrook was held on Monday afternoon in Bethel United Church.

She was a faithful member of St. John's Anglican Church, Stirling, where she resided for twenty years and her pastor Rev. A. J. Anderson conducted her funeral service. The Anglican choir with their organist Mrs. Harry Morrow were in charge of the music and the congregational hymns were "Jesus Saviour Pilot Me", and "Abide With Me". The pastor of Bethel United Church Rev. H .C. Vaclavik read the 90th Psalm.

The bearers were all members of St. John's Church, Messrs. Earl Morrow, J. B. Belshaw, G. B. Bedford, Ernest Carr, Charles Vance and Ernest Sadler.

Interment was made in the Bethel cemetery. Deceased was born in England eighty-two years ago and she leaves to mourn her aged husband. Early this year they took up residence in Springbrook.

Tried to Push Too Many Cars On One Siding

Rush to get all railroad rolling stock to divisional points before the strike went into effect at 6 a.m. Tuesday meant that yards all over the country were loaded with engines, box cars, flat cars, tank cars, and all the rest. But in Belleville, the rush backfired a little bit, when somebody tried to push too many cars on one siding.

A line of "flangers"—that's a railroad term for a piece of equipment that looks like a caboose but isn't—was being pushed into the yards here sometime Monday night so that protection would be available for the equipment. Somebody must have got a little bit anxious or hurried, because the end flanger took an awful beating.

It's sitting on a track running parallel to Station St. with its east end piled up on top of the west end of the flanger next to it. It looks as if some giant hand had just lifted one end of the car up and neatly deposited it on top of the next one. Some of the wooden rails have been knocked into a right angle by the force of the crash, and the wheel trucks underneath, in some manner, have been disengaged by the impact.

A picket, asked last night what had happened smiled and said "guess somebody got in too much of a hurry Monday night." It all comes down to the old story that as you can only put so many eggs in one basket, so can you only put so many cars on a definite stretch of rail.

Ordinarily, the damage would have been repaired immediately, but now the flanger will sit there at its peculiar angle until the strike is over.

IN MEMORIAM

WHITE—In fond remembrance of a loved husband and father, Frederick White, who passed away suddenly, August 24th., 1946.

A day of remembrance sadly recalled,
Without farewell he left us all,
To be with us in the same old way
Would be our fondest wish today.
For he bid no one a last farewell,
And he said goodbye to none.
The heavenly gates were open wide
As he heard His voice say "Come".

TORONTO STOCKS

Toronto, Aug. 24 — (CP) — Industrial stocks declined steadily as the session progressed on the Toronto Stock Exchange today. Opening trends pointed upwards but selling pressure appeared quickly and market leaders dropped as the country-wide rail strike began to show its effects on industry. Volume for the first three hours was 586,000 shares.

Most losses were held to fractions in industrials but a wide list of market leaders were among the losers.

International Paper showed a drop of 13½ at 50½ as the stock sold ex-cash and stock. A 25 per cent stock dividend and 75 cents cash were recently declared on the common.

Golds found moderate support as activity increased. Seniors brightened and a handful of junior producers added pennies. Newlund slumped sharply at the opening but recovered partially as the session continued.

Base metals, yesterday's leading gainers, weakened slightly from early advances. Western oils also sagged from morning firmness.

TORONTO LIVESTOCK

Toronto, Aug. 24 (CP)—Prices were firm at the Ontario stockyards today. Receipts: Cattle, 80; calves, 30; Hogs, 160; sheep and lambs, 60. Left from yesterday were 500 cattle, mostly stockers and plain killers.

Common to medium light steers stockers $24-$27.50.

Calves were steady at $30-$32 for choice vealers, common down to $21.

Grade A hogs sold for $33; sows $23 dressed.

Lambs were steady at $29-$30 for good ewes and wethers; bucks $1 discount, good light sheep and heifers sold for $20-$28; $13-$15.

PRODUCE PRICES

Toronto, Aug. 24 (CP) —Produce prices quoted on the spot market here today:

Churning cream: No. 1, truck price, 54 cents; delivered, 57 cents.

Creamery prints: First grade 55 cents.

The egg market was steady this morning and receipts were ample Country shippers quoted graded eggs, cases free: Grade A large 52; A medium 50; A pullet 36-37; Grade B 39-40; grade C 28. Wholesale to retail: Grade A large 55-56; A medium 53-54; A pullet 41-42; grade B 42-43; grade C 32-33.

Schoolboy Comes Within Ace Of Completing Channel Swim

Dover, Kent, England, Aug. 24—(AP)— Philip Mickman, plucky, 19-year-old British schoolboy, came within an ace today of swimming the English Channel the hard way — from England to France.

For three hours he battled mountainous seas 500 yards off the French coast in a vain attempt to reach land. Then his trainers hauled him exhausted into the accompanying rowboat.

Mickman, who swam from France to England a year ago, was so close to success for so long today that members of his party here understood that he had finished successfully and made an announcement to that effect to the press. The statement was corrected only when Mickman's pilot, Capt. John Burwill, returned to the English coast.

Mickman's fellow townsmen at Ossett, Yorkshire, already had started a jubilant celebration before the correct news reached them.

His father, a hosiery manufacturer, said here that the boy would try again. He had been in the water 25 hours and 15 minutes.

Only three swimmers have crossed from England to France, although 35 have finished the swim in the other direction. Toward France the swim is harder because tides are trickier.

Hassan Abd El Rehim of Egypt, who set a record of 10 hours 53 minutes Tuesday for the easier route, made it the hard way last year. Edward Teme and Tom Blower, both of England, also have crossed in that direction.

Korean War Shoved Into Background by Rail Strike

It wasn't so long ago that the Ontario Intelligencer reported that the barber shop and pool room strategists were running wild with the Korean War. At that time, it seemed that the Second World War was being applied to the Korean situation, and that the armchair generals had the troubles in the east pretty well solved.

And also, it seemed at that time that it would take a mighty big news break to shove the Korean deal out of the picture. Now the break has come and Korea is almost a forgotten trouble. The rail strike, because of its immense effect on a country like Canada, has taken precedence over the war in the East.

The methods of discussing the situation this time differ quite a bit from the way the Korean outbreak was chewed over. The war was taken apart move by move and news release by news release, and every phase was thoroughly investigated and talked over by the participants in the conversation.

New Look Applied

Now a new look is being applied to the rail strike. The conversations are conducted in lower voices, and there is a blank, mute look on many faces. Sympathy over-rides the discussions for the most part—sympathy for northern cities and towns that are cut off from civilization by the strike.

Belleville, if you listen to street talk, is in a fairly good position, with the main highway of the province running through it and because of its surrounding agricultural area.

There seems to be a lack of excitement about the strike. The people appear to be as mute as the rail lines, when it comes right down to it. Perhaps much of this can be attributed to the orderly way in which the strike is being carried on all over the country.

At any rate, Korea, once in there solid with the men who solve the problems without moving a step, took a major disaster to be removed. It took a crippling rail strike to shove it into the second slot of conversational level, and it will likely remain there until the trains are rolling again.

FORMER PUBLISHER DIES

St. Andrews, N.B., Aug. 24 (CP) —Howard P. Robinson, 76, long an outstanding figure in the industrial life of New Brunswick and one of Canada's business leaders, died here Wednesday night.

For several years he was part-owner of the Saint John Telegraph Journal and the Evening Times-Globe, he was a director of the Canadian Press from 1926 to 1942 and a vice president from 1939 to 1941.

Mr. Robinson's death followed a lingering illness which became worse in the last month.

Publishing was his first field of enterprise, but he also became prominent in the development of the telephone system in New Brunswick and other public utilities, paper manufacturing, radio broadcasting, motion pictures, banking, sugar and securities.

TEST FOR DRIVERS

Two research workers at Cambridge, England, are playing an important part in the campaign against automobile accidents. With the aid of mechanical driving "examiner" they are busy testing the driving skill of motorists of all ages and types, says This Week in England.

The device, looks something like two typewriters joined together. When it is at work a whole battery of ball-point pens is seen making strange marks on long strips of paper moving over twin drums. There are ten of these pens, divided into two rows. Those in the front row record the movement of the clutch, the car's speed and its acceleration. The back row of pens records brake pressure, movement of the steering wheel and brake pedal movements. One pen in each row is a distance marker, making a line every 40 yards the car travels. And so the reactions of every driver are recorded with great ingenuity and thoroughness, and a permanent record of just how the car's controls are handled is made. After all this data has been carefully analyzed by experts the driver's characteristics are tabulated in various categories.

In this way, scientifically and with mathematical precision, these Cambridge research workers hope to find out why drivers of a certain age or temperament make certain kinds of mistakes in the same set of conditions. They are building up an index of driving errors and characteristics; sorting out the motorists they experiment on into clearly defined groups and categories, and finding out why drivers make mistakes and what can be done to cure them of these weaknesses.

FRANCE AS PUBLISHING NATION

How the Second World War affected France is indicated in the statement of the number of books published in the forties. In 1940 there were only 2,000 books issued while in the previous year the number was 3,888. After 1942 the number of books rose, the total for 1943 being more than three times those issued in 1943, namely 6,718. The year 1944 saw the total at 8,680, which was above the total for 1938 which was 8,124. In the year that saw the war's end, the number of published books was 6,988, lower than in 1944. But in 1946 the total was the highest in year and in 1948 it stood at 14,143.

It is pointed out in the French Information service that in the years of the struggle many French books were published in the Dominion of Canada and Switzerland since it was impossible for the authors to publish at home. Then after the liberation the problem of paper reduced the number of books. However France soon resumed her place in the publishing world, leading all nations. In 1947 the books issued in France numbered 13,419, with Britain second, 10,605; United States 7,243; Italy 5,892; Switzerland 3,810; Spain 3,693; Sweden 3,453; and Finland 2,041.

Besides, a great many books in other languages were published in the Republic. For instance in 1948 there were 1,088 foreign language books translated and published in France of which the greatest number were English, namely 685. The others were German, Italian, Russian, Scandinavian, Spanish, Greek, Latin, Hungarian, Polish, Portuguese, Czech, Arab, Hebrew, Chinese and Rumanian.

Seventy per cent of the books in France were sold through the bookshops.

A WORD FOR HUMBLE PETUNIA

Much of the gay color of our August gardens come from the lowly petunia, one of the hardiest, showiest and cheapest of our flowers.

A single petunia plant is nothing to cheer about. But in masses, for borders and beds, petunias return a rich reward for the small care they need, and a quarter's worth of seeds gives weeks of lovely and impressive bloom in pink, red, purple and white.

It is a mistake to despise the petunia because it is cheap and easy to grow — it's a flower well worth having. Solid masses of petunias in the Arboretum of the Central Experimental Farm show the affective use which can be made of them in ornamental grounds.—Ottawa Journal.

For the Women's Institute at Riverside, Ontario, there is to be sent a tea tray autographed by all the members of the Women's Institute at Alphamstone and Lamarsh, Essex, England, where it was made in recognition of many gift parcels which had been received from the Canadian Institute. The signatures will be under glass on the base of the tray and will surround a drawing of the local churcch in the English centre where the tray was made and autographed.

Britain's former and wartime Prime Minister Churchill has made an address calling on the nations of Europe to organize a joint army of defence. There is no doubt his suggestion will receive attention. Mr. Churchill is still regarded as the principal "safety counsel" in the world, Port Arthur News - Chronicle remarks.

An explorer has returned to civilization with two rare white rhinoceroses which he captured alive in the Egyptian Sudan and has trained to ride, says Hamilton Spectator. He should be able to horn in at almost any polo game with such unique mounts.

LOOKING BACKWARDS

GLEANINGS FROM OUR FYLES OF BYGONE YEARS

20 YEARS AGO

August 24th., 1930

Mrs. Homer LaVoie, Foster Avenue, has left for Portsmouth, West Virginia, where she will spend two months with relatives.

The Very Rev. J. F. Nicholson, M. C., V. G., has been appointed pastor of St. Michael's Parish here, as successor to the late Rev. Father C. J. Killeen.

Miss Mary Hurley is visiting friends in Rochester, N. Y.

Mrs. B. Totton, Victoria Avenue, is spending a week in Toronto.

Miss Rachel Fox of this city is spending her vacation in Detroit, Mich.

The Rev. Bruce Hunter of London, Ontario, formerly of this city, preached to the united congregations of Bridge St. Church and the Tabernacle on Sunday.

30 YEARS AGO

August 24th., 1920

Mr. Sam Hart of Rossmore went trolling yesterday and caught a monster maskinonge which measured four feet and three inches in length and weighed 35 pounds. The fish was on exhibition in town today and attracted much attention.

One dollar per bushel was asked for tomatoes on the market today and $1.25 per bag for potatoes.

A "Made in Belleville" display will be one of the interesting features at the Belleville Fair this fall.

40 YEARS AGO

August 24th., 1910

The day of sports in Trenton attracted a big crowd. A. Steel of this city was second in the 100 yards running race and also second in the mile race. H. Vickers of this city won the five-mile running race with ease. The baseball match between the Park Nine team and the Ontarios, both of this city, resulted in a score of 5 to 3 in favor of the Park Nine team. The batteries were: Gerow and Connolly for the Park Nine team and Moore and Hagerman for the Ontarios. Eddie O'Flynn gave entire satisfaction as umpire.

Mr. T. H. Thompson, Reeve of Madoc Village; P. P. Clarke, Reeve of Limerick and Robert Cooke, Reeve of Rawdon were in town today on county business.

50 YEARS AGO

August 24th., 1900

Mr. John T. Thompson has returned to Racine, Wis., after visiting his parents here.

Mr. Charles Corby has returned to New York City after visiting relatives here.

Mr. and Mrs. C. R. Hamm, who have been visiting at the home of Mr. Adam Henry, Church Street, have left for their home in Philadelphia, Pa.

The steam yacht Skylark took a party of Mr. Corby's friends for a run down the bay yesterday afternoon.

Dr. Wills and Mr. Warrington left today for the Klondike.

Mr. James Quinn of Toronto, formerly of Belleville, is spending a few days in town.

A DANGEROUS SOCIAL MALADY

Did you ever hear of the disease of accommodation? Historians tell us that that is what brought about the death of the Roman Empire almost 1500 years ago. Like a dry sponge, Rome soaked up all the corruption of a decadent world order, brought it into her life, rejoiced in her tolerance and broadmindedness, and then quite naturally sank into death as the result of being poisoned.

The countries which love their particular traditions, cherish them, and try to continue them, keep on growing with unabated vigor. It is true that a country can become self-centred just as an individual can. But the worst thing is for a country to lose its national ideals and its wholesome customs. Here in the United States we are taking unto ourselves the moral customs of worn out and decadent nations. There are many teachers and writers today who hold forth on the marvelous and wholesome life of primitive peoples and command the incorporation into American life of their customs, dances and folklore.

We could take warning from Rome if we would. But we probably won't. The compromising of national ideals—the social disease of accommodation —killed Rome, and unless we are careful it will kill us.

THE PACKSACK

By GREGORY CLARK

In England a dog belonging to any of the sporting breeds such as retriever, setter, pointer spaniel, cannot win his championship in a bench show until he has qualified by being "placed" in a field trial.

In Canada and the United States, these most attractive of dogs are largely in the hands of two distinct communities of dog fanciers: those who breed for the appearance that wins bench shows, regardless of the character of the dog; and those who breed for field trials and for hunting, regardless of how far from the bench type the dog may be.

A few determined sportsmen on this continent strive to merge the two ideals, as is done in England, but there are not enough of them to make much headway against what you might call the dog merchants. On the one hand you have the bench shows at which you will see the most glorious looking animals that might as well be stuffed, as far concerned. And on the other, there are the field trials at which wispy little setters, gaunt pointers, ill-made retrievers, and perfectly absurd looking spaniels carry off all the honors.

Both schools of fanciers are rigid in their attitude. Those who want show dogs will seek, with the utmost determination, blood lines of show champions; while field trial enthusiasts ignore everything but the blood lines of field champions. In a few years' time, this can result in something fairly comic Each breed of sporting dog will be subdivided into two new breeds—the one based on looks, the other on performance.

Among us mortals, unlike among the dogs, a levelling force is always at work. A clever man who is as homely as a hedge fence usually can snaffle a good-looking wife. And the family of a tall, handsome man who doesn't know enough to come in out of the rain usually contrives to marry him to some intelligent little brown hen who can keep

By JACK SCOTT

IN THE LAKES

Port Arthur, Ont.,—We drove more than 300 miles today, which is pretty good going with a couple of tons dragging behind you, and it was just like the travel folder said. A delight all the way.

We had quite a bit of work done on the trailer in Winnipeg, including new heavy-duty truck tires and a more efficient hitch arrangement and the beast is rolling along light as a feather.

We were up at six with the dew still heavy in the grass of the clearing, had our small-mouthed bass which, of course, tasted a whole lot better than it really is, and were on the road by eight.

It was a sparkling fresh morning that helped dull the pain of leaving behind the green Shangri-la of Rushing River. Some day we hope to go back there and retrieve the port of our heart we left behind.

Our first business of the day was to change the game we've been playing the last couple of thousand miles. Under the rules of this contest the first one to spot a white horse wins a nickel, a diversion for the kids which has cost me to date just 85 cents. But now with mile after green mile of forest, we'd run out of white horses. So we substituted lakes.

If you look at a map of the country between Kenora and Lake Superior you find it splattered with thousands of blue specks, but even with this advance knowledge we were unprepared for the spectacular series of lakes on both sides of the roller-coaster highway, each a jewel glinting in the sun.

One outdoor writer has called it "the great canoe country of North America." It's an apt description. There may be more dramatic scenery in Canada, but there is none more refreshing and each of those blue specks crooked a finger at us to linger.

Total cost of the lakes game: 40 cents.

A Warning

One of the first sights we saw were two deer drinking at the edge of Fan Lake. They stood among the white-barked birch, raising their heads to watch us go by, sharply reflected in the blue water and looking almost too perfect to be believed.

We stopped for a lunch of cheese and crackers by one unnamed lake with a scallop of lily pads and a border of blueberries the size of marbles around its shore. In one of its bays was the untidy dome of a beaver's cottage, but we saw no sign of the residents.

Before pulling out Judy and I got into our swim suits and waded out through the lily pads into deep water and then swam far out into the blue into our own private world, a place of unbroken silence, and vivid indigo and green. "This", announced my daughter, "must be what heaven's like."

East of here an approaching trailer with Kansas plates hailed us down and the driver, a big, ruddy-faced man, warned us not to go on. "They're putting crushed rock on the road for the next fifty miles," he said, "It'll cut your tires to ribbons."

But we were drunk with those lakes, and went on. There was no choice, in any case.

It turned out that the road was under repair at intervals and indeed hard on tires and nerves, but a lead-pipe cinch for anyone who had crossed Saskatchewan.

The thought occurred to me on this stretch that in the construction of the trans-Canada highway we might well consider employing an American highway expert as a king of overlord for that project, much as we did in organizing Trans-Canada Airline.

I suppose there's a ready explanation, but from the layman's viewpoint it seems painfully clear that roadbuilding is not one of our talents. It would be a crying shame to have anything less than the best in the road they've promised us across this blessed land.

Inland Sea

Our first glimpse of Lake Superior was something that will remain in our minds as one of the most unforgetable sights of the trip.

We came over the crest of a hill and the grand-daddy of all lakes was before us. The fresh breeze whipped up whitecaps across Thunder Bay and the late afternoon sun was bright on the sides of the giant terminal elevators that stand along the lakefront like castles.

Port Arthur and Fort William spread out below us, facing out to the inland sea on which a white steamer was turning gracefully with the foam white behind it and . . . yes! . . . a convoy of seagulls. We felt as explorers must when they reach the last rise.

Tonight the trailer is parked in a camp on the hill above Port Arthur looking out across the floodlit mass of cylindrical elevators to the lake and within sound of ship's horns. In a strange way it's like a homecoming.

August Ice Floes Delay Freighters In Hudson Strait

Churchill, Man., (CP) —Ice in Hudson Bay Straits has delayed ships using the Churchill route this season.

The British freighter Ramillies was held fast three days. Three other British freighters—the Tricape, Durham Trader and Warkworth—were previously held up by 80 miles of field ice in the same area.

The icebreaker J. B. McLean has been working in the bay area but waterfront sources said she had not helped any of the incoming ships. Old-timers in the port use that as backing for complaints that "eastern interests are not doing anything to further the operation of the port."

Skippers who have used Churchill before say the ice conditions are unusual this year.

Capt. T. C. Bannerman of the Oblate Fathers' missing ship Regina Polaris said it took him 14 days last year from Montreal to Churchill discharging cargo at two settlements. This year it took a month with one other place to drop cargo.

He said his ship was held in field ice of Cape Dorset for 12 days. There was ice in Churchill Harbor when he docked July 26.

FINNISH TAXES

Helsinki (CP) — Finland is probably the most taxed nation in the world, according to a report of a special committee appointed to study financial questions. State expenses have increased about 200 percent since 1938, while national income has grown only 10 percent.

TODAY'S TALK

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

GOOD CHANGES

Many of us are not very happy over sudden emergencies that make us change our plans. But how often the change is a blessing in disguise! A rainy day often introduces us to duties, long neglected, which get finished.

A change of job has often resulted in a person finally finding himself. A change, of scene, from an everyday location, often stirs the imagination, giving new interest, and returning one to work with greater zeal. A change of climate has brought many a one to robust health.

An interesting recreation is always a good change. It takes one out of a groove. A baseball game, a picnic, a fishing trip, or a sea voyage, are all good changes that give renewal of spirit. People who welcome no change in their daily routine, grow dull and less efficient. Change is essential to life itself. Life is cluttered with changes, but the meeting of each one, without complaint, and with courage, is what builds character.

A change of diet has brought one, who has been guided to it intelligently. And a change from a destructive habit has regenerated many a life. Good changes should always be welcomed, even though they may mean temporary sacrifices.

Many a business has been revived by intelligent changes in personnel. The entire organization is inspired. No worker, with aptitude for a better job, should long remain in one in which he does not do his best work happily. To change him is a good move. Encouragement is what every worker thrives on.

Changes from the crude ways of our fore-fathers are what have made our present way of life so full and free. We should always welcome changes that are for the better. Often these changes prove to be ill-advised — then it is that they can be changed! Trial and test prove all things.

Col. W. R. Nelson, the founder of the Kansas City Star, once told me that "no matter how good an idea may be, there is always a better one." That is the sort of a change that we should bear in mind. A new idea has

Address: Dr. William Brady, care of this newspaper.)

THIS IS DYNAMITE

Dynamite, according to Webster, is nitroglycerin absorbed in kieselguhr or other porous material. Kieselguhr is loose or porous diatomite, and diatomite is schistose, and schistose is et cetera ad infinitum.

Even nitroglycerin is no longer nitroglycerin, in medical language. It is now called glyceryl trinitrate.

Yeggmen call nitroglycerin "soup."

It is an oily, volatile, highly explosive liquid. The pure liquid is not used in medicine, only an alcholic solution of it containing one part by weight of the pure stuff in 100 parts of alcohol. This solution is called spirit of glonoin, glyceryl trinitrate or nitroglycerin. The usual medicinal dose of the spirit is one drop, equivalent ot 1/100th of a grain of nitroglycerin.

Workmen handling dynamite, nitroglycerin or explosives containing nitroglycerin often suffer violent headache due to absorption of nitroglycerin. A typical "authority" (Sir Thomas Legge, Industrial Maladies, asserts that the headache is "probably due to absorbtion through the skin" and, like a good authority, ignores the great volatility of nitroglycerin and the fact that the worker handling it continues breathing—at least up to the moment the whole thing goes off.

This notion that certain medicines, chemicals or poisons can be "absorbed through the skin" is one of the most obstinate medical delusions. The so-called "science" of medicine is rife with such fancies and medical "authorites" cling to their favorite delusions long after the absurdity or the error on which the notions were based has been determined to the conviction of any competent mind but that of a medical "authority" stuck with is quaint belief.

A nitroglycerin tablet dissolved in the mouth is absorbed and produces its effect as quickly as though it were swallowed. In from one to two minutes it relaxes spasm or constriction of the arterioles of the heart (coronary arteries). That is the main reason for taking nitroglycerin. Aside from flushing and throbbing in the head or headache if you call it that, when one takes a larger dose than is necessary, the medicine produces no ill effect. And so I believe ordinances or laws prohibiting direct sale of nitroglycerin tablets to the laity, without prescription are unreasonable.

Every individual subject to coronary or anginal attacks should carry in pocket or purse a few freshly made, tightly vialed nitroglycerin tablets, and put one in mouth immediately upon the first threat or even fear of an attack.

Any intelligent person may and should test his nitroglycerin tablets every two or three weeks by taking one in the mouth and seeing that it has an effect, for the medicine is so very volatile that it evaporates from the tablet in the course of a few weeks and leaves only inert sugar or milk or whatever the base of the tablet may be.

The effect of a single dose of nitroglycerin in any case is of brief duration, not over two hours, perhaps not over one hour. Therefore it may be advisable in many instances to take a dose every two or three hours—and in my judgment a dose every two hours for days or weeks if necessary never does any harm.

For the benefit of wiseacres who happen to read this let me repeat that nitroglycerin is not a heart stimulant. The sole purpose of using it is to relax aterial spasm or constriction and so allow more oxygen to reach the cells whose supply of oxygen is impaired or shut off by the cramp or constriction of the artery or arterioles.

QUESTIONS & ANSWERS

In Deference to the Veterinaries

In our home we take your word as authoritative. We are curious to know your reaction to the "fight on dread rabies" that got under way (in the headlines) lately. (Mrs. J. P. S.)

Answer—The newspaper article you sent me refers to agitation in behalf of vaccination of dogs. As I have said many times, I defer to the veterinaries on any question of rabies in animals. When and if a question of rabies in man arises, I am from Missouri.

Stuttering

Son, 4, has started to stutter just within the past two weeks. When we try to stop him, make him talk more slowly and even say the words for him, he seems embarrassed. (Mrs. C. H.)

Answer—Too bad. You should have ignored it. By your attitude you merely added to the child's difficulty. The wise course is to arouse his interest in simple nursery jingles or songs, by humming or singing or repeating them as to yourself, as you go about your regular household activities—and pay only casual attention when he chimes in or takes up the hickery-dickery-dock thing with you. - Send stamped self-addressed envelope for pamphlet on Stuttering.

COSTLY BEER

Timmins, Ont—(CP) — Henri Lachance, a bartender here, has sold what may be the most expensive glass of beer on record. A customer gave Henri a 1784 German thaler for a draught. The bartender didn't notice the coin until the man had left. Now he has a coin which he calculates is worth about $17.

SOBER SPELL

Vancouver—(CP) — Vancouver's perennial drunkards are going to have to suffer longer spells of sobriety. Magistrate Matheson said he was losing patience with repeaters and warned that "from now on a third drunkenness charge will get a minimum six months sentence." Usual sentence is 30 days.

News of Trenton

Maurice Reid Suspended by Softball Assoc.

Trenton (Special) — Maurice "Lefty" Reid has been suspended by the Ontario Amateur Softball Association for striking an umpire and cannot participate in any softball activities until he is reinstated.

This announcement was contained in a special OASA bulletin which was sent to association secretaries recently.

Reid attacked Owen Hendy of Campbellford who was umpiring a Trent Valley League game between Trenton and Campbellford at Bayshore Park on June 26. After hitting Hendy in the mask, Reid struck Lionel Holmes also of Campbellford, fracturing Holmes' jaw in two places. Following the fracas, Hendy ordered Reid from the ball game.

On July 26, Reid was found guilty on a charge of assault occasioning bodily harm and fined $1 plus $58.40 in costs by Magistrate T. Y. Wills in Trenton Police Court.

Fire Damages Back Kitchen, Farmhouse Saved

Trenton—Fire caused by an overheated stove damaged the back kitchen on the home of Vladimir Cocek, just outside town on the Stockdale road Wednesday morning.

Trenton Fire Department was called to the fire and the damage was estimated at $500. The firemen reported that the kitchen was ablaze when they arrived and it took the combined efforts of Trenton Fire Department and several neighbors to save the farmhouse.

Found Guilty of Keeping Liquor For Sale Illegally

Trenton—Douglas Smith of 2 Baptiste Street, was found guilty of keeping liquor for sale illegally and sentenced to two months in common jail by Magistrate T. Y. Wills in Trenton Police Court Tuesday afternoon.

Smith had pleaded not guilty to the charge. A second charge of selling liquor to a minor was withdrawn.

WELCOME STRANGER?

St. Catharines, Ont., (CP)—Andrew Nazezon of Buffalo, N.Y., didn't find the housing shortage here so bad. He took over a house while the family were away on holiday and lived there in comfort for a week, using whatever in the house he needed. When the owners returned Nazezon landed in the brig.

PAINTS SPEAKERS

St. John's, Nfld.—(CP)—Frederick Steiger, Austrian-born artist who has taken up residence in Canada, has been commissioned to do paintings of the 27 speakers in Newfoundland's House of Assembly. Mr. Steiger has completed 16 since his arrival here in June.

Unfair Umpiring Blamed by Team For Their Loss

Trenton, —(Special)— Two arguments flared and tempers ran high in Cobourg Tuesday night, when Cobourg Legion eliminated Trenton MacDonald Hardware from the Junior OASA playoffs by defeating the local boys 8 to 7. Trenton dropped the opening game here last Friday night by a score of 17 to 6.

Unfair umpiring is blamed by the Trenton team for their defeat and the game is being protested. Trenton did not take an umpire along with them and as a result both umpires were from Cobourg. It was learned yesterday that the same thing happened last year in a playoff series between Cobourg and Trenton and Trenton lost a crucial game for the same reason.

In the eighth inning, with the bases loaded and one out, Bill Mitts grounded to third. The play went to the plate for the force out. Mitts was supposedly safe at first on the fielder's choice because there was no throw to first on the play. However, the base umpire said out and wagged his thumb. Mitts, started for the Trenton bench thinking he was out, the Cobourg catcher threw to first and the first baseman put the ball on Mitts to retire the side.

In the argument which followed, the base umpire insisted that he was calling the play at home, but why the base umpire should be calling a play at home plate when the plate umpire was watching the play closely all the way was not answered to the satisfaction of the Trenton team.

With one away in the ninth, and Trenton runners on third and first, the infield was playing in when Martin hit a grounder between first and second. The first baseman took it easily and fired it home. Wilson who had broken from third saw he was caught and tried to tag up but fell and was tagged out. While the spectators and other team members were following this play, the base umpire was thumbing Martin out at first for alleged interference and the game was over.

Chouinard went the nine inning stretch on the Trenton mound giving up 10 hits striking out six and walking five. For Cobourg, Medhurst, a southpaw, worked two and two thirds innings and Trenton picked up six hits and scored six of their seven runs before he was relieved by Jack Irvin who went the rest of the way and was tagged for seven hits.

ASKZD TO CLEAN FRONTS

Hamilton, Aug. 24 — (CP) — Mayor Lloyd Jackson appealed Wednesday to all merchants to clean up the front of their stores and sidewalks, unswept since 1,000 outside civic workers struck two weeks ago. The mayor said the streets aren't too badly littered yet, but co-operation of merchants would be needed to keep them clean.

Food Supplies In Atikokan Will Last Till Monday

Atikokan, Ont., Aug. 24 (CP) —Food supplies in this northwestern Ontario mining town—isolated by the railway strike—will last only until Monday, town Secretary F. A. Cox said Wednesday.

Meat and milk already have been used, he said. The only bakery in the town of 3,000 has plenty of flour but its yeast is almost exhausted.

Atikokan, which has no road outlet and no regular air service, has appealed for a "mercy train" on the strikebound Canadian National Railways line. Mr. Cox said it hoped the train may run tonight.

(Donald Gordon, C.N.R. President, said in Montreal he has recommended to the rail unions' strike committee that a mercy train be sent. Union leader Frank Hall of the 15 International Unions on strike said in an interview his unions "will give co-operation where any real emergency exists.")

"We intend to ask the railway men here to unload the train when it comes," Mr. Cox said. "After all, it is necessary for them to have food as much as anybody else, so we are certain they will not mind doing the job."

D. Wright, chairman of the Retail Merchants Committee of the Chamber of Commerce, said all merchants have been advised to order supplies and to ask suppliers to have the orders put on the mercy train.

The town's two milk distributors already have ordered 250 cases of milk.

Mr. Wright said he feels the federal government should place an R.C.A.F. amphibious plane in Atikokan as a precaution against emergency.

"They'll send out 15 planes to look for one person who gets lost in the woods," he said in an interview. "Well, there are 3,000 of us lost in the woods here."

Atikokan, whose big industry is the nearby Steep Rock iron mines, is about 100 miles west of the Lakehead on the C.N.R. line through Fort Frances to Winnipeg.

Feathered War Vets Get Lease on Life

Vancouver — (CP) — If they are war veterans they get a break from Mayor Charles Thompson—even though they're pigeons.

Complaints from citizens concerning a pigeon fancier who kept 35 of the birds in his back yard finally wound up before aldermen of Vancouver's civic building and town plan committee.

The aldermen sided with neighbors who wanted the pigeons removed from the city.

But the pigeon fancier said many of the birds he races and trains were carriers — veterans of the Second World War. They would be useful again in the event of another war, he argued.

Mayor Thompson agreed, with the reservation that the pigeons be examined to insure they do not constitute a health menace.

The aldermen relented and permitted another pigeon fancier with veteran birds to keep his pets at his home.

WEDDINGS

FITCHETT—WATSON

Ivanhoe—A quiet wedding took place at "Cedar Hedges", Crookston, home of the bridegroom, on Tuesday afternoon, August 22, when Mrs. Eleanor Watson, of Norland, Ont., became the bride of Mr. Barney Fitchett, of Crookston.

The ceremony was performed by Rev. B. J. Beckel, and the attendants were Mr. and Mrs. Fred Frost, of Actinolite.

ZINCK—BARLOW

Tall standards of gladioli formed a lovely background in St. Thomas' Church, Belleville, on Saturday, August 19th., at 3 p.m., when Irene Estelle Barlow, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Barlow, of Belleville, became the bride of Walter Reginald Zinck, of the R.C.A.F., 6 Repair Depot, Trenton, Ontario. Archdeacon Arthur Smith, rector of the church, officiated.

Mrs. Calvert presided at the organ and furnished the wedding music.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride was radiant in her bridal gown of white nylon net over taffeta with headdress of white baby 'mums. She carried a bouquet of gladioli centred with red rosebuds.

Mrs. Ruth Hinkley, sister of the bride, was her only attendant, gowned in blue taffeta and carrying a bouquet of gladioli flowers.

Mr. William Barlow, of Belleville, was groomsman, and the ushers were Mr. David Johnston and Mr. Douglas Barlow, the former of Belleville and the latter of Toronto.

The reception was held at the Kiwanis Centre, where the tables were tastefully decorated with pink and white streamers and bells. The bride's mother received the guests, wearing navy sheer with corsage of white roses.

Those who poured tea were Mrs. Kate Sullivan and Mrs. Irene Plane.

For the wedding trip through the United States, the bride chose blue crepe with navy accessories. Upon their return Mr. and Mrs. Zinck will reside in Belleville.

Out-of-town guests included Mr. and Mrs. Charles Hinkley, of Ottawa; Mr. and Mrs. Sullivan of Trenton; Mrs. I. Underwood. of Toronto, and Miss Leita Kelly of Toronto.

THE CHILDREN

I saw them coming down the street
Two little maids of four,
Their dresses were so trim and neat,
A cart they pushed before;
They seemed so sweet and free from care,
So gentle and so true,
In this dull world where love is rare
And daily joys are few.

They stopped to pluck some dandelions
That grew beside the street,
These little golden May-time flowers
That lure the baby feet;
But a harsh voice drove them away—
And shy and quick they sped
And dropped the pretty golden flowers
Upon their grassy bed.

Then came to me the words of One
Who loved the children dear
"Forbid ye not these little ones,
Who bring our Heaven so near.".

—Helen B. Anderson.

Acquaintances Honor Bride-to-Be With Shower

Last evening a delightful surprise, miscellaneous shower was held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. William Kinnon, 217 Charles Street, when several friends and acquaintances from the staff of the Ontario Intelligencer met to honor Miss Olive Darby, September bride-to-be.

The evening was spent in a general social time.

After Olive had unwrapped her several gifts which were both useful and ornamental, she graciously thanked the donors, for the tangible evidences of their good wishes for her future happiness, a mystic circle was formed, from the tying ribbons and passed from hand to hand till the end bearing the wedding ring was reached. The lucky holder of the ring would be next in line for showers.

The evening closed with dainty refreshments being served by the hostess and her assistants, Miss Beth McLeod, Miss Lillian Cummings and Miss Pearl Kinnon.

TYENDINAGA EAST W.I.

Tyendinaga.—The August meeting of the Tyendinaga East W.I. was held recently at the home of Mrs. W. Alexander. The president, Mrs. P. Kimmerley, was in charge of the meeting which opened in the usual manner. The roll call "Name an Ontario County", was answered by 22 members and five visitors. Miss Geraldine Mowers gave a splendid talk on Newfoundland.

The program was in charge of Mrs. W. Hunter and as the theme was "Citizenship", it opened with the singing of "O Canada", and then the following numbers were given— poem, "Haven't Got Time", Mrs. S. E. Winters; songs, by Misses Sandra, Sylvia and Patsy Allan; a paper on "Citizenship", by Mrs. Fred Stafford "The Selling of Sally" (a short play), Mrs. H. Winter, Misses Irene and Geraldine Mowers; solo, "The World is Waiting for the Sunrise", Mrs. G. Dupre; poem, "It's Always Better With Butter", by Mrs. B. Kimmerley; prayer hymn by Mrs. W. Hunter.

The contest which followed was won by Miss G. Mowers.

Refreshments were served bringing a very pleasant meeting to a close.

Cannifton-Corbyville Women's Institute Sponsors Picnic

On Thursday, the Cannifton-Corbyville Women's Institute held an enjoyable picnic for the members and their children at Wellington Park.

Transportation was provided by Mr. Joe Golden and at ten o'clock followed by several carloads, Mr. Golden left the village with the happy party. The trip to the Park was much enjoyed for each song sheet was well used as the smallest child did his and her best to help with the singsong which continued throughout the entire trip. A stop was made at a canteen en route to the Park and a bottle of pop, the first treat of the day was given providing the children with a fresh start at singing again. At noon Mrs. Mathews, president, called the party to order and after singing grace all sat down at long tables which had been set together for a very delicious basket lunch to which adults as well as the children did ample justice.

After a short recess, following the dinner, a program of races began each child of 2 years and under was given a small gift and from then on the prize winners were—

Children 2 to 4—Nancy Shorey, Johnnie Pound, David Jowett.

Children 4 to 5—Douglas Post, Linda Latchford, Jean Dianne Lywood.

Children 6-7— Glenn Skinner, Jimmie Stewart, Betty Latchford.

Boys' 8 to 10—Jimmie Latchford, Ronny Weese.

Girls' 8 to 10—Sharon Eves, Carol Post.

Boys' 10 to 12—Donny Latchford.

Girls' 10 to 12—Jacolyn Skinner.

Junior Mothers'— Mrs. Bill Latchford, Mrs. Doris Urch.

Senior Mothers'—Mrs. Stewart, Mrs. Gordon Latchford.

Wheelbarrow race—Mrs. B. Latchford, Betty Cook; Mrs. Jowett, Alice Lywood.

Peanut race—Sharon Eves.

Mrs. Gordon Latchford was the lucky grandmother of the day.

There was never a dull moment, swimming was the next event of the day's fun. The children were then treated to pop, peanuts and suckers and at four o'clock the tired but happy group left for home all expressing a very special 'thank you' to Mr. Joe Golden for his co-operation and generosity in donating his time and the transportation, to help make this first picnic sponsored by the Women's Institute, so successful.

INDIA'S CONTRIBUTION

The Indian government has contributed $228,963 to the world health organization budget for 1950.

MARIO ... in his distinctive feature about Food ... What's Cooking ?

Meringue pies are cry babies.

Often a meringue pie is taken out of the oven with a crisp billowy brown top and then, in a half hour or so, the merginue begins to shrink and "weep". Many a housewife has been grief stricken and puzzled by this phenomena.

If you taste the small stream of liquid which flows from the meringue, it will be sweet. It is the sugar in the meringue which was not dissolved when the egg whites were beaten. If sugar is dissolved when the egg whites are beaten, it will be baked into the egg whites. Otherwise it will simply melt later on and cause "weeping".

There are two possible remedies for this condition, First, add the sugar to the egg whites when they are fluffy but not stiff. Add it in small does, a tablespoon or less at a time, and beat very well after each addition. This will usually cause the sugar to dissolve. The second method is to use a prepared white syrup in jars which is merely sugar already dissolved.

The meringue may be baked in a slow steady oven or in a very hot oven. The latter procedure seals the meringue faster If you have the time to watch the pie carefully as it is browning, the hotter oven is recommended.

Care finally should be taken not to cool the pie in drafts which will sometimes cause the meringue to shrink.

Used canned apricot nectar or apricot juice in today's apricot and prune meringue pie.

Apricot and Prune Meringue Pie

Bake a 9-inch pie shell, using your favorite mix or any standard recipe calling for 1 cup flour. Cool the pie shell.

Combine in a heavy saucepan 1-2 cup sugar and 3 1-2 tablespoons cornstarch. Add 1 1-3 cups canned apricot nectar or apricot juice. Add 1 teaspoon lemon juice.

Cook over a low flame, stirring constantly, until mixture thickens and cloudiness of cornstarch disappears.

Beat 2 egg yolks about 30 seconds. Add a small amount of the hot mixture to the egg yolks. Stir well. Pour yolks into saucepan and continue to boil, stirring well, for about 1 minute. Remove from heat.

Add 2 tablespoons butter beating well until butter melts. Add 1 cup coarsely chopped, cooked pitted prunes. Pour mixture into pie shell.

Beat 2 egg whites (at room temperature) - with 1-4 teaspoon cream of tartar until fluffy but not stiff. Very gradually, while continuing to beat, add 1-4 cup white syrup continuing to beat until very stiff and glossy. In place of syrup 4 tablespoons sugar may be used. Preheat oven 20 minutes at 475 degrees.

Spread meringue to edge of pie shell. Place pie 8 to 10 minutes in oven or until brown. Remove. Cool on a cake rack. Keep pie away from drafts.

ADVICE to the LOVELORN

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

A man with poor judgment about women

Dear Miss Fairfax:

Can you tell us how we can help my brother out of a mess he is in? It is breaking the whole family's heart.

He has become involved with a woman who is trying to rope him into marriage, although she has never been legally free from her first husband, who left her because he couldn't stand living with her. She then went and lived with another man, who died shortly thereafter. Now she is trying to get a third man—my brother—who is 24 years old to her 42.

P.W.W.

Dear P.W.W.:

I am afraid there is very little you can do to influence your brother in this matter. Usually, in cases of this sort, and unfortunate as it is, the man has to find out for himself that a woman is not the type to make him a good wife. Anyone who tries to persuade him out of his infatuation only succeeds in making him more determined to have his own way. And criticism makes him defend his choice of a woman more stubbornly, not only through misguided chivalry, but because he feels his own intelligence has been questioned.

There is nothing in the world harder than to see a member of one's own family deliberately heading for trouble, and not be able to stop him. Take my word for it, though, you will never get anywhere by arguing and pleading. All you will succeed in accomplishing will be to keep him, yourself and the whole family in an emotional uproar. Silence may eventually work where a lot of talk won't.

Introductions by mail are unwise

Dear Miss Fairfax:

Could you please tell me how to contact some "Lonely Hearts?" I am a man of 40 and very lonely, and would like to correspond with some nice woman, but I don't know how to go about it. Could you give me some addresses?

Mrs. L.

Dear Mr. L.:

Yours is a question that is very frequently asked me, and I always have to make the same answer.

My answer is, that I don't believe it is ever a wise thing for people to strike up an acquaintance with strangers through the mails. I am sure if you think this over carefully, you will agree that any such procedure has its hazards.

Isn't there some club in your community, either at a church or elsewhere, which you could join and where you would find new friends of both sexes? Even if you were to join some sort of all-male group, it could easily happen that, after you had become good friends with some of the members, they would invite you to their homes, where you might meet sisters or other feminine relatives. After all, an unattached man of 40 is a person much in demand socially, so do not under-rate yourself.

Try to meet people in the conventional manner, and you will be much more likely to make the sort of friends you would like to have.

New Sweater Set Harmonious

By PRUNELLA WOOD

YOU can see by this picture that this is a good classic sweater set, but the news about the set has to be described.

Seems that instead of exactly matching the cardigan and slipover color, the latter are heather-hued, so-called, meaning that they are a paler version of the identical color of the cardigans and in a hazy tone, not merely lighter.

Clear as mud, no doubt, but pretty to see, take cur word. Colors are ruby red, gray, green, brown and black, and although not expensive, the models are pure Australian zephyr wool, soft and hardy.

SOUTH AFRICAN SUNDAY

Port Elizabeth, South Africa—(CP) —There is nothing quite so dull as a South African Sunday, say Mr. and Mrs. A. Sulzberger, honeymooning here. Mr. Sulzberger, the son of Arthur Hays Sulzberger publisher of the New York Times, says: "We get on fine with South Africans during the week, but on Sundays everything closes up, including people."

GOOD MANNERS

By MRS. BEECKMAN

Widow knows correct name-form . . .some friends don't

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

I am a widow. Socially I prefer to be known as Mrs. John E. Robbins, also to have my mail and so forth addressed to Mrs. John E. Robbins. But some of my friends, when writing to me, address the envelopes to "Mrs. Marion Robbins". Please do tell me which is correct.

M. D. R.

You are correct . . . and I am so glad that you are doing your best to hold on to the correct form of name for a widow to use. And it's too bad that there are so many people ignorant of the correct form for a widow's name. It isn't easy to inform them what's what, but if I were you I would take every means I could think of to "direct" their attention to the name-form you so correctly prefer. One excellent way is the correct form of name engraved on the informal on which you wrote to me. And although it is usually unnecessary to indicate your formal name in your signature to letters to friends, I suggest that, for a while at least, you write your formal name in parentheses under your signature to the letters you write to these friends who use the incorrect form of name for you. Like this:

Sincerely,
Marion Robbins
(Mrs. John E. Robbins)

Also be positive that your name is correctly listed in the telephone directory (Robbins, Mrs. John E.) and in any other "public appearance" of your name.

Fiance is right. . .bride's mother should not wear black dress

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

1. I am to be married soon, and we would like to know if it would be correct for my mother to wear a black dress if, with this, she wears light-colored accessories. She is a woman not too big, and black seems to look best on her. My fiance and I are having a difference of opinion about this, and we would like to have you settle it.

2. Also please tell me the proper way to put the wedding invitation in the outside envelope.

Constant Reader

1. Naturally it is best form, surest taste, for the bride's mother, so importantly the hostess of the wedding, not to wear black, more suitable to funerals. Even if black is very becoming to her, and even if she is planning to lighten it by wearing light-colored accessories, I see no reason why she can't choose another color. . . a dark, rich blue, for example, or a rich shade of burgundy, if she insists on wearing a dark shade. If, as I judge, your fiance is urging your mother not to wear a black dress, she should be graciously co-operative with his taste (and probably his mother's too) inasmuch as there is obviously some question about the sureness of her own taste.

2. The inside envelope, the unsealed one, is inserted so that it faces the back of the outside envelope.

BEAUTY

Technique with the lipstick

Time was when the powder pad was considered Friend No. 1 to a woman; now it is the lipstick. A shiny nose is no beauty bargain, but bare lips are worse! There are women who don't comb their hair before breakfast, but they find time for lip tinting. The rosy glow just does something.

Modern women have found more magic in lipstick than in any other items of make-up. It isn't that they are eager to change the pattern of their mouth portals, but the gay color makes them feel more vivid and interesting. Of course, they can do a little remodelling but that is beauty trickery and they must know precisely what they are about.

The lipstick .is now considered woman's number one friend.

If a girl's face is round and childlike, she may wish to subordinate a large mouth that seems to be out of harmony with features that are delicate. She needs two tones of lipstick, varying ever so slightly in color, using the darker shade on the lower lip so that fullness will not be so apparent. Vivid shades of red she must avoid.

Are you the piquant type with narrow, pointed chin? Narrow lips may create a sharpness of features, so it is well to broaden them slightly.

In the matter of color, it is surprising what a wide choice one has. At cosmetic bars there is a new arrangement called an individual shade tester on which you rub lipstick, transferring the tint to your mouth portals with your fingertip. If the first color isn't flattering, the attendant will hand you a moistened cotton pledget to be used for its removal and you can try again.

A golden complexion— and you'll see many of them this time of the year—call for orange red. If you have petted your complexion, guarded it from the blistering rays of the sun, you may prefer a raspberry which is close to the true color. Good taste and your mirror must be your guide.

The girl with a creamy complexion, brown eyes and dark hair will probably prefer a dark lipstick, will forego the use of cheek rouge. Some young ladies who would "look different" are falling for a brownish-red. But you have to be careful about such innovations; they aren't long lived, especially if they are not glamorizing.

It is necessary that the surface of the lips be kept soft and smooth in order to have a pretty mouth. Parched, peeling skin will make the most beautifully outlined lips unattractive. While lipsticks generally are of an oily consistency, it is wise to have a white one to use at bedtime.

BABY'S UPSET STOMACH
QUICKLY CORRECTED

BABY'S little "Tummy" is often easily upset. It is easily righted again, too, if you know just how to do it. Let Mrs. M. S. Alway, of London, Ont., tell you: "Baby's Own Tablets are a great help at the first sign of upset stomach, during teething time or when a cold is coming on. They work quickly yet gently to carry away poisons and promote restful comfort."

And Mrs. W. R. Sharp says: "I nursed my baby shortly after being alarmed over a motor accident and her stomach became quite upset. I gave her Baby's Own Tablets and she soon stopped crying—and quieted down."

Equally effective for teething troubles, constipation, simple fever. Sweet-tasting, easily crushed to a powder, if desired—prompt in action. No "sleepy" stuff—no dulling effect. Buy a box today for sickness so often strikes in the night. 29 cents.

Ichthyologist Tells in Hospital Of Ride on Shark

Vienna, — (Reuters) — Big sharks let you ride them, but little ones bite.

Dr. Hans Hass, Austrian deep sea explorer, ichthyologist and shark fighter, made this discovery during investigations into life in the Red Sea.

In a recorded talk from the hospital in Port Sudan where he was at the time, he said: "I found a huge 'whale-shark', the biggest shark I have ever seen. It was between 22 and 34 feet long and had a body as thick through as a locomotive boiler.

"Yet this monster of the deep was mild mannered as can be.

"He posed as though flattered for photographs (taken with Dr. Hass's special undersea camera outfit), let me ride on his broad back and even let me take him by the underjaw and open his huge mouth so that he could take photographs of his immense gaping maw in which a dozen or so small fishes were playing around.

"By punches on the neck I got him to rise to the surface and then, holding him by the tail, to give me a long ride."

When Dr. Hass tired of this sport, the shark retired to the depths from which the skilled diver had brought him.

"The same day," Dr. Hass continued, "I harpooned a small shark through the tail. I then seized the creature by the tail, which is usually a quite safe thing to do as the body of the shark is so thick and stiff as a rule that it cannot turn quickly.

"But this small shark twisted with the speed of a biting dog and seized my arm.

"I swam to the surface but the shark let go only when, with my last strength, I managed to get my arm above the surface of the sea."

Undersea Monster

Dr. Hass then had to swim quickly the 40 yards to his boat, for once the many sharks in the area tasted the blood in the water they would all be after him.

He was taken to the hospital in Port Sudan wher three long gashes in his arm were treated.

Dr. Hass is busy, with a small expedition, trying to make the first under-water color films of the wonder of deep-sea life of the Red Sea. He has perfected a special apparatus which can record underwater sounds otherwise insudible to the human ear and which also enables him to give running commentaries to his films.

Last year, Dr. Hass brought back to Vienna a wonderful series of still photographs of giant devil-rays, some of which measured 10 to 15 feet from fin to fin, and of fearful, yet beautiful, underseascapes showing coral reefs. Amid the forests, hills and valleys of these were giant mussels with multi-colored flesh frilling out over their shiny blue shells, arrow-swift tortoises, and evil look muraena, the deep sea eel which can blow itself out like a balloon.

He also had some remarkable pictures of his many fights with sharks.

FERTILE FIELD

Halifax—(CP) — Nova Scotia with its gripping history and diverse Celtic, English and French temperaments, should prove a fertile field for authors, says United States army captain M. D. Morrison. On a visit here Mr. Morrison said it was regretable that more of the provinces' writing lore was not developed.

More Swimmers Churning Way Across Channel

Dover England, Aug. 24 (AP) Two more swimmers headed across the English Channel in opposite directions— just a few hours after seven men and two women churned their way through the strait in an historic mass crossing.

Two other Britain-bound marathoners— Frenchman Georges Alfonsi and Dutchman Joseph Van Waal—gave up early this morning, less than halfway to their goal.

The England-to-France swimmer was 18-year-old Philip Mickman British swimming wonder, who took off at 7:45 a.m. (2:45 a.m. EDT) from just west of Dover Harbor to try for his second channel conquest and his first crossing in that direction.

He began his try exactly a year from the time he conquered the France-to-England route in 23 hours 48 minutes.

The other 3 of Wednesday's starters began at Cap Griz Nez, France, heading toward this ancient channel port. One of them —the Belgian Fernand du Moulin —was so confident he planned to swim back again after a 15-minute rest.

Mouling, who made the crossing last year in 21 hours and 48 minutes, tossed off a bottle of champagne and entered the water at 2:36 a.m. (9.36 p.m. EDT, Tuesday).

He was preceded by Alfonsi, 36-year-old oil refinery engineer and Van Waas, 20-year-old Dutchman from Bergen Op Zoom.

Believe Buckoski Will Fight Extradition

Toronto, Aug. 25. (CP)—Police said today they believe Stanley Buckoski of Toronto, held in Los Angeles on a warrant charging him with murdering Alfred Layng in Toronto a year ago, will fight against being brought to Canada to face trial.

Buckoski, known to Los Angeles police as Frank Miller, was arrested on charges of armed robbery, burglary and escaping custody. Investigation showed that he was wanted by Toronto police as a suspect in the Layng shooting.

KILLED IN COLLISION

Sarnia, Aug. 23 (CP) —James Douglas, 28, of nearby Wilkesport was killed yesterday when his truck was involved in a crash on a sideroad, 10 miles from here.

Frightened Horse Odd Gate-Crasher

London, Aug. —(CP)—A horse knocked at Mrs. Elizabeth Butcher's front door.

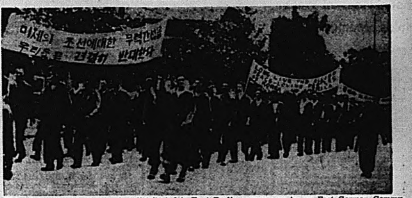
When she answered, the door collapsed and a horse's head and shoulders appeared.

Witnesses said a passing truck had frightened the horse, which was pulling a truck. It bolted dragging the driverless truck behind it, and crashed into Mrs. Butcher's door.

BERMUDA UNION

Halifax—(CP)—The possibility of Burma becoming Canada's 11th province is being suggested by "a great many important persons in Bermuda," says William S. Purvis, Nova Scotian-born president of a Bermuda importing firm. "Many people contend it would be the best thing that Bermuda could do," he said.

PARADE U. S. PRISONERS IN SEOUL



This picture is one of a number distributed to East Berlin newspapers by an East German Communist news agency. A literal translation of the caption is as follows: "In the battlefield the soldiers of U. S. imperialism are inferior to the Korean people's army." The picture shows a group of U. S. war prisoners paraded by Communists in Seoul. The slogan on their banners are "Long live the Allied peace-loving peoples of Korea and America."

RAWDON

Mount Pleasant WMS Holds Memorial Service

Rawdon.—The regular meeting of Mount Pleasant Woman's Missionary Society was recently held at the church with the president, Mrs. Roy Thrasher, in charge.

The opening worship and devotional was in the form of a special memorial service in memory of Mrs. Allan Bailey, of Mount Pleasant, and Mrs F. G. Joblin, Port Perry, both of whom passed into higher service in May of this years. Mrs. Bailey had been honorary president for several years, a charter and life member and attended nearly all the meetings. Mrs. Joblin was a former president of Mount Pleasant W.M.S., when her husband was minister of Rawdon circuit and she leaves as a lasting monument, three sons in the ministry.

Loving Tributes

Mrs. John Holmes placed a basket of mixed gladioli on a pedestal stand at the church altar in loving memory of Mrs. F. G. Joblin and Mrs. Frank Jeffs placed another basket of "glads" in memory of Mrs. Allan Bailey. The group sang "For All the Saints Who From Their Labors Rest".

Mrs. Percy MacMullen read a memorial tribute based on "The Mirror of Memory" and she furnished the flowers from her garden. Two minutes silence was observed and a special prayer offered.

The supply secretary will write Morris, Manitoba, re the bed there and quilt blocks for future supply work will be gladly received. The June expenses will be paid and the new study book "Japan Begins Again" ordered.

Mrs. Frank Jeffs will be hostess for the next meeting on September 13th.

Miss Marilyn Holmes, Kingston, gathered the offering of almost $3 and this was dedicated.

The program was based on "The World Convention on Christian Education". A portion of this study was taken from the Monthly based on the theme "Jesus Christ Teacher and Lord". Divine guidance was asked for all the delegates in attendance at the World Convention in Toronto that they might be given renewed strength and wisdom to carry on this great work.

Once in a lifetime it is the privilege of Christian workers in Canada to meet with native representatives from the new churches in other countries.

Miss Betty McConnell read "The World Convention on Christian Education".

Many Drinking Places

The Temperance secretary said it is estimated that there are 18,000 drinking places in Ontario.

Miss Ruth Linn sang "In the Garden".

Mrs. Frank Jaffs synopsized the last chapter of "Growing With the Years". She pictured graphically the sharing and sacrifice of such noted missionaries and workers as Rev. Helen Pen, director of Religious Education in Chengtu; Captain R. C. Scott, of the Pacific Coast Missions; Rev. Clifford Grant, Central India, and many others. All these have a channel of service and often say "I Had to Go".

A full-time Christian service meets the main tests of what youth demands in a vocation and the service of Christ does not lack adventure. The United Church has pioneered in a great many ventures for Christ. The most encouraging feature of the last 25 years has been the number of second generation people who have applied for appointment to the fields abroad where their parents served and they grew up as children.

FORESEE WORLD OF CENTENARIANS

—Central Press Canadian

It may not be long before life expectancy of man is 110 to 125 years, Dr. Martin L. Gumpert tells national conference on problems of the aged in Washington. Dr. Gumpert, a New York specialist in treatment of the aged, says one of the prime factors in upping life expectancy is emphasis on preventive rather than emergency medicine.

Ministers Needed

The United Church is short 425 ministers for the proclamation of the gospel and the shepherding of the Saints in Canada, and her mission fields in other lands. The Woman's Missionary Society needs 70 missionaries, doctors, nurses, teachers, evangelists and deaconesses.

Only a small fraction of the members of the Christian community will ever be able to give their lives to full-time Christian vocations, but all can be faithful stewards so that others can go in their place. By means of gifts, God enables folks to cross continents and oceans and help their fellowmen in various ways. As W.M.S. women and church members everywhere celebrate "the 25th anniversary of union, may they take to heart the inscription on the doorstep of a great European cathedral", "He who leaves no gift on the altar carries no blessing away."

Over 400 Delegates Attended Sixth Triennial Conference

Rawdon.—Among a group of over 40 delegates and visitors, who are attending the sixth triennial conference of the Canadian Association of the Country Women of the World to be held in Copenhagen, Denmark, September 10-16 are several ladies, who have visited this district and are prominent in Institute work.

Mrs. J. R. Futcher, president of the provincial W.I. groups, and Miss Anna P. Lewis, editor of the Institute paper "Home and Country". The Canadian party is headed by Mrs. E. E. Morton, Vegreville, Alberta, who attended the area convention in Belleville, last Fall. Mrs. Raymond Sayre, Ackworth, Iowa, U.S., president A.C.W.W.; is also one of the party. This district had the distinct honor of hearing her address the W.I. on May 9th.

The ladies are sailing this week on the S.S. "Empress of France" to represent their provincial Women's Institutes.

Canadian Tour

An all Canadian tour has been arranged which will take the group through Great Britain and the Scandinavian countries. Two ladies from Quebec are in the party and Mrs. R. Thomson, Abbotsford, Quebec, president of the Quebec Institutes, will be guest speaker at a rally of Scottish Women Institute members at Stirling, Scotland.

The group will also visit the famous Denman College in England. Institute members in Belleville area are interested in the success of this delegation.
